WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama at its last extraordinary session ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which proposed amendment is herein set out, and ordered that the election be held on the first Tuesday after the expiration of three months from and after the final adjournment of the said session of the Legislature at which the amendment was proposed, and

WHEREAS, the said session of the Legislature at which the said amendment was proposed finally adjourned on Friday, April 14, 1933, and the first Tuesday after three months from and after the said final adjournment of the said session of the Legislature is Tuesday, July 18, 1933, and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, is required by law to be given by a proclamation of the Governor;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, B. M. Miller, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday the 18th day of July, 1933, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama in the manner and form required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:—

ARTICLE XXII. The Legislature shall have the power to levy and collect taxes for State purposes on net incomes from whatever source derived within this State, including the incomes derived from salaries, fees and compensation paid from the State, County, Municipality, and any agency or creature thereof, for the calendar year, 1933, and thereafter and to designate and define the incomes to be taxed and to fix the rates of taxes provided that the rate shall not exceed 5 per cent nor 3 per cent on corporations. Income shall not be deemed property for purposes of ad valorem taxes. From net income an exemption of not less than Fifteen Hundred Dollars ($1500.00) shall be allowed to unmarried persons and an exemption of not less than Three Thousand Dollars ($3000.00) shall be allowed to the head of a family, provided that only one exemption shall be allowed to husband and wife where they are living together and make separate returns for income tax. An exemption of not less than Three Hundred Dollars ($300.00) shall be allowed for each dependent member of the family of an income tax payer under the age of 18 years. The Legislature shall reduce the ad valorem tax from time to time when and to such an amount as the revenue derived from the income tax will justify. In the event the Legislature levies an income tax, such tax must be levied upon the salaries, incomes, fees, or other Compensation of State, County and Municipal Officers and employees, on the same basis as such income taxes are levied upon other persons. All income derived from such tax shall be held in trust for the payment of the floating debt of Alabama until all debts due on Oct. 1st, 1932, are paid and thereafter used exclusively for the reduction of State ad valorem taxes.

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks next preceding the 18th day of July, 1933, in each County of the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said County.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this the 3rd day of May, 1933.

JESUS FACES BETRAYAL AND DENIAL

LESSON TEXT—Mark 14:10-72.
GOLDEN TEXT—He is despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief: and we hid as it were our faces from him; he was despised, and we esteemed him not. Isaiah 53:3.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus and Peter.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Lord's Supper.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Loyalty in Times of Testing.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Fellowship of His Sufferings.

I. Judas' Bargain With the Chief Priests (vv. 10, 11).

This black crime was committed immediately following the beautiful act of devotion by Mary (John 12:1).

II. The Last Passover (vv. 12-25).

1. The preparation (vv. 12-16). In reply to the inquiry of the disciples as to where they should prepare the Passover for him, Jesus told them to go into the city where they would meet a man bearing a pitcher of water, whom they should follow. In the house, to which they would be led, would be a guest chamber, a large upper room, where they should make ready the Passover.

2. The betrayal announced (vv. 17-21). The betrayal was to be by one of the disciples who was eating with Jesus.

3. The sacrament of the bread and cup (vv. 22-25). These were symbols of his broken body and shed blood by which he made atonement for man's sins.

III. Jesus Foretells the Cowardice of the Disciples (vv. 26-31).

In spite of their turning from him, Jesus assured them that after his resurrection he would go before them into Galilee. Peter assured Jesus that he would not forsake him.

IV. The Agony in Gethsemane (vv. 32-42).

1. Jesus Christ's agony (vv. 32-34).

a. The place (v. 32). The Garden of Gethsemane, an enclosure containing olive and fig trees, beyond the brook Kidron, about three-fourths of a mile from Jerusalem. Gethsemane means olive press. Edersheim says it is an emblem of trial, distress, and agony.

b. His companions (v. 33). He took with him the eleven disciples, that as far as possible they might share his sorrow with him.

c. His great sorrow (v. 34). This is the same "cup" as in verse 36. It was not primarily the prospect of physical suffering that was crushing him; it was his suffering as a sin bearer—his pure soul coming into contact with the awful sin and guilt of the world. God caused the iniquities of the world to strike upon Jesus (II Cor. 5:21; Isa. 53:6).

2. Jesus Christ praying (vv. 35-42)

a. The first prayer (vv. 35-38).

(1) His posture (v. 35). He fell on his face prostrate to the ground.

(2) His petition (v. 36). By the cup is meant his death on the cross. While it was grievous to endure the shame of the cross, he pressed on knowing that for this cause he had come into the world. (John 12:27, 28; cf. Heb 2:14).

(3) His resignation (v. 36). He knew that his death on the cross was the will of God the Father, for he was the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world.

(4) The disciples rebuked (v. 37). He singled out Peter, since he had been the most conspicuous in proclaiming his loyalty (John 13:38).

(5) Exhortation to the disciples (v. 38). He said, "Watch and pray lest ye enter into temptation."

b. The second prayer (vv. 39, 40). He withdrew the second time and uttered the same words in prayer.

c. The third prayer (vv. 41, 42). He uttered the same words in his third prayer (Matt. 26:44). He now told the disciples to sleep on and take their rest as the hour had come for his betrayal.

V. The Betrayal and Arrest of Jesus (vv. 43-65).

1. The sign to the mob (vv. 43-47) With the basest of hypocrisy Judas designated Jesus to the mob by a kiss, the token of love.

2. Jesus forsaken by all (vv. 48-52). One of the disciples attempted to defend Jesus by resorting to the sword (Matt. 26:51). At Jesus' rebuke for this act the disciples all fled.

VI. Peter Denies the Lord (vv. 66-72).

His failure was due to:

1. Boasting self-confidence (vv. 29-31).
2. Lack of watchfulness (v. 37).
3. Neglect of prayer (v. 38).
4. Service in the energy of the flesh (v. 47).
5. Following Jesus afar off (v. 54).
6. Seeking company among the Lord's enemies (v. 67).

"ARTICLE XXIV. All provisions of the Constitution which prohibit or restrict the Legislature from decreasing or diminishing the salary, fees or compensation of any executive, legislative or judicial officer or of any public officer or of any officer holding any civil office of profit under this State or any County or Municipality thereof, whether elected or appointed, during the term for which he shall have been elected or appointed are hereby suspended until October 1, 1935. Any other Act of the Legislature adopted prior to October 1, 1935, decreasing or diminishing the salary, fees or compensation of any such officer or officers, during the term for which such officer or officers may have been elected or appointed, shall be effective from and after the first day of the month next succeeding the date of the ratification and adoption of this amendment, or from and after the adoption by the Legislature of any such Act decreasing or diminishing the salary, fees or compensation of such officer or officers."

PROVIDENCE SINGING SUNDAY WAS ENJOYED BY BIG CROWD

The thirty-fourth annual session of the Salem May singing met at Providence in Beat 16 last Sunday. All other services at the church gave way and the entire day was devoted to singing. The chairman, R. Robinson, called the singing to order at 10:00 o'clock with a song, and the opening prayer was offered by Rev. M. J. Parrish. Services after noon were opened with prayer by Rev. Joe Thomas.

For the past third of a century this annual singing has been one of the most widely attended events in our county. It was held at old Salem until that church was abandoned ten years ago, Providence taking it up and carrying it on since that time. Old residents of Salem and Providence communities look forward to this date every year as a time when they may come together and enjoy a reunion as well as a day of good singing. People usually attend from several adjoining counties as well as from Birmingham and Montgomery.

During the day several quartets were sung by the Jemison quartet, headed by A. H. Glasscock. One special number in the afternoon was sung by W. M. Devaughn, Ralph Grant, Akins Collins and Mrs. Marion Mims. Another interesting feature on the program was a couple of solos sung by Ralph Grant, of Coopers. Mr. Grant is a talented as well as cultured singer, and his numbers are always received with much applause.

The arrangement committee was composed of Jasper Robinson, Marion Easterling and R. M. Robinson, who were appointed by the chairman at the beginning of the services. Some of the directors sang two songs, while others were allowed to use only one on account of the abundance of directors and the scarcity of time. Those singing were:

J. W. Clackler, Marion Easterling, L. F. Clackler, J. E. Miner, E. L. Glasscock, E. L. Powell, J. E. Varner, A. H. Glasscock, M. L. Mims, Miss Delene Robinson, Calvin Robinson, Mrs. Irene Mims, Marie and Evelyn Robinson, R. M. Robinson, R. T. Grant, T. E. Wyatt, A. O. Boswell, O. L. Devaughn, A. I. Collins, Dr. J. B. Williams, W. M. Devaughn, W. G. Culp, L. T. Grant, Akins Mims, Lee J. Grant, C. M. Billingsley, Emmett Wilson, G. C. Weldon, D. T. Melton. Directors from out of the county were Joseph E. Varner of New Harmony in Elmore County, and Akins Mims from Chunchula in Mobile County.

After a few announcements the closing song was sung by D. T. Melton, and the benediction was pronounced by Rev. W. W. Robinson.

The order and behavior both in the house and on the premises all during the day was excellent. The people of Providence wish to express their appreciation to the large crowd of people for their good order during the day. It shows that the people were interested in the services.—R. Robinson, Chairman; J. W. Clackler, Secretary.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

The acclaim of President Roosevelt's address to the rulers of the nations of the globe to disarm and to agree to refrain from invading the territory of other nations, is world wide. That it is a noble effort and deserves a noble fate, goes without saying. Even Chancellor Hitler, who has earned for himself the title of fire-brand of Europe, approves of the message. German leaders are said to have expressed joy that the United States was going to take a wider interest in international affairs. Everybody abroad seems to want to get Uncle Sam into Europe. The unanimity of opinion on the subject is so pronounced that it leads to the opinion that there is something behind it which has not yet been made public. Europe is seldom agreed on any one proposition unless it is one which will benefit Europe even at the expense of some other part of the world.

Although the world-wide praise which has greeted the president's appeal is gratifying to us, as a matter of national pride, it is too early to do any real celebrating as to what is going to be accomplished. The path is a long and arduous one. We seem to remember of times in the not distant past when European diplomats have made haste to praise pronouncements by American Presidents and then nothing came of it. Gladly hailing a plan in principle, and then disagreeing on the working out of the details until the plan is destroyed, seems to be one of the favorite pastimes of European politicians. This is not to say that the people of the countries of Europe do not want peace and disarmamanet. They want all of that, but each nation wants to write terms of peace and to have "for safety" an extra cannon or two over what the other fellow possesses. This is only human nature. It is all right for Americans to criticize, but if Uncle Sam did not have 3,000 miles of ocean to the east and the west of him, if he had Japan as a next door neighbor on one side, Great Britain, France, Germany, and Italy as close neighbors on the other, it is very doubtful whether he would scorn the idea of having an extra bayonet up his sleeve for a rainy day.

That Europe is overcrowded, and filled with nations nursing hostile traditions of more than a thousand years standing, is not our fault. It is perhaps our duty to give good advice, and to encourage peace and disarmament wherever and whenever possible, to do our share in any reducing of armaments which may be agreed on. It is doubtful, however, and certainly the American people would disapprove, whether it is our duty to go so far, in the supposed interests of peace, as to enter any agreement which would commit us to join an international combine to put down trouble and rioting whenever this occurred in Europe.

For example: ever since the World War, France has been seeking to get the United States to join in a "security pact" which means ultimately a pact to guarantee the present boundaries in Europe. As we did not help establish these boundaries it is difficult to realize where we have any great obligation in the matter. Now, we are told, France will be satisfied if we agree to a simple, little "consultative" pact. Maybe so, and then again perhaps the pact, after it was signed, wouldn't turn out to be so simple as had been expected. Certainly France will not be satisfied with anything which does not give her assurance that we would rush to her aid in case of trouble. A pact without such moral assurance would be useless to her, and would not change the present situation in the least.

Let us have both peace and disarmament, if possible. But in order to try to get them let us hope Uncle Sam will not agree to any punitive engagement in advance. The risk and the danger would be greater than any possible reward.

HITLER'S SPEECH

There is no question that the speech of Adolf Hitler, in the German parliment, follow the world message of President Roosevelt, has served to ease the tension existing in international circles for a time at least. There were many who feared a bombastic and militaristic outburst from the German leader which might have led straight to war. Now the danger has been postponed for the present.

The message, however, is what might have been expected, unless it was to turn out that the German chancellor was entirely mad. Germany cannot want war now, indeed cannot afford to have it. War would mean the end of German national unity and the ushering in of communism, not only for that country, but for Central Europe as a whole. That Hitler, despite the saber rattling of the past few weeks, realizes this, is evident from his speech. Germany may decide to go to war later but if it does it will be when she is better prepared than at persent.

This leads to the interesting question as to whether France and Poland if there is to be no disarmament can afford to wait until Germany is rearmed, or whether it would not be better from their standpoint to crush Hitler by force of arms now, when he is not yet completely "organized" so to speak. This is a question which is not considered in America, though it is one of common discussion in Europe where the ramifications of international politics are better understood on this side of the Atlantic. It may be answered that in attacking, France and Poland would lose world sympathy. But this is not entirely certain. The world propaganda machinery is now directed against Hitler in every country, and France and her allies could easily claim that such a war was a defensive one; that they were only attacking before Germany attacked them. At least here is one war danger that must be counted as among the possibilities.

Of course, many of the responsibile statesmen of the world, including President Roosevelt, hope to avert the danger of war by a disarmament agreement. Whether this can be done remains to be seen. A lot is yet to be accomplished before there is any real agreement at Geneva. And Europe is going to expect Uncle Sam to do most of it, by underwriting the peace of Europe.

WE MUST STOP LEANING ON THE GOVERNMENT

Benard M. Baruch, the well known financier, in an address at the John Hopkins Institute, declared with great emphasis that the courage of the people would put an end to the exising economic crisis. The present trouble he attributes to debts and taxes; and, unfortunately, he says, "we are trying to remedy the fault with more debts and more taxes."

He contends that we need leadership rather than dictatorship and feels that the immediate duty is to cooperate with the administration, regardless of partisanship, in every sound and constructive measure for the restoration of normal conditions. He would abandon nostrums and expedients and get down to hard pan. We have had an overabundance of talk; what we need is action. The people, above everything else, are sick of inertia.

But the most notable feature of Mr. Baruch's address is his insistence that the people must be taught not to lean upon the government for everything they need. A hurt child cries for its mother, and according to the financier, many persons come to look upon the government as a mother. He puts it in this fashion: "Mother Government, the giver of all good, the receiver of all blame, the first and last refuge from every evil." But we regard this as a great mistake, since government flows from the people and no government is stronger than the people it governs.

Some of the sane things he says might have come from the lips of Calvin Coolidge. He deplores the fact that there is hardly a class which seems willing to stand on its feet. "Everybody," he declares, "leans against the government, blind to the fact that government by its very nature leans against everybody.". It is a fantastic picture when nothing stands up straight and our economic surroundings whirl dizzily. It is a paradox with people starving in the presence of too much food; homeless in streets of vacant houses; and ill-clad before bales of surplus wool and cotton.

"We need leadership and a definite plan," asserts this authority, "but neither a dictator with no plan to dictate, nor a magician with a patent plan. We must reduce governmental spending and reform debts."

That sounds like a remedy in a single sentence. And he assures us that reorganization of debt needs neither bankruptcy nor repudiation. It is time we rid ourselves of the notion that the extension of federal power is the cure for our ills, when, as a matter of fact, it is more likely to increase them.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

SENATOR COOLIDGE ON TARIFF

With the attention of the country now centered on international problems growing out of the disarmament conference, the question of the protective tariff and tariff agreements has been thrust into the background for the time being. The fact is not to be lost of, however, that this tariff question, which is as old as our nation, is full of potential trouble for the dominant political party.

The reason, is, of course, that our tariff policy is no longer a partisan question. This is especially true since the Roosevelt landslide last fall swept into office Democratic representatives and senators who represent states and districts which must have tariff protection for their economic welfare.

A case in point is the state of Massachusetts. Oliver McKee, Jr., in a recent dispatch to the Boston Transcript sets out that Democratic Senator Marcus Coolidge, of the Bay State, is disposed to scan sharply the tariff proposals of the national administration, and recalls the fact that during the time Secretary of State Hull was a member of the Senate, the Massachusetts Senator did not always see eye to eye with him on the questions of tariffs. And there are other statesmen of the majority party who are in the same category.

Setting forth his views for the Transcript, Senator Coolidge said: "The tariff rates are so fixed at the present time that I do not see how any considerable change can be made between our government and foreign governments on tariff schedules. I have felt that possibly in place of tariff revision, we might have some sort of a tariff truce, or moratorium, which migth be called a trade agreement, limited as to place and time. Prospects for this are indefinite at the present time. I should not be friendily disposed, now any more than in the past, to any plan or arrangement whereby European mass production, which in many instances is assisted by a government subsidiary, will interfere with New England and Massachusetts industry."

Massachusetts is not the only state interested in the tariff. Such concern extends even to the agricultural states, and if, for example, a trade agreement is entered into with Argentina, permitting the corn and meat products of that country to come to the United States in competition with American agricultural products, the howl of protest will be loud enough to be heard even through the thick walls of the state department building at Washington—providing of course any one there is disposed to listen.

CHURCHES BEAT DEPRESSION

Churches are beating the depression. Gains in membership and attendance are practical proofs of it. More convincing still is the testimony of a heightened interest in church work and a definite gain in spiritual values.

A survey of the depression status of representative protestant churches, conducted by the church editor of the Plain Dealer, verifies what many have noted—a disposition of many harried by the blows of depression to seek the solace of religion.

Financially the churches are having their troubles. Subscriptions for the support of the church vie with doctors' bills in slow payment. Those congregations which built costly homes on the strength of probable trends in surbaban growth are meeting the same obstacles which harass secular investors.

Budgets generally have been curtailed, but most of them are balanced. Ministers' salaries are down, and frequently hard to collect. But most ministers are no strangers to poverty, even in the so-called prosperous years. Now, as always, they accept the burden patiently and cheerfully, rewarded by the fact that empty pews are fewer.

Churches of every creed are obeying the scriptual injunctions to help the needy. They are assisting members of their own congregations and in a great many instances assuming large additional burdens. Thus the churches are leading, both in their local fields and in the larger task of helping world and nation to meet the painful adjustments of a disturbed era.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

MAN IN THE MOON

Looks Over All—Overlooks None

Hiding

From time to time I hear people comment on other people or groups of people in a manner which is highly uncomplimentary. But in so doing they show their own littleness, rather than any reflection on the object of their remarks. One merchant will not enter a trade association because some other merchant is in it; some person will not attend church because some certain person is a member of that church; a member of an order will not take an active part in the lodge, because some other member is not to his liking. There are numbers of cases of this kind. These people are hiding—hiding behind the people whom they dislike. And at times they utter cutting remarks about them. Always, the speaker is lowered in the esteem of his listeners, rather than the person at whom his remarks are directed. I know you have heard of instances of this kind. We all have. But just remember this: If one must hide, he must find something to hide behind that is bigger than he is, himself. People know this, and when they hear someone bemeaning another, and "will not have anything to do with it, if Mr. So-and-So is in it," they form the opinion right then, that Mr. So-and-So must surely be a pretty good sort of fellow. Isn't that right.

How Much Can You "Tote?"

I started something when I told about lifting the 103-pound bag of money last week. One fellow told me he could run with 500 pounds, especially if it should happen to be money. Another told of seeing a rather small man carry two 200-pound sacks of fertilizer. Another told of seeing a negro carry 500 pounds, and that the negro said that the most he ever remembered carrying was 900 pounds. Another told of lifting a 500-bale of cotton. And another told of seeing a man lift one end of a saw mill boiler. I was thinking of passing out blanks for application for membership in the Ananias Club, when I was very curtly informed that it was all the truth. Can you beat it?

The Kissing Habit

Do you know how the custom of kissing originated? Maybe you were thinking, like I did, that people started kissing as a means of getting next to those whom they loved, and because they loved them. But that isn't right. I have just read an article, like this: The custom of kissing is an old one. In olden days men went on long journeys on foot, and were gone for days and weeks at a time, and were apt to return at most unexpected moments. As a test to see if their wives had been drinking wine, they always kissed them the first thing after returning. It was counted a disgrace for a woman to drink wine, but then, even as now, it seems that at times the fair ones would try to "put one over on the old man" while he was gone. He would turn up unexpectedly and promptly kiss the madam. So we have our custom of kissing as a result of suspicion. Wonder how some of those old fellows would feel if they could come to life now and attend one of the liquor parties, where the boys can hardly get enough to drink because the girlies get the first whack at the bottle?

We've Traded Mounts

Not so long ago our national machine was stalled—dead. The motor had died before that, and so, naturally, if we moved at all we had to go down hill. No matter if our brakes were set, the lining must have been worn thin, for we kept on sliding, any way. The governmental machines of other countries were in about the same shape, but that didn't help our case any. Finally we hit bottom and stopped, and then a new mechanic and driver took the machine in hand. A silver steering wheel was installed instead of the gold one; the motor was adjusted, a new supply of gas ($2,000,000), was dumped in the tank; the old motor was twisted over, and caught fire. Now we are on the big pull back up the hill, and gaining speed every day. Pretty soon we'll be back at the top again, and, as the old machine has had freewheeling installed, too, we can look for some smooth sailing ere long. Pretty fair overhaul job.

Our Baseball Team

Yes, sir, Clanton has a real baseball team. For some time I have been hearing of their practice every afternoon, but I didn't imagine they had such a smooth-working combination until last Thursday afternoon when I attended the game between Clanton and Wilsonville. I went down expecting to see a farce of a game, but was much surprised to witness one of the best games ever played at the local field. Wilsonville was an odds-on favorite to win, inasmuch as they had won four games in a row this season, but our boys greased the skids for them in no uncertain manner, winning 7 to 1. On this club there are youngsters with no experience to speak of, high school players, and a few veterans to keep the youngsters anchored. And, all in all, it combines into a smooth outfit that really plays baseball. The players are giving their time, the merchants of the town have outfitted the team with uniforms, etc., and now it is up to us to support them in order to make everything ship-shape for the season. The admission price is low—only a dime—and if you like baseball, as nearly everyone does, you will certainly get your dime's worth. Come out and pull for the boys. Announcement will be made from time to time in regard to dates of games—watch for them, and attend. You'll be surprised.

Alec Is Back

When I attended the ball game last Thursday afternoon, I spied a youngster over on the bench, and he looked familiar. None other than Alec Hayes. Alec has been away to school at Gulfport Military Academy, and how he has grown for the past year. He isn't a kid any more. And he handles a baseball like a veteran. Alec must have been under a good baseball coach at Gulfport. He didn't work any wonders at the bat, but in the field his work is far above the average. I saw him accept two exceedingly hard chances on hard-hit balls at second base, and on both occasions he came out of the dust with the old horsehide in perfect shape. He is a clean fielder, and, give him time, I expect to see him follow his illustrious brother to the majors. Another good thing about Alec—he can take bouquets or brick-bats with equal poise. If somebody tells him how good he is, he just grins and acepts it without letting it go to his head. If somebody roasts him for some play, the same old grin appears, and he promises to do better next time—he never lets criticism get under his hide. Alec looks like a comer, and I'm pulling for him to make good.

Page Columbus!

Here's a good one to finish up on for this week. Owen D. Young says this country is just about in the same boat with Columbus. When Columbus set sail from Spain, he didn't know where he was going. When he got there he didn't know where he was. And when he returned to Spain, he didn't know where he had been. But I think our case is just a little different. We didn't know where we had started, back in 1929, but we know where we have been, all right. And I'll bet nearly everyone can tell right away. We've been to the bottom. Isn't that right?—Man in the Moon.

PRICE STABILIZATION

Governmental inconsistency is not at all unusual. Few of us have forgotten that a government department can urge the farmers to cut down production and at the same time stimulate production by seed loans and in other ways. The latest apparent inconsistency comes in another direction. At the time that President Roosevelt has been encouraging industry to get together for price stabilization, in the interest of restoring prosperity and putting industry on a sounder basis, at the same time suggesting that certain modifications of the Sherman inti-trust law may be in order, it is noted that Secretary Ickes of the Department of the Interior has attacked the cement industry which claims it is only doing what the president suggests. Mr. Ickes declares that there is a "cement trust" and that it has been formed to hold prices and retard employment, and he adds that bids received by the government for cement to be used on the Hoover Dam display such a uniform price range as to indicate that a "trust" exists.

Commenting on the confusion in the administration circles, Phil S. Hanna, writing in the Chicago Journal of Commerce, has this to say:

"No better illustration of how politics thinks only half way through a situation is found than in the current hulabaloo about cement prices for Boulder Dam. Secretary Ickes is upset because cement prices are nearly all uniform.

"At the same time this wail comes from one side of the cabinet table, another government official is about to embark on a program to raise prices. In addition, the administration itself is bending every effort to increase prices. Overlooking the fact, however, that the cement companies are losing money even at present prices—why is the cement manufacturer singled out and called a conspirator for asking higher prices?

"The half of the picture that politics does not see is that (1) cement prices are almost uniform because the product is uniform, and, like wheat or sugar; (2) portland cement has become a standardized commodity; (3 the costs of production vary but little and the most efficient producer sets a bench mark which less efficient producers have to shoot at. This gives the entire cement market the benefit of the lowest costs in the industry.

"No attention is paid by Secretary Ickes to the fact that all of the leading cement companies lost heavily in 1932 and are reporting losses for the first quarter of 1933. Would it be in line with the president's program of recovery for the cement companies to quote the low prices of last year, and, in order to manufacture at those prices, go out and cut their labor rates, or should they try to get a better price than last year to insure staying in business and paying at least as good labor rates as last year or better?"

Nobody of course wants the days of monopoly price fixing to return to us, but if there is to be industry and price stabilization it should be on an equitable basis and not confined to any one particular industry either agricultural or manufacturing.

MARATIME EYES LOOK TO PACIFIC

Norway, among other nations ranking high in world commerce, is commissioning ships to augment its operations in the Pacific. One Norwegian company, Westfal-Larsen, within the last three years has built eight liners for this special trade; these out of a thirty-ship fleet. All told, the line operates fifteen units on Pacific routes.

When Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy are following similar policies for the building up of their Pacific connections, with faster and larger vessels, and with increased refrigeration space for the handling of perishable products from California, Oregon and Washington, there is reason to accept this composite judgment of the world's greatest shipping interests as sound, and as prophetic of a vast expansion of trade during the immedate future.

AFFAIRS ARE SO MIXED!

These days are so full of contrasts! The United States will pour millions of dollars into Muscle Shoals to manufacture nitrates so that the farmer can spread 'em on his land and raise bigger crops. And, likewise, the United States says instead of raising bigger crops he must raise smaller crops. And the brewers say that beer lends zest to the appetite and cheer to the heart and awakens the better nature in man. But the Nazis fill themselves full of beer and then go out and kick the pants off the Jews and Socialists. Oh, well, things are just naturally hard to understand right now.

If we get too much inflation, instead of having a chicken in every pot we may find a toy balloon in every safety deposit box.

Kiwanis Meeting At Fairfield

Had the pleasure last Thursday of going with a group of Clanton Kiwanis Club members to a meeting with the Bessemer, Fairfield and Ensley Clubs, at Fairfield. It was a peppery gathering, full of interest and enthusiasm from start to finish. Generally speaking Kiwanis is doing a great work in making friends and neighbors out of the towns wherever clubs are functioning. This meeting last Thursday was a good example of this spirit. Miss Daisy Gillis, formerly teacher of music at Clanton, is the "sweetheart" of Fairfield Kiwanis Club. She is director of music for the club, and she really keeps the members in action, musically speaking. Troy Club will bring a delegation of eighteen members to Clanton Thursday night. We are looking for our beloved Ernest Childs to come with them.

For Reducing Taxes

Much interest is being expressed in regard to the meeting of the Board of Review of Chilton County next week, at which consideration will be given to reduction of valuations on property for tax purposes. Favorable expression on tax reduction has been made by both Democratic and Republican party leaders. Great numbers of people have made applications for reduced valuations. It is more than likely the Board of Review will have a long session for consideration of these matters. Judge Reynolds has warned those who have applied for reduced valuations that they will have to appear before the Board in person, otherwise their claims will not be considered.

From Producer to Consumer

A lady in Cullman County picked a quart of strawberries and sold them for three cents. She put a note in the cup asking the person who ate them to write and tell her how much he paid for them. A reply came from a man in Canada saying he bought the quart for 29 cents. On a carload of berries that would mean a difference of $1,965 between what the grower got for them and what the consumer paid for them. That surely must be margin a plenty to take care of freight and the middle man in a handsome fashion.

Fine Rains This Week

There is an old saying that a dry May means a good crop year. If there is anything to it, this ought to be a bountiful season in Chilton County. The month of May has been very dry. Scarcely a rain since the first of the month until last Saturday morning. Another good rain came Tuesday at noon. Preacher Lockhart said last Friday his cotton had been planted, come up, chopped and plowed all since the last rain. There is some mighty fine cotton in this vicinity. A field at Emmett Popwell's is the best we have seen. It will be blooming in a few days.

Visited Muscle Shoals District

Mr. and Mrs. Kin Vinson accompanied Mrs. Barney Burnett to Russellville last week end to visit Mr. Burnett, who works there. They went on to Florence, Sheffield, Tuscumbia, and Muscle Shoals on a sightseeing trip. Considerable activity is reported in the district, with all houses full of people, and numbers living out in the open. People have come there from every state in the Union, in the hope of finding work.

STATE ORGANIZATION AGAINST RAISE IN TAXATION

Montgomery, Ala., May 30.—Following election last week of State Senator E. F. Hildreth of Greene County as manager of the campaign against increased taxes, plans are being rapidly mapped out to present the issue to voters throughout Alabama. Senator Hildreth gained state-wide prominence in 1931 when he led the Senate bloc against increased taxes.

In accepting the leadership of the organization, Senator Hildreth declared that the issue which will be presented to the people in the July 18th election is the approval or rejection of the governor's taxation program. "If the governor is successful in his fight for the ratification of the income tax amendment," Senator Hildreth said, "we may with certainty expect another special session of the legislature for the express purpose of enforcing additional taxes upon the people. On the other hand, if the income tax amendment is defeated on July 18th, the governor must conclude that the people cannot be forced to accept the tax program and we shall at least have a rest from his continued efforts to force new taxes on the people. A vote against the income tax amendment is a vote against all additional taxation."

Headquarters for the campaign against increased taxation have been established at the Jefferson Davis Hotel in Montgomery.

HOME DEMONSTRATION AGENT MET UNION GROVE LADIES

Miss Pardue, the home demonstration agent, met with the ladies of Union Grove community, Friday, May 26th. She made a talk on the demonstration work and gave an outline of the work to be taken up in the next six months.

The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Pearl Glasscock June 8th, at 1:30. At this meeting demonstrations will be given in canning. All the ladies of the community are urged to be present.—Pearl Chandler.

WHAT NEGROES ARE DOING

Time to Side Dress

I was discussing the matter of side-dressing cotton with a farmer the other day. This farmer's cotton had been chopped and dirted. I asked him if he had side-dressed it. The answer was no. "Going to wait until squares start to forming," he added. In this instance he is using only 50 pounds per acre. Cotton should be side-dressed before the first plowing after chopping and not after it starts fruiting. Corn should be side-dressed from 35 to 45 days after planting. Of course, that means under normal conditions. According to the feeding habits of these crops, one gets better results when he uses the above method of side-dressing.

On making my rounds, I saw a man's cotton looking awfully puny. He interceded, "I am going to put my fertilizer around my cotton this year. It did fine one year." We are peculiar beings. We can't remember those many years we tried those old methods, and failed utterly; but with pride we point to that one year of luck. Why not take the average? We'd be much better farmers if we did.

Many Young Men Go To Camps

It is very gratifying to note that so many of our young men are eager to get an opportunity to go to the forest camps. Many have spread the propaganda that this was a means of getting young men ready for the army; but it has had little effect upon the situation. You know, we have some folks who see "bogies," in everything. In my opinion this is one of the best legislations that has ever been enacted for the young men of this country, and I think I am right.

Cleanliness and Then Godliness

I have been noticing for a long time, but was impressed more than ever last Saturday how so many of our folks go to town. Up at the bank where the people crowded in to get their checks cashed—My! My!—There were many who had donned the same old sour clothes that they had been wearing all the week, to come to town. These were others, doubtless who had taken their baths and donned ragged but clean clothes. They looked much better to me. Listen, folks, when other people take their baths, put on clean clothes and come to town, and here you come with those old sour, sweaty clothes that you have been wearing all the week. It is not only unclean, but ungodly. It is unfair to the tidy person, when you jam up against him with your untidy self. They tell me that the people in the far east change clothes every day, but never take a bath; and the people in Africa take a bath each day but never change clothes. That my be true, but you must remember that this is the United States of America, the melting pot of civilization and you must show that you are civilized by taking your baths and changing your clothes. If you have only one suit of overalls, wash and press them over night. Pardon me for personal reference, but the first three years that I was at Tuskegee I had only one uniform, which I was required to wear everyday. That uniform was washed and pressed every Saturday night. I washed it until it was as white as linen, but it was clean. What was good for me is good for you.

Many of the folks who need to read this and take heed may not even see the paper, but you who do read it, please pass the word on.—Benjamin Anderson, teacher of vocational agriculturure.

UNION GROVE

The annual reunion of the M. P. Robinson family was held at this place last Sunday. There were some over 80 of the children, grandchildren and great grandchildren present. The morning was spent in meeting and talking with relatives and friends and at the noon hour a bountiful dinner was served, which was enjoyed by all.

In the afternoon a fine program was rendered at the church that was enjoyed by all the visitors as well as the family. About four o'clock they began to say good-bye, and go to their many homes, hoping to have just such a runion next year.

Our B. Y. P. U. and Sunday school are progressing nicely, but could be made better. On next Sunday we will have Sunday school at 8:30 on account of so many going to Shelby to the all day singing. So, let's everybody be on time so we can get through with Sunday school and get to the singing.

Mr. W. W. Fox is in South Highlands Infirmary, Birmingham, this week taking treatment for a cancer on his lip.

OUR WEEKLY SERMON

Bible Subject Discussed by Rev. J. Robert Bean, Clanton, Ala.

"RIGHTEOUSNESS"

You will find the text today in Romans 10:10, "For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation." May I quote the 3rd verse of this chapter in connection with the text? "For they, being ignorant of God's righteouness, and going about to establish their own righteousness, have not submitted themselves unto the righteousness of God."

Of course I can't know the mind of my readers or what they believe or practice, for some believe one thing and some another, but to me there are at least two classes of believers in this country whose belief does not agree with the above text. It is evident, therefore, that if there are any changes to be made, it must be in their belief and not in the text. The two classes referred to above are, first, all of those who are depending upon their own righteousness for salvation. Second, those who claim that the religion of Jesus Christ does not appeal to the heart in any sense, but has to do altogether with the mind.

We shall take these up in the order given and try to find out if they are right. I believe in a righteous, upright life in all of God's children, and I believe that all true sincere Christians will strive to please God with their lives, and that they will try at all times to carry out their Lord's injunction which is, "as ye would that men do unto you, do ye even so unto them," but there is a great difference in being righteous in this life and being saved by that righteousness.

Our righteousness at its best is so far short of the righteousness of God that the prophet Isaiah says that "our righteousness is as filthy rags in His sight." And again we read, "When you have done all, then say that we are unprofitable servants."

The humble child of God does not rejoice in his own righteousness, but does rejoice in the righteousness of the Lord of glory whose righteousness is imputed to us as our righteousness, but the self-righteous man or woman does not have the righteousness of Christ.

Paul wrote to the Romans, 7:21, "I find then a law, that, when I would do good, evil is present with me." So there is so much of evil in the best of us that it is not safe for any one to depend upon his own righteousness to save him. My conclusion then is to do the very best I can and then trust Christ for the rest. That is my only hope, for if eternal happiness depends wholly, or in part, upon my own righteousness, then I might as well give up now; but thank God I have one on whom I can lean, whose righteousness is above reproach. Then, by the righteousness of Christ and the grace of God I am bound for heaven.

Now, let us consider the other class. The text says that "with the heart man believeth unto righteousness." If the affections of men and women were centered altogether in the mind and didn't appeal to their hearts, love would be as transitory as the whims of the race, because the mind is undergoing changes continually. A man would love one woman today and another one tomorrow. A woman would love one man a while and then her mind would change and she would be in love with another. People would love God this week and the devil the next—love the church now and the world tomorrow. But our affections are not centered in the mind. All affection, love, obedience, righteousness and a will to please God with our lives, spring from a changed heart. The religion of Jesus Christ softens the hardened hearts of men—hearts made by sin. The mind does undergo a change, but that change is the direct result of a changed heart.

In 1st Samuel 10:9 we read, "And it was so, that, when he had turned his back to go from Samuel, God gave him another heart: and all those signs came to pass that day." Also in Proverbs 4:23, we read, "Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life. Then in Matthew 15:18, "But those things which proceed out of the mouth come forth from the heart, and they defile the man."

Friend, if the love of God and the religion of His son has never appealed to your heart, but is carried altogether in your mind, there is something yet for you that alone can make you rejoice. That is a real deep hear-felt religion. Please study these things out. Yours for a better understanding of His word.—J. Robert Bean.

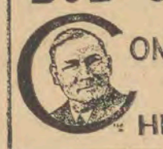
BOB JONES



COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

A few years ago while I was engaged in an evangelistic campaign in a West Virginia city I heard the following story. It was told to me by the pastor of the First Methodist church. I am giving it in almost the very words of the minister.

"When I came here as pastor two years ago I was unpacking my things at the Methodist parsonage. A man came in. My name is John ..... and I want to talk to you. That is the way he began his conversation. I want to join the church next Sunday. That is what I want to talk to you about. I told him that I would be glad to receive him and I began to write his name in my little book. Before you write my name down I want to tell you my story.

"'You are pastor of a wonderful church in this town. I know because they have turned me out numbers of times. They won't let anybody stay in that church who gets drunk and I am awfully weak. I was born with a craving for whiskey. Every time I got drunk they turned me out and then I joined again and they would take me in. The last time they turned me out they told me they were not ever going to let me in any more. But I've been sober for a month and I've been praying hard. I don't believe I am ever going to fall any more.' I told him to come to church Sunday and I would take him and that I would pray for him.

"A few minutes later the chairman of the board called me. I told him that I was going to receive the man next Sunday. 'I hope you won't, he said. 'He has disgraced us many a time. You'll have to turn him out within a month.' All right, we'll turn him out and then take him in again if he wants to join, I replied.

"The next Sunday I opened the doors of the church. The man came forward. I gave him the vows of membership. The people bowed their heads as if they were embarrassed. Only one man spoke to him. He came by at the close of the service and said, Well, John, I hope you'll stick this time.

"The man stuck. He lived a sober, manly Christian life for a year. He was always at prayer meeting, at Sunday school and at preaching service. People learned to believe in him and respect him. One day he was taken ill. Several days later he died. Just before he passed away he said, 'I'm dying. I want you to conduct my funeral. Tell the people I am sorry I ever got drunk. Tell them there was no excuse for it. Tell them I fell because I took my eyes off of Jesus, and that their only hope of victory over temptation is in Him. When you have told them that, I want you to say one good word for me. I want them to know that I didn't fall every time I was tempted. I was tempted every conscious moment day and night. During the last twelve months I stayed sober, but many a night when everybody else was sleeping I have walked the floor and prayed God to save me. I do want my friends to know that while I fell I didn't fall every time I was tempted.'"

My preacher friend told me that this incident gave him a new appreciation of the battles the average man fights. Only God knows the struggle that often goes on in the souls of the purest men and the best women whom we meet everywhere.

CLUB MEETING AT ALPINE

Quite a number of ladies of Alpine community met Miss Pardue, the home demonstration agent, at the church on May 25th at 3:00 o'clock. Plans were made for canning, pickling and preserving fruits and vegetables.

Misses Arra B. Jones and Mollie Bell Jones were appointed to attend the demonstration meeting at the Baptist church in Clanton on June 6. 6.

The next club meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. A. B. Jones on June 14th, at 1:30 o'clock. At this meeting some canning demonstrations will be given. Let's all attend this meeting with great pleasure, for a future betterment.—Reporter.

Mr. and Mrs. Kin Vinson and Mrs. Barney Burnett made a trip to Russellville last Saturday to see Mr. Burnett, who is working there.

County Agent, C. E. Stapp is in Auburn this week attending a poultry demonstration school. He will return to his office Friday.

Henry Ford
Dearborn, Mich.

May 22, 1933

I suppose that I may claim to be the first Ford Dealer. I not only made cars, but sold them and frequently delivered them myself.

The "drive away" is not new; often I have driven cars from Detroit to towns in Ohio or Indiana or Michigan to make delivery.

There were no good roads in those days, and the people where I drove had never seen a motor car before.

My first really enthusiastic customers were Country Doctors. They were the first to realize the value of dependable transportation to a widely scattered practice.

Even today I occasionally hear from some of those first Ford users.

We had to teach local mechanics how to care for the cars. That is how Ford Service began, which is now found everywhere in the world.

We believed from the beginning that a sale does not complete our transaction with our customer -- it creates upon us an obligation to see that our customer's car gives him service. Ford Dealers know their duty to the public in this respect.

I can say of Ford Dealers generally that they have been and are men of character and standing in their communities. Most of them have been with us many years, which indicates that we agree on basic business principles. The Company provides that the methods used to sell the Ford car are consistent with the self-respect of the Dealers who handle it.

The present Ford V-8 is the peak of our 30 years experience.

We have never made a better car. Its eight-cylinder engine is powerful and smooth running. The car is admittedly very good looking and has comfortable riding qualities. It is economical in operation because of advanced engine design and low car weight. It is the fastest, roomiest and most powerful car we have ever built.

CLANTON BASEBALL TEAM BEAT WILSONVILLE BY 7-1

The Clanton baseball team blew the lid off the 1933 baseball season last Thursday afternoon with a 7 to 1 win over Wilsonville at the local field.

Wilsonville had already won four straight games for a comfortable lead in Shelby County's little bush league, and came here very confident of tripping the locals, this being Clanton's first game of the season. However, Clanton gave Nivens jam-up support in the field while he was letting the visitors down with three singles, and went on to collect eleven safeties off Vardan, among them being Bill Simpson's double and "Gabby" Tiffin's homer in deep center.

Clanton scored first in the second inning. Wilsonville evened the count at 1-all in the fourth, but Clanton scored four runs in their half of the fourth, and added two more in the eighth. Wilsonville loaded the bases with one out at one time, and again had men on second and third with one out, but tight pitching and brilliant play afield prevented any scoring.

Tom Caton, elderly resident of the Caton community west of Thorsby, told officers Saturday morning when they raided a still near his home and arrested him, that he has constantly manufactured whiskey for 35 years, but had never been arrested before.

STAPP WANTS FARM FIGURES

Farmers Urged To Fill Out Blanks and Return To County Agent

County Agent C. E. Stapp, has sent out the following letter to all white farmers of Chilton, asking for information that will enable him to render a more complete program of helpfulness to the farmers. Mr. Stapp, in his letter says:

I am very anxious to be of the most service possible to the farmers of Chilton County. In order to try to improve my services, it becomes necessary for me to get some information from you. Will you please help me to help you by answering the questions below, signing your name, postoffice address and beat, and mailing same back to me in the enclosed envelope which does not require a stamp?

I expect to study the information that you furnish me then list you for seasonal information, meetings, suggestions, etc. For example, I have some very valuable information now for all who are interested in poultry, but I do not have the names and addresses of all the poultrymen in the county.

If you will answer the questions below and mail same back to me at once, I feel sure that you will realize a marked improvement in my work with you.

The following questions are asked in the letter. Every farmer who received one of the letters, also received these qustions, with a blank for answering them.

Size of farm you operate; acres; number of mules; do you own the farm operated by you? If you are a tenant, who owns the farm? Approximate number of acres cultivated on farm operated by you in each of the following crops: Corn, hay, pasture, cotton, strawberries, dewberries, watermelons, truck crops.

Do you try to have something to eat in your garden all the year? Do you have a good home orchard? Are you interested in improving your home orchard? How many laying hens have you? Did you incubate or buy incubated chicks this spring? How many? How many did you or will you sell as broilers? Do you wish to vaccinate your pullets against sore head?

Approximately, how much of each of the following do you sell each month: whole milk, sour cream, butter. Do you raise plenty of meat for home use? Any hogs for the market? If arrangements were made for cooperative hog sales, would you be interested in growing hogs for the market?

If there is a mortgage on your farm would you like for me to help you get re-financed at a low rate of interest? Have you any other problems that you think I might be able to help you with? If you have, please state them briefly on an extra sheet of paper, attach same to this sheet and mail it to me in the enclosed envelope.

Mr. Stapp hopes he may receive a full response to these inquiries. The information he receives will be systematically filed, and will be used by him in making out his program of work among the farmers in the future.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. McKinnon are the proud parents of a fine baby girl born Friday afternoon. They have named her Patricia Catherine. Both mother and baby are doing fine.

FIRST OF JULY IS TAX DEAD LINE

Date Set For Closing The Tax Books by W. G. Culp, Tax Collector

Beginning the first week in July, I will have to advertise for sale all property on which taxes have not been paid. I have given the taxpayers three months extension on the time of payment of their taxes in order to favor them as much as possible.

The first of July is as long as I can possibly extend the time. Those who are delinquent on the first day of July will have additional cost of advertising added to their taxes. It is not my wish to have these costs put on the taxpayers, but it is not in my power to avoid doing so. I must discharge my duty under the law.

Let me urge all delinquent taxpayers to take notice and do your very best to settle your taxes before advertising costs are added.—W. G. Culp. Tax Collector of Chilton County.

MUSIC SCHOOL AT UNION GROVE

Will Be Taught By Prof. Ralph Grant For Period of Twenty Days

Beginning Monday morning, July 10, Prof. Ralph Grant will teach a music or singing school at Union Grove church. The school will run for twenty days, and Prof. Grant says that the tuition charges will be most reasonable. Miss Bertie Grant will teach piano lessons to those who wish to learn to play. There will be classes in everything from beginners in rudiments through advanced harmony.

This school is intended not only for Union Grove, but it is hoped and expected that there will be students enrolled from Collins Chapel, Thorsby, Jemison, and other adjoining communities. Trucks to haul students from other communities will be provided as they are needed. Prof. Grant says that he hopes to have between 100 and 200 students enrolled, and if extra help in the teaching force is needed, other teachers will be secured.

Ralph Grant began his training in music in this county under his father, L. T. Grant, and Prof. H. C. Collins. He later went to Howard college, Birmingham, where he spent four and a half years in obtaining his A. B. degree; during that time he studied music under Paul Delaunay, later taking a special course under Walter Vaughn at the Birmingham Conservatory of Music. He lacked only one year in piano music of taking his degree in music.

In the Union Grove school Prof. Grant will teach voice culture, ear training, etc., at no extra charge. He is now engaged in teaching a school at Chisholm Baptist church, Montgomery; and about the first of August will begin a school at Arkadelphia in Cullman County.

Leadership School Tuesday Attended By Eighty Women From All Parts of County. Twenty-Three Canning Centers Designated. Cans Will Be Furnished by R.F.C.

Eighty of the leading women of Chilton County, representing practically every community, were gathered at the Methodist church in Clanton Tuesday in a county-wide leadership school of canning. The meeting was directed by Miss Ruth Pardue, county home demonstration agent, assisted by Miss Margaret Garrett, canning specialist, of Auburn.

Twenty-three canning centers for the county were designated at strategic locations. During the coming months it is planned to carry out a well organized canning program of canning all surplus food materials at these centers. The work will be in charge of those women of the communities who have been designated for leadership in the movement, and who have received special training for the task. Supervision of the canning program will be under Miss Pardue.

The following communities were designated Tuesday to be used as canning centers: Maplesville, Shoults, Riderville, Pletcher, Sardis, Fairview, Enterprise, Verbena, Thomas Jr., Concord, Clanton, Mineral Springs, Collins Chapel, Union Grove, Oak Grove, Minooka, Chestnut Grove, Mars Hill, Pleasant Grove, Jemison, Thorsby, Mt. Pleasant, Freeman schoolhouse.

Canning of surplus food is a part of the program of relief contemplated by the R. F. C. administration of the county. However, the organization and the program that is being worked out will not stop at discharging the purposes of the relief administration. It is planned to make it more extensive, and available to the uses and convenience of all people on the farms who have surplus food to can and keep for winter use.

Miss Pardue listed the following ladies in attendance at the leadership training school Tuesday.

BOY SCOUT CAMP OPENS JULY 2ND

Site of Camp is "Treasure Island" in Paint Creek Above Lay Dam

The scout executive announces that the second session of the Council camping program will open July 2nd at the island site near Clanton, Alabama with between forty and fifty campers. The first session is opening this week at the old camp site Camp Spring Villa. Sixty scouters are there from Alexander City, Opelika, Auburn and sourrounding cities. John Coley, first eagle scout of Alexander City, is serving as assistant camp director.

Sea scouts from Opelika, Tallassee, Alexander City, and Selma will be among those campers at Treasure Island in July. A special incentive for these sea scouts have been given as the best camper will be chosen as this council's representative on the Pensacola cruise the later part of July with all expenses paid. Reservations number 1 on this cruise was made by this central Alabama Area Council by the executive early in April.

Mate R. W. Worthy of the Alexander City sea scouts will superintend the building of a ten foot row boat by the sea scouts at the local camp. Clanton scouts with those of Ashland and Selma, not sea scouts, will also have a special course in that of marksmanship so that they may earn their marksmanship merit badge during the encampment . Messrs. Smith and Inzer, local leaders of scout troop 47 as well as Messrs. Lakeman and Deal of Troop 51 and Mr. Sharp of the Mitchell Dam Troop all will attend this camping session and assist the scout executive who serves as camp director in running the camp.

This year the campers pay less than last year and in some cases food stuff will be taken in lieu of cash. John Hollis, as camping chairman, will have other statements shortly.

Wade H. Harris of Plantersville was a business visitor to Clanton on Tuesday.

THAD HOLT HERE WEDNESDAY A. M.

Director of Relief In Alabama Met With Commissioners Court Here

Thad Holt, director of the Alabama Relief Administration, was in Clanton Wednesday morning and appeared before the Commissioners Court of Chilton County for the purpose of explaining several very important phases of the relief program as it applies to our local situation.

Mr. Holt expressed hearty approval of the swamp drainage project that has been inaugurated near Clanton. He gave the court his assurance that the appropriation for relief work in this county would be raised to as much as $3,400 for the month of June.

Concerning the county-wide canning project, Mr. Holt said the relief administration was in hearty accord with such programs, and would back up the same in every way possible. He said the necessary cans for putting up food would be furnished to those on the relief program.

Another interesting outcome of Mr. Holt's visit here was his explanation of how the county may use gasoline funds for relief work. He said if the county officials see fit to use gasoline tax funds for work relief on county roads in exactly the same manner as relief funds from the R. F. C. have been used, the county will be entitled to one-third of the amount to be expended as an outright grant from the R. F. C. for relief funds in the county.

For instance, he pointed out, if during July, August, and September the county should spend $3,000 a month, or $9,000 from the gasoline funds for work relief on the roads, then on October 1st the county could get from the R. F. C. the sum of $3,000 as an outright grant for work relief.

Judge Reynolds, chairman of the executive committee of the Chilton County Relief Administration, announced Wednesday that the committee will hold a meeting Thursday afternoon to consider reduction in the overhead expenses of operating the relief office.

ANNUAL FRIENDSHIP-UNION GROVE PICNIC TO BE HELD

The annual picnic of Union Grove and Friendship members and friends, in honor of their pastor, Rev. J. Robert Bean, will be held again this year on Wednesday, June 15th. It will be held this year at Thompson's mill—the old Mahan place on Yellow Leaf Creek. The hour of assembly has been set at 9:30. An hour and a half will be devoted to playing and romping, etc., at 11 o'clock Rev. Bean will speak on the subject: "The Two Greatest Mistakes—Of the World and of the Church." This discussion will last about 45 minutes; then preparations will be made for dinner. All are asked to bring lunches already cooked, this year. The afternoon will be spent in playing, etc.

This is the fourth annual gathering of this kind, the former ones having been held at the mouth of Yellow Leaf Creek, near Lay Dam. The people of New Salem and Collins Chapel are especially invited to take part in the gathering—of course any and all will be welcome.

TEACHERS FAVOR 4 AMENDMENTS

Position Is Outlined By J. A. Peterson, President of Teachers Association

At the meeting of the Chilton county teachers association, Friday, June 2, Hon. Percy Pitts gave an excellent explanation of the amendments to be voted on July 18. This was followed by several interesting talks by representative citizens of our county. The high lights mentioned that should be of interest to every citizen, and especially the farmers, are as follows:

In the income tax amendment, it is stated that a married person would have to have a net income of $3,000 before he would have to pay a penny tax. In addition, he is allowed $300 exemption for every dependent under eighteen years of age. When Alabama's floating debt is paid, the proceeds from the income tax will go toward reducing the tax on homes and farms.

The Teasley-McDaniel warrant act provides that the non-interest bearing warrants will be replaced by interest bearing warrants, at a rate of not more than 5 per cent. This warrant act also prevents our state officials from running the state into debt in the future. If this act had been passed in 1907, the state would have had to live within its income, and the indebtedness that is causing the crisis in the state would not have existed.

The Sparks Amendment gives the legislature a right to reduce constitutional office-holder's salary while in office. No constitutional office holder, city, county, or state, will be allowed to draw a salary larger than $6,000 a year. This is a real economy measure, if the voters pass it. It will immediately cut state expenses approximately $98,000 and will give the legislature the right to effect further savings.

The Sparks Amendment, if adopted, will be effective only until October 1, 1935.

The reduction of publication time amendment permits a great saving as it reduces the time of advertising amendments in half—from 8 weeks to four.

The teachers of Chilton County believe in: (1) a fairer distribution of the tax burden, so as to relieve the over-taxed home and land owner; (2) constructive economy in all phases of government; (3) the honor and faith of our people and state, and that just debts should be paid. These principles are embodied in the above amendments, and therefore, the teachers of this county endorse them most heartily.—J. A. Peterson.

WORKING ON NATURAL GAS PROJECT FOR CLANTON

Mr. Thomas J. Arledge, who is just back in Alabama from Texas, is in Clanton this week making arrangements to have natural gas brought to Clanton. Mr. Arledge proposes to build a pipe line from near Coosada in Elmore County, where the present big line passes through, up to Clanton, offering natural gas to all the towns and villages between here and there.

Mr. Arledge went before the city council Tuesday night and was granted a franchise to enter the town with the gas line. Some details were figured out with the commissioners court in session Wednesday. Mr. Arledge proposes to begin work on laying the line in ninety days, and will have the job completed by the first of November. If possible, Mr. Arledge will use man-power almost altogether in constructing the line, which will give employment to around 300 men.

BEAN OUTLINES SCHOOL POLICY

Statement of Republican Candidate For County Superintendent of Education

To the People of Chilton County:

I want to make one more appeal for every voter to go to the polls on Tuesday, June 20th, and cast his or her vote for County Superintendent of Education. Because there are only two candidates in the race does not make this election of small importance. The future training of your children largely depends on the County Superintendent of Education and the cooperation the people give him. Therefore, this election is of great importance. The greater number of people who vote in this election, the better cooperation the one elected will have in his great task of supervising the schools of the county.

The real issue, in my opinion, before the people is that of rigid economy and efficient school work. I stand for these things, and an equal educational opportunity for all white school children. This is not a new issue with me, however. I put these principles into practice when I was superintendent some years ago. If elected again, I shall continue to do so.

I presume that almost every voter in this county has heard me say in public talks and in print that I am opposed to so much money being spent in the higher institutions of learning, and so little being spent in the elementary and secondary schools. I took a stand against this unfair and unequal distribution of public school money long ago, and have labored against it consistently and continually.

I want to repeat here in substance what I have said in former articles: I give my experience in the office of superintendent, my long service as a teacher, and my word of honor, as your assurance that I will exert every effort to give you the most efficient schools with the amount of money available, using the most rigid economy that is consistent with good judgment. I also promise to use every effort to see that every white child has an equal opportunity to obtain an education. I believe that a full and detailed study of the whole local school system should be made before any radical changes should be recommended. However, I feel that there are several changes needed.

If elected superintendent, I promise every voter, patron, teacher and citizen that the office will always be open to hear any appeal the people might want to make regarding school matters, and I assure you that the office will be run for the best interests of the school children. Your advice and cooperation will always be welcomed, and you will have a full and courteous hearing before me at any and all times.

Again, I want to ask the voters of this county to let the interests of your school children be the determining factor in casting your votes. Study the two men before you from every angle. Then cast your vote for the one, who in your honest judgment, will be capable of rendering the greatest service to the schools.

Please let me again insist that everyone make a little sacrifice and come to the polls on June 20th and cast your vote for the man of your choice. If you see fit to vote for me, I want to assure you that I will greatly appreciate your favor. To those of you who may not see fit to vote for me, I have no ill feeling, for that is your privilege.—Yours very sincerely, W. T. Bean.

DATE OF PICNIC IS 21ST OF JULY

5,000 People Will Be Cared For At Same Place Picnic Was Held Last Year

County Agent Stapp is busy making preparations for the big county-wide picnic which will be held at Popwell Woods, in front of Boswell's tourist camp on Friday, July 21st. Mr. Stapp announces that Congressman W. B. Oliver has accepted an invitation to attend and speak to the gathering. Loud speakers will be installed so that all may hear. The grounds will be cleaned off in the near future, platform built and seats arranged.

Mr. Stapp says that indications are that five thousand people will attend, and he is making preparations to take care of that number. Abundance of free ice water will be at the disposal of everybody.

A REUNION

The "home coming" in honor of the fiftieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Mims last Sunday proved to be one of the most enjoyable occasions probably ever held in this section of the country. One great reason will account for this occasion arousing so much interest, and that is because of so many relatives.

The great multitude of people began to assemble early in the morning at the Nathan Minor old homestead and continued coming until late in the afternoon. This is the old home place of Mrs. Rebecca (Minor) Mims's father. Even though there is no house to represent the old homestead, there is one of the best springs of water to be found anywhere and last but not least, there stands an old cedar tree that marks the exact spot where our father and mother were united in holy matrimoney fifty years ago.

As the writer (son-in-law) viewed the old place with much interest, this plot of ground shaded by the old cedar tree seemed most sacred of all. Because under this tree is where the vows were made that seems to have been regarded as sacred by these old folks more than a helf century.

At the 11:00 o'clock hour Rev. M. J. Parrish delivered a brief but striking and masterful message, very appropriate for the occasion. Bro. Parrish expressed his appreciation of the acquaintance of the family for the many many years.

The writer recalls one particular statement made by Rev. Parrish and that is this: "I am standing in a few steps of where I have made thousands of gallons of syrup." This hour added much flavor to the great event.

This brought us to the noon hour in which the old proverb was specifically carried out, "Dinner on the Ground." A close count was made which revealed about 225 present. Surely this was an event that time itself can not fade from the memory of this great host of friends and relatives.

All the children (12) and nearly all the grandchildren and great-grandchildren (40 and 16 respectivelly) were present. This gives 68 in all, with the exceptance of a number of deceased. To make it as mild as possible, this was one the most interesting occasions ever attended by the writer.—M. Lockhart, Son-in-law.

OAK GROVE

Our singing was good Sunday, although several singers were away on account of the all day singing at Longview. The president, Mr. W. J. Northcutt, called the crowd to order and sang one song. Mr. Leonard Pierce then led the congregation in prayer, after which the following directors sang one or more songs each: Miss Bernadine Cobb, Messrs. Brasher Northcutt, Claudie Scott, Burl Martin, Ben Tom Haynes, Mrs. Johnnie Collum, Burble Price and Sam Collins. Organists were Mrs. Homer Webb, Miss Violet Martin and Mrs. B. L. Cobb. We had several selections by the quartet composed of Mr. Sam Collins, Lessie Northcutt, Homer Webb and Rip Northcutt.

We had a nice crowd and a real good program at B. Y. P. U. Sunday night, after which we heard a very forceful sermon by the pastor, Rev. Horace Nabors.

The first Sunday in July has been set apart as the date for our all day singing. We are expecting a number of singers from other places to be with us on this day, and invite all who love good singing to come and spend the day with us.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Cobb entertained the young people of this community with a yard party at their home Saturday night.

Miss Gladys Satterwhite was the guest of Miss Mary Jim Sutley Saturday night.

Miss Mattie Lee Thames has returned to her home after spending several days in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Webb and family are visiting in Birmingham for a few days the first of the week.

MAPLE SPRINGS

This week still finds everybody busy trying to destroy the grass; but during these busy times we don't forget our B. Y. P. U. and Sunday school work. We had a very large crowd Sunday. We got four new members in B. Y. P. U. Sunday night. They are Mr. Joseph Lee McDowell, Mr. Hugh Dupree, Mr. Charles McDowell, and Mr. Preston Downs. We are very glad to enroll them. We are hoping to get that many more next Sunday night. There are still some who are not attending Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. We ask you to come and help us out. Let's try and make this one of the best B. Y. P. U.'s and Sunday schools there is. There were 69 in Sunday school, but let's try and make it one hundred by the third Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Traywick were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Lester Downs Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Glenn had as their week end guests Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Jones of Cooper.

Mr. Harvey Little was visiting his sister, Mrs. Will Davis, Sunday.

Little Lillie Mae Davis, who has been sick for quite a while, is still improving.

Misses Lera and Elsie Glenn were visiting in Cooper Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Davis are the proud parents of a fine baby girl. Both mother and child are doing fine.

Little Miss Evelyn Wilson spent a few happy hours with little Miss Delene Glenn Sunday afternoon.

Miss Berniece Devaughn was the Saturday night guest of Miss Myrtle Lee Baker.

McCORMICK-SMITH

On Saturday, May 5, at high noon, the holy vows of matrimony were solemnized between Mr. Rolie McCormick and Miss Ellie Smith at the home of Rev. E. H. Littljohn, who officiated.

While Miss Lou Olive Littlejohn played "Bridal Chorus," from Lohengrin, Mrs. E. H. Littlejohn ushered the happy couple into the living room, which was artistically decorated. The bride was dressed in a becoming costume of blue and white, which brought out the blue in her eyes.

Others attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Kelley Barnett, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Moore, Edward and Woodfin Littlejohn, and the bride's brother. The bride was formerly a resident of Eoline. They will be at home to their friends at the home of the bride's mother.

Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Black and two daughters, Virginia and Mary Lou, of Birmingham, are visiting Mrs. Lula Hardy this week.

Ben Margolis, Mrs. Maurice Lande, Ervin Lande and Miss Bertha Margolis write from Hot Springs, saying they are having a most enjoyable vacation. They expect to return home the last of this week.

OUR WEEKLY SERMON

Bible Subject Discussed by Rev. J. Robert Bean, Clanton, Ala.

Relationship

Text, John 8:44. "Ye are of your father, the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do: he was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own: for he is a liar, and the father of it."

There is a wide-spread belief in "the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man." I remember hearing a man, who at the time was lieutenant-governor of this state, speak for one hour and twenty minutes on the subject of "The Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man." And as in all cases, he based his whole argument on the one fact that God was the creator of men, hence the father of all, and since He is the common father of all, all are brothers.

This is a beautiful theory of the unsaved and one that is calculated to lull to sleep the troubled conscience. This is one of the tricks of the father of sinners. Satan knows well that if he should tell his children that he is their father that it would cause a great revolt and rebelhon in his family. So he denies the parenthood of lost men and seeks to use God's word to influence men in the belief that God is their father. We may readily see Satan's reason for this deception. If he can get men to believe that lie they will believe that their father is so good that He will not damn one of His children, and by that means keep men in total ignorance of their real relation to Him until it is too late to change. It therefore stands to reason that if sinners are the children of the devil that when they leave here they will go home and be with their father.

Romans 9:8 says: "They which are the children of the flesh, these are not the children of God: Will men believe a lie and be damned?"

The question that now confronts us is, "How may one's relationship be changed? How may a sinner cease to be a child of the devil and become a child of God?" I am truly glad that the New Testament does not leave us in ignorance as to how to proceed. Please turn to John 3:3. "Jesus answered and said unto him, verily, verily, I say unto thee, except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." In order then for one to change his relationship and become a son of God, it is required of him that he renounce his allegiance to satan and his kingdom, leave the old family which is headed for hell, and seek admittance into the family of God which is headed for heaven.

This is accomplished by, first becoming sorry over the fact that you have sinned against God, and then repent of the evil in your life. When one has done this he is ready to accept Christ as his savior. Then in a way that is not explained. The new birth takes place and he becomes the son of God.

Jesus did not explain to Nicodemus how this is done. All that we know about it is that we become a new creature in Christ Jesus, and that we hate the old life and the leadership of satan and learn to love the new life and the leadership of Christ.

Why will men continue to follow a leader to destruction, when there is a leader offered them that will lead them to life everlasting? Sinner, hear the call today, heed the wooing of the spirit this moment, as it strives with you to turn to God. Your soul will live forever somewhere, either with the devil in his abode or with God in His abode. "Choose you this day whom you will serve." Follow your present leader and go to torment or take Jesus as your leader and go to glory. Which will you do?

I feel that if you will just stop long enough to think seriously over this matter you will see the folly of continuing in sin.

If anyone wishes to ask me any questions about how to be saved, or would like a personal letter from me, just feel free to write to me, I will answer all letters as soon as I receive them.—J. Robert Bean.

PROVIDENCE CEMETERY CLEANED OFF BY R. F. C. WORKERS

We are a little belated in our report, but mention should be made of the splendid work done on the cemetery at Providence a few weeks ago by the R. F. C. workers. The place was hoed and raked, every inch of it, and it looks as clean as if it had been scoured. All the sunken and otherwise unkept graves were built up and put in fine condition. The trees around the church yards were trimmed.

This cemetery is in the best shape it has been in for the past several years or probably ever, and those who made the arrangements to get this work done deserve considerable commendation.

RESOLUTION PASSED BY CHILTON COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION

We, the Chilton County Board of Education, hereby endorse the Warrant Act to be voted on July 18th and urge the patrons, teachers and trustees and all citizens interested in the advancement of education not only to advocate but to actively work for the passage of said amendment.

Realizing that this amendment carries no additional taxes but is only a guarantee of the faith of the state in the payment of its debts, we feel that every honest citizen should be interested in seeing that this amendment passes.

In the face of the recent ruling of the supreme court, if this warrant act should fail to pass it means a repudiation of the state's debts, on the other hand its passage is merely an acknowledgement of the state's debts.

CANE CREEK

Our Sunday School is progressing nicely, although there is room for improvement. Lets everyone come next Sunday and bring someone with us.

We have prayer services every Sunday night, beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

The fourth Sunday in this month is our annual all-day singing. We invite all singers and especially the quartets to come and be with us. So don't forget the date and everybody is cordially invited to attend.

UNION GROVE

Several from this place attended the all-day singing at Shelby Sunday and reported a fine singing.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Dorminey, of Montgomery, spent Sunday with their mother, Mrs. W. G. J. Dorminey.

Mr. Herman LeCroy of Isabella spent Saturday night and Sunday with Mr. Howard Robinson.

Misses Artell and Onzell Thrash spent Sunday with their sister, Mrs. Norman Campbell, of Acton.

The overall party given by Miss Jessie Dorminey at her home Tuesday night was enjoyed by a large crowd of young people.

Misses Edna and Winnie Kate Robinson visited their sister, Miss Iris Robinson, at Clanton Thursday.

Mr. Osmond Dorminey spent last week with his sister, Mrs. A. A. Conway, at Jemison.

Mr. Harlem Daniel, of Lomax, was visiting our community Friday evening.

The Union Grove baseball team played an interesting game with Cane Creek Saturday afternoon here. The score was 25 and 5 in favor of Union Grove.

Miss Ruth Vanderslice, of Mt. Pleasant spent Saturday night with Miss Winnie Kate Robinson.

There will be a singing school to begin at this place the 10th of July. The school will be taught by Prof. Ralph Grant. This is a wonderful opportunity for the people of this community, and other communities close by who are interested in music.

Next Saturday night, Sunday and Sunday night is the time for preaching at this place. Preaching will be by the pastor, Rev. J. Robert Bean. Everybody come.

REFUGE NEWS

First, we wish to announce that the long-looked-for baptizing is going to be at Mr. Elijah Mim's pond next Sunday evening at 3 o'clock. We are hoping to have a joint baptizing, and we have been informed that a good many people wish to be there. We wish to give them a special invitation, as our pastor is going to baptize his father and stepmother and I am sure that it will be a scene that we will long remember. So everybody leave off the singing for a short while Sunday afternoon and come and be with us.

Our pastor will preach for us at the church Sunday night. We want to extend to you all a hearty welcome. Don't forget the date, Sunday June 11th.

Miss Francis O'Neal has finished up her school work at Lay Dam this year and returned to her home at Columbia, Ala.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

Darwin, living in a world of nature, saw the forms of life and wondered how they originated. In other words, he made certain observations and decided that evolution by natural selection might be true. Remember, Darwin just guessed. More than eight hundred times he said, "It may be possible," or "We may suppose," or words to that effect.

I am not a scientist, but I know more about science than the average teacher of science knows about the Bible. I have had a good chance to make observations. I have preached in forty states for more than twenty-five years, and I have observed that the more the Evolutionary Hypothesis is taught and believed the less spiritual life people have. I am sure that Darwin's guess, which has been accepted by some unscientific men who call themselves scientists, has done more to wreck and damn souls than any other theory for the last hundred years.

"Give me life beyond this life, and give me something to do." Thus prayed a great man.

Men want to live. No sane man ever committed suicide. Don't misunderstand me. Some insanity is due to sin, and God always holds man accountable for sin. But when a man takes his own life, he is mad.

God planted in the human heart the love of life. A drowning man will grasp a straw. A dying man will instinctively struggle for breath, however great may be the agony of breathing.

Yes, we want to live, but what would life be without something to do? I couldn't be happy in heaven without a job. Think of just having to sit down forever.

We die with our tasks incomplete, with our plans unfinished, and with our dreams unfilled. In heaven we shall have all eternity for our completion of our tasks, the finishing of our plans, and the realization of our dreams. In heaven we can work without weariness. There will be no stopping for rest. There is no night in heaven. It is one busy, but restful, eternal day.

Mrs. George Ogdin, of Sweetwater, Tennessee, has been spending the past week with her sister, Mrs. R. D. Woodson, at Lay Dam. She was accompanied by her son, Jimmie.

Lesson for June 11

JESUS ON THE CROSS

LESSON TEXT—Mark 15:1-47.

GOLDEN TEXT—But God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us. Romans 5:8.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Dying for Us.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Giving His Life.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus Accepting the Cross.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Meaning of the Cross.

This is the grand climax of the year's lessons. Without apprehending the significance of the crucifixion of Christ, all the other lessons are meaningless. It is not a matter of learning lessons taught by a great teacher or imitating the example of a great and good man, but apprehending the vicarious atonement made by the world's Redeemer. Christ saves, not by his ethical teaching, but by his shed blood.

I. Jesus Arraigned Before Pilate (vv. 1-15).

They bound Jesus and delivered him to Pilate in the early morning before the mock trial of the high priest. The Jews would gladly have killed him but they lacked the authority to do so. They delivered him to the Gentile governor, thus involving the Jews and Gentiles in this crowning act of human sin. Pilate questioned him without delay. He was accused of pretending to be a king. To this slanderous accusation of the chief priests and elders he made no reply, to the utter astonishment of Pilate, who sought to release him because convinced of his innocence. After several unsuccessful efforts to escape responsibility, he resorted to the expedient of letting the people choose between Barabbas and Jesus.

II. Jesus Crowned With Thorns (vv. 16-20).

After Pilate had scourged Jesus, he delivered him to be crucified.

1. Crown of thorns (vv. 16, 17). Knowing that Jesus had been condemned for claiming to be Israel's King, they clothed him with purple and crowned him with a wreath of thorns. The crown of thorns typified the cross which he bore for man's sins (Genesis 3:17, 18).

2. Their salutation (v. 18). In derision they said, "Hail, King of the Jews!"

3. Their mock worship (vv. 19, 20). They smote him on the head with a reed, taunted him, and went through a process of mock worship.

III. Jesus Crucified (vv. 21-41).

1. They led him away to the place of crucifixion (vv. 21-23). At first they compelled him to bear his own cross, but when physical weakness made this impossible they forced Simon, the Cyrenian, to bear it. Christ's face was so marked by the thorns and cruel blows that there was no form nor comeliness (Isa. 53:2).

2. Gambling for the clothing of the Lord (vv. 24, 25). They gambled for his seamless robe under the very cross upon which Jesus was dying.

3. The superscription (v. 26). It was customary to place over the victim on the cross, his name and a statement of his crime. He was indeed the king of the Jews.

4. Between two thieves (vv. 27, 28). His indentification with the two robbers was in fulfillment of the Scripture (Isa. 53:12).

5. The dying Savior reviled (vv. 29-32). They taunted him by bidding him come down from the cross, and said derisively, "He saved others, himself he cannot save." He could not save himself and others, so he chose to die to save others.

6. Darkness upon the land (v. 33). Nature threw around the Son of God a shroud to hide him from the gaze of a godless company.

7. The cry from the cross (vv. 34-36). When God laid upon his beloved Son the world's sin and turned his face from him, there went out the awful cry of anguish, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?"

8. He dismissed his spirit (v. 37). When the price of redemption was fully paid, Jesus as sovereign dismissed his spirit.

9. The rent vail (v. 38). This symbolized the giving up of his life (Heb. 10:20).

10. The centurion's confession (v. 29). He said, "Truly this man was the Son of God."

11. The lingering group of women (vv. 40, 41). Having lovingly ministered to him in life they were now waiting to care for his precious body.

IV. Jesus' Burial (vv. 42-47).

Loving hands now took the body and laid it in Joseph's new tomb. This man who did not consent to the foul treatment of the Lord now risks his reputation, and by his action made a bold confession of the Lord.

CORINTH-SHADY GROVE

The Corinth-Shady Grove singing society met at Shady Grove Sunday afternoon, May 28, at 2 o'clock. The first song, directed by Archie Jones, chairman, was followed with prayer by N. J. Jones.

The directors for the afternoon were Archie Jones, A. M. Moore, I. D. Huett, Herman Dubose, Raymond Jones and Edgar Jones. The last three are young directors. R. P. McKinney was organist for the afternoon.

We were sorry to notice the absence of several members of the class. We hope they can all be with us next second Sunday, June 11, and help to make good singing better.

The society appreciates the presence of every visitor and extends a cordial invitation for your constant support. Meet us next time, June 11, at Corinth church.—Mabel Jones, secretary.

WOMEN'S CONTRIBUTION TO THE MOTOR CAR

There is some doubt that people care to hear very much about what goes on under the hoods of their cars.

The driver knows that "driving qualities" are not accidental; they are put there. How the manufacturer creates or evolves those results may not interest him. He judges entirely by the results he gets in driving.

Well, it is not essential to talk "shop"; let us talk Results.

Smoothness. Drive the Ford V-8 and you will find that the engine runs with surpassing smoothness, due to its design and the extra precise methods of its manufacture.

Power. There it is, 75 horsepower (we could say 80) at the driveshaft for the driver's use. With less weight to pull around, the mettle of this car—its life-like response—is rather remarkable.

Economy. Our V-8 develops more power on a gallon of gasoline than any car we have made. Mileage is partly a matter of individual driving, but under average conditions the Ford V-8 does 17 to 20 miles a gallon. Of course, car economy is not only a matter of fuel. Ford V-8 has that too, but it is also economical in the complete sense—initial cost, operation, maintenance.

Appearance. This is woman's contribution. The motor car must not only be useful, but also good-looking. View the Ford V-8 and you will not need our comment on its fine appearance.

Comfort. This also is woman's concern. In 30 years she changed the motor car from a wagon to a coach. Comfort is a quality made up of numerous ingredients. There is no comfort without a quiet, smooth-running engine. We have all the other ingredients too,—color, good taste, quality, ease, safety, roominess and convenience.

Bernard Shaw thinks heaven would be the best place to live. Hard place to get to, though.

Now, when Europeans twit us because we have no ruins, we can point to the bills we hold against them.

There is a great deal of discussion as to whether President Roosevelt technically recognized Russia in sending a copy of his world peace plea to the soviet government. Perhaps the President merely recognized what is undoubtedly true: that Russia is one of the most armed nations in the world.

What has become of the old fashioned financier who could tell you, if you deposited a hundred dollars today, how much money you would have in the bank in one hundred years?

The good book tells us that the meek shall inherit the earth, which would indicate that Adolph Hitler's chances for the long term are not so good.

If the gold content of the dollar is reduced fifty per cent one of our popular songs will have to revised to go: "Here it is Monday and I've still got a half a dollar."

New Jersey voted five to one wet, and didn't even get in the headlines. If New Jersey had voted five to one dry that would have been news.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

The pronouncement of Norman H. Davis, at Geneva, to the effect that the United States will assume new responsibilities to help maintain the peace of the world, will abandon the principle of neutrality in case of trouble, and consult with other nations as to what is to be done about it, has brought forth varied comment in the press of the United States. . Generally those papers which have favored United States entrance into the League of Nations and the League Court are favorable to the new developments, while those which have opposed foreign entanglements are not so enthusiastic. The same line of clevage is said to be faintly visible in the senate.

Although the new policy is generally admitted to be a step in the direction of departure from the time honored foreign policy of the Amercian government there has been less excitement about it than might be expected—especially in the newspapers. The reason perhaps is that the so-called Morgan investigation by a United States Senate Committee turned out to be a real nine-days wonder which drew journalistic attention away from everything else on Capitol Hill.

Although many Americans believe that consultative pacts and peace guaranties will prove a source of future trouble for Uncle Sam, French diplomats are said to be satisfied with what our administration has promised and to be getting ready to demand promise of more security from the United States. And while German newspapers generally hail the Davis pronouncement as evidence that President Roosevelt intends to involve the United States in European problems, Lord Beaverbrook the noted British publicist is quoted as stating that European statesmen are counting on too much. He expresses the belief that our congress will never permit the United States to become involved in any more European wars. Certainly it will not be the intent of the administration or congress, either, to involve us in any more military ventures in Europe. The trouble is, however, that an arms embargo coupled with a consultative pact is apt to bring on war unintentionally, before congress would have a chance to take any action, no matter how pure the motives of our government may be.

One of the chief arguments of those opposed to consultative pacts to punish "aggressor nations" has been that it is always difficult to determine the real aggressor in any argument. Mr. Davis, speaking for the administration, seeks to answer this by proposing: "In the long run we may come to the conclusion that the simplest and most accurate definition of an aggressor is one whose armed forces are found on alien soil in violation of treaties."

But it is not as simple as all this in the opinion of the eminently practical New York Sun which says editorially:

"Let us put this to the test of practice. Assume that the government of a foreign nation seizes all the American citizens within its borders, throws them in jail, kills them or puts them to torture, confiscates their property and refuses to heed protests of the American government. Under the circumstances, according to old-fashioned folks, a declaration of war against the offending government would be justifiable, and that declaration would naturally be followed by an American invasion by land or an attack by sea.

"What then, under the Norman Davis concept of aggression? Why, the United States would be the aggressor, for there was no invasion of this county by the other government's armed forces. It is unfortunate that Mr. Davis seems to think in terms of France and Germany and not in terms of his own country. But he has been abroad a great deal of his life and cannot be expected to look at things as narrowly as those Americans, who, not being international-minded, subject all new proposals concerning war and peace to a scrutiny essentially domestic in its nature."

And so the argument goes. By the time the question is finally adjudicated by the senate it is a good bet that the people of America will know a great deal more about treaties, consultative pacts, punitive agreements and kindred matters, than they do today.

ARMS EMBARGO PLAN MIGHT LEAD TO WAR

A general policy of an arms embargo is the road to war, according to Walter L. Reynolds, who writes convincingly on the subject under that heading in the current issue of the National Republic. By way of beginning, Mr. Reynolds says:

"During the last three months the congress of the United States has been rapidly delegating legislative powers and responsibilities, placed on it by the constitution, to the president, abdicating many of the important functions of the legislative branch of our government to the executive. These powers were intended to remain in the hands of the direct representatives of the people, in the congress, in accordance with the intent and meaning of the constitution as adopted by the founders of our republic, in order that the people might pass on the executive program of the administration through their representatives in congress. Nor are the duties that are being delegated limited to economic and financial problems that require immediate action in the emergency. Had the congress kept within its field, many of our people would have felt that such action in certain instances might be warranted, believing that the congress may realize its inability to rapidly effect the economies and alleviate the distress among our people as well as it might be done by the president, and thus providing a short cut toward the return of normalacy.

"One of the most outstanding samples of such procedure is the so-called 'Arms Embargo Resolution' recently put through the house under a rule which permitted no amendments. The resolution is now awaiting action in the senate, where it faces strong bi-partisan opposition if the people of the United States awaken to what its enactment will mean.

The resolution's provisions were briefly outlined by Prof. Edwin M. Borchard of Yale University, eminent authority on international law at the hearings on this resolution before the Foreign Affairs Committee as follows:

"'It is believed that the grant of such power to the president is unconstitutional and dangerous. It gives the president the power (1) to make treaties with foreign governments without the consent of the senate; (2) to enter into alliances without the consent of the senate; (3) to violate the neutrality laws of the United States by embargoing the shipment of arms to one or two or more belligerents, and (4) in effect to declare war on the country thus selected without the consent of congress. No such power has ever been conferred on any president and it is believed unwise as well as illegal, for the house of representatives and senate thus to abdicate their constitutional functions.'

"In other words, the resolution would place a weapon in the hands of the president, so that he could determine who, in his opinion, is the 'aggressor' nation in any war, and such determination place an 'arms embargo' against that nation. Since the aggressor nation has never been definitely determined in any conflict, and even today is a question of dispute as regards the World War, this proposal is tantamount to transferring the power to declare war from the congress, the direct representatives of the people, to the president, which act is direct violation of the constitution of the United States.

"During the debate on the floor of the house, the opposition to this resolution, led by Representative Hamilton Fish, Jr., of New York, ranking minority member of the committee on Foreign Affairs, pointed out that this proposal was nothing more or less than the so-called 'war sanctions' articles of the League of Nations Covenant, Articles X and XVI, which the people of the United States repudiated in no uncertain terms in 1920. It is to be hoped by all right thinking citizens that the senate will be able to realize that this is a sugar-coated scheme to entangle the United States in the League of Nations, and that they will give some consideration to the expressed wishes of the people, not to mention the duty they owe toward the preservation of the constitution."

Jim Reed wants to go back to the United States senate, where there has been so much activity of late that he is no longer afraid of being bored.

One Eastern exchange suggests that the militant farmers of Iowa take the advice given to Kansas farmers by William Allen White, to "raise less hell and more corn." But one trouble seems to be that they are raising too much corn the way it is.

Chancellor Hitler took the red May Day of Germany and put a brown shirt on it.

A Lynn, Mass., man applied to the police for aid in finding his bass drum which he had lost. Maybe the depression deflated it.

When you hear people talk about "high tariffs" you know they're ag'n tariffs. Using the word "high" makes it sound bad. The fact is that very few of our tariff schedules are so high but that a lot of foreign goods come in over them. What protectionists aim at is "adequate tariff". That is, a tariff that measures the difference in cost of production here and in foreign countries.

Two-Cent Postage

Now comes word that we may expect two-cent postage again in the near future. I know this will be welcome news to many people. According to reports from the Postoffice Department at Washington, the change from two-cent to three-cent postage was a big mistake, any way. The increase was put on to raise revenue, of course, but the action has brought about a loss, instead of a gain, to the department. There has been no noticeable decrease; in regular personal mail, but the number of monthly statements, etc., has fallen off materially. In addition to this, many people took to using one-cent postal cards for much of their correspondence, whereas, before the raise, letters were written, using two-cent stamps. In some of the larger cities, where thousands of statements were mailed out monthly, business houses now put out collectors. Postal authorities fear that the bringing back of the old rate will not help much, now, as the people have learned their lesson of economy and may stick to it. Just like locking the barn after the horses are stolen.

The Indian Language

After all these years it has come to our notice that none of the many different American Indian languages and dialects contain swear words. If one of the redskins gets hot under the collar and wants to "cuss" somebody out, he can't do it—not in his own language. He must either puff and snort to show his rage, or switch over to the language of his adopted white brothers to do his swearing. This was discovered recently at a baseball game between an Indian team and one composed of white men. An Indian became enraged, and proceeded to "cuss out" one of the other Indians, using the English language as a medium, although Indians nearly always do their talking among themselves in their own language. Somebody asked him why he spoke English in his swearing, and he replied that his own language contained no words to correspond with our swear words, so he had to use English. Before white men came to America the Indians knew nothing of horses; and Indians tasted whiskey from the hands of white men for their first time, too. However, once they came to know these three — horses, swearing, and liquor ("fire water" to them) they took to them like ducks to water.

When The Cows Come Home

My good friend Chester Wingard again comes in for a place in the sun of the news columns. You never can tell what that fellow is going to do next. He rigged up the first limousine to run the streets of Clanton; I told you about that chauffeur-driven "machine" not long ago. And now it remains for him to show us the ultra-modern method of going after the cow. I suppose we might call it cow-driving de luxe. He gets in his limousine and motors over to the cow pasture, leads bossie out in front of the car, then gets in his car and sets out for home, driving bossie out in front. That's some system, and puts cow-driving on a high plane, but, for the life of me I can't decide whether this system proves ingenuity or laziness. Maybe it's some of both.

Old Times Again

Many times it has been said, "old times come again no more," and "the old gray mare ain't what she used to be." But these tight times seem to have revived some of the customs and usages of old times, even if the old times can't come again. And, if "the old gray mare ain't what she used to be," yet the old red steer seems to be coming back into his own as a draft animal to some degree. In roving around over the country, one sees numbers of steers being used in the fields in the place of horses and mules. Of course these are not so fast, but they are much cheaper to own and feed, and thus the cost of farm products is lessened, and this item of production is one of the largest. Don't be surprised if you pass a field and see old Jerry, or Mike, or Bill hitched to the plow; and you may hear the driver yelling "Whoa—back" or some other steer-driving direction instead of the conventional "gee" and "haw". It's being done, now.

Our Joke Factory

Maybe you, too, have wondered at times how all jokes were started. Some of them are true—some are not. Will Rogers, the famous wit, says our folks must have an idea we were about to run out of jokes, so they elected a set of fellows to go to Washington and form a joke factory. He says he gets the idea from all the jokes the congressmen play on each other, especially since the investigation of J. P. Morgan's affairs has been under way. And Will adds that after all the jokes he has heard pulled in the investigation, he is impressed that the jokers, themselves, are the biggest jokes of the lot. And he may not be so far wrong, at that. It may be that we do have a whole deck of jokers up there, if one considers the way the congress has been pulling the "Let George do it" act in favor of the big ace, the president. No wonder Mr. Roosevelt has asked for dictatorial powers. Maybe he realizes he has a bunch of weak-kneed, sissy, yes-boys up there with him who know they are not big enough for the job and are glad to turn the whole mess over to him. Maybe he realizes the predicament he is in by having to put up with his helpers, and is making the best of a bad situation by trying to cut out every chance he can for them to make a mess of things. Mr. Roosevelt is wise—maybe wiser than we think.—Man in the Moon.

It is still questionable as to how much of a favor it was for certain preferred customers to be let in on the ground floor of the Morgan and Company for the purchase of the stock of Allegany Corporation at $20 when it was selling several points above that figure on the stock exchange. The stock was recently quoted at around $2.

When a man inflates his ego something unpleasant generally happens to him sooner or later. We hope that national inflation will not bring similar results.

The prince of optimists is he who believes that poverty and work may be abolished at the same time.

THE DIFFERENCE

In commenting on President Roosevelt's bold and effective message to the rulers of the world in an effort to maintain the peace and effect further disarmament, the Chicago Tribune credits the president with a bold and skillful policy which eased the tension of the world. In continuing to emphasize the difference between European and American policy, however, the Tribune says:

"This is a victory worth winning. But the president's message to the rulers has brought out again in sharp relief the difficulties inherent in the difference in interests and viewpoint of the European governments and those of the American nation. The heart of the president's proposals to Europe as understood there is the promise of American force. No European power thinks the American proposal means anything unless it means that the United States will use its economic and its military forces to maintain any arrangements which will arise out of a settlement intended for the peace of the world.

"The prospect is no more satisfactory now than its was when President Wilson first had a vision of a world under his presidency. The country sought an escape from that as soon as it comprehended the Wilsonian plan and succeeded in breaking away. The mistake was to believe that the success, although complete, was final. There never has been a time since when the American government, whether Republican or Democratic, was not nibbling at the bait in this European trap. Thus a sense of futility has come to be attached to the repeated decision of the American people that their country shall not enter Europe as an obligated participant in events which they know they could not control even if they had the desire to do so. So, far as any political decision goes, it has never been revealed that the people have departed in the slightest from their own belief, inculated by the most distinguished statesmen of the early republic, that Europe has problems with which America never will be familiar and from which it therefore should have the greatest possible separation.

"The inconsistency of American government proposals with American popular thought and intention has been marked throughout the negotiations subsequent to Mr. Wilson's failure with the League of Nations.

"This inconsistency is explainable only in terms of human egotism. The secretaries of state, supported by American Presidents, have found a satisfaction in projecting themselves into European affairs. Out of such inspiration came the Kellog treaty, and although that sentimentality has been discarded by every nation wishing to do so, at any time, it has taken the United States farther and farther afield in international adventures.

"Theoretically it would seem at least improbable that government persistence should in the end prevail against popular instinct and judgment but the guaranty that it will not is missing. Americans still believe that the peace of Europe depends upon the will of Europeans to have it; upon their willingness to make arrangements which will permit it to exist and continue and not upon the decision to the United States to commit itself as a party to any controversy which may arise out of arrangements which do not promise war. The American government thinks otherwise. Europe desires otherwise. Both the American and other governments should be warned that agreements made contrary to deep national instincts and opinions are dangerous for everyone concerned."

A lot of people are complaining that 1933 beer doesn't measure up to the required 3.2 per cent. Maybe what the brewers need is Prof. Mordecai Ezekial's table of logarithms.

NATIONAL PLANNING AND TARIFFS

Recently we have not heard so much favorable talk about the reduction of tariff barriers and the introduction of a lower tariff policy for the United States. There are reasons. One of them is the new farm law and the other is the proposed industries bill. If farmers are to have higher prices they must have protection from the cheap products of foreign agricultural nations. What good would it do to try to lift the prices of farm commodities here by a processor's tax and in other ways and then to let in foreign commodities almost free to provide ruinous competition for our own products?

The industry recovery bill comes into collision also with the idea of lower tariffs. If we are to have industrial reorganization, higher wages for labor and better prices for industry, to maintain our American standard of living, then certainly our American workers and the products which they manufacture cannot compete in our great market with commodities coming to us from the cheap labor countries of Europe and Asia where little if any attention is paid to living standards.

One of the men to recognize this is Mr. Barney Baruch, pillar in the present administration, who had considerable experience with industry during the World War when he was head of the War Industries Board.

In an address to the Brookings Institute in Washington, outlining the scheme of industrial planning to aid recovery, Mr. Baruch said:

"Finally this process is certain to raise American costs even further above world costs, and to require additional protection against importations. Coupled with the further effect of the Farm Bill to raise prices, all this struggle suggests inconsistency in domestic policy with any plan to lower tariffs in world economic conference. But that can be ironed out."

Just how it can be ironed out remains to be seen. Probably the only way effectively to iron it out is to cling to the American system of protection which will equalize the cost of production at home and abroad. Only in that way can we have permanent industrial recovery.

As the Washington Post well puts it editorially:

"The purpose of farm and industrial recovery legislation is to marshal the powers of the government and people in partnership to win the American war against adversity. It is an American war, fought by Americans, for an American victory. The maintenance and increase in wages, in order to maintain the high standard of living, can not be accomplished if the United States is to lower its tariff and permit foreign farmers and industries to share the American market with home producers. The Hull theory of general reduction of tariffs would tend to reduce the standards of living to a common level, at the expense of American workers and farmers.

"There is an irreconcilable conflict between the high American standard of living and the low foreign standard. America can not lift the foreign standard without lowering its own standard. Americans possess at home the richest and largest market in the world. If they intend to share it with workers and peasants who live on a pauper basis, then American workers and farmers must prepare to become industrial serfs and peasants."

The Man on the Corner

Some Sights He Saw— and Some He Saw Not

A Good Improvement Started

What a wonderful improvement can be made in a community by a little spell of painting and cleaning up. Example: Take a look at the property of Dr. Arthur Johnson. He has repainted his office building, his home, the house occupied by Mr. Stapp and the other buildings on his property. The spirit of brightness is catching. Across the street we notice new paint at the homes of Mrs. Phillips and Mrs. Evans. A bit of stone and concrete work, along with some cleaning up, has made a decided improvement in the appearance of that immediate vicinity. There are lots of places in town where such a spirit ought to break out. Many people could well afford to paint a little, and it would help much, both in appearance and in the preservation of property. Who will be next to try it?

Friendliness Between Town and Country

Ever since I can remember I have been hearing instances now and then where somebody with a motive sought to create a feeling of enmity between the people of Clanton and the people of others parts of the county. Recently, it has been reported, somebody has been trying this mean little trick again. I will not call any names, because I do not want to get into any argument; and I know everybody would deny all guilt or connection with such a measley purpose. I hope nobody will be misled by such schemes. Our people in the towns and our people in the country need to get closer together instead of further apart. Every time somebody in the country gets in hard luck a neighbor gets up a petition for help and heads right straight to the business people of the nearest town for help. And help is given. Many are the ways in which our people show their friendliness and interest in each other. How foolish it seems, therefore, for somebody with a pet motive or scheme, to go about trying to set the people of the rural sections against the people in the towns. We are all just plain old hill billies. Nearly every business man in our town once plowed a mule or a bull yearling. Our interests are so close akin that we can not afford to think of things that mean estrangement.

Ernest Childs Visitor Here

Many friends of Rev. Ernest Childs in Clanton were delighted to see him for a brief visit here last Thursday night. He came with the delegation of Troy Kiwanis Club Members. When a preacher goes to a place he always likes to see the "native" preachers. Ernest was somewhat disappointed that both our pastors, Ezell and Cochran, were out of town when he was here. Anyway, he seemed to most heartily enjoy seeing many of his old friends, and I am sure all of us enjoyed having him with us. Mr. Childs is one of those men who possesses the happy endowment of natural friendliness and attachment to everybody with whom he is thrown into contact. One does not have to figure around and go between a lot of personal peculiarities to get close to him. He is easy to get to and hard to get away from.

County Home Agent Busy

Miss Ruth Pardue, county home demonstration agent, reports that she is finding more to do than she can accomplish. Everyone everywhere is clamoring for her services. The women and girls are taking on to the home demonstration work like ducks take to water. No wonder. That part of our progress is so far behind. We ought to have had a home agent many years ago. Some of our hide-bound office holders thought they knew that our women and girls did not need the assistance of such a trained worker, and therefore, they did not hire one. They used to think the same thing about a county farm agent. We have seen our people prove themselves on the farm agent business. We soon shall see them open someboy's eyes about the home agent. Then if we can get a health unit established and operating, we will be getting our county reasonably well forward in the important business of rendering to our rural people some of the very much needed services which they have been denied so long.

We Need a New Serum

Thanks to our doctors, we now have the advantages of a serum, inoculation, or preventive, for almost every known deadly disease or poisonous infection. There are two more inoculations yet very much needed by suffering humanity; one against the common "bad cold" and the other against scheming and designing politicians. Folks must be made immune against the kind of politician, a wolf in sheep's clothing, who will slip around over our county and try to create in the minds of people a spirit of unfriendliness between folks on the farms and folks in our little towns.

ANOTHER REDUCTION

Great Britain, France and the other European nations who owe us on the war debt have during the past month or two had another cut in the amount they actually have to pay us. This has come about through the depreciation of the dollar abroad, in terms of foreign currencies. With the dollar worth approximately 85 cents in gold in the European markets, the debtor nations have only to buy American dollars and make their payments on the war debt in these, so getting a discount of fifty per cent—in addition to the generous cuts they have had by international agreement in the past. The total sum of the debts, it is said, have been reduced something like a billion dollars because of the depreciation of the dollar abroad. But are the nations who owe us money hastening to take advantage of this? They are not. Why take something like a little fifteen per cent when they hope to get a 100 per cent reduction a little later on.

The American Bible Society reports that "a growing spirit of evangelism helped to make Japan one of the most fertile areas for the sale of Bibles in 1932, and will again be the scene of a concerted Protestant drive for Bible culture in 1933." Perhaps, after all, the Japanese are in China just to pass on the gospel to the heathen.

Senator Hiram Johnson refuses to go to London as a delegate to the economic conference. Evidently Hiram has not lost any of his political acumen during the past few months.

British idea of tariff agreement seems to be that if Uncle Sam will cancel the sum John Bull owes him, John Bull will then be glad to ship us a lot more goods if we will also cancel our tariff schedules.

ALL DAY SINGINGS THIS MONTH

The second Sunday is the annual singing at Pleasant Grove, out from Jemison. The third Sunday Collins Chapel will have their annual singing. Also on the second Sunday there will be an all day singing at New Harmony in Elmore County, out from Wadsworth station. So far as we know there is no singing announced for the fourth Sunday.

There will be an all day singing next Sunday, the first in June, at Longview, near Saginaw, in Shelby County.

SPECIAL ELECTION

For the Election of A County Superintendent of Education of Chilton County, Ala.

Under and by virtue of the provisions contained in Section Two of an Act of the Legislature of Alabama, approved April 11, 1933;

"To provide for the election of a County Superintendent of Education of Chilton County, Alabama, to fix his term of office, to prescribe his salary, and the manner of payment, to define his qualifications, powers, and duties, and to provide for the election of his successor in office," which said Section Two reads as follows:

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

FARM PRICES ADVANCE GREATEST SINCE 1919

The advance in prices paid farmers for agricultural commodities during the month ending May 15 was the largest recorded for any one month since April 1919, reports F. W. Gist, statistician of the department of agriculture.

During the month the farm price index was raised from 53 to 63 per cent of its pre-war level and was 6 points above a year ago, he said.

"The increase has resulted in a corresponding advance in the purchasing power of farm products, the index of prices farmers pay remaining unchanged at 100 per cent. The exchange value of farm products, was, therefore, 62 per cent of the pre-war average, compared with 50 per cent a year ago."

Alabama prices paid to farmers on May 15 were found to be as follows:

Corn 70c per bushel; oats 40c per bushel; potatoes 65c per bushel; sweet potatoes 50c per bushel; cotton 8.4c per pound, cottonseed $13.70 per ton, hogs $3.50 per hundred, beef cattle $2.65 per hundred, calves $3.50 per hundred, lambs $5.00 per hundred, milk cows $21.00 each, horses $54.00 each, mules $80.00 each, chicken 9.3c per pound, eggs 10.5c per dozen, butter 18c per pound, butter fat 17c per pound, wool 15c per pound and loose hay $7.00 per ton.

GAME AND FISH NEWS

Montgomery, Ala., June 6. — The Massachusetts Audubon Bulletin quotes Dr. Alfred O. Gross of Bowdoin College, Maine, who has made a careful study of the life history of the sole surviving heath hen on Martha's Vineyard Island, as declaring this last heath hen apparently is dead and its race extinct.

"The tragedy was foreseen many years ago," Dr. Gross was quoted in a recent report to the division of fisheries and game at Boston, "but in spite of all that men could do was not averted, thus amply demonstrating how helpless we are to preserve any wild species when once complicated environmental factors become antagonistic to its continuance.

"The last authentic date of the appearance of the famous lone bird was March 11, 1932, when it was seen at the James Green Farm, near West Tisbury. The bird has been the sole survivor of its race since December, 1928, and was approximately 10 years old.

"It was seen at its traditional booming and courting field at regular intervals between February 9 and March 11 of last year and then disappeared. Several persons reported seeing the bird during the past year, but these reports were not verified."

Dr. Gross has offered a reward for the heath hen's remains, declaring, "In order to complete the history of the heath hen it is important someone discover and report the remains of the last bird." Fortunately the bird was marked in April, 1931, with two metal bands furnished by the U. S. Biological survey which will make identification certain.

Though suggestions had been made to the Massachusetts department of conservation to collect and preserve this last bird for science, it was permitted to live its normal life among the schrub oaks on the sandy plains of Martha's Vineyard Island. The heath hen attracted the attention of scientists and bird lovers throughout the world and many visited the Green farm annually in the hope of getting a glimpse of the famous bird.

MILK STOOL MUSINGS

On June 1, the gates swung open for the 1933 World's Fair at Chicago. In this century of progress exposition the dairy industry will take its place in the sun along with other major industries of our country.

The dairy exhibits building has been erected on northerly island, along the principal thoroughfare of the exposition grounds, within a stone's throw of the main entrance. The main objective of the collective dairy exhibit will be the development of a greater market for all dairy producers and to show the vital importance of dairy products to the whole human family.

As the visitors enter the building they will observe a cycloramic wall two stories in height and 80 feet long. On this circular background will be projected by lights, color and silhouette the romantic story of the cow and her products of the past century. Industrial and commodity halls and the club room will provide further features of more than passing interest.

STATE FORESTRY CAMP IS IN WALKER COUNTY

Montgomery, Ala.—The first forestry camp of the Roosevelt reforestation program to be conducted under the state commission of forestry was established in Walker County Friday, June 2, according to a statement issued by the commissioner. Two hundred men who had been in the conditioning camp at Camp McClellan detrained at Townley and proceeded to establish headquarters.

There is a large amount of state land in Walker County, mainly school and university lands. These areas, together with intervening and adjoining private lands, will be given improvement and silvicultural treatment with view to rendering them of greater permanent productivity.

According to the commission, private timber lands will be worked only upon reasonable assurance that the results of the work will be kept up by the owners after the camp has been discontinued. The federal government feels that it would not be appropriate to expend public funds upon private holdings unless there be some guarantee of the permanence of the results. Subject to this provision the private lands will be given very much the same treatment as the tracts belonging to the state.

FARM ACT SECTION CAN AID BORROWERS

Auburn, Ala., June 6.—Authorization for federal land banks to issue up to $2,000,000,000 in bonds, with interest guaranteed by the United States and either exchange the bonds for first mortgages on farms or sell them and use the money to make new loans to farmers, is one of the principal features of the farm mortgage section of the agricultural adjustment act, according to information issued by the farm credit administration, which administers this section of the act.

The farm credit administration began functioning on May 27 as provided for in president Roosevelt's executive order issued March 27, 1933. The agencies to be consolidated under the new administration include the federal farm board, the federal farm loan bureau, which has jurisdiction over the federal land banks, joint stock land banks and intermediate credit banks, the regional agricultural credit corporation of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and the Crop Production Loan Division of the United States Department of Agriculture.

The farm mortgage section of the farm act makes it possible to lower the interest rates on both old and new loans, and to permit borrowers, generally, to extend payment on the principal of their loans from federal land banks, and to loan money directly to farmers in districts where there are no national farm loan associations through which applications may be accepted. It also provides for farm loan commissioner's loans to be made direct to farmers from agencies of the farm loan commissioner located in each of the 12 federal land bank districts.

Applications for information or loans under the new act, the farm credit administration says, should be made to the secretary-treasurer of the national farm loan association in the county in which the applicant's farm is located, or to the federal land bank serving his state. In the absence of a loan association, farmers should get in touch with their county agricultural agent.

The federal land bank for this district is at New Orleans, La.

CURE PORK IN HOT WEATHER

Auburn, Ala., June 6.—June will bring hotter days but that does not mean that pork cannot be slaughtered and saved during this month.

A method of curing pork in which cold weather is replaced with ice has been developed by the experiment station of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, and pork can now be cured in summer as well as winter.

Two essentials of curing pork are taken into consideration in the method. They are that it is necessary to remove the animal heat and chill the meat immediately after killing and that it is necessary to salt the meat thoroughly. Prof. J. C. Grimes gives directions as follows:

"Kill the hog and cut carcass as wanted. Rub salt over meat. Place it in water-tight barrel. (Each 300-lb hog or equivalent will require one ordinary barrel.) After meat is placed crack and place over it 200 pounds of ice for each 100 pounds of meat. Let it stay 24 hours. Take it up and rub it with a curing mixture composed of 12 pounds of salt, 3 pounds of sugar, and 3 ounces of saltpeter. (Each 100 pounds of meat needs 50 pounds of this curing mixture). After rubbing meat with it, repack it in iced brine in barrel. Pour remainder of curing mixture over it. Cover barrel with cloth or boards. Let it stay 25 days for hogs weighing 200 pounds or less; and 30 to 35 days for hogs weighing more than 300 pounds, depending upon the size. Take it out, wash with warm water, hang and smoke."

JERSEY CALF CLUB WILL MEET

AGRICULTURE

By Clifford M. Manning

Seed Selection

'Tis funny as can be that a thing so small as an acorn can start a huge tree.

Nutrition and reproduction are the two functions of plants. The production of seed is the principal means by which field plants increase in number and the means by which annual plants live over from year to year or even through adverse seasons when no new seed are produced.

From the side-line you have often heard two farmers talking about the great seed corn or cotton seed he is going to plant. They are probably some seed that he bought from a neighbor who probably named the seed himself, and "shot-a-line" about the seed being pure, will produce better, etc., when the seed will not be fifty per cent pure.

To prove this, there was hardly a farm in the county that did not have some of this Mississippi red cotton on it last year. This cotton has a different color leaf from the other, which makes one notice it. So you see this cotton has mixed at the gin and so has a number of others mixed with it from year to year. This cannot be avoided unless the farmers organize to plant the same kind of selected seed, and have gin days for same at the public gin or private gin, and clean them thoroughly before using.

There are three things a person should know when buying seed for planting purposes. First, he should know the percentage of germination or per cent of the seed that will sprout. A simple tester can be made to find the percentage of germination by taking two blotter papers and placing some of the seed between them, place them in a plate and keep damp for about ten days at about 20 degrees C., then get the percentage that sprouted.

Second, he should know the per cent of purity. Seed of the variety named or per cent of other variety of seed that is mixed with them. Third, he should know the per cent filler, such as dirt, weed seed, and other kinds of seed that could possibly be mixed with them, which makes an under-weight when buying seed, and you are buying seed that does you no good, and probably will do you harm.

We are protected from bad seed now, more-so than we once were, by the Federal Seed Act, the Uniform Seed Law and the American Seed Trade Association.

The topic for next week is "Cross-Pollination."

FARM AND GARDEN QUERY BOX

(By K. C. Davis, Knapp School of Country Life, Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn.)

Q. Our hens are always bothered with lice and mites in the summertime. What is the best remedy to prevent their coming?

A. Spray the roosts and paint the nests inside, using oil from the crank case of an automobile. If the oil is too thick to spray readily, dilute it somewhat with kerosene and with creosote. The entire interior of the house, including floor and walls, might well be covered with this material as it costs little and is very effective against lice and mites. If hens are already infested with lice dip them in a water solution of sodium flouoride. Use one ounce of powder to three gallons of water and have it at the temperature of about 100 degrees.

Q. The walnut caterpillars are beginning to eat the leaves again this year as they did last season. What can be done to keep off these and other caterpillars from shade trees and shrubs?

A. Dust leaves with a blow gun which can reach all leaves of the trees. Do this in the early morning when the dew is on the leaves. Use arsenate of lead mixed with about nine or ten parts of lime dust. This is suitable poison for use on all kinds of shrubbery and trees which are infected with caterpillars or other eating insects. If you prefer spraying a poison on the trees, use one ounce of arsenate of lead to two gallons of water.

HONEY BEES BRING $250,000 TO ALABAMA

Alabama bee producers have this spring shipped 700,000,000 bees to the northern states and Canada and for them have received about $250,000.

Thomas Atchison, department of agriculture apiary inspector, reports 250,000 queen bees and 60,000 two-and-three-pound package of bees shipped. This is a 25 per cent increase over any previous year.

Mr. Atchison estimates that the 60,000 packages of bees contained about 140,000 pounds of bees and that there are 5,000 bees to the pound which makes approximately 700,000,000 bees in the total shipment from the state.

BRIEF FARM ITEMS

Where your turkeys are confined throughout their growth, it takes about 4.2 pounds of feed to grow a pound of turkey, live weight.

A study of 267 homes shows that it costs, on the average, $33 to install a sewage disposal plant and $153 to insall a water system.

The black locust is a good tree crop for Alabama. It furnishes excellent fence posts. Its flowers aid bees to produce good honey. It is a legume and will add nitrogen to the soil.

WHO WILL PAY THE INCOME TAX?

Montgomery, Ala., June 6. — Who will pay the state income tax if the voters ratify the amendment on July 18th? This question is answered in four words, according to W. H. Mitchell, chairman of the Income Tax and Warrant Amendment Committee. The four words are "Those Able to Pay." In other words, as Mr. Mitchell points out, those who are unable to pay, the little fellows whose net incomes are less than the proposed constitutional limit, will not only be exempt but will, by voting for the amendment, make possible a future reduction in their ad valorem taxes. The amendment specifically provides that upon the retirement of the state's floating debt, the revenue from the income tax must be used exclusively in reducing the ad valorem tax.

The income tax will be paid by approximately eight thousand taxpayers according to Mr. Mitchell. This figure represents the number of individuals and corporations against which federal income tax was levied in 1932. Of the total number of taxpayers in Alabama, this figure represents a very small portion, a vast majority being exempt under the provisions of the amendment.

Mr. Mitchell further points out that the greater portion of the tax will come from the large, industrial centers of the state, where a majority of the three hundred taxpaying corporations are located and monthly salaries are largest and most numerous. In no instance, however, will this tax be burdensome, declared Mr. Mitchell. "The quicker we pay off the floating debts, most of which are represented in outstanding warrants, the sooner Alabama's ad valorem tax will be reduced. These warrants, are held by thousands of individuals, including school teachers, state employees, newspaper publishers and men and women in all walks of life, as well as banks, corporations and small business houses. It is in the interest of these people who expect the state to pay its honest debts that we are fighting to put over the income tax and warrant amendments."

"Talk about industires refusing to locate in Alabama on account of its 3 per cent income tax is all tommy-rot," emphatically stated Mr. Mitchell. "If that were true, New York State, Massachusetts, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, Missouri, Arkansas, Mississippi and other states which levy income taxes and wehere industrial progress continues, would repeal the tax. Alabama is doing more than getting in step with twenty-one other states in which industrial progress has not been the least bit deterred by an even larger income tax than that proposed for Alabama."

Reports coming into campaign headquarters from all sections of the state indicate a very pronounced change of sentiment toward these amendments. "Loyal Alabamians, those who put the state's honor and credit ahead of all else, are taking a non-partisan view of this situation," declared Mr. Michell. "They are looking at this matter through non-political eye-glasses, oblivious to why the debts, who made them and whatnot. They realize that the debts are on the books and must be paid. 'Liquidation, not repudiation,' is the banner under which they are marching. It is very encouraging to those who are sponsoring this movement to know that some of the largest taxpayers, many of whom, will have to pay the income tax, have not only signified their willingness to vote for the amendments, but have taken off their coats and gone to work in their behalf.

"OLD DARK HOUSE"

Karloff, who plays the mute monster servant in "Old Dark House," is the only movie actor ever to reach stardom "without saying a word." For ten years Karloff did speaking parts; for ten years bitter failure dogged his heels with bulldog tenacity. Then Karloff, refraining from all speech, depending solely upon his art of make-up and the uncanny power of his eyes to portray startling emotion, created the most vividly horrifying charcaterization the screen had ever know—Frankenstein.

In "Old Dark House," which comes to the Wadesonian Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday, June 14 and 15, Karloff was faced with an even more difficult task than he had in Frankenstein. In this latest spine-chilling drama, Karloff is six feet seven inches tall; his head is horribly twisted and drawn over one shoulder; his face is scarred with torturous pain. Outstripping even his master, this disciple of Lon Chaney has made the mute servant in The Old Dark House the most hideous and frightening figure ever screened—even more ghastly than Frankenstein.

At the beginning of The Old Dark House, Karloff is the trusted servant, but drunkenness makes him a heineous murderer. he lines on his face become deeper and more harrowed; his eyes become insanely cruel; his body trembles with thirst fo blood. Without one word, using only make-up, the twitching muscles of his face and body, and his terrifying eyes, Karloff depicts this spine-chilling character transition with that horrifying vividness which overnight has made him a star "without saying a word."

Reports from widely scattered sections of the country say that the dry weather is doing much damage to the home gardens. Many early vegetables have been parched. Production of beans for table use and canning will be cut short if the dry spell continues to hold out much longer.

ORANGE PAN-AM GASOLINE

Full pages in today's newspapers are announcing the latest in motor fuel, Orange Pan-Am Gasoline. It brings to motorists in this section an antiknock gasoline containing ethyl fluid without extra cost.

Pan-Am stations are alive with colorful orange banners, gay balloons and advertising display signs. Pan-Am station men are explaining to motorists the driving advantages and economy features of Orange Pan-Am.

Free ballons for the kiddies and 100 piece jig-saw puzzles for grown-ups and kiddies to amuse themselves, are being given away with every purchase of the new gasoline, and there are other novelties for the kiddies too.

Mr. C. L. McCutchen, representative for Pan-Am, was enthusiastic over the wild acclaim already given Orange Pan-Am antiknock by Pan-Am dealers and predicted that local motorists will feel the same way about it.

"Every one who drives an automobile will be grateful for the rich antiknock premium performance of the Orange Pan-Am, because they will now get this quality gasoline without a cent of extra cost," said Mr. McCutchen.

"This is the most far-reaching good news local motorists have heard in a long time. It affects motor performance and pocket books. In addition to the economy giving antiknock qualities through the addition of ethyl fluid, Orange Pan-Am Gasoline is delivering life and zip to old cars.

It is especially adapted for use in the newer high compression motors. Our engineers have built this new gasoline to give split-second start, fast get away and added power—all without added cost. Orange Pan-Am burns clean and keeps the motor clean and at peak performance.

"The Pan-American Petroleum Corporation will keep up an intensive and aggressive newspaper campaign because they realize the importance of the newspaper in advertising and sales promotion as well as in the everyday life of every auttomobile owner. People look to the newspaper for news and Orange Pan-Am is welcome news to everybody.

LANCE FRANKLIN WRITES FROM FORT McCLELLAN

To Our Friends Back Home:

It is my privilege to be able by actual experience, to give you a tip on the life of the members of the Civilian Conservation Corps here at Ft. McClellan. There are about 4,000 of us here with 212 to each company. We sleep 8 to the tent under the supervision of the regulars of the army with officials such as foremen, subforeman, squad leaders, etc.

We took the physical examination on arriving and the oath of enrollment. After that we were issued our clothes, army cot, pillar, and blankets.

It is a funny sight to see the boys in line for their spuds. I don't mean we have spuds alone, but plenty of good food of various kinds, and ice cream and cake on Sunday. We have breakfast at 6 o'clock, dinner at 12 and supper at 5.

Each company has its own bath house, bulletin board and mail box. We have a post exchange to spend our money.

The lights go off at 9 o'clock and by that time nearly everybody is in bed.

We have religious services each Sunday morning at 8:30, with Chaplain Matthews in charge. The army band furnishes the music. The services are held in the open air theatre, which seats 900 people. Chaplain Matthews also conducts prayer service on Wednesday evenings.

We have plenty of music by the army band or the boys here in camp. We also have access to hostess house, where we can read, write and listen to good music over the radio. Above all, we have a peach of a swimming pool with life guards on duty.

To sum it all up, we are having a good time, and I wouldn't leave it for anything.

It's almost time for the lights to go off, but from time to time I will tell you more about our camp life.—Lance Franklin, Co. 470 C. C. C. Ft. McClellan.

Amendment Campaign Catechism

Q.—Why is Alabama in debt?

A.—Because she has not collected enough money to pay her appropriations.

Q.—Who is responsible for it?

A.—Sometimes the governor; sometimes the legislature; and sometimes economic conditions.

Q.—How much does she owe?

A.—$19,348,420.14.

Q.—How long has this debt been accumulating?

A.—Since 1907, during Governor Comer's administration.

Q.—To whom is it owed?

A—Nearly all of it is owed to teachers, bus drivers, and merchants, who have sold supplies to schools.

Q.—Is it a just debt?

A.—Yes, the service has been rendered and it should be paid for.

Q.—Can Alabama pay this debt?

A.—Not with her present income.

Q.—Could she, by economizing, save enough to pay it?

A.—No, she has alerady cut expenses more than $8,000,000 per annum, and in some cases they have been cut so much that the service is seriously crippled.

Q.—Can she afford to repudiate it?

A. — Not without sacrificing her self-respect and the respect of everybody else, and ruining her credit besides.

Q.—If expenses have been cut as much as is practicable, and if the state cannot afford to repudiate her just debts, what can be done?

A.—The state will have to borrow the money and pay it back gradually.

Q.—How can she do that it she can't pay her present appropriations?

A.—She will have to sell warrants and raise the money with which to pay the warrants and the interest on them.

Q.—Can she do that?

A.—Yes, if the people give her that authority.

Q.—How can the people do that?

A.—By voting for the amendments to the constitution on July 18th.

Q.—If these debts are paid, can't others be made just as these were?

A.—No, the new budget control act makes it a crime to create a debt against the state therefater.

Q.—The payment of the debts will take care of the past; but what effect will it have on the schools next year?

A.—It will enable school authorities to use what money comes in next year for running the schools instead of paying it out on the building debts and interest.

Q.—If the amendments fail, what will be the consequence to the schools?

A.—Practicalle all terms will be shorter than they were this year; the teachers' salaries will be still further reduced; and many schools may not open at all.

Q.—Can any other plan be adopted to remedy this situation?

A.—No other has been suggested, except to cut expenses; and that has reached the limit. The only other possible plan is to raise more money; but, up to this time, the legislature has failed to do that.

The Warrant Amendment

Q.—What is the warrant amendment?

A.—It is an amendment to the Constitution authorizing the state to issue new warrants that can be used like money and give these warrants to the teachers and others whom the state owes, in place of those they now hold.

Q.—How will the new warrants differ from the old ones?

A.—The new ones will have a date of maturity and the state will pay 3 per cent interest on them. The old ones have neither.

Q.—How many of these warrants will have to be issued?

A.—Enough to pay what the state owes. Not over $19,348,420.14; possibly not that much, if some of the debts are paid before that time.

Q.—How will the state pay the interest on these warrants and pay the warrants when they become due?

A.—It proposes to levy an income tax and set aside proceeds for that special purpose.

Q.—But suppose the income tax amendment fails, would it do any good to pass the warrant amendment?

A.—Yes, the state could relieve the teachers and its other creditors by giving them legal notes, and then it would be up to the state to pay its own notes when they become due. It would simply transfer the burden of the debts from the teachers to the state, where it belongs.

Q.—When would it become effective?

A.—Just as soon after July 18th as the commission could prepare the necessary forms. The interest would date back to July 1, 1933.

Q.—How will the amendment be put into effect?

A.—The governor, the attorney general and the state comptroller will constitute the commission to work out the details and put the law into effect.

Q.—What else does the amendment provide?

A.—Nothing except that the budget control act is included, so as to make it a part of the constitution, and thus prevent future legislatures from repealing it and letting more debts accumulate against the state. If you don't want the state to get into debt again, vote for this amendment.

The Income Tax Amendment

Q.—What is the income tax amendment?

A.—It is an amendment to the constitution authorizing the state to tax the net incomes of both individuals and corporations.

Q.—What is a net income?

A.—With corporations, it is what is left after paying the expenses of operating them. With individuals, it is what is over and above their necessary business expenses and their exemptions.

Q.—What exemptions are allowed individuals?

A.—For unmarried people, the exemption is $1,500 per annum; and for married people it is $3,000 per annum plus $300 for each dependent under 18 years of age.

Q.—How much tax would they have to pay?

A.—Corporations would pay 3 per cent straight; individuals would pay 1 per cent on the smallest taxable incomes and it gradually increases to 5 per cent up to and above $10,000 per annum.

Q.—Who would pay this tax?

A.—Every corporation and everybody who earns as much as is mentioned above, and nobody who doesn't earn that much.

Q.—For what purpose is the income tax to be levied?

A.—To pay the interest on the debt warrants and to pay the warrants when they become due.

Q.—Would this tax raise enough to do that?

A.—Not now. It would probably raise a little more than half enough; but, as business conditions improve, it would raise more and more until it would be sufficient to pay the entire debt.

Q.—Is it a just tax. If so, why?

A.—It is because only those pay who are able to pay; it is just because incomes are not now being taxed; it is just because it is the only way to reach those wealthy people who live on interests and profits from investments in stocks and bonds, which are themselves exempt from taxation. No net income, no tax.

Q.—Can this tax be passed on to the poorer classes? If not, why not?

A.—No; because banks who advance money are clearing now all the law allows; merchants must meet competition; the salaried classes have no opportunity, and these three classes are about all who would have to pay the tax.

Q.—When would the first payment be due?

A.—When the next general taxes are paid.

Miscellaneous Questions Involved In the Campaign

Q.—Who should support these four amendments?

A.—Teachers, school boards, P.-T. A.'s, parents, merchants and everybody else who is interested in the education of the children. In fact, everybody who believes in paying honest debts and in protecting the credit of the state.

Q.—Have teachers suffered like the other people because of the depression?

A.—Yes, they have had their salaries cut; they have worked for shorter terms, they have been paid largely with promises; and, in some instances, they have not even been promised any pay. Really, I do not know of any class who have suffered more.

Q.—Are the "higher-ups" in education faring any better than the rank and file of teachers?

Presidents and superintendents are paid just as the teachers under them are paid; and some of them, like their faculties, are due more than a year's salary.

Q.—Is it right to ask school people to work for nothing?

A.—No, and yet many are working without pay a part of the time in order to keep the schools going so that the students can earn their full credits.

Q.—Are the proposed amendments drawn just as you would like them?

A.—No, but all legislation is the result of compromises. When one can't get all he wants, he should take the best he can get.

Q.—Is one ever justified in doing an injustice to a great number of innocent and helpless people just because he doesn't approve some little thing that has been done by some who would be benefitted by his act?

A.—No, the essence of democracy is the greatest good to the greatest number. The warrant amendment is for the benefit of the whole state and it should not be defeated just because one doesn't endorse everything in it; and only a few would pay the income tax, while the whole state would be benefitted by it.

Q.—Do you believe that the privileges of a college education should be limited to the rich?

A.—No. Those who are talking about cutting out all public schools above the 6th grade are selfish. They are able to pay for the education of their children, but they don't want to pay taxes to help educate their poor neighbor's children.

Q.—To whom do the schools belong?

A.—To the people. Teachers and school boards are the agents and servants of the people. Hence, it is the people's duty to see that the teachers are paid and the schools are kept open.

Q.—What have other states done about education during the depression?

A.—Nearly all of them have been compelled to rettrench some; but not one has forced education to take greater cuts than any other department, as Alabama has done. In truth, nearly every other state has favored education in the rearrangement of its budgets.

WHAT NEGROES ARE DOING

Ball Grounds Scraped

Through the hospitality of Mr. Ward, road machine operator, and Mr. Duke, commissioner of the district, we were successful in getting our base ball ground graded and scraped last week. We feel that it is our good conduct with our white friends that makes it possible for us to get such good favors from them. Hats off to Commisioner Duke and Mr. Ward.

If we would conduct ourselves like citizens, many valuable things would be given to us. We shall never reach these goals unless we travel the moral, spiritual and intellectual road of development. Yet, I can point with pride to the way we have conducted ourselves, as a group, when I think of some of the near-by counties and how racial difficulties have developed. It makes me feel proud to know that no such feeling or spirit exists in Chilton County. But we can do even better than we have. Help keep Chilton soptless.

I knew You'd Come

Early in the spring when we were doing repair work at the shop, all the people in the community were urged to come while it was raining and repair their old scrapes, scooters, plows etc. Many came, but scores stayed away. Now, it is plowing time and those persons who spent the early part of the year idling away their time are losing half days at a time sharpening and repairing plows. And they are still coming.

The Alabama Music Association Met in Clanton

The Alabama Music Association met last week at the Union Baptist church in Clanton. Some very interesting programs were rendered on each day of the meeting. Particularly interesting was the program rendered on Citizens Night. The colored citizens presented several music numbers which were climaxed by a very practical talk on "How to Become a Good Citizen," by Miss Gertrude Draper. Following these renditions was an unusually interesting program presented by our white friends and citizens. Those who contributed their bit toward making this program a success were: Hon. L. H. Reynolds, judge of probate; Miss Pardue, home demonstration agent in Chilton County; Hon. Percy Pitts, attorney at law, who spoke on the negroes contribution to music; Prof. Warr, principal of the county high school, who spoke of the contribution of negroes to American civilization and Mrs. J. Q. Wade, a prominent figure in religious and civic activities.

We are very grateful to our white friends for their presence on each of the nights, for their willingness to participate on the program on citizens night and for their financial support.

Clanton-Wide Chorus at Courthouse

Due to the fact that our white friends, who were present at various programs during the Alabama Music Association last week were so favorably impressed with the music rendered by the chorus, and because so many more who did not hear the chorus would like to, the chorus received a special request to sing at the courthouse. The chorus kindly consented to present a program at the courthouse Monday evening at 7:30. We appreciate this invitation coming from our white friends as a manifestation of how very much our music was enjoyed. — Benjamin Anderson, teacher of vocational agriculture.

CENTER HILL

The people of this community are like all others, busy.

On last Wednesday, May 31, Miss Pardue met here with a band of ladies and organized a community club. Plans for canning and preserving were discussed.

The leaders elected were Mrs. B. L. Cobb and Mrs. W. C. Erwin, who are to attend the leadership school in Clanton June 7th.

The girls here are greatly thrilled over Miss Pardue's plan for organizing a 4-H club here later.

The Sunday school at this place is progressing nicely, with W. N. Thomas, superintendent.

Our B. Y. P. U., although young, and as there has never been a union here before, is real wide awake and at work in earnest. Drop over when convenient and pay us a visit.

The Harmony singing held here last Sunday was an inspiration to all who attended, and how the older people enjoy their music.

Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Cobb, James Gentry, Alton and J. O. Cobb and Miss Mildred Cobb were the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Miller Sunday.

Mr. Irby Webb of Anniston visited friends and relatives here over the week end.

Mr. Jimmie Sims of Sylacauga visited here through the week end with his mother, who fell and injured herself slightly.

We are glad to say that little Imogene Cobb is still improving.

The Center Hill second nine met the Oak Grove boys for a game Saturday. Even though the game was won by Oak Grove, our boys did not feel bad over it, as that was the first time they had been on the field together and then some of the regular players were not with them. We all feel sure they will come to the front with Mr. B. L. Cobb, manager.

Many of this community attended the singing at Longview Sunday.

Next Saturday night and Sunday are the regular preaching days here. Everybody come and give Mr. Cost a large congregation. Especially the church members are asked to be present, as there is some business to come before them.—Reporter.

If Adam would come back to earth, about the only thing he would recognize would be the jokes.

CORN DAMAGE

Reports are coming in from all parts of the county about the damage to corn by bugs and worms. The damage being done to corn now has no connection with the vetch worm damage that was done some two weeks ago. The vetch worms work only a few days and can be controlled with poison. The damage being done now is by several insects that attack corn. One is a hard, black bug about one-third as large as a June bug. This bug eats a hole in the base of the stalk near the lateral roots, and is known as the sugar cane bug.

Two other insects working are known as the corn stalk borer, and the larger corn stalk borer. The larger one, when full grown, is about one inch long, with a dirty white body thickly dotted with irregular darkly colered spots. The lesser borer bears a dark brown or purple band around the middle of the body and several brown or purple stripes run lengthwise of the body.

These two worms enter the stalk at the base and tunnel the stalks on up into the roll, causing many holes.

The worm, or larva, of the 12-spotted cucumber beetle is also found doing much damage. They also enter the stalk at the base and cut the stalk full of holes.

The sad part about all of the above insects if that there seems to be no effective treatment. Where the stand is destroyed, many plough up and plant again.

One farmer in the county who had considerable damage from the above insects last year ploughed up the worst damaged cuts and planted over. Where he had only a fair stand but was afraid the damage would continue, he planted a row of corn in the middle with the expectation of saving the row that showed the best prospect of making corn. He later ploughed up his later planting.

The above information is given because so many farmers are calling at my office to know what to do for these insects.

Miss Elsie Busby, Fred and Pratt Busby and James Enzie of Birmingham visited relatives here Sunday.

Republican Candidate For County Superintendent of Education

In Special Election June 20th

To the People of Chilton County:

The Republican party takes pleasure in offering Mr. W. T. Bean to you as its candidate for Superintendent of Education of Chilton County in the special election to be held on Tuesday, June 20th. Mr. Bean was nominated for this place by the Republican voters in a primary May 19th, and was thereafter unanimously designated and endorsed by the Republican Executive Committee.

The Republican party is glad to offer to the people of the county a man of the experience and ability of Mr. Bean to perform the important duties of Superintendent of our schools. He is a man of mature years and ripe business experience. He has served as Superintendent of our schools in the past, and we believe he made a record that stands as worthy and commendable.

Both as Superintendent and as a teacher, Mr. Bean has been in active contact with the school business of our county for many years. We believe he has thereby gained knowledge and experience that makes him now the best qualified of the two men to take up the administration of our school business and carry it forward successfully in the future.

The administration of our schools should be carried out upon the broadest and highest principles, looking to the greatest good to all our school children. We believe Mr. Bean will pursue such a policy if he is elected as our Superintendent.

We believe he can and will formulate such policies in the future as will be effective in giving to the people, the teachers, and the pupils the very best schools it is possible for us to have.

Your active and hearty support of Mr. Bean on the 20th of June is hereby solicited on behalf of what we sincerely believe to be the best interest of our whole school system for the future.

Percy M. Pitts Explains Constitutional Changes

Editor Union-Banner:

Upon request and suggestion of several citizens of the county I desire to discuss the four constitutional amendments to be voted upon in the special election called for July 18th.

As I understand, all four of the proposed amendments will be listed on one ballot. No. 1 will be the Sparks Amendment. No. 2 will be the Income Tax. No. 3 the warrant validating amendment and No. 4 the reduction of publication time.

The Sparks amendment is purely an economy measure and amends the constitution in order that the legislature may reduce or cut the salaries of constitutional officers during the terms of office, which is now prohibited by the constitution. If this amendment is ratified on July 18, it will mean an estimated annual saving of approximately $100,000. You will recall that the recent session of the legislature passed a salary cutting bill which became effective last month which makes an annual saving of $324,516. This salary cut applied to most all state statutory officers that were not exempted by the constitution. I feel like that the people of Chilton County believe that some of our constitutional county and state officers are receiving too much compensation during these times of depression and if they desire an opportunity to make this change, this Sparks Amendment, as I understand the constitution, is necessary.

The amendment No. 2, known as the income tax amendment, in the main, apparently from the great amount of money and expense that has been used in the past to poison the minds of the people, under the smoke screen of the economy league, apparently, is the milk in the cocoanut, as compared to the other amendments from a publicity standpoint.

I believe that the legislature and particularly the last special session passed economy measures seeking to live within the income of the state by reducing salaries, cutting out some useless offices and at the same time submitting a fair, equitable and just income tax to the people for ratification that if the people are not misled by the high financed opposition which is sponsored by those who have charge of this campaign, backed by the monied and corporate interests of this country that the income tax will receive a vote of approval by the majority of the voters, not only of this county but by the state at large.

If some of the voters of Chilton County knew of the true situation that has confronted the law makers in the past at Montgomery, where all of the public utilities and larger corporate interests have many high-powered lobbyists seeking to prevent the monied and corporate interests of the state from paying their proportionate share of the taxes to maintain our government, and realize that these same monied interests are seeking to evade paying the income tax, and spending enormous amounts of money in sending free literature over the country, and at the same time scattering much propaganda through the daily press, the masses as a whole would unhesitatingly support the income tax. Knowing the conditions that exist in Montgomery and over the state from my past expesience as your representative, I am convinced that in spite of the fact the legislature and this administration, (and not the economy league has passed economy measures which are now on the statute books which permit the state to live within its income; however, they will not provide for the payment of the state's honest and just debts, most of which are due the loyal teachers of Alabama for instruction of our youth. The income tax or the sales tax, one of the two, is inevitable. The sales tax will be the worst form of taxation that could be passed in Alabama, and it would be upon the shoulders of the man and woman who were not making a net income, but upon all alike. The income tax would be imposed upon only those who are making a net and not a gross income and upon those who are able to pay. In other words a married man, under the proposed income tax amendment, would have to make a net income of $3,000 per year before he would be called upon to pay a 5 per cent income tax, corporations are only assessed a 3 per cent income tax.

There has been much in the press pertaining to the fact that there was a joker in the income tax amendment which would allow the legislature in the future to increase the rate of the income tax to be paid. In today's press Mr. Wilkerson's joker was eliminated from the deck, by a ruling of the supreme court which held that the anti-income tax people were wrong in their contention. This is another one of the methods which has heretofore been used to mislead the voters and cause them to cast their vote against this amendment. The highest court of the state only yesterday held that their contention as above mentioned was untrue.

The third amendment to be voted upon is what is known as the McDaniel warrant validating amendment. This amendment in my humble judgment, is one of the most important of all, in that it validates the honest debts of the state and makes the warrants negotiable and interest bearing, which by reason of the present financial condition of the state are practically worthless at the present. I do not believe that the fathers and mothers of children who have received instruction at the hands of our loyal and self-sacrificing teachers of Alabama can fail to vote for this amendment, which in effect, will validate the debt, that we are justly due them, and make their now worthless warrants interest bearing and negotiable. Many of these teacrers have gone for months and months without pay for their untiring efforts in behalf of the youth of our county and state and I do not believe the people of Alabama will fail them at the polls on July 18.

In Amendment No. 3 the warrant validating act, this amendment embodies in the constitution the following: "To prevent future deficit of the state treasury it shall be unlawful for and after the adoption of this amendment for the state comptroller of the state of Alabama to draw any warrants or other order for payment of money belonging to or administered by the State of Alabama upon the state treasury unless there is in the hands of such treasury money appropriated and available for the full payment of the same."

The foregoing quotation is a part of the Fletcher budget bill which was passed during the recent legislature, and if this had been the law many years ago, no deficit would be in the state treasury at the present time. In other words the past three or four administrations have been issuing warrants on the state treasury in an anticipation of funds, whether or not the state had money sufficient to care for same. If this warrant act amendment is passed it would be a safeguard against another deficit in the future which I think would be a blessed assurance to the taxpayers of Alabama in the future. The safest way to get this assurance is to have this Fletcher bill written into the constitution as provided for in this McDaniel Amendment, referred to as No. 3.

Every man and woman in Alabama who loves the state that protects them, who would serve the government of the people, who would maintain its credit and sacred honor (and their own) in my humble judgment, should vote for the income tax amendment on July 18, in order to pay the debts which the McDaniel Amendment validates; together write in the constitution a safe-guard against a future deficit.

These two amendments are one and the same in spirit and truth and one would validate the honest debts of the state, the other would pay the debts.

The last amendment, which is known as the Bradford Act reduces the publication time of proposed amendments from eight weeks publication in the paper to four weeks. In other words the constitution provides that all of these amendments should be advertised in each county of the state in local papers for a period of eight weeks prior to the election. You will easily see that this is useless expense to the taxpayers of the state and four weeks publication or advertisement of these amendments would be amply sufficient. This amendment is another economy measure which I am informed will save approximately $90,000 to the State of Alabama, according to the report and past experience in advertising these measures.

These amendments are all published in local newspapers and I trust the people will not be mislead by those who are seeking to defeat the income tax and other amendments and I believe upon the study of these amendment, and after careful examination that the voters of Chilton County will see fit to vote for them, especially since the legislature has effected economy in the government as partly outlined amounting to approximately $8,000,000 per year. Also when this indebtedness is cared for the net income from the income tax will go to reduce the ad valorem tax which is now a heavy burden on the land owners in our county and state at the present time, — Respectfully yours, Percy M. Pitts.

RUBBER VALVE TUBES READY FOR ALL CARS

Application of the new, Goodyear rubber covered automobile tube valve shortly will be made to include all inner tubes in the company's line and to fit all cars in present use, according to Mr. L. E. Diefenderfer, local Goodyear dealer.

Introduced to the market by Goodyear in 1932 the rubber covered valve met with instant approval of motorists everywhere. These valves will soon be regular equipment on all Goodyear, Standard, Pathfinder, Heavy Duty, and Airwheel type tubes, Mr. Diefenderfer said.

Because it is vulcanized to the tube replacing the usual clamped-in metal valve, danger of high pressure leaks around the base of valves is eliminated, and although the rubber valve has a metal stem which permits the use of standard valve cores, there are no metal parts required inside the tire which might injure the tube.

Further advantages, Mr. Diefenderfer pointed out, include a tight compression fit against the tire rim so that no dirt or water can get into the tire.

This compression fit in the rim makes it unnecessary to use lock nuts for holding the valve in place or as a covering for the valve hole. This feature prevents danger of injury to the tube by having the locked in valve torn out in case of flats, because the rubber valve will slip out of the rim before being torn out of the tube, but will not be drawn far enough inside to be accessible for inflation unless the tire is run absolutely flat.

The new rubber covered valves as now supplied by Goodyear may be used satisfactorily on all types of wire and artillery wheels, thus eliminating to a great extent the requirements for angle valves for many types of wire wheels.

DAD AND DUDE VISIT CLANTON

Tuesday of this week, Dad and Dude, blind Methodist preacher and his black dog, passed through Clanton, and while here preached to the prisoners in the jail and to a gathering at the courthouse. Dad, whose real name is R. K. Fennell of Athens, Tenn., is 68 years old. He lost his eyesight 33 years ago. Leaving his home in Athens, Tenn., in January, Dad has covered the territory from his home town to as far south as Jacksonville, Lake City and Pensacola, Fla. He has preached at all the prison camps in Alabama, and at most of the jail houses.

Rev. Fennell says that he and Dude are mighty happy pals. The dog is trained to lead him any place he wants to go. He observes the street lights as perfectly as a human.

DIEF'S SERVICE STATION

CLANTON, ALABAMA

VETERANS MAY ENROLL FOR CONSERVATION WORK NOW

Final details have been received for enrolling veterans in the emergency conservation work, according to T. J. Calvert, regional manager, veterans administration, Birmingham, Ala. Alabama has been allocated a quota of 550 veterans to be distributed throughout the 67 counties with percentage based on census records.

According to regulations set down for selection, "Veterans to be eligible for work must have served in the armed forces of the United States during a war; be honorably discharged from service; be unemployed; be a citizen of the United States."

Preference will be given to unemployed veterans, who have dependents to support and three-fourths of the base pay, $30 a month, will be sent home to the dependents. Preliminary physical examinations will be given at place of enrollment and final medical examination completed at camp. Only veterans in good physical condition; those able to perform ordinary manual labor and free from active or communicative diseases, including venereal diseases, will be accepted. Veterans must report to recruiting offices at own expense.

Application blanks may be secured from the regional office, Veterans Administration, Birmingham, Alabama. They must be filled out in duplicate and returned to the manager, Veterans Administration, Birmingham, Alabama. A place is provided on the application blank for recommendations to be filled out by four persons, to whom the veteran is well known, who will testify as to the veteran's need for work, good character and general fitness for work. One of the signatures must be secured from a representative of an agency engaged in relief work, such as the Red Cross, American Legion, etc.

Selections will begin on June 12 and enrollments on June 26 and it is planned to have the entire quota in camps by July 6. Enrollment will be for a six months period. Proof of military service must be furnished by veterans when reporting for enrollment, and it is urged that men take with them certified copies of their discharge certificates.

For the past two years Mr. Phillips has been with the Hill Stores. Prior to that time he was with A. & P. Two or three years ago Mr. Phillips spent four months in Clanton during which time he was connected with the A. & P. Store here.

"I am glad to get back to Clanton," said Mr. Phillips, "and see my friends here again. With the fine new store of Hill Grocery Co., now in perfect order, we are better prepared than ever before to serve the public with the best food values possible. We invite the continued confidence, patronage and good-will of the people throughout this trade territory."

He will appreciate meeting the public and getting acquainted with the folks here. And above all, he will appreciate an opportunity to serve everybody as a customer of Hill's.

TEACHERS MEETING LAST FRIDAY

An unusually good representation of the teachers of Chilton County attended a meeting at the Chilton County High school building last Friday afternoon for the purpose of considering a plan of campaign in the county in favor of the state warrant amendment to be voted on July 18th.

The meeting was presided over by J. A. Peterson, president of the county association of teachers. Short talks were made by J. Alex Moore, Dr. C. N. Parnell, Percy M. Pitts, and W. E. Sanders, who discussed the warrant amendment.

After the discussion, Mr. Peterson was authorized to appoint a committee to formulate the campaign. Announcement of the committee and its plans in behalf of the amendment will be made as soon as possible.

CLANTON LOST TO WILSONVILLE, 9-8

Clanton's team went to Wilsonville Tuesday afternoon, and were defeated, nine to eight.

The game was a comedy of errors, Clanton making seven and Wilsonville four. Clanton out-hit Wilsonville, however, getting thirteen safeties off Rayfield, while Clarence Easterling and Foshee gave up only ten.

Jackson homered for Wilsonville; N. Crumpton tripled. J. E. Easterling tripled twice for Clanton, and Littlejohn once.

After trailing for eight innings, Clanton pulled out in front by one run in the ninth, but Wilsonville loaded the bases with none out in their half, and put over two runs to win the game.

CLANTON BEAT MAXWELL FIELD FRIDAY, 13 TO 12

Clanton tied up with the team from Maxwell Field, Montgomery, last Friday afternoon, and after two hours and forty minutes of old time slugging, eased out on the long end of a 13 to 12 score.

Maxwell Field started the fireworks in the first inning, scoring three runs on a double, single, triple and an error, after one man was out. Here Foshee tightened and struck out the next two men to retire the side.

Clanton's team caught the hitting spirit in their half of the same inning, scoring seven runs and driving Soeder, starting pitcher, from the mound. The first six men, Simpson, Sims, Nivens, J. Tiffin, Parrish, and Littlejohn all singled in succession; Hayes was hit by a pitched ball, T. Tiffin drew a pass, Foshee singled, and Simpson poked his second hit of the inning over second base. Sims flied out to end the inning. The first two outs were Simpson, who failed to touch second, and Hayes, who was out at the plate.

After this wild first inning the hitting toned down a bit, although free and easy until the fifth. After the fifth only two runs were scored. The locals were outhit 14 to 12, and made six bobbles afield to Maxwell Field's two.

JACK HAYES IS HITTING

Jack Hayes, well known Clanton boy, now playing second base for the Chicago White Sox, is hitting .302, including last Tuesday's game. During the training season he led the entire White Sox team in hitting. After the regular season began, he fell off a bit, but now he is coming back with a vengeance, and making his presence in the line-up felt in no uncertain manner. At bat 189 times this season he has 57 hits to his credit. He bats in the lead-off position for the Chicago American Leaguers.

Clanton scored in the sixth, when Littlejohn singled, stole second, and counted when Sims followed with a single.

Clanton missed several good scoring chances through poor base running, and were outhit by Thorsby, seven to five.

Clanton has a good baseball team; there are quite a few local baseball enthusiasts who are pulling for the team all the time. They like to keep tab on the fellows, too. For the benefit of these fans, and, too, for the players, as an incentive to keep them striving all the time to better their records, we intend to publish from week to week a list of records—(1) Win and loss team percentage, with a total game record; (2) Win and loss pitcher percentages; (3) Individual batting averages. Look for these records each week, and keep up with what the boys are doing. Here are the records to date.

SINGING AT COURTHOUSE THURSDAY NIGHT, JUNE 15

There will be another singing at the courthouse in Clanton on Thursday night of next week, June 15th. Prof. W. M. Devaughn of Poplar Springs will preside. Prof. P. B. Shaw of Birmingham has promised to attend and bring the Ballard quartet of that city. The Ballards have a reputation of being a bunch of fine singers. Mr. John Stamps and Prof. Lackey, also of Birmingham, have promised to attend.

The public is invited to attend this singing, especially singers. It is hoped to have all the singers arranged better than usual, so those who do not sing, please leave the front seats for the singers; and those who do sing, please make an effort to get in the class.

Very often what might be a good singing is almost ruined because people who sing but little fill up the class, and lots of the good singers stay back in the rear of the house. It is hoped that this may be avoided as much so as posible at this courthouse singing next week.

MARTIN GILES BARN BURNED THURSDAY NIGHT

A destructive fire occurred at Martin Giles's on Lay Dam Road last Thursday night, when his barn and all contents were completely destroyed. The blaze was discovered about 8:30 o'clock, and an attempt was made to get some of the stock out, but in vain.

Among the things destroyed were two mules, one cow, one bale of cotton, some corn, and three automobiles. Friends of the family have been collecting up some money and necessities for Mr. Giles and family.

GOOD GAME HERE TODAY

There will be a game on the local field today, Thursday, between Clanton and the team from the Municipal Airport, Birmingham. This game will begin at 3:00 o'clock, and is expected to be a good one. Don't miss it!

VISITORS HERE FROM TROY

A representation of members of Troy Kiwanis Club, came here last Thursday night for the inter-club Torch Meeting with Clanton club.

The program was very interesting. A group of Kiwanis songs directed by Percy Pitts, with Miss Mary Ellis at the piano, added greatly to the enjoyment of the occassion.

A special vocal number was rendered by Misses Hilda Hart and Marilyn Hardy, with Miss Helen Roberts at the piano.

Ernest Childs, former Clanton pastor, and member of the Troy delegation, made a brief talk on behalf of the visitors.

The Torch of Kiwanis was presented to president Green of the Troy Club, by Mack Wyatt, president of Clanton Club. Every person present inscribed his or her name on the Torch.

ALABAMA LEADS POWER PROGRESS

Trophy Awarded For Greatest Rural Electric Development In the Past Year

Chicago, Ill., June 9.—The Thomas W. Martin award, a bronze plaque, for the company operating in any part of the United States showing the greatest accomplishment in rural electrification during the past year, was awarded to Alabama Power Company at the closing meeting of the Edison Electric Institute here/today, Bernard F. Weadock, executive secretary, announced.

The plaque contains an electrified farm scene and bears the inscription "Presented to Alabama Power Company in recognition of its invaluable contribution to the rural life of the territory served by it through providing electric service for stimulating the improvement of the economic and cultural advantages of farm light and power company members of the Edison Electric Institute showing the greatest contribution to the advancement of rural electrification during the previous year.

The donor of the prize, Thomas W. Martin, president of Alabama Power Company, has been one of the country's pioneers in this movement to carry electricity to the farm. The project on which his company was awarded the prize begun as early as 1923, in cooperation with Alabama Polytechnic Institute, the experiment station, the extension service, Alabama Farm Bureau and Alabama Public Service Commission. The program has been carried forward continuously until Alabama has made greater progress in the electrification of farms than any other state, farm income per capita considered.

In the past 10 years the Alabama power company has built 720 rural power lines, with a mileage of 2,133, in 64 of Alabama's 67 counties. They now serve 9,159 customers in rural communities having a population of 110,000.

Two other prize awards were won by Alabama Power Company, the Curtis Prize for lighting of interiors and exteriors of commercial and public buildings and third place in the Davidson Prize for the promotion of electric service and merchandising sales.

ALL DAY SINGING TO BE AT COLLINS CHAPEL SUNDAY

The annual all day singing will be held at Collins Chapel church next Sunday, June 18th. All singers are invited, and the public in general will be welcome. Everybody come and bring your dinner, as no public dinner will be spread as heretofore. Singing will begin at 10 o'clock.

YOUNG FOLKS IN BAPTIST WORK

Active Program Going Forward In Unity and Chilton Associations

The Baptist Youth Cooperative Conquest of Alabama is actively at work in the Chilton-Unity Associations. Mr. Maurice Hodgens, Miss Gwendolyn Clements and Miss Ada Rascoe of the Pleasant Grove church were the speakers at Jemison and Thorsby on the first and second Sunday evenings. They were greeted by one hundred and fifty people at Jemison and three hundred at Thorsby. It is said by many who heard them that they handled their subjects well and gave much needed information. Mr. Hodgens spoke on the church that Jesus built, and laid a good foundation for the other speakers.

Miss Clements spoke no "State Missions" and gave much needed information on the work of the Baptists in the state and showed something of the possibilities for the future.

Miss Rascoe spoke on "Foreign Missions" showing very clearly the business of the church to give the gospel to the world and some of the results already accomplished.

The Pastors Union of the two associations voted unanimously to endorse the movement and to do all they could to push forward the work.

A group of young people will speak at Samaria Sunday night the 18th, and other churches will be reached just as fast as the young people can get to them. Any church opening their doors to the young people can serve two great ends. First is the encouragement of the workers and second is the information that will be given out to those present.

FORESTRY WORKERS ARE NOW OCCUPYING CAMPS

Montgomery, Ala.—Two more companies of forestry workers will occupy camps in Alabama during the week. One camp will detrain at Oak Grove in Mobile County, June 14. Another company will occupy a camp near Florala, June 15.

Several days will be required in each instance for the men to get the camps into good habitable condition. As soon as they are completed with the necessary facilities installed, the field work will begin. It is expected that the men will work to a radius of several miles from each of these camps.

19 MEMBERS ARE OUT AGAINST TAX

Declare Income Tax Will Lead To Another Special Session

Montgomery, Ala., June 10.—Nineteen members of the Alabama legislature, who were active in the regular and special session of the legislature in opposing tax raising measures of the Miller administration, joined today in issuance of a public statement in which it was predicted that approval of the income tax will likely lead to another special session of the legislature and the passage of a sales tax and other tax increases which the governor has sponsored. All opponents of increased taxation in Alabama were asked to stand solidly together and vote against all tax increases.

Members of the legislature who signed the public statement given out today were: J. Miller Bonner, State Senator, Camden; J. G. Duncan State Senator, Prattville; Hugh F. McElderry, State Representative, Talladega; John A. Lusk, Jr., State Senator, Gadsden; G. C. Allen, State Representative, Gadsden; George A. Sossaman, State Representative, Mobile; Lewey Robinson, State Representative, Birmingham; John W. Rish, State Representative, Dothan; R. Clarence Williams, State Representative, Anniston; John C. Morrow, State Representative, Birmingham; Chas. E. Brooks, State Representative, Ft. Deposit; W. C. Taylor, State Representative, Mobile; Lee Calloway, Sr. State Representative, Snowdon; L. A. Sanderson, State Representative, Montgomery; Chauncey Sparks, State Representative, Eufaula; Julian Hall, State Senator, Dothan; J. Sanford Mullins, State Senator, Alexander City; J. T. McGraw, Sr., State Representative, Vincent; Jas. H. Bradford, State Representative, Birmingham.

In the statement given out today this group of legislators declared that "the real issue in the general election July 18th is whether we are going to have economy in government in Alabama or increased taxation. Approval of the income tax amnedment, sponsored by the administration, will mean approval of the entire Miller tax raising program, including the sales tax. Defeat of the amendment means repudiation of the Miller policies. It is our deliberate opinion based upon our knowledge of the methods which have been used by the administration forces, that we may certainly expect another special session of the legislature and the resubmission of the narrowly defeated sales tax if the income tax amendment should be ratified. All opponents of increased taxation should stand solidly together."

REPUBLICANS URGED TO GO TO ELECTION NEXT TUESDAY

Campaign Committee Sets Forth Strong Reasons Why Republicans Should Rally To Support of W. T. Bean, Republican Candidate for County Superintendent

In final appeal to the people of Chilton County the Republican Campaign Committee has sent out this week a letter to every Republican voter insisting upon the support of W. T. Bean for County Superintendent of Education in the election of next Tuesday.

In setting forth its appeal to the Republican voters for support of Mr. Bean, the committee's letter says:

"Next year there will be eleven of the most important officers of our county elected. It is no secret that since Chilton County went for a Democratic President last year, that the Democrats have gained much hope, and there is much talk among them of winning this election and then next year of winning most, if not all, of the important offices of our county. You can well see that if they win next Tuesday, that this will give them much more hope and we will have a harder task holding our officers next year. On the other hand, if we can win this election by a big majority, it will be a great help to us next year to hold all our county officers.

"It is needless for us to say that Prof. Bean is of mature years and of considerable business and school experience. He has made a success in the past as superintendent and his administration, if elected, will be no experiment. We believe and submit to our people that our schools just at this time need such a man as W. T. Bean with his experience and qualifications.

"It is being argued that a Democrat in the office of superintendent of education will be closer to the state administration than a Republican and can do more for Chilton County. We would like to submit to you that Chilton County has constantly progressed under Republican officials, and if the state had continued to do its part for the schools as Chilton County has done, our schools would have continued as they always have.

"Let us urge every Republican to go to the polls next Tuesday and carry your neighbor, if he does not have a way, because success in this election means success next year; and we will win next Tuesday by a big majority if you and other Republicans will go to the polls."

Says Income Tax Is Fair Method of Raising Revenue For Our Government

Editor Union-Banner:

It is pleasing in this time of depression to see many people getting their taxes reduced on homes and farms. Ad valorem tax has always been the chief source of revenue in this country. This tax has worked a hardship on people in times of depression. Many farmers with practically no income have to pay the same amount of taxes as they did when their farm produce brought them a profit, which is not equitable.

A limited tax on a man according to his income is a fair method of taxation.

The income tax amendment to be voted on July 18 will not work a hardship on anyone. This amendment does not tax a man before affording him a luxurious living. A man and his wife are allowed a net income of $3,000 before he is taxed one penny. In addition, he is allowed $300 exemption for each dependent under 18 years of age. Regardless of the amount of income he may make, the rate is never more than five per cent. It seems to me the person who does not favor this amendment would be in the capitalist class and is not willing to share his part of the tax burden. This amendment itself states how the money shall be spent. It is to go to pay the floating indebtedness of Alabama after which will serve to lower ad valorem taxes.

The floating indebtedness of Alabama consists largely of warrants which were given to teachers, contractors and others for services rendered mainly to the school children in the State of Alabama. Teachers have suffered a reduction in salary, a shortage of terms, and in addition, have accepted these warrants in good faith. These warrants as they are today, cannot be cashed at the banks, nor will they be accepted in payment of taxes.

The warrant act to be voted on July 18, if passed, will make the above warrants interest bearing and negotiable. This would stimulate business as the warrants would then have a value like money. These warrants were issued in good faith, and within the law, for whole-hearted services rendered to the state. However, there is a provision in the warrant act that prevents the officials of the state from ever letting this occur again. To issue a warrant without money in the treasury to pay it is now punishable by law, as much as two years in the penitentiary or $5,000 fine or both. This law was passed by the legislature in 1932. The warrant act, if passed will make this law a part of the constitution of the state of Alabama and thereby prevent any future legislature from repealing this law.—J. P. Montgomery, Jemison, Ala.

SERVICES AT SAMARIA SUNDAY

Rev. J. W. Jones, pastor at Samaria, announces services at that place next Sunday. There will be Sunday school at 10 o'clock. The pastor will preach at 11 on the subject "Going Visiting." The evening services will be turned over to the Youths Cooperative Conquest.

Rev. Jones wishes a good attendance at these services. He assures visitors from other communities that they will always meet with a welcome at Samaria.

C. FENN JONES IS A CANDIDATE

To Represent Chilton County In Prohibition Repeal Convention

Mr. C. Fenn Jones, well-known and popular business man of Clanton, qualified Monday as a candidate from Chilton County to the Alabama State Convention on repeal of the prohibition amendment to the federal constitution. There is only one delegate from Chilton County to the convention to be elected on July 18th, when the people of Alabama will also have an opportunity to express their votes for or against the proposition of repeal of the 18th Amendment.

While Mr. Jones is personally in favor of repeal, he has, like all candidates to the convention, pledged himself to vote in the convention according to the expressed wish of the people on the repeal question. If a majority of the people of the state vote for repeal, then the delegates to the convention will be bound to cast the vote of Alabama for repeal. If a majority of the people vote against repeal, then the delegates to the convention will be bound to vote against repeal.

Therefore, the matter of delegates to the convention is not calculated to arouse a great deal of interest.

The big question will be repeal or not repeal, as the vote of a majority of the people of the state on that question will at once decide the action of the convention. The delegates in the convention will have nothing to do but meet and cast their votes according to the way a majority of the people vote on the question.

In addition to the delegates from each county, apportioned on the same basis as representatives in the state legislature, there are ten delegates to be elected from the state at large.

Mr. Jones is a Democrat. For thirty years he was engaged in the hardware business in Clanton. He is well known among the people of Chilton County. He is a man whose judgment, honesty and sincerity are universally recognized.

MRS. ETHEL POWELL GILES

Mrs. Ethel Powell Giles, wife of Mr. Darwin Giles, died at a hospital in Birmingham last Thursday night, following a surgical operation. The body was brought to Clanton by Martin and prepared for burial. Funeral services were held at Providence Friday afternoon, conducted by Rev. S. J. Ezell.

Mrs. Giles was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Powell, of Clanton. She is survived by her husband, father, mother, one sister and one brother.

FOURTH OF JULY CELEBRATION AT THORSBY

Parent-Teachers Sponsoring County-Wide Celebration With Program and Ball Game

The Parent-Teachers Association of Thorsby announces that they are planning a big day for the Fourth of July at Thorsby. There will be a program in the morning, and a ball game in the afternoon. At noon lunches will be sold by the laides.

There will be a parade at 10 o'clock in the morning. Dr. O. C. Carmichael of Montevallo will address the gathering just before noon.

Everybody in the county is invited to be their guests, with the assurance that all will have an enjoyable day, watch the papers for further and more complete announcements.

NEXT SUNDAY IS TEMPERANCE DAY

All Ministers Will Preach About Deadly Effects Of Strong Drink

Montgomery, Ala., June 13.—Sunday, June 18th, is to be statewide temperance day, when the ministers of all denominations are requested to preach on the Bible's message of the deadly effects of alcohol on every phase of human well-being. Ministers are also asked to arrange community wide temperance meetings for the afternoon or night that will bring together all who oppose the liquor traffic and the saloon.

Since next Sunday's Sunday school lesson is on "Jesus Rises from the Dead," Sunday school teachers are asked to stress the present necessity of keeping John Barleycorn in his grave and of all right thinking people rising with Christ to save Alabama from the direful consequence of the return of the legalized liquor traffic with its iniquitous bar-room.

That the objective of international, national, and state liquorites is to sweep away all of Alabama's prohibition laws and bring the saloon back is supported by recent events, according to Dr. L. E. Barton, chairman of the executive committee of the alliance against the repeal of the 18th amendment. Dr. Barton quotes a wire from William Randolph Hearst to Arthur Brisbane: "The old-fashioned politicians are laboring for the return of the old-fashioned saloon." He also says that State Senator Sanford Mullins, wet leader, told a senate committee at the capitol during the last legislature that he and his colleagues were not only trying to repeal the 18th amendment but also to sweep Alabama's prohibitory laws away.

The alliance has announced itself as fighting the return of booze through the repeal of the 18th amendment and for the state's right to decide the liquor issue without outside political meddling or coercion by postmaster general Farley. Liquor was classed as an avowed enemy of every legitimate business. Statistics were quoted to show that the consumption increased 242 per cent since prohibition, and that the liquor traffic at its peak pocketed five dollars for drink bill for every dollar it produced for commerce, labor, and tax revenue. John Barleycorn was pictured as trying to stab King Cotton in the back.

Charley Rice, mayor of Homewood, eminent Birmingham attorney, Spanish-American war veteran, and regular Democrat, is director of the alliance campaign to lead Alabama to vote against repeal. The alliance will be orgnized in every county and will have a full ticket of delegates for the convention to retain the 18th amendment.

REV NELSON WILL PREACH SUNDAY

One Hundred Year Old Minister Will Hold Services in Courthouse

In response to the request of various parties, Rev. J. T. Nelson, who was 100 years old last January, will speak at the courthouse at 2 p.m., Sunday, June 18, on "Reminisences of the Civil War," and other things of interest in the 60's and 70's.

All are urged to attend, and especially are young people urged to come and hear of the ways of a past generation, after which they would do well to pattern. Everybody should hear to what he attributes his long life.

Messrs. J. N. Scott, W. H. Conway, J. D. Hodgens, J. E. Cobb, C. C. Conway and others have been requested to come and aid in furnishing songs for the occasion. Everyone who can sing in the sacred Harp is urged to come and help in the singing.

Very few people have ever had the opportunity of hearing a talk made by a man over 100 years old. This meeting next Sunday will afford you a privilege you have never before been able to enjoy and one which you will perhaps never have again.

We have arranged this meeting because we feel that it will be one of the most appreciated opportunities by a great number of people. We hope you will come, and we know you will enjoy it if you do come.—L. H. Reynolds and W. A. Reynolds.

J. P. Montgomery and J. A. Peterson of Jemison were visitors in Clanton Tuesday afternoon.

Do You Know what "SAFE MILEAGE" Means in Tires?

Compare the "Safe-Mileage" Features of Richlands Before You Buy▲

Inspect this sectioned view of a Richland Tire. Look at the rugged, flexible carcass. Each cord is rubber covered. Cushion gum between plies gives extra strength. See the heavy side-walls which protect Richlands from curb and rim wear. Observe the Heavy breaker which welds the sturdy carcass to the thick, wide, deep-ribbed tread of live rubber.

Consider what all of these things mean in tire life and service. They give Richlands more miles, plus freedom from trouble. That is "Safe-Mileage" . . . the kind of tire mileage which protects the car and the motorist. Yet, keep in mind the fact that Richlands give you this "Safe-Mileage" for less. Check Richland prices before you buy.

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

I greet you who are upon the high seas in the name of Him who spoke peace to the troubled waves of Galilee and who is able to speak peace to the storm tossed souls of men—I greet you who are seekers after Truth in the name of Him who had the divine audacity to declare that He, himself, is the way, the truth, and the life. To you who are interested in nature study, I greet you in the name of Him who never wrote a song, but who put music in the throat of the mocking bird and who made the morning stars sing together—I greet you in the name of Him who opens the door of the morning on golden hinges while millions of eyes never look toward the east. To you who may be weary, I greet you in the name of Him who said, "Come unto me all ye who labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest." To you who may be lonely or homesick, I greet you in the name of Him who said: "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the age." To you who are happy, I greet you in the name of Him who said: "Be of good cheer." To you who are sad, I greet you in the name of Him who was called the "Man of Sorrows." To you who are tempted, I greet you in the name of Him who is able to succor those who are tempted. To you who feel the need of a friend, I greet you in the name of Him whose love was so great that He was called the "Friend of Sinners." To you who have made a failure in life, I greet you in the name of Him who is always ready to give men a new start and to give new grace for their needs. To you who have achieved, I congratulate you and greet you in the name of Him who declares that all power is given unto Him both in heaven and in earth. To you who are endeavoring to render service to your fellow man, I greet you in the name of Him who might have taken a throne, a scepter and a crown, but who took a towel and washed His disciples' feet. To you, my friends everywhere, who are conscious that you have sinned, I greet you in the name of Him who was wounded for our transgressions and bruised for our iniquities. I greet you, my friends, one and all, in the name of Him to whom I came when I was eleven years old, in the name of Him who is more precious than the memory of my mother, and dearer than any human tie!

TIRE INDUSTRY SHOWS STEADY IMPROVEMENT

Akron, Ohio, June 13.—Some 10,000 unemployed tire builders have been put back to work here since the first of April; and for the first time since 1929, the rubber factories are working 24 hours a day, six and seven days a week to fill orders.

For the most part the men being hired in are former employees, as being skilled men, who can quickly get back into the full swing of production. To date the men laid off in 1932 and most of those in 1931 have been put back to work and the employment offices are now calling those laid off still earlier.

As instancing how the economic cycle moves, resumption of hiring by the rubber shops has alerady been reflected in increased buying at the stores downtown, increased activities at the theatres, garages, real estate offices, and so on. The payroll money is being put into circulation, and the Tire Capital of America is presenting a more cheerful appearance than has existed in four years.

At the Goodyear plant, largest of the rubber companies, where upwards of 2,500 men have been taken back, R. S. Wilson, vice president and sales manager, stated that its business had doubled since February. He expressed concern over a shortage of stock.

"The tire industry is still to an extent seasonal," he said. "Tires last longer in winter driving than in summer. However, the increased buying we are now experiencing goes far beyond that. Perhaps the government's policy of controlled expansion has something to do with the situation. Many people have been driving their cars till the tires are dangerously thin. Realizing that they will have to buy new ones presently, they are apparently concluding that they had better do so at once, since prices presumably will never be any lower than now."

One price increase of about five per cent went into effect a month ago.

"We do not know," Mr. Wilson continued in a recent statement, "that our dealers are not merely buying for stock. It is the car owners of the country who are responsible for this remarkable increase in buying. The tires are going into service on automobiles, buses and trucks.

"Despite the heavy demands on the factory, Goodyear is still on a six-hour day basis, running four shifts a day. As long as unemployment in the nation continues to the extent that it is, public interest demands that the work in hand be spread among as many people as possible," he stated.

"When we were forced to start laying men off in 1929, the factory gave the matter careful thought, selecting the lay offs so as to keep the best men, those of long service and those where the family situation warranted. Single men went out ahead of married ones, and men with families were preferenced over those who had none. The depression compelled the manufacturer to give solid thought to the social aspects of business.

"As hiring comenced we took men back in reverse order. The last man to go was the first to be hired back. He presumably was the most efficient, the most in need of work."

OUR WEEKLY SERMON

Bible Subject Discussed by Rev. J. Robert Bean, Clanton, Ala.

"SEEKING"

Matthew 6:33, "But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and His righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." Although we use the word "seek," less in our common conversations than most common words, yet it characterizes at least ninety per cent of all our actions. Jesus knew so well the propensity of the human race to spend the greater part of their waking hours searching for, or striving to obtain something.

We may look back over our lives from our earliest recollection up to this present hour and not find one single day in which we failed to seek for something. The small child in the kindergarten is unconsciously seeking an education, young men and young men are constantly seeking the pleasure of association with each other. Older men and women employ most of their time in seeking ways and means of bettering their condition in life, and meeting the demands made upon them as parents. The great financier spends hours upon hours in the solitude of his inner office seeking ways to better investments.

The whole world of mankind, both saints and sinners, are busily engaged in looking out for the physical well-being of themselves and those dependent upon them. There is no fault to be found in all of this. It is legitimate and right that men should be thus engaged. The fault is in this, that they failed in the outset to seek after God and His righteousness. The greatest of all mistakes that men make is to endeavor to get themselves well fixed in this life and then seek after God. If I could get young men to realize the fact that, in afterlife, when they have gathered to themselves a good portion of this world's goods, when the hair is beginning to turn gray and they are settled down for life, that their search for God will be prolonged and the likelihood of finding Him more remote, perhaps they would be persuaded now to "seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness."

Just at this point is where most Christian parents fail in their Christian duty to their childen. As a rule we seek for our children education, social standing and economic independence first, then try to lead them to God, when, if we would remember our Lord's injunction in the text, we would seek to lead them in a search after God. Then, as He says in the text," All of these things shall be added unto you."

As our revival season is drawing near, and as our hope is, or should be, that our children should be saved this year, let me urge upon you the loving task of preparing your children, and your neighbor's children for the great messages of gospel truth that will be delivered from every pulpit in this great country of churches. Brothers, sisters, the preachers need your prayers and your assistance so much this year. Some of your boys and girls have graduated from high school this year and are ready, either to take up higher studies or to begin life for themselves, and are still in that great class of unbelievers. How important it is that they now get right with God—that they begin at this point in their lives and seek God.

Let us Christian men and women get busy in the plot assigned to us in the vineyard of the Lord and weed it and hoe it and thoroughly prepare it for the seed that will be sown in our revivals this year. May the God, whom our young people should seek early, lead His people to discharge their duty to their children.—J. Robert Bean.

MINERAL SPRINGS

Health of this community is good at present, and we are like adjoining communities—busy. We were so glad to get the nice rains that we have had for the past few days.

Our Sunday school and B.Y.P.U. are doing nicely, but what we need is more parents to come in and help us out. Come on out, parents, and show your children you have a willing mind. Most everything your children do at home, they expect your help. Now are you going to fail them in the most important thing in life? Buck up, show your spirit. Let's make the Mineral Springs Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. one of the greatest in our county.

Saturday night and Sunday are our regular preaching days. We urge everyone to come and hear what Bro. W. T. Davis has to tell us. I am sure you will not regret coming.

Miss Ruby Davis of Collins Chapel spent the week end with Miss Murle Retherford.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dobbs had as their guests Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Ulmer Ashcraft.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Paschal spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Russell Dobbs.

Misses Olys Littlefield and Mildred Dobbs spent last week end with Misses Elwyn and Bernice Robinson of Thorsby.

Mrs. Lethie Paschal is on the sick list. We hope she will soon recover.

We urge everyone to come and visit our health resort at Mineral Springs, and see what wonderful work Mr. Tom Hand is doing. I feel sure that you will not regret your trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Davis spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Jim Dobbs.

Miss Marzelle Driver of Pleasant Hill spent Saturday night and Sunday with Miss Lola Vinzant.

Mr. and Mrs. Grady Martin spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Martin.

Miss Bertilou Gore spent last week with her sister, Mrs. Gertice Robinson, of Oak Grove.

The ladies here are greatly pleased to have with us Miss Pardue, and promise her all the help possible. We have needed some one like her for years, and probably we would not have been suffering for the like of food today. We are for a home demonstrator.—A Reader.

Grady and Omar Reynolds went to Montgomery Monday to attend the dedication of the new federal building.

"—my skin became clear"

—wouldn't you like to be able to say this, too? Then pause a moment and reason . . . skin affections usually result because of lowered resistance from below the skin surface. Then help the blood that purifies the skin, by increasing its red-cells and restoring the vital oxygen-carrying hemoglobin in these cells so that more vitality comes to the tissues. This will increase the ability of the blood to devour infectious pimple germs.

That is just what S.S.S. does—proved by tens of thousands of unsolicited letters of thankfulness.

"Shall I use a good soap?"—certainly —"and cosmetics?"—naturally, but first observe Nature's law and lay the sound foundation from underneath the skin.

S.S.S., in addition to being a valuable general tonic, has the special property of increasing the red-cells and restoring the hemoglobin content of the blood, when deficient. Try a course of S.S.S. and note the constant improvement.

MILK STOOL MUSINGS

If the silage crop has not already been provided for it should be planted immediately.

June brings us to the beginning of harvesting of the feed supply — hay crops. Additional hay crops may be planted this month.

Forage flavors may be prevented in milk by feeding strong flavored feeds immediately after milking and by a thorough aeration of the milk.

Mow the pasture several times during the summer to control weeds. Do not clip bitter weeds too low at the first mowing. The seed may form low and be difficult to clip at later mowings.

AGRICULTURE

By Clifford M. Manning

Cross Pollination

Any process by which pollen is carried from a stamen to a pistil of any flower may be called pollination.

If the pollen passes from a stamen to a pistil of the very same flower the process is called self-pollination. If the pollen of a flower goes to the pistil of another flower (of the same species) the process is called cross-pollination.

There are two general methods by which pollen may be carried from one flower to another, whether these be on the same plant or on different plants; first, by insects, such as honey bees, which are in search of nectar or pollen itself. They visit many flowers of the same kind and carry pollen from one to another. The pollen on their bodies and appendages is rubbed against the stigma of the pistil and the cross pollination is complete.

Second is by the wind. When the pollen is to be carried by wind it becomes dry, and powdery and is very light. The flowers have no need for being showy and no nectar or fragrance is found. Corn grasses, some small grain, and many weeds are examples of flowers pollinated by wind. Of course there are other methods of pollination, such as pollination by water and underground pollination (by the roots), but the insects and the wind are the main methods of carrying pollen from one plant to another.

Sometimes muskmelons have the taste of a cucumber, because they have the same benus and will easily mix when planted near each other. Corn will cross pollinate more so than anything else, because the pollen is light and may easily be carried from one place to the other by the wind.

BRIEF FARM NEWS

Farmers of Henry County have planted approximately 40 acres of snap beans with which they plan to supply summer markets in Florida, reports County Agent C. S. Keller.

A survey made by County Agent R. M. Reaves reveals that 92 per cent of the Cullman County farmers who borrowed money from the crop production loan offices are following correct methods of fertilizing cotton as recommended by the experiment station of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

LOANS AVAILABLE UNDER FARM LAW

Auburn, Ala., June 13.—Loans are available to Alabama farmers in amounts up to $5,000 for a 13-year term at 5 per cent interest, a study of the mortgage provisions of the agricultural adjustment act reveals.

The funds are available through the farm loan commissioner and may be used to pay off existing mortgages; to re-acquire farms lost through foreclosure since July 1, 1931; to pay miscellaneous debts, such as taxes, notes, bills, and the like; and to provide capital for the farm business.

The loans require nothing more than interest payments the first three years; after that time both interest and payments on principal are required. The loans are to be made on acceptable security in real estate, livestock, machinery, and other farm property. Second mortgages on farms will be accepted under certain conditions, and if the loan does not exceed 75 per cent of the security offered.

Preference in making the loans will be given to persons who wish to borrow to keep from losing their farms through foreclosure or to redeem the farms lost through foreclosure since July 1, 1931.

Farmers who wish detailed information concerning these loans may write to the Agent of Farm Loan Commissioner, New Orleans, La., or see either their county agricultural agent or the secretary of the local national farm loan association.

Provisions for these loans is only one of many helpful aids to be given farmers burdened with motgages by terms of the mortgage sections of the agricultural adjustment act.

EVERY COTTON SCALE IN ALABAMA TO BE TESTED

Every scale over which cotton is bought and sold in Alabama will be tested between now and the time cotton begins to move this fall, reports Seth P. Storrs, commissioner of agriculture and industries.

The work of testing the scales has just started in southeast Alabama and will move northward until the entire state is covered, he said. It was started in south Alabama because cotwill move from that section of the state first.

There are approximately 650 scales in Alabama over which cotton is bought and sold. H. S. Holloway, chief of the weights and measures division, will supervise the testing of these scales.

When scales are found to be incorrect they are condemned and are not permitted to be used until they are re-worked and re-checked by the department of agriculture to see that they are correct.

"This work is done to insure fair and honest weights on every bale of cotton bought and sold in Alabama," Storrs said.

NO SHORT STAPLE

Alexander City, Ala.—Short staple cotton is a thing of the past in West Tallapoosa County, as a result of a cotton improvement program sponsored by County Agent S. M. Day, Benjamin Russell, key banker and cotton mill owner, and other leaders.

In 1928 a carload of D.P.L.4-8 cotton seed was brought into the county. These seed have been carefully saved and ginned and distributed to farmers until nearly every farm in West Tallapoosa County planted this variety of seed in 1933.

GAME AND FISH NEWS

Montgomery, Ala., June 13.—Out-of-state dealers in fishing equipment have notified Commissioner I. T. Quinn of the Alabama Game and Fisheries Department that no further shipment of fishing devices prohibited by the new Carmichael fishing law will be sent into this state.

Although these dealers, including both Montgomery Ward and Company and Sears, Roebuck and Company would be within their legal rights in shipping seines and nets in interstate commerce, they volutarily have offered to cooperate with the department of game and fisheries and have agreed to curtail further shipments of gill nets, drag nets, trammel nets and seines to Alabama dealers.

Under the Carmichael statute possession of these illegal fishing devices constitutes prima facie evidence of violation of the law and these companies are advising their distributors not to ship into the state or sell in Alabama any prohibited equipment.

We realize that we are wholly within our rights in shipping these nets in interstate commerce, yet it is always the desire and policy of this company to cooperate, as far as possible with state authorities," wrote C. B. Fullerton of Chicago, general attorney for Montgomery Ward and Company.

"We have taken this matter up with our sporting goods department and as soon as possible they will issue instructions to the effect that seines and nets should not be shipped into the state of Alabama."

J. A. Romer, merchandising supervisor of Sears, Roebuck and Company sporting division, said:

"We are most anxious to cooperate with you in your effort to enforce the fish laws of your state and are instructing all our stores in the state of Alabama that they are not to offer for sale seines or nets."

Other mail order houses have indicated a similar attitude in respect to the new law.

Mr. Wallace Jones and Miss Rose Brady of Montgomery visited his mother here Sunday afternoon.

The Baker 4-H club met last Wednesday night, June 7th, which was our regular meeting night. A great crowd was not present, but all that were present were given a good talk by Mr. C. E. Stapp, which was very interesting, helpful and encouraging.

All 4-H club members of the Baker club or any that would like to join are asked to be present at our next meeting, which will be on Wednesday night, June 21st. Everybody be present that is interested in club work. We have some business to straighten out, and know all would like to help with it because we are going to plan a picnic.

The club boys planned to meet at Rev. G. G. Williams's next Saturday morning, June 17th, to watch Mr. Williams work with his bees. It is very interesting work and I am sure some would like to learn as much as possible. Be sure and attend our next meeting.—Reporter.

CONTINUE WITH THE GARDEN

Because of unfavorable weather conditions during the past few weeks, it is essential that home garden people be particularly alert to care for those vegetables already in the garden and plant additional crops as soon as seasons are favorable.

With growing vegetables during this hot, dry weather, it is particularly important that the garden be cultivated properly and that insects be controlled.

By proper cultivation, it is meant that hoeing and plowing should be sufficient to control weeds and grass but light enough to not disturb the roots of the plants. Weeds and grass rob the plants of much needed soil-moisture. Their control is the primary purpose of cultivation, and unless they are present, cultivation is rarely ever necessary. Cultivation around growing plants should only be deep enough to control weeds. Deep plowing will result in more harm than good, as it will destroy many of the roots of the plants and thus reduce the ability of the plant to take up soil-moisture. After the plants have started growth most of the work can best be done with a hoe.

Of the garden insects the Mexican bean beetle is most serious at this time. Control by dusting with 1 part (by weight) of magnesium to 4 parts (by weight) of hydrated lime or flour, or spray with 2 tablespoonfuls of magnesium arsenate in 3 gallons of water. These materials should be applied to the underside of the leaves every week to ten days. The Harlequin cabbage bug, commonly known as the fire bug, is a sucking insect (cannot be poisoned) and feeds primarily on the greens (turnip, mustard, collard, cabbage, etc.) These crops should be destroyed as soon as they are of no further value. This insect feeds on these crops during the summer and will be present to cause much damage to your fall garden unless destroyed now. If they are on any crops in large numbers after the harvest season spray with kerosene oil and plow under. Plow under all crops as soon as the harvest has passed.

Certain crops should be planted now for the late summer and fall garden. Collard seed should be planted as soon as there is sufficient moisture. These seed should be planted in hills 12 to 18 inches apart. Plant 8 to 10 seed in each hill to insure getting a stand. Make another planting of snap beans. Pole beans should be used at this time. If corn is to be planted the pole beans may be planted in the corn row at the same time. Planted in this way the yield will be approximately one-third less but sticking will not be necessary. The Kentucky Wonder and Cornfield varieties are best. Unless your present planting of pole snaps has been too severly affected by the drouth, a side application of nitrate of soda, applied when it rains, will bring them back into production. Another planting of pole beans, the Sieva or small white lima variety, may well be made.

Tomatoes have suffered seriously from lack of rain. Another setting should be made soon for late summer. Where plants are not available cuttings may well be used instead. For rooting these cuttings, a box of soil, preferably clean sand, should be prepared. The cutting should be 6 or 8 inches in length, taken from vigirous shoots of strong, healthy plants. The lower end of the cutting should be stuck down about 3 inches deep in the soil. Wet the soil thoroughly and place the box in a location that is at least partially shaded. These cuttings will usually root immediately and be ready for transplanting to the field in 10 days to 2 weeks. These plants should be watered frequently until within a few days before moving to the field, then the water should be gradually withheld and the plants placed out in the open for more direct sunlight. This is done to "harden off" the plants. In setting tomato plants in the field, always set them deep. It is necessary to leave only the top bud and 2 or 3 leaves above the soil.

GROW MORE SOYBEANS

Union Springs, Ala.—Bullock County farmers have planted 400 acres of soybeans this year. The soybean is one of Alabama's leading summer legumes and provides excellent hay and grazing, according to James Nunn, county agent.

Soybean acreage has increased rapidly in Bullock County, as only 5 acres were planted to this crop in 1932.

NOTICE TO FARMERS WHO ARE INTERESTED IN BEES

Last week I mailed out a curcular letter seeking certain information that, if given, will enable me to render greater service to the farmers of Chilton County. In that circular I failed to ask for the names of those interested in bees. I would like to have the names of the farmers in the county who are interested in bees.

I do not know anything about the care and handling of bees myself, but we have a man in our department in Auburn who has made a close study of bees. I have written to him asking that he give us a day in Chilton County some time soon. If you are interested or know of anyone who is interested in bees let me have your name or the names of the ones who are interested and I will advise you when our bee specialist is to be in the county.

Even though I have always been afraid of bees and never have learned much about them, I realize there are lots of people in the county who do know quite a bit about them and would like to know more. Therefore, I am calling our bee specialist into the county for a meeting for those who are interested in order that they might exchange ideas with each other and get the latest ideas from the specialist.

SAVING AUSTRIAN WINTER PEAS

Austrian winter peas produce high yields of seed some years whereas other years seed production fails. In the event seed production fails the vines can be turned and followed by corn or soybeans.

Alabama farmers saving Austrian winter pea seed in 1931 averaged more than 500 pounds per acre. It is safe to say that well up toward a half million pounds of home grown seed were planted in the state in the fall of 1931.

The desirability of attempting seed production in this state is shown by the fact that a yield of 400 pounds per acre on 5,000 acres per county in 15 counties would give a production of 30,000,000 pounds or enough to plant 1,000,000 acres.

Suggestions

1. Each farmer growing Austrian winter peas should reserve a small area for seed production. A two-horse farmer should leave at least one acre for seed.

2. Leave the Austrian winter peas in the field until the vines are dry and then rake up without mowing. Store in a dry place until ready to thresh. If time permits it is desirable to thresh when raked.

3. If only a small area for home use has been harvested pile vines on a sheet, a tight wagon body, or a tight floor and beat out with sticks.

4. Threshing may be done with an ordinary grain threshed by substituting boards for all the concaves and slowing down the drum so as to prevent excessive cracking.

THE NEWS LESPEDEZA

Prattville, Ala.—Thirty-five demonstrations in growing lespedeza sericea, a new perennial legume said to be adapted to acid soils of the southeastern states, have been started in Autauga County. Plantings of lespedeza sericea are advocated only as an experiment by County Agent L. C. Rew, who says that the new plant has possibilities for hay, grazing and soil improvement.

SOYBEAN SEED PRODUCTION

Several hundred thousand dollars are sent out of Alabama each year for soybean seed which should be grown at home. Many farmers fail to plant soybeans because they do not have the money to pay for the seed.

Each year thousands of dollars are lost because farmers fail to receive the variety of beans which they purchased losing not only the purchase price of the seed but in many cases a crop of hay.

Whether the farmer is a landlord or a tenant he can produce his own soybean seed.

Suggestions

1. a. One half acre of land as a soybean seed plot will produce sufficient seed for the average two-horse farm.

b. Plant soybeans between the hills of a few acres of corn when planting the corn will give a good supply of seed. This plan has been followed very successfully by many farmers of this state especially in producing Otootan seed.

c. Another method is to plant rows of soybeans between watermelon rows, between rows of first year kudzu, or on terraces.

2. Plant when danger of killing frost is past and by the first of June.

3. If planted alone, plant rows wide enough to permit one or two light cultivations.

4. Apply either basic slag or superprosphate when planting the soybeans.

5. Harvesting. Otootans may be left in the field until the leaves have fallen. Cut with a scythe or mow when there is sufficient dew to prevent serious shattering. It is customary with Otootans interplanted in corn to cut the vines out with a hoe, gather up bundles and frail them across the wagon body, later cleaning up the seed thus collected.

Mammoth Yellows and Laredos should be mowed after the seed are fully developed but before they are so mature as to permit much shattering.

Could you lend me a Dime?

NO ONE would think of running across to a neighbor several times a day to ask, "Could you lend me a dime, please?"

Of course, borrowing the use of a neighbor's telephone is not exactly like borrowing money, because it doesn't cost your neighbor anything extra for your call except the interruption or possible inconvenience.

It is also true that neighbors may borrow freely from each other and remain friendly, so long as each is careful to return the loan in full measure. When you borrow the use of a telephone you are getting something you can't return, and in this way, too, borrowing telephone service is different from borrowing money.

The very fact that you have to borrow your neighbor's telephone shows you really ought to have one of your own.

When you stop to think of the convenience, comfort and satisfaction of mind that a telephone provides, you will probably agree that in trying to do without a telephone you are sacrificing too much for the few pennies saved. Why wait longer? Order your telephone today.

IGNORING A WARNING

After reading reports of the pleas of Tax Commissioner Long and others for the proposed new taxes which the commissioner declared should be permanent instead of temporary, it is natural as well as pertinent to recall words of Calvin Coolidge, when, as governor of Massachusetts in January, 1920, he addressed these opinions to the General Court in joint session:

"All progress is the result of economy.

"There is a limit to the taxing power of the state beyond which increased rates produce revenue. If that be exceeded, intangible securities and other personal property become driven out of its jurisdiction, industry cannot meet its less burdened competitors and no capital will be found for enlarging old or starting new enterprises.

"There is before us a danger that our resources may be taxed out of existence and our prosperity destroyed.

"Taxes have to be paid by the public. They cannot be imposed on any class. There is no power to prevent a distribution of the burden.

"Taxes must and do fall on the people in whatever form or name they are laid. It is useless to delude ourselves, and fradulent to attempt to delude others, with the claim that the public revenues can be derived from any source save the people themselves.

"It is time to discard fiction and bring forward realities."

Shortly after these injunctions to the legislature, Governor Coolidge became vice president of the United States. About six months after assuming the latter high office he declared to the government department and bureau heads, "I am for economy. After that I am for more economy."

The plea of Tax Commissioner Long for making permanent taxes that he predicts would yield $24,000,000 in six months appears to be not only for taxes but, after that, for more taxes.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

There has been undoubtedly a pickup in business in some parts of the United States. At the time this is written, there is a more hopeful feeling so far as the immediate economic future is concerned than in many months. There has been a rapid increase in the price of common and preferred stocks on the New York and other stock exchanges. The average price of stocks recently "went through the September high" as the chart students put it, which means that the average common stocks is now higher than it was in September last year, the high point of the rise which started shortly after July 4, 1932. According to the "experts" who believe in the charts, this means that the tendency of the stock markets is still upward, subject to temporary reactions.

Fortunately, however, there are indications of business improvement aside from the stock market. Steel mills are more active at this writing than they have been since 1931, and car loadings and electric power production are higher than they were a year ago. Farmers are encouraged by the rise in the price of agricultural commodities. There have been slight wage increases here and there, and although the business improvement is undeniably spotty, many students of economics now believe that we are on the upgrade at last.

It is of course devoutly to be hoped that this is true. There was a pickup in the late summer and early fall last year, but it finally flattened out, although values on the stock exchange did not go so low as they were in the previous summer. The element of time is now working in favor of recovery. We have had nearly four years of depression, and certainly must have passed the low point of the valley. Depressions, even those following great wars, do not last much longer than four years, so that some improvement is due, if we are to maintain our economic society as it is now constituted.

While we are hopeful, and it is right and proper to be hopeful, it is to be remembered that there is yet no time for undue rejoicing. As President Roosevelt wisely remarked, "We cannot ballyhoo ourselves back to prosperity." Many weary miles yet remain to be retraced. Hundreds of banks closed during the general banking holiday remain yet to be opened or liquidated. Many cities of the country must have their finances reorganized and there must be consolidation and refinancing of railroads. The farm problem is not yet solved, in spite of the increase in the price of commodities. Many adjustments yet remain to be made.

The Alexander Hamilton Business Institute recently summed up the business situation when it said:

"There are several reasons for this burst of business activity. In the first place, business is experiencing the usual seasonal expansion. In the second place, the demand postponed by the bank holiday is now making itself felt. In the third place, buying is being stimulated by the fear of inflation. In the fourth place, depreciation of the dollar in terms of foreign exchange is tending to enlarge the export market. In the fifth place, and most important of all, the downward movement of the business cycle has apparently been halted and business is now free from the severe pressure of this factor.

"It is qustionable, however, whether the cyclical movement is yet upward in view of the maladjustments still prevailing. This suggests that the current expansion of business will be followed sooner or later by some reaction when the influence of the temporarily stimulating factors has worn off. Moreover, there is still danger that fallacious governmental measures may have to be overcome before business is in a position to stage a prolonged revival."

Yet it is encouraging to know that many business charts now indicate that in some lines there is more activity than a year ago. Let us hope that nobody rocks the boat.

LITTLE AUSTRIA'S TROUBLES

We hear a great deal about the explosive qualities of Albania and the Polish Corridors in Europe and it is freely predicted that the next general European war, if one comes, may easily start from one of these international sore spots. Comparatively little attention is paid in America to the little nation of Austria as a possible source of militant trouble in the not distant future.

Yet trouble brewing in Austria makes real difficulties there a possibility. The socialists and communists in the country have been silenced for the time being at least by the ascendary of the Fascists and the Nazis. Although Hitler and Mussolini are apparently in accord it is known that their policies toward Austria diverge widely.

The German Nazis want Austria attached to the Fatherland as a part of the German Reich. They claim that it is predominantly German in thought and language and should be a part of the Teutonic nation. There is a strong Nazis party in Austria, and it is said to have grown considerably stronger since the rise of Hitler to power although it is not dominant.

But there is another militant part in Austria, known as the Fascist party. Its inclinations are toward Italy and it is Italian policy to keep Austria from joining Germany, and to create again in central Europe a strong government with perhaps another Hapsburg at the helm under Italian protection.

To both the Italian and German programs in Austria the French and their little allies in Central Europe are opposed. They look with fear on the scheme to attach Austria to Germany, thus making a powerful neighbor even more powerful. France does not want another Hapsburg monarchy to rise either as a potential ally of Italy, and her allies the Jugo-Slavs and Czechs are even more fearful, lest they be absorbed again in such a combine.

Probably there will be no trouble until either the Nazis or the Fascists get control of Austria. Then the chances for an outbreak are very promising.

In such an event, as one of the guarantors of the peace of Europe, Uncle Sam would have to consult as to who was the aggressor and who was wronged and perhaps to send forces to fight either for the Brown shirts, the black shirts, or against either or both. You never can tell. The way to keep out of trouble is to sign no promissory notes.

DIVERGENT VIEWS ON TARIFF

There seems to be some difference of opinion in high administrative circles as to the part the reduction of our American protective tariff may have in the program for economic restoration. It is a well known fact that the most ardent advocate of low tariffs inside the administration or out, for that matter, is Secretary of State Cordell Hull. The eminent gentleman from Tennessee is just naturally against protective tariffs. He believes that the way to restore our prosperity is to have a general international leveling of tariffs, and he is said to be of the opinion that in the meantime, before such Utopian scheme is put into effect, the United States ought to make no further move to protect our producers on the farm and in the mill, from cheap commodities of Europe and Asia.

The first evidence that there might be a difference of opinion on the subject in circles close to the white house came when Barney Baruch, in a speech made recently, intimated that if we are to have economic rehabilitation in the United States with higher wages and better living standards, we will have to take care of our local producers and not subject them to competition from abroad intensified by a lowering of our tariffs.

Now comes the word that Assistant Secretary of State, Professor Moley, is not entirely in accord with the view that prosperity can be restored by international agreement. Indeed, he is quoted in a recent radio speech as declaring that "each nation must set its own house in order." He is also quoted as expressing the opinion that the world economic conference, in which Mr. Hull places so much faith, will be useful only so far is it coordinates in some measure the methods the nations of the world may take for restoring prosperity within their own boundaries.

In commenting on this apparent disparity of opinion in the State Department, the Washington Times says:

"It will surprise many that there should be such a definite clash between so representative an official of the government as the Secretary of State and a subordinate who, although an assistant in name is credited with an all-important part in forming the presidential mind.

"And yet we think it is wholesome. Both these views, differing so widely, cannot be right. * * *

"We have long felt and frequently asserted that Secretary Hull is riding a mere hobby too hard. His sincerity, no one questions, but the general opinion in the country undoubtedly is that he is wrong. And more than that. It is felt that he is sacrificing the interests of the country by his determined refusal to even consider the most simple and practical measures for the protection of domestic industry and of our merchants and workers, for the sole reason that they conflict with a theory on which he is apparently resolved to stake all.

"As was said recently by the Hearst papers: 'A restored prosperity in America, which the progress we have made in recent weeks shows we can achieve with out own labors and resources, will prove a greater contribution to world recovery than anything else that it is in our power to do.'

"There is no escaping this fact. Perhaps Secretary of State Hull will see it some day—let us hope it is soon—as clearly as his Assistant Secretary of State apparently sees it now."

European nations cheered President Roosevelt's fervent plea for cancellation of offensive armament. Just think how much louder they would have cheered if he had advocated debt cancellation.

Any kind of diet, even spinach and lettuce seems to be fattening to a fat woman, and reductive for skinny women.

New Yorkers are worrying because tiny pests calling "termites" are said to be eating the foundations from under their homes. But this isn't much worse than having the mortgages eating the roof from over your head.

Since we have a very select society of those who "came on the Mayflower," probably it won't be long until somebody starts an organization of the survivors of the famous Morgan list.

It is said that twice as much rain fell during May as is normal for the month. Let us hope that none of the water went into the stock market.

MAN IN THE MOON

Looks Over All—Overlooks None

The Finer Points

In last week's article about Chester Wingard's cow-driving ability, it seems I only skimmed the surface. Since that time I have talked to him about it, and he gave me the low-down on the whole procedure. Since it was a little too much trouble to hold to the cow rope, he has taught the cow to walk ahead of the car, without a rope. When he turns to the right or left, he merely turns his car in that direction, and she knows to hit the straight and narrow again. He tells me, too, that he is now teaching her to stop, look and listen at the stop sign where he must cross the highway. Well, necessity is the mother of invention, you know; and there are some who claim that laziness has developed many a creative genius, in order to lessen their work. It's your guess.

Advice From Coosa

For lo, these many years we have gone on electing our county officers, the voters judging them according to their knowledge of them. We come to know our candidates, Democratic and Republican; we let them explain their platforms, aims, etc., and then vote according to our best judgment. And I believe most everybody will agree that, for the most part, Chilton County's voters have done a very sensible job of electing officers—their actions in elections being the result of their own reasoning. And, so far as I have heard of, nobody in Chilton County has taken the trouble to inquire of anyone outside of Chilton about their candidates. Too, they never go to the trouble of advising people of other counties about their candidates. From this we may believe that people from other counties might take a hint that we consider ourselves competent to elect our officers, without outside advice. However, the Chilton County News of last week carried a long letter from one of the good brethren from "over in Coosa", in regard to our candidates for Superintendent of Education. Maybe our "advisory committee" from over Coosa way may have had our best interest at heart. But the candidate who goes outside his county for recommendations must be needing them badly. As for Mr. Bean, the Republican candidate, I am quite sure he would not go outside Chilton for a recommendation, but, if recommendations wree needed, could, and would risk his chances on the recommendation of anyone who knows him—the closer the better. Doesn't look so good—this scraping the outlying regions for good words. It seems to me that any self-respecting Chilton voter, Democrat or Republican, might well consider this "advice from Coosa" as an insult to his or her intelligence.

Rheuby Chasteen's Stick

If you haven't seen the walking stick carved by Rheuby Chasteen, you should call around by Calloway Drug Company the next time you are in town, and see it. Mr. Chasteen is a cripple. He cannot move around and enjoy the pleasures of freedom of movement as the most of us can. But, unlike many who are handicapped as he is, he refuses to become an object of charity, and insists on earning his own living, which he does in jam-up fashion. And don't think he spends his spare moments bemoaning his fate. Instead, he fills his time with worthwhile work which he can do while sitting in his chair. He has made a musical instrument with his own hands, and is an accomplished performer on it. Not so long ago he used it in programs which were broadcast over radio station WAPI, and the many letters received by the station were evidence that the people heard and liked his program. The walking stick is another nice piece of work from the hands of this man. It is very beautifully carved, and vari-colored marbles are inserted in the openings. It is a masterpiece, and is enough to put to shame the many people who fill their time with complaining of their hard fate, though their blessing of a strong, healthy body is never thought of. Call by and see the stick. You'll wonder at it.

Let There Be Light

"Let there be light; and there was light." I notice that our city fathers have at last decided to put a traffic light at the junction of the two highways at the corner of Seventh Street and Fourth Avenue. This has been needed for a long time; it has been a veritable death trap; and it is a wonder that there have not been many wrecks at this "blind" corner. The Town Council is to be commended for this action. And, another thing—wouldn't it be better to have a few more street lights (not traffic lights) in the business section of the town? Notice, some night when you are walking along the streets. The small blinker lights, one at each street intersection, do not give enough light. For the most part, these sections between the corners are in almost total darkness, while even one more light in the middle of each block would help wonderfully. Notice this, and speak to the Town Council about it. It is an improvement which is needed badly, and would cost very little.

Nero Fiddled

No doubt you have read how Nero fiddled while Rome burned. He must have enjoyed his fiddling. I was very forcefully reminded of the incident one night last week, although there was no fire. Passing along the street, near the courthouse, about nine o'clock, I heard faint strains of music. Due to the heavy foliage of the trees surrounding the courthouse, the region was in almost total darkness. I peered into the darkness, but could see no one. The music increased in volume, changing from one tune to another, forming a kind of medley of "Missouri Waltz," "Alabama Jubilee," "Beautiful Ohio," and others, and finally "Turkey in the Straw." I stopped and listened for several minutes, enjoying the music, but not until the musician struck up the strains of "Old Sally Good'in" did I realize who my entertainer was; here he could stand it no longer, and began to sing. It was Jim Connell, all by himself, except for the katy-dids and lightening bugs, and he was enjoying himself immensely. It made one think of the nocturnal serenaders of old, who played under the windows of the castles, as the old fiddle sang out in the night. It was a good show while it lasted, and I enjoyed it very much.

THOSE RAINY DAYS

(By Wickes Wamboldt in Birmingham Age-Herald)

Here is an experience extended over a period of years that one woman had with her servants. When she was first married she took the attitude that her servants should be paid enough so that they could live comfortably and at the same time lay away sufficient for the proverbial rainy day.

"I want them always to have a little surplus on hand," said this woman, "so that they will be prepared to deal with emergencies such as sickness or death."

But as time wore on this woman found that her plan was not working very well. She found that the generous wages she was paying her servants merely offered them a means for improving their style of living; they put nothing away for the rainy day.

This woman found that when emergencies calling for an unusual expenditure of money arose in the affairs of her servants, they came to her to borrow the money.

Sometimes they would pay back what they borrowed. Sometimes they wouldn't or couldn't. Occasionally she found that to lend a servant money was to lose his services. He would quit and get another job rather than repay the loan.

So this woman adopted another plan. She paid her servants the prevailing scale of wages. Then whenever one of them got into some financial pinch she would go to the rescue and give outright the sum needed to meet the emergency. However, it was not long until she discovered that her generosity was being imposed upon, that every now and then a servant would declare an emergency when none existed and would even manufacture a story about an emergency in order to get money.

"What shall I do about this matter?" pondered the woman. "I don't want people working for me to be without the necessities of life, yet if I pay them liberally they squander their money and have nothing to meet the sudden demands. If I meet those sudden demands for them I never know whether the demand is legitimate or not. I would have to employ an investigator in order to make sure. I know what I shall do," said the woman. "Every time one of my servants gets into some difficulty that he or she is unable to meet, I shall ask some welfare agency to investigate and handle the case and send me the bill."

The foregoing situation fairly represents the complexities and complications in which a certain element of our population find ourselves. Many persons won't save a dime, no matter how much they get. Many persons, if relief money comes easily, will take all they can get. What is the remedy?

A man said to me the other day, "I wish that when I was a young man there had been a law that would have compelled me to set aside every week a certain sum to take care of me when I became old. I couldn't or wouldn't save of my own accord; so here I am—an old man—without resources."

If human beings individually are going to expect human beings collectively to take care of them when they become ill or old, then the human beings collectively should have something to say about a scheme by which the human being individually shall be required to cooperate in setting up such protection. The law says that the parent must provide for the child until the child is of age and that in consequence the parent shall have control of the child until he is of age. Is it just that a man shall spend or squander his money as he sees fit all his life, then when he gets up against it require his fellowmen to tide him over or carry him along?

If the human family is to have a plan that will protect each member in time of sickness and disability, isn't it merely reasonable that each member of the human family be required to do his full part in establishing and maintaining such protection. — Reprinted by request of D. O. Manning, Isabella.

BEWARE FOREIGN ENTANGLEMENTS

We are far from agreeing with much that Arthur Brisbane says in his daily talks "Today," but his statements regarding the "economic conference" soon to meet in London, it seems to us, gives a warning as to what the people may expect. It may be a bit embarrassing to admit that American diplomats nearly all of whom are untrained in the art, very often have things put over on them by the wily suggestions of European diplomacy. This was abundantly proven in the case of President Wilson at the close of the World War. Mr. Brisbane says this country might as well know what the economic conference really is. It is a scheme, contrived with cleverness, to open the markets of the United States to workmen, manufacturers and capitalists of other nations. That is exactly what it is, and it is nothing else. And this is history: Other nations got ten billions of American dollars, which they are going to keep. They got the use of 3,000,000 American soldiers, some now dead, all impoverished by the trip "over there." All the foreign nations want now is the markets of America that their foreign workmen may supply goods that Americans buy. And that is the object of the "economic conference."

We have pushed our dollar off the gold basis and gone in for inflation, which will make dollars more plentiful, stimulating business and increasing prices of labor's products. The question now is, what is to be done with those "more plentiful" American dollars? Will they be paid to American workmen for producing things that Americans use, or will they be paid to foreign workmen for producing goods to be imported under low tariffs?

Talking about taking off our tariffs and throwing the markets of the United States open to foreign labor and foreign manufacturers when we have 12,000,000 men out of jobs in the United States is idiocy.

Whenever we tear down the tariff bars and permit our country to be flooded with cheaper goods our industries are bound to suffer—who can deny that?

George Washington was eminently wise when he warned his country to beware of foreign entanglements. So long as that policy was observed we got along well enough. Sver since we abandoned that policy we have had trouble abundantly.

Dr. Crumpton—No. 13

Dr. J. P. Crumpton tells me a curious "No. 13" story. It seems that the number, 13, has followed Dr. Crumpton pretty closely for a great part of his life. Doc says that some people say that the number is unlucky, and it may be. But here's the story. He was applicant No. 13, when he took the examination before the state board of dental examiners, and was the 13th applicant to finish and hand in his paper. On July 13, 1915, he underwent an operation; Dr. Prince, the 13th child in his father's family, was the surgeon; 13 minutes were taken to perform the operation; he was put in room 13 in the hospital; he remained there 13 days; and when he returned to his home, found that he had lost 13 pounds in weight during the illness. Doc says, "believe it or not, it's the truth."—Man in the Moon.

More Street Improvement

Building of a stone and concrete curb along the street in front of the Reynolds homes on Eighth Street is noted as a decided improvement in appearance. The work started in front of the home of Claud Reynolds last week. Grady continued it along his property. Next, Omar fell in line. Piles of sand and stone indicate that the Judge will follow suit. Maybe Maurice Lande will get the idea and finish the job to take in a whole block.

Objectives of Kiwanis

At its meeting last week the Kiwanis Club of Clanton outlined a series of objects to be sponsored during the next few months. First among these will be the county-wide picnic on July 21st. The Club wants to help make this one of the greatest get-together events in the history of Chilton County. Some kind of project of interest and value to farmers will be put on during the summer. Kiwanis will have a part in carrying out the 4-H Club boys camp. The work of the Boy Scouts will come in for a portion of the support and interest of Kiwanis.

ELECTION NEXT TUESDAY IS SPECIALLY IMPORTANT

We desire to call to your attention the election for County Superintendent of Education, which comes on next Tuesday, June 20. In connection with this election there are a few points of very great importance which we hope the Republican voters will consider carefully.

We believe the interests of our schools is the first consideration in the election of a County Superintendent of Education. There is no doubt that the Republican candidate, Mr. W. T. Bean, is the better qualified of the two candidates for this office. Mr. Bean is a man of mature business experience, and long connection with the school business of Chilton County. He was born and reared in Chilton County, and has spent his whole life in the service of the people. He has already demonstrated in the past that he can fill the office of County Superintendent in a competent manner. His election to the office will not be an experiment. Therefore, we do not hesitate to ask the people of Chilton County to vote for Mr. Bean. We have the fullest confidence that in so doing, they will at the same time be voting for the best interests of our schools.

Another important question is that of getting every Republican voter to go to the polls and cast his or her vote for the Republican candidate. Upon the loyalty with which our Republican voters support their party in this election depends a great deal of the future interest in and success of our party.

We know that the Democrats are highly encouraged over the fact that our county voted a majority for the Democratic candidate for President last election. We want you Republicans to think now of what it would mean if our county at this time should elect a Democrat to a county office. Such a result would add most decidedly to the already prevalent claim of the Democrats that Chilton County has abandoned its traditional loyalty to the Republican party. Such a claim is now merely a hope, precipitated by the result of the last Presidential election. If the Democratic county candidate wins on June 20th, this hope will be transformed into what will look very much like an actual fact.

We hold to the claim that Chilton County has been well-managed by the Republican officials in past years. While many of our Republicans voted for a Democrat for President last year, we do not believe it means that they are ready to abandon their party. This election on June 20th is going to be a test on this question. What shall be the answer of the Republicans of Chilton County to this challenge?

If we fail to elect our Republican candidate for Superintendent of Education now, it means that we shall have a much harder fight to hold our party supremacy in the county next year. If we elect our Republican candidate now, it will serve notice to the opposition that the Republicans of Chilton County mean to stay with their party and perpetuate in the future the program of good government that has been the aim and purpose and accomplishment of those Republicans whom we have placed in charge of our county affairs in the past.

In conclusion, we want to leave with you this question: What has the Democratic party in Alabama done to justify Republicans to leave their own party and give support to a political party that has made the most miserable mess it is possible to imagine out of the government of our state? Such a thing is impossible for Republicans to think about doing, and we urge upon you the importance of a strong vote in favor of Mr. Bean on June 20th.

We hope you will earnestly reflect upon these questions and do all you can to make the Republican victory in Chilton County on June 20th a most decisive one.

Whether business has turned the corner or not, it at least is believed to have made a U-turn in that direction.

When funds run short, many politicians seem ready to make "shock troops" out of the schoolteachers.

MUSIC SCHOOL AT UNION GROVE

Will Be Taught By Prof. Ralph Grant For Period of Twenty Days

Beginning Monday morning, July 10, Prof. Ralph Grant will teach a music or singing school at Union Grove church. The school will run for twenty days, and Prof. Grant says that the tuition charges will be most reasonable. Miss Bertie Grant will teach piano lessons to those who wish to learn to play. There will be classes in everything from beginners in rudiments through advanced harmony.

This school is intended not only for Union Grove, but it is hoped and expected that there will be students enrolled from Collins Chapel, Thorsby, Jemison, and other adjoining communities. Trucks to haul students from other communities will be provided as they are needed. Prof. Grant says that he hopes to have between 100 and 200 students enrolled, and if extra help in the teaching force is needed, other teachers will be secured.

Ralph Grant began his training in music in this county under his father, L. T. Grant, and Prof. H. C. Collins. He later went to Howard college, Birmingham, where he spent four and a half years in obtaining his A. B. degree; during that time he studied music under Paul Delaunay, later taking a special course under Walter Vaughn at the Birmingham Conservatory of Music. He lacked only one year in piano music of taking his degree in music.

In the Union Grove school Prof. Grant will teach voice culture, ear training, etc., at no extra charge. He is now engaged in teaching a school at Chisholm Baptist church, Montgomery; and about the first of August will begin a school at Arkadelphia in Cullman County.

LECROY-MIZE WEDDING

A nuptial event of wide social interest this week was the wedding of Mr. Jimmy Lecroy and Miss Ethel Mize, which was solemnized at the home of Rev. S. J. Ezell last Sunday, June 11, at two o'clock.

The attendants were Mr. Herbert Foshee as best man, and Miss Ruth Mize, sister of the bride. The bride's dress was blue, with white accessories. Her sister wore a dress of blue with white shoes and hat.

Miss Sue Ann Powers, the pretty little ring-bearer, was very sweet in a dress of pink.

The bride and groom remained in the car in front of the Ezell home until the wedding march was begun, played by Grace Ezell. They marched slowly in and took their places. The ceremony was pronounced by Rev. S. J. Ezell, in the presence of a group of friends.

After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Lecroy will be at home in Clanton. Mrs. Lecroy has been engaged as a teacher at Lay Dam for the past two years. Mr. Lecroy is an employee of Clanton Motors. Their many friends extend congratulations and best wishes.

Calvin Wilson of Montevallo was a visitor in Clanton Tuesday.

FIRST OF JULY IS TAX DEAD LINE

Date Set For Closing The Tax Books by W. G. Culp, Tax Collector

Beginning the first week in July, I will have to advertise for sale all property on which taxes have not been paid. I have given the taxpayers three months extension on the time of payment of their taxes in order to favor them as much as possible.

The first of July is as long as I can possibly extend the time. Those who are delinquent on the first day of July will have additional cost of advertising added to their taxes. It is not my wish to have these costs put on the taxpayers, but it is not in my power to avoid doing so. I must discharge my duty under the law.

Let me urge all delinquent taxpayers to take notice and do your very best to settle your taxes before advertising costs are added.—W. G. Culp, Tax Collector of Chilton County.

MEMBER BOARD OF EDUCATION FAVORS W. T. BEAN FOR OFFICE

To the Voters of Chilton County:

Through the Union-Banner will you please allow me to say a few words in regard to the election of a county superintendent?

We have all been wanting to get to vote for a man for that place for some time, and now we have that chance. I hope every loyal voter in the county will have enough time to go and vote. As you know, I vote the Republican ticket, and I shall vote for Mr. Bean. I think he deserves the place, fully able to tend to it and I believe he will do all in his power to make us one of the best ones of the state.

Say, my dear voters, will you stop and think for a moment. Don't wait for someone to come after you, to haul you to the polls to vote. Don't say I want go unless they come after me. Did you ever think that this one thing was taking our government out of the hands of the people, and putting it in the hands of the money-power. The man that can spend the most money will be the one who will draw the line for us to walk. Will you think of this? If you think I am right, take it for your good, if not, remember what I said.

I am hoping every Republican voter will go and vote for Mr. Bean and every Democrat voter go and vote for Mr. Little, and I also hope there will be no undermining tricks between the two men or through either party. Let us all live for one another, treat our fellow man like we would like to be treated—times will get better, we will enjoy ourselves better, everybody will be lovely; so with best wishes to everybody and the deepest appreciation to all the voters, I remain a servant of yours.—C. J. O. MIZE WRITES ABOUT THE TOMATOES IN TEXAS

From J. O. Mize, to all the farmers of Chilton County, and especially to the County Agent, Mr. C. E. Stapp:

As many of you people back home know, Professor Daniels has entered the University of Texas, at Austin, for a special course that he could not get in Alabama. I came this far with him and I have learned a little about tomato raising, that I think should be of special interest to all the farmers out there. As the soil there is so much better for tomatoes than it is here, I will give you a few figures that I have gathered.

One of my nephews, Mr. Richard Terry, has only three-fourths of an acre in tomatoes and has only picked them over twice. The first time he gathered twelve bushels and sold them for $23.20, second picking, 17 bushels for $35.02, three bushels of culls, $.30, making a total of $58.52. With favorable weather conditions, he will get three times that much more. Another man, whose name I do not recall, has only one acre and has already got $74.63 in cash for them. He has only got about one-third of the crop. I was present when the farmers were unloading their wagons and trucks. One man got $85.35 for his truck-load, another man got $167.00 for his load. This is just a few figures that I am in possession of for tomatoes.

Here at this packing house, they employ about 150 hands that consists of boys and girls here in the community. Boys and girls about 12 years old make about 10c per hour and grown-ups make about 25c per hour, averaging from $3.00 to $5.00 per day during the season, and t[illegible] seasons usually last from four to [illegible] weeks. It is wonderful to see them working. Now boys, I think the thing for you to do is to go see Mr. Stapp, pay his expenses out here and get him to make arrangements to get tomato raising going there. I would urge you to get him to come on at once, while they are in a good way so that he may see just how it is all done, and teach you after he returns. I would suggest that Mr. Tobe Posey come with him for one, and then Mr. Stapp and Mr. Posey select two other men to come with them. They are loading about seven cars per day here now and they are getting from $500 to $700 per car.

This is paid in cash right here in a radius of 30 miles area. There are about 175 packing sheds. Now, gentlemen, it will not cost you much to send Mr. Stapp over here. Professor Daniels and I traveled 626 miles. It cost us $6.23 for gas and nothing for oil.

The scenery at Vicksburg, Miss., is just wonderful. The statutes of all the leading officers of the Civil War are mounted on their horses with their guns and bayonets, and everything just as it was in action during that great battle. Then the bridge across the river is 1.6 miles long, has a passageway for people on foot, a railroad track and also the highway, with plenty of room for two cars to run along side by side, so that is beautiful scenery also.

I will close now, hoping to see Mr. Stapp, Mr. Tobe Posey and anyone else that you wish to bring or send along real soon. Inquire for Mrs. D. A. Terry, Whitehouse, Texas. I will be here for at least a month yet.—Cordially yours, J. O. Mize.

ANNUAL REUNION AT THE HOME OF MR. AND MRS. J. B. GRAY

On Sunday, June 11, a large number of relatives of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Gray, Mt. Creek, Ala., assembled at their home with well-filled baskets and had an old fashioned reunion. At the noon hour dinner was spread on tables under the beautiful oaks on the back lawn. There was plenty of every thing good to eat and served picnic style, with plenty of ice tea for all. Mr. Tommie Billingsley was called on to "return thanks", which was very beautifully appropriate.

The following enjoyed the day: Mr. and Mrs. John S. Billingsley, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Davenport, Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Billingsley, Miss Ollis Merchant and brother, Hollis Merchant, all of Thorsby. Mr. and Mrs. Tommie Billingsley and two sons, Doss and Billie, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Bice, Mr. and Mrs. Alew Bice and baby, Mr. and Mrs. Vester Bice and baby, Mrs. Minnie Mullins from Clanton, Mrs. Sim Glenn and son, Elmer, from Verbena, Mr. and Mrs. Newt Atkinson and little daughter, Norma, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Norris, Mr. John Baxley, Mr. Amzi Kicker, Misses Hazel and Billie Baxley, and Mrs. Effie Speer of Mt. Creek.

In the afternoon Mr. Emmett Billingsley led the singing with his sister, Mrs. Marvin Davenport, as pianist. Having quite a number of trained voices, we had a beautiful singing.

The following, who came in the afternoon to mingle with old friends were: Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gentry, Mrs. Jim Glenn, Mrs. E. F. Culver, Mr. Ben Clark, Rev. A. L. Joiner and Miss Margaret McGalliard and her little friend.

At about 4 p.m. "good-byes" were said with promises to repeat this occasion as soon as possible.

CLANTON WON FROM THE AIRPORT TEAM THURSDAY

Clanton won another game Thursday afternoon on the local field from the team representing the Municipal Airport at Birmingham, score, 10 to 2.

Foshee allowed the fliers only three bingles through the first seven innings. However, Cowan caught Simpson in close in the eighth, and drove one over his head, which bounced over the fence for a home run. The Airport's other run was made when Foshee hit Matalto, who stole second and scored on Mitchell's single.

In the first inning, with one away, Parrish lived on Matalto's error, took second on Littlejohn's sacrifice, and scored on a single by Nivens. In the second, Clanton hit around when the Airport's infield blew up, scoring five runs on five hits and four errors. Three more were added in the seventh on two hits and two errors. The last marker came in the eighth, when Downs tripled and scored on a sacrifice fly to center field by Hayes.

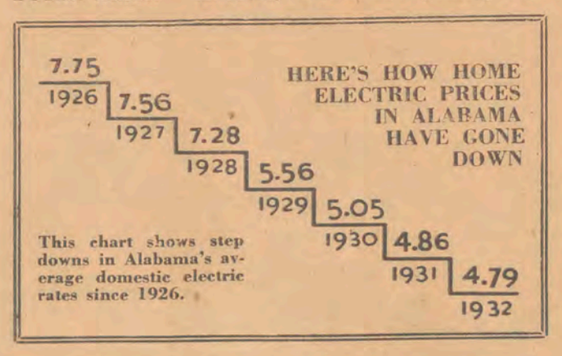
Inflation Sweeps Up Price Of Almost Everything . . . Except ELECTRICITY

CARRIED upwards by the sweep of the inflationary program, prices are now soaring. Cotton, wheat, food, clothing, in fact nearly all commodities have advanced sharply in the past few weeks. Almost the sole exception is ELECTRICITY.

Electric Rates In The Home Have Steadily Gone Downwards Since 1926

Electric rates did not advance when living costs soared up to peak time heights during boom times. Instead, when everything else went sky high, electric prices here in Alabama dropped still lower. Electric rates are not advancing now, when every item in the cost of living is rising rapidly. Average electric rates for home service today are 57.4% lower than they were in 1913. Alabama's average rate for all domestic service has declined over 38% within the past six years and is now 14% below the national average. The only "inflation" in electric service is in its GREATER USEFULNESS—its steadily increasing number of helps, conveniences, economies—all available today to Alabama homes at lower prices than ever before.



This chart shows step downs in Alabama's average domestic electric rates since 1926.

POPLAR SPRINGS

Our Sunday school is progressing nicely. There seems to be interest every Sunday. Probably this can be attributed to the Sunday school study period which is being held three times a week. On Thursday night of this week the meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Miller; on Saturday night at Mr. and Mrs. Walter Moore's. All who are interested in study of the Sunday school lesson and are in reach of these places are invited to attend.

"A FEW SCATTERING REMARKS" BY MR. H. B. OLIVER OF VERBENA

Editor Union-Banner:

It is rumored that Judge Reynolds's Executive Committee of the R. F. C. met recently for the purpose of cutting overhead expenses, and did cut out some employees and cut down salaries of others, but not all.

One $85 per month man and a $50 man whose duties, so report has it, are very small, were left severely alone. Maybe they have a pull that defied this Executive Committee.

Maybe they are among the bunch that were glad to have the Democrats vote for the R. F. C. loan, but after the election entered strong protests when any except "our crowd" were favored.

Another rumor is that Judge Reynolds has diverted all the road funds to drainage of the Clanton swamps. Of course, any informed person knows that the "King Fish" has no control over disbursements of the tax money; but maybe the Judge might tell us "Hill Billies" something about it, provided he cares to do so.

Personally, I prefer the drainage to the waste on the roads.—Yours truly, H. B. Oliver, Verbena, Ala., JuJne 13, 1933.

OAK GROVE

Our B. Y. P. U. social, held at the home of Mr. Grady Sutley Saturday night, was a decided success.

We had a fine crowd of B. Y. P. U. members present, also several visitors which we were very glad to have. Ice cream and cake were served. We wish to express our appreciation to the young ladies in charge of this entertainment for the interest shown by them.

Mr. Robert Martin continues ill at his home.

Mrs. Leonard Pierce has returned for an extended visit with her mother. We are real glad to have her with us again as she is a fine church and B. Y. P. U. worker.

Several of our young people attended the singing at Pleasant Grove Sunday.

Mrs. J. O. Glass entertained the ladies of the community Saturday afternoon in honor of her daughter, Mrs. Lonnie Northcutt.

On Saturday night the play "Dot, the Miner's Daughter," which was shown a few weeks ago, will be presented at Camp Branch schoolhouse, near Longview, by a group of our young people.

Little Raymond Martin and Chas. Douglas Herring spent the day Thursday with Mrs. Charlie Martin.

Mrs. Lester Northcutt entertained the Junior B. Y. P. U. at the home of Mrs. Lassie Northcutt Saturday afternoon. Eleven of the members on roll were present. Cake and ice cream were served. Those present were Curtis Satterwhite, Paul Northcutt, Rascoe Cobb, Athon Samons, Ruby Glass, Lorene Guinn, Nellie Bucks, Olean Watkins, Mary Cadle, Willie Jean Northcutt and Ruth Cobb.

Don't forget that the first Sunday in July is the date set apart for our all day singing. We are expecting a number of prominent singers and hope to have a fine singing. Also the first Sunday in August is the time for the beginning of our revival meeting. We extend to all an invitation to come.

WHAT NEGROES ARE DOING

Garden Contest Ends

The garden contest ended last week with George Knight and Lindsey Draper getting first and second prizes respectively. The gardens, on the whole, were very good ones. They were handicapped the early part of the spring by continued rains and have been handicapped for the last month by drought.

Jessie Walter Benjamin, Robert Coker and Frank Dickenson started out in the early spring as if they were going some where and they had attractive gardens but they failed to continue the planting of late crops. Arthur Lee Oden is to be commended for such a good showing after getting a late start.

Another garden contest will be sponsored very soon for fall and winter gardens. I shall say more about it later.

I am very grateful to Mesdames Mattie B. Wilson, Leila Woods and Ruby McCall, judges, for the splendid way in which they handled the affair. Some of our people never get tired of working. They always serve with pleasure.

No Trip in July

A letter from the state department of Education advised me that the N. F. C. conference had been postponed until fall due to the lack of funds. As you know, we teachers have been getting a promise of pay for a long time and it appears that they have stopped that now. So, Lord, have mercy upon us, and keep the drug, grocery and gas men from us. We will go in the fall just the same.

Big Day on the Fourth

I am sure that you have heard about it now. If you haven't you will. Anything you want will be for sale, and many attractions such as hog calling, Cow calling, cake - eating, broad jump, high jump, etc. Prizes will be offered to the winners. Yes, and ball games all day. You must not miss this big day.

A Letter of Confession

I ran across a letter the other day. It read as if the writer were in serious trouble. The letter reads in part, " Now, Mr. ——— you white people are our only dependers. We have to do as you all say do, when you tell us. Of course, I am sure you all know I was arrested for whiskey and resisting officers in the month of January. Mr. ———, I was drinking and the devil and that whiskey told me to fight the law. Now I could have gotten killed. I pray that you good white people forgive me. I want do that any more. The devil has been leading me for the last years until he led me down here. I pray that when I am a free man I will leave. him down here."

I wish I had space for the entire letter, for there is a mighty good lesson in it for us all. Is it not well that we stop and think before we act? There are three ways to reach a conclusion, namely: (1) guess at it; (2) ask somebody; (3) weigh the facts in the case carefully, yourself. Too many of us are using the first method when we should use the latter. Let us not go heedlessly into trouble and then cry for help, but steady ourselves that we will not be lured by petty illusions. Then, if fate should deal with us unhappily, our friends will come to us and willingly give aid.—Benjamin Anderson, teacher of vocational agriculture.

The members of Circle No. 4 of the Baptist W. M. S. went to Mr. Hugh Foshee's camp on Yellow Leaf Creek and spent the day Wednesday.

CLANTON CALF CLUB

The Clanton Calf club held a meeting at the office of County Agent C. E. Stapp on Saturday, June 10, at 3 o'clock. The main purpose of the meeting was to elect officers for the year 1933.

The following were elected: James Dennis, president; Ralph Mims, vice president; Clyde Popwell, secretary-treasurer and Quinton Kelley, reporter.

Mr. Stapp addressed the club on methods of improving breeding and care of cattle, paying special attention to breeding, for it is hoped that when the demand for pure-bred Jerseys picks up the members of the calf club will have some well-bred stuff for sale.

July 7 was set as the time for a special meeting when Mr. King from the extension service at Auburn is to speak to the club. This is considered an important meeting and all members are urged to be present.

CREAM SUPPER

There will be an ice cream supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. (Colonel) Blackwell's Saturday night, June 17. We cordially invite everyone to attend, especially do we invite the members of Concord and Antioch churches to come and help us out. The proceeds will go to the benefit of Pleasant Grove M. P. church.

STATE OF ALABAMA A PROCLAMATION By The GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama at its last extraordinary session ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which proposed amendment is herein set out, and ordered that the election be held on the first Tuesday after the expiration of three months from and after the final adjournment of the said session of the Legislature at which the amendment was proposed, and

WHEREAS, the said session of the Legislature at which the said amendment was proposed finally adjourned on Friday, April 14, 1933, and the first Tuesday after three months from and after the said final adjournment of the said session of the Legislature is Tuesday, July 18, 1933, and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, is required by law to be given by a proclamation of the Governor;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, B. M. Miller, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday the 18th day of July, 1933, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama in the manner and form required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:—

ARTICLE XXII. The Legislature shall have the power to levy and collect taxes for State purposes on net incomes from whatever source derived within this State, including the incomes derived from salaries, fees and compensation paid from the State, County, Municipality, and any agency or creature thereof, for the calendar year, 1933, and thereafter and to designate and define the incomes to be taxed and to fix the rates of taxes provided that the rate shall not exceed 5 per cent nor 3 per cent on corporations. Income shall not be deemed property for purposes of ad valorem taxes. From net income an exemption of not less than Fifteen Hundred Dollars ($1500.00) shall be allowed to unmarried persons and an exemption of not less than Three Thousand Dollars ($3000.00) shall be allowed to the head of a family, provided that only one exemption shall be allowed to husband and wife where they are living together and make separate returns for income tax. An exemption of not less than Three Hundred Dollars ($300.00) shall be allowed for each dependent member of the family of an income tax payer under the age of 18 years. The Legislature shall reduce the ad valorem tax from time to time when and to such an amount as the revenue derived from the income tax will justify. In the event the Legislature levies an income tax, such tax must be levied upon the salaries, incomes, fees, or other Compensation of State, County and Municipal Officers and employees, on the same basis as such income taxes are levied upon other persons. All income derived from such tax shall be held in trust for the payment of the floating debt of Alabama until all debts due on Oct. 1st, 1932, are paid and thereafter used exclusively for the reduction of State ad valorem taxes.

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks next preceding the 18th day of July, 1933, in each County of the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said County.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this the 3rd day of May, 1933.

B. M. MILLER, Governor.

Attest: PETE B. JARMAN, JR., Secretary of State.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our many friends for their kindness during the illness and death of our little daughter, Hazel Christine. Especially do we extend our thanks for the service given by Dr. Lawrence, Dr. Franklin, Martin and Son and nurses of Central Alabama Hospital.—Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Flournoy.

VIDA

There is going to be an ice cream supper at the church Saturday night, June 17th. Everybody is invited to come.

HAZEL CHRISTINE FLOURNOY

It was on Tuesday night, June 6, 1933 the death angel took from us Hazel Flournoy. All rays of sunshine seems to have fled, leaving only shadows and darkness, and yet we realize that our loss that seems too great to bear is only God's gain. She was only 23 months old and loved by everyone that saw her. Her illness was brief.

She was given by God for only a short while on this earth, but she leaves a vacant place that never can be filled. Although our grief seems so hard to bear, we realize that all we can do is to live and try to meet her on heaven's shore.

She leaves father, mother, a little sister and a host of relatives and friends to mourn her loss.—By an Aunt.

REAUBY CHASTEEN HAS INVENTED USEFUL ARTICLE

The Union-Banner has a letter from Reauby Chasteen on Clanton Route 7, telling of a household article he has invented and builds for folks. He calls it a combination ironing-board, step-ladder and chair, a three-in-one affair. He says that the housewife can iron a while on it, then change it into a step-ladder and clean windows; then if she is tired she may change it into a chair, sit down and rest.

One of the articles may be seen at Clanton Building Supply Company. Mr. Chasteen says that the idea is original with him, and he intends to build them for people. He says that the cost will be reasonable. A postal card, stating the color desired, is all that is required to enter your order.

LOW PRICE CARS VS. CHEAP CARS

We do not build a low-price car: the cost to us of building our car is pretty high.

But we do sell a high quality car at a low price.

Almost every new Ford V-8 car we have built so far this year, has cost more to manufacture than its selling price was. As you buy them at only $490 to $610, we have to depend on increasing volume to make up the difference.

The reason for this is simple: -- a manufacturer who gives good value must expect to lose money on the first cars he sells because he cannot charge all his costs to the people who are first to buy.

But with the purchaser it is different -- he cannot afford to lose anything on a car. It must give him full value from the first, and keep on giving him full value for years.

Two things make possible our combination of low prices and high cost quality:

1. Volume Production
2. Taking only one profit

First, we set our price at what would be fair to the public on the basis of economies we enjoy in volume production. Then, in order to justify and maintain our low price we must get volume sales.

Thus it comes that a car which is really high-cost to make, is also low-cost to buy.

There is a difference between a cheap car and a low-priced high quality car.

Ford prices are always fixed at a point which makes it profitable for a customer to buy.

Good and lasting business must produce profit to the buyer as well as to the seller. And of the two, the buyer's profit must be, comparatively, the larger one.

It pays us to sell the Ford V-8 because it pays you to buy it.

JESUS RISES FROM THE DEAD

LESSON TEXT—Mark 16:1-20.

GOLDEN TEXT—And he saith unto them, Be not affrighted: Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified: he is risen; he is not here: behold the place where they laid him. Mark 16:6.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Living Again.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Conquers Death.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Our Living Lord.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Power of the Resurrection.

I. The Visit to the Sepulchre (vv. 1-4).

1. By whom (v.1). Mary Magdalene, the mother of James, and Salome. They brought sweet spices with which to anoint him. This was a ministry of love, yet had they believed what he had said concerning his resurrection, they would have known that his body would not be there.

Mary of Bethany understood this. She therefore expressed intelligent affection for the Lord, and against the day of his burying poured out her box of precious ointment upon him (John 12:3, 7).

2. The time of (v. 2). It was very early in the morning of the first day of the week, before the rising of the sun.

3. Their perplexity (vv. 3, 4). They questioned as to who should roll away the large stone from the mouth of the tomb. To their surprise they found the stone removed.

II. The Angel in the Tomb (vv. 5-8).

Jesus knew that these women would come to the sepulchre with perplexed and unbelieving hearts, so he had an angel waiting there to announce to them the fact of his resurrection. Note the message of the angel:

1. "Be not affrighted" (v. 6). How sorely they needed this kind word.

2. "Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth which was crucified" (v. 6). This threefold designation shows with marvelous clearness—

a. His humanity—"Jesus."

b. His lowly residence—"Nazareth."

c. His ignominious death—"crucified."

3. "He is risen: he is not here. Behold where they laid him" (v. 6). He was born in lowly circumstances and suffered the shameful death on the cross, but now is the conqueror of death. His resurrection gives meaning to his death (I. Cor. 15:17).

4. "Go your way, tell his disciples and Peter" (v. 7). All the disciples needed this blessed news, but Peter especially, since he had so emphatically denied his Lord.

5. "He goeth before you into Galilee, there shall ye see him" (v. 7). Christ had told the disciples that he would rise from the dead and meet them in Galilee (Matt. 26:32).

III. The Appearances of the Risen Christ (vv. 9-14).

Since Christ's resurrection was to be the central theme of apostolic preaching, it was necessary that they have a certainty of knowledge as to it (Acts 1:3). Without the resurrection of Christ, his death would be meaningless. Out of the ten or more appearances, Mark refers to three.

1. To Mary Magdalene (vv. 9-11). Her devotion was amply rewarded by being the first to meet the risen Lord. She went at once and told the story to the disciples, but they refused to believe her.

2. To two disciples on the way to Emmaus (vv. 12, 13). Luke gives full particulars concerning this appearance (Luke 24:13-25). Jesus walked, talked, and ate with them, convincing them that he had indeed risen from the dead.

3. The eleven disciples (v. 14). Jesus appeared to them while sitting at meat, and reproved them for their unbelief. The fact that they steadfastly resisted the testimony that Christ had risen, but afterwards were willing to risk their lives in the proclamation of this truth, proves the genuineness of their faith and should strengthen ours.

IV. The Commission of the Risen Lord (vv. 15-18).

After the disciples were convinced of the truth of his resurrection, Jesus sent them forth to preach the gospel to every creature. What a blessed issue to those who believe, and how awful to those who believe not. "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned" (v. 16).

V. The Activity of the Risen and Ascended Christ (vv. 19, 20).

After giving the disciples their commission, he ascended on high, and from the unseen sphere directed their activities. Whenever they went he confirmed their word with signs.

The scout executive announces that the second session of the Council camping program will open July 2nd at the island site near Clanton, Alabama with between forty and fifty campers. The first session is opening this week at the old camp site Camp Spring Villa. Sixty scouters are there from Alexander City, Opelika, Auburn and sourrounding cities. John Coley, first eagle scout of Alexander City, is serving as assistant camp director.

Sea scouts from Opelika, Tallassee, Alexander City, and Selma will be among those campers at Treasure Island in July. A special incentive for these sea scouts have been given as the best camper will be chosen as this council's representative on the Pensacola cruise the later part of July with all expenses paid. Reservations number 1 on this cruise was made by this central Alabama Area Council by the executive early in April.

Mate R. W. Worthy of the Alexander City sea scouts will superintend the building of a ten foot row boat by the sea scouts at the local camp. Clanton scouts with those of Ashland and Selma, not sea scouts, will also have a special course in that of marksmanship so that they may earn their marksmanship merit badge during the encampment. Messrs. Smith and Inzer, local leaders of scout troop 47 as well as Messrs. Lakeman and Deal of Troop 51 and Mr. Sharp of the Mitchell Dam Troop all will attend this camping session and assist the scout executive who serves as camp director in running the camp.

This year the campers pay less than last year and in some cases food stuff will be taken in lieu of cash. John Hollis, as camping chairman, will have other statements shortly.

SINGING AT COURTHOUSE THURSDAY NIGHT, JUNE 15

There will be another singing at the courthouse in Clanton on Thursday night of next week, June 15th. Prof. W. M. Devaughn of Poplar Springs will preside. Prof. P. B. Shaw of Birmingham has promised to attend and bring the Ballard quartet of that city. The Ballards have a reputation of being a bunch of fine singers. Mr. John Stamps and Prof. Lackey, also of Birmingham, have promised to attend.

The public is invited to attend this singing, especially singers. It is hoped to have all the singers arranged better than usual, so those who do not sing, please leave the front seats for the singers; and those who do sing, please make an effort to get in the class.

Very often what might be a good singing is almost ruined because people who sing but little fill up the class, and lots of the good singers stay back in the rear of the house. It is hoped that this may be avoided as much so as posible at this courthouse singing next week.

SINGINGS THIS MONTH

Last Sunday the singing fans of the county had their thirsts for music quenched at Pleasant Grove, west of Jemison. The day was a very pleasant one so far as the singing was concerned, but then as to the temperature—that ran just a little too high to be comfortable. Nevertheless, the day can be pronounced a success with a good margin to spare.

Next Sunday everything side-tracks for Collins Chapel. They will have their all day annual singing; and there needs to be nothing more said than the mere announcement, as all lovers of music know what it means to attend a singing at Collins Chapel.

Then the fourth Sunday the crowd will have to kind of split up and some go to Cane Creek and some to Mars Hill. Both these places will likely have good days with singers and directors to spare.

The announcement has been made of the annual singing at Oak Grove the first Sunday in July. This is an event to which lots of people look forward every year.

JOHNSONS IN WRECK

Dr. and Mrs. Sam Johnson had a rather serious auto accident about 25 miles south of Clanton last Saturday about 5:30 p.m. Both Dr. and Mrs. Johnson suffered general bruises and Dr. Johnson received a cut on the hip which was, however, not considered serious.

The Johnsons were on their way from Pensacola to Clanton in their car. At the time of the accident Mrs. Johnson was driving about 50 miles per hour, and a front tire blew out; which pulled the car off the road. In the smashup the top of the car was crushed and the car suffered about $150 damage. The car was sent to Birmingham for repairs.

Dr. Johnson has already returned to his work at Pensacola, but Mrs. Johnson is still in bed at her mother's, Mrs. A. C. Harper, Clanton, recovering from her injuries.

The family of Rev. S. J. Ezell returned home last Friday. They had been away four weeks during which they visited Washington, D. C., attending the Southern Baptist Convention. The rest of the time was spent with relatives and friends in South Carolina.

CLUB OBJECTIVES WERE OUTLINED

At Meeting of Kiwanis Club Held On Last Thursday Night

The program of the Kiwanis Club for last Thursday evening was in charge of Mr. Earl Thomas, of the Isabella community, who is chairman of the agricultural committee of the club.

Some of the principal features of the program for the evening were: a talk by Miss Pardue, county home demonstration agent, on home demonstration work in Chilton County, and a talk by Clifford Manning, president of the 4-H club of the county, on "What the 4-H Club Boys are Doing in the County," and their program for the year.

James and R. C. Veazey, sons of Mr. Bob Veazey, of Isabella community, rendered several entertaining musical numbers on the violin and mandolin for the occasion.

Mr. Thomas presented the agricultural program for the year, and the club voted unanimously to give it their hearty support. Mr. Thomas's program included assistance of the club in sponsoring the county-wide picnic of July 21, which is to be held at Popwell Woods, in front of Boswell's tourist camp, on the Birmingham-Montgomery highway, about 3 miles south of Clanton. The club appointed Dr. C. O. Lawrence and Representative Percy M. Pitts on a committee with county agent C. E. Stapp and Miss Pardue to work out a program for the July 21 picnic.

Other projects which the agricultural program recommended for the club to sponsor were: the 4-H club work, the soil improvement program, home demonstration work and visits to sub-experiment stations.

Mr. C. E. Stapp, secretary of the club, summarized the projects adopted at the previous meeting, which included work for control of communicable diseases in the county, encouragement of Boy Scout activities and plans for locating an aviation field at Clanton. The program for the control of communicable diseases is to be worked out by Dr. C. O. Lawrence and Dr. V. J. Gragg. Plans for the location of the aviation field are to be worked out by a committee composed of W. M. Wyatt, president of the club, Dr. V. J. Gragg and Mr. Sam Powers, who are to work togeth-es with the American Legion.

There were 13 members present at the meeting.

R. W. TAYLOR BUYS HALF INTEREST IN CHICAGO SALES

Hugh Jones and Tom Taylor Will Manage Business in Future. Reedie Taylor Out

A recent business transaction of importance and magnitude brought about the transfer from Reedie Taylor to Roland W. Taylor a half interest in the big dry goods store known as Chicago Sales Co. The other half of the store already belonged to Tom M. Taylor. Besides Taylor Wholesale Grocery Company, this brings the number of retail stores owned by these two brothers to 10, in five different counties. They are now engaged in moving and enlarging their store in Wetumpka; they will have a grand opening down there on Saturday, July 1st.

Mr. Hugh Jones, who has been with Taylor Brothers for the past two years, will manage the Chicago Sales Company, with the assistance of T. M. Taylor. Roland W. Taylor will remain in active charge of the wholesale store here. Hugh Jones has had lots of experience in the retail dry goods business in Clanton, and his many friends will welcome him back into the game. It is reported that Reedie Taylor will open up a dry goods store somewhere else in Clanton.

Mr. Ruben Foss of Thorsby, who was recently transferred from the Thorsby store to the Alabaster store, will come to Clanton this week and go to work in the wholesale grocery store here to take the place vacated by Mr. Hugh Jones.

HOUSE BURNED NEAR LIME SPRINGS SATURDAY

Fire destroyed, Saturday morning between 9 and 11 a.m., the old John M. Ellison house of the Lime Springs community, in which Mr. Willie Burnett and Mr. J. L. Ellison and families were living. It is reported that practically everything in the house was destroyed.

Mrs. Victoria Ellison, mother of T. L. Ellison, who was visiting her son at the time had started cooking dinner a short time before the fire. After starting the fire Mrs. Ellison had gone out of the house into the garden and from there she noticed the fire, which had already made considerable headway.

FORMER GOVERNOR OPPOSED TO REPEAL OF THE 18 AMENDMENT

Montgomery, Ala., June 17.—Hon. W. W. Brandon, former governor of Alabama in a communication to the Montgomery headquarters of the Alliance Against the Repeal of the 18th Amendment, Inc., under date of June 15th, takes his stand firmly against the repeal of the 18th Amendment. Governor Brandon, who is an ardent volunteer to the anti-repeal cause, says in his letter of wide public interest:

"I shall vote against the repeal of the 18th Amendment for the reason that nothing better for temperance is before the American people, and I do not wish in any way to encourage the younger generation to intemperance."

"I yield to no man more loyalty to the Democratic party than I, and I refer you to my party record. I am loyal to the Democratic party, but I do not consider the repeal of the 18th Amendment a test of Democracy. I am loyal to our standard bearer, the President of the United States, but shall vote against repeal."

"I believe when the matter was submitted to the people it was not a political question but one of morals, which leaves it to the conscience of every voter. In my opinion, it would be well for the South to retain its prohibition laws and thus save our beloved President from the sinister influences of those who do not favor temperance or prohibition."

"My vote will accordingly be cast against the repeal of the 18th Amendment. Yours truly, Wm. W. Brandon."

Mr. Brandon is one of the many eminent statesmen, educators, agriculturists, industrialists, economists, etc., who are avowed friends of the 18th Amendment and who, as loyal Democrats, will vote against repealing the prohibition measure. The anti-repealists, under the leadership of Hon. Charles E. Rice, eminent Birmingham attorney and former mayor of Homewood, himself a regular Democrat, are working quietly but efficiently to lead Alabama to check the repeal tide with a decisive vote against repeal on July 18th.

TAX DEAD LINE MOVED TO SEPT

Extension Granted By W. G. Culp, Tax Collector of Chilton County

Tax Collector W. G. Culp, has revised his previous arrangements for handling delinquent taxes, and has announced that September 15th will be the dead line for tax payments before additional costs of advertising and selling are added.

In explanation of his revised schedule, Mr. Culp said:

"I have heretofore stated that July 1st would be the dead line for payment of taxes. Desiring to be sure that I would extend to the taxpayers every bit of time I possibly could, I made a thorough study of the laws relating to tax payments. I found that I could extend the time of payment to the 15th day of September.

"Therefore, I have set my calculations upon that date. September 15th is positively the latest day I can set under the law that governs my office. All taxes not paid by that time will have to be advertised and sold.

"Again I want to assure the people that I want to extend to them every possible favor in handling their taxes. It is going to work a hardship on me and my office to make this extension to September 15th, but I am willing to do it in order to give the people all the time possible for me to give.

"I ask everyone now to please bear in mind that I shall not again be able to extend the time. September 15 is as far as I can go. All taxes not paid by then will have to be advertised and the property sold."

MAPLESVILLE MAN IS KILLED BY ACCIDENT

Mr. John G. Haigler, age 45, of Maplesville, met his death instantly on Thursday morning, June 15, in a truck accident near Maplesville. It was reported that a negro was driving the truck upon which Mr. Haigler was riding. When the negro started to change gear on a grade, the truck went dead and Haigler jumped off. It is reported that in attempting to skotch the truck Haigler was run over and instantly killed.

The funeral services were held Saturday from the Baptist church at Stanton. The Rev. Grady G. Williams conducted the services, with Rev. B. Lawrence assisting. Martin was in charge of the burial. The deceased is survived by a wife, 3 sons, 5 daughters, 2 brothers, 2 sisters.

Aubrey Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roland W. Taylor, is attending summer school at Auburn. He is taking some special courses.

LUTHER E. LITTLE WINS ELECTION

First Democrat To Be Elected To County Office In Chilton County In the Past Twenty-Three Years

Luther E. Little was elected County Superintendent of Education in the Special Election Tuesday, defeating his opponent, W. T. Bean, by what appears to be a majority of about 128.

The election of Mr. Little marks the first victory scored by a Democrat for county office in Chilton County in the past 23 years.

Out of a total vote of 2318 in the county, the unofficial returns show that Bean received 1095 and Little 1223.

The total combined vote of Bean and Lawrence in the Republican primary of May 19 was 1067. Bean appears, therefore, to have received 28 more votes on Tuesday than the entire vote in the primary.

According to unofficial figures gathered from returning officers as they brought in the boxes Tuesday night, the following is the vote cast at the various election precincts in the County:

THANKS FROM MR. L. E. LITTLE

Requests Every Citizen To Unite In Effort To Make Our Schools Better

In a statement given to The Union-Banner Wednesday morning, Mr. Luther Little, the successful candidate for County Superintendent of Education, expresses his appreciation to the voters of the county in the following words:

"I wish to take this opportunity of expressing to the entire county my sincere appreciation of the honor given to me in the election yesterday. I know of no words that can possibly express my real feelings of gratitude to every man, woman and child that made my election possible and real. I only trust that my actions while serving as a humble servant of your schools may speak for me.

"I wish to request every individual of the county to join together in an attempt to make our school program a success, and to do so in spite of the adverse conditions which we have been having, and which are sure to remain with us for some time to come.

"May I once again express my thanks to every one who made possible my election, and once again assure each and every one of you who supported my opponent that your help is solicited, and that your problems and your interest in school matters shall have exactly the same consideration as is given to those who saw fit to support me in the race."

GAS PRICE GOES UP TWO CENTS

Monday morning, June 19, the various filling stations of Clanton announced a 2-cent raise in the price of gasoline throughout the Clanton territory. This is partly a result of the tax passed by the federal government in the recent industrial control bill. Besides the gas tax of ½ cent, this bill provided for taxes of one-tenth of one per cent on corporation net worth, with a 5 per cent additional assessment on earnings above 12½ per cent, a 5 per cent tax on corporation dividends to be deducted at the source, and a 1 per cent increase in income tax rate on consolidated returns.

This additional ½ cent tax on gasoline makes 1½ cents tax per gallon by federal government and 6 cents tax by state government on this product.

Gragg Says Vote Once After Thinking Twice

Listen all ye that labor and are heavy laden:

Along just after the middle of the hot month of July you will be called on to vote on some very important amendments, and please vote and vote right.

Don't forget, working man, laborer, farmer, merchant, doctor, or whoever you are; if you are a consumer, you are going to "foot the bill" when taxes are raised.

Heretofore I called your attention to this one important fact, and it is a fact, that no matter whether the tax is placed on beer or on income or on sales, you, the poor tax-ridden consumer, will pay 90 per cent of it and the big boy at the other end of the line will get 90 per cent of the benefit derived therefrom.

Suppose you vote an income tax. Do you believe the merchant or manufacturer is going to cut his own throat by paying it without a murmur? No, he will raise his price and pass the buck to you, the consumer, and you can't blame him, if you voted for it.

Suppose you do or do not vote the income tax, no matter which, and then vote the debt refunding bill. When you vote that, you open wide the gate for the legislature to meet once again, gather unto themselves their 17 doorkeepers and hundreds of clerks, and promptly proceed to pass a sales tax or almost any other revenue measure, because your vote, according to their view, will sanction that action.

Don't forget to vote NO, unless you want your load made heavier. They will tell you it is your Christian duty to pay your debts, and I say so too; but listen, we have already paid this tax in to pay these debts and they have taken the money and spent it for other purposes, much of it illegally. After this has been done openly, purposely, brazenly, and above board, then Mr. Tax Payer, I credit you with having common sense enough not to vote another $20,000,000 on yourself for that same bunch to squander. They will tell you, "Oh, it must go for these debts only." I tell you they did take it and use it for other purposes than that for which you paid it in, and they are the same bunch; and if they could take it one time, they can and will take it again.

They are even tricking you to start with. They tell you that they need $19,000,000 to pay our outstanding debts, when in fact, after deducting what has been paid and the cash on hand in various banks over the state, to the credit of the state treasury, there is only a debt of about $12,000,000, we are told. So you see they seem to want you to vote an extra $7,000,000 more than is needed to refund outstanding debts. Seven million ought to be enough to play lots of politics with.

Surely you have not forgotten how, during the last state campaign, they told you that we were taxed too much and promised you no more tax raise, but, as you recall, as soon as they entered office, up went your taxes on gas and many other things that it would be hard to do without.

Now they are telling you to repeal the eighteenth amendment and the beer tax will get everybody out of

PROHIBITION REFORMERS CALL FOR CONTROL SYSTEM

Alabama needs and must have some system of liquor control ready if and when the 18th Amendment is repealed, is the opinion of the Woman's Organization for Prohibition Reform expressed in an open letter sent to Governor Miller by Mrs. Solon Jacobs, state chairman, and calling on the governor to appoint a non-paid commission to study the question.

Mrs. Jacobs points out in her letter that she made a similar request previously when the legislature was in session, and she now calls on him again to take such action in view of the fact that eleven states have voted for repeal and that Alabama is expected to follow suit on July 18.

Alabama does not now appropriate any money for liquor enforcement; the state is being drained of the revenue by accesibility of nearby states; Alabama children are being corrupted by present conditions, and bootleggers and other illicit trade channels are absorbing what could be legitimate state revenue are summed up as present conditions in the letter.

Therefore, Mrs. Jacobs requests as follows:

"That an official study commission, consisting of men and women, wets and drys of an equal number, be appointed by you to deal constructively with the pressing problems of the liquor traffic in the light of our own and other nations' experience. We, favoring temperance, urge you to give this matter the most careful consideration, and we call to your attention the further fact that Ohio, Rhode Island, Deleware, Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Michigan, California and Vermont all have officially appointed groups working on the problem."

WOMAN KILLED BY FREIGHT TRAIN

Mrs. J. R. Martin Met Instant Death on Railroad Crossing

Mrs. Martha L. Martin, age 62, wife of J. R. Martin, Thorsby, was killed instantly Saturday, June 17, between 2 and 3 o'clock, when she was struck by the north-bound freight train No. 78, about 100 yards north of the depot at Thorsby.

Mrs .Martin, it is reported, had been to Thorsby and was returning home, walking up the old Birmingham highway on the west side of the railroad, when by some mishap, she stepped upon the crossing, across from the Thorsby planing mill, in front of the train. She was knocked several feet, and was picked up dead immediately.

It is reported that Mr. Jim Daniel of Lomax, who was passing, and a few children were all that saw the accident.

The funeral for Mrs. Martin was held at the Baptist church at Thorsby Sunday at 3:00 p.m. Mrs. Martin had been a member of the Baptist church 45 years. The funeral was preached by the Revs. J. W. Jones, W. P. Lowery, A. L. Foshee and J. E. Each. Martin & Son and the Eastern Star had charge of the burial.

Mrs. Martin is survived by her husband, J. R. Martin, her mother, Mrs. Penny Allen, Jemison; two brothers, A. L. and Walter Allen, Jemison; two sisters, Miss Barbara Ann Allen, Jemison and Mrs. Frank Kawley, Jackson, Tenn; five children, Mrs. Emmett Smith, Thorsby, Mrs. Ernest Moore, Cooper; Mrs. Curtis Billingsley, Clanton and Miss Myradine Martin and Mr. Herschel Martin of Thorsby, and one step son, Vesker Martin of Lay Dam.

JOHN GUSTIN BURNED

John Gustin, age about 60, was brought to the hospital in Clanton Tuesday night suffering from severe burns which he received when his home was destroyed by fire.

The home, 1½ miles northwest of Thorsby, was completely destroyed. The building was falling in when Mr. Gustin and his two daughters became aware of the fire. They ran out without injury. The man then went back into the house to get something, and when he got out he was nearly burned to death.

A call came to Mell Martin from Thorsby and the ambulance rushed the injured man to the hospital. His condition is serious.

ALEX FRAZIER SHOT

Alex Frazier, of South Clanton, was carried to the hospital in Clanton Tuesday night, severely injured by a gun shot wound. The shooting is said to have been done by railroad officers in the freight yards here. Mr. Frazier has been an employee of the railroad here for several years. Further details of the affair were not obtainable. Frazier's condition is reported serious.

ANNUAL REPORT FOR PAST YEAR

Rendered To Stockholders of Central Alabama Hospital

The annual meeting of the stockholders of Central Alabama Hospital was held at the hospital building in Clanton Monday morning.

The meeting was presided over by Dr. V. J. Gragg, president of the institution. In his report of the business operations of the hospital for the past year Dr. Gragg brought to the attention of the stockholders a number of very important and interesting facts and figures.

The basis of his remarks was the report of Mr. Carl Gumpf, auditor of the hospital business for the period of March 1, 1932 to March 1, 1933. The following quotations from the report of the auditor were made and discussed by Dr. Gragg.

"I am glad to report that this period shows a decided improvement over the previous year, and shows a cash gain of $319.75, together with about $900 unpaid accounts for hospital service furnished during the year.

"This splendid showing, in spite of the depression, is brought about by the splendid management of yourself (Dr. Gragg) and the superintendent, Miss Grace Robinson. You have cut expenses to the bone and you have not only paid your running expenses but have paid on old debts and in addition kept your interest payments up and paid $146.48 on your mortgages.

"I am always impressed at each visit, of the great amount of good your institution is doing, and the amount of charity work you have done, amounting to thousands of dollars during the last eight years.

"That your county and city do not give your institution financial assistance in this matter of charity work, which properly comes within their duty, is something that cannot be understood, and is to be deplored.

"Recognizing the great work you are doing, I have gladly contributed my time this year, and I trust that your directors may be able to obtain some kind of appropriation for this most worthy institution."

These words from Mr. Gumpf gave great encouragement to the stockholders who were present. They authorized the board of directors to follow up the suggestion of the auditor in reference to the matter of securing public aid with the charity work done at the hospital.

The detailed report of the auditor showed that during the year the hospital had a cash income of $3,865.54, and had expenses of $3,545.79. The money spent during the year included $159.24 for insurance; $146.48 on mortgage; $367.84 for interest; $25.40 for taxes. In addition to the cash income the auditor reports approximately $900 due the hospital in unpaid accounts for hospital services rendered during the year.

At the meeting Monday the same officers and directors of the hospital were elected to serve again during the coming year. They are as follows: Dr. V. J. Gragg, president; Dr. R. B. McNeill, vice president; W. M. Wyatt, secretary; J. C. Page, treasurer; Directors, Dr. V. J. Gragg, C. Fenn Jones, Dr. C. O. Lawrence, and M. L. White.

It is especially encouraging to note that during the past year the hospital has been able to meet its current operating expenses and to pay on its mortgages, and a small amount of the principal on its mortgage.

FIRST COTTON BLOOM CAME IN LAST THURSDAY

The first 1933 cotton bloom was brought into our office last Thursday, June 15th, by Will Abercrombie, negro, of Highland community, Beat 6, Clanton Route 3. Abercrombie brought the whole stalk in to our office; the stalk was 16 inches high and had nine squares. It was a Beatemall variety and was planted on April 18th.

The first bloom last year was brought in by C. H. Piler, Jr., of Clanton Route 4, on June 21st. Twenty-five years ago the first bloom was brought in on June 13th by J. V. Mims of six miles west of Clanton.

SECOND COTTON BLOOM

Heflin Hoover Lauderdale, age 4 years, brought the second cotton bloom of the season Saturday. The Lauderdale farm is on the Bazz Foshee place three miles south of Clanton.

The third cotton bloom of the season was reported by Mike Pickens on the J. B. Downs place south of Clanton.

Sam Upchurch is at home from medical college to spend his vacation with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Upchurch.

EXCELLENT SINGING HELD AT COLLINS CHAPEL SUNDAY

According to previous announcement, the annual singing was held at Collins Chapel last Sunday, and to say that it was excellent is putting it mildly. Several of the leading singers of the county present expressed themselves as feeling that it was the best singing ever held at that place, and not to be excelled by many anywhere or any time in the county. Besides the Ballard quartet there were singers there from all over the county as well as from Birmingham and Montgomery.

Akins I. Collins presided, and he had a large crowd of directors to select from. Everybody cooperated with the chairman in making the singing enjoyable for all. The Ballard quartet of Birmingham sung some ten or twelve numbers; one solo was rendered in the afternoon by Prof. Ralph D. Grant. One director whom all were glad to see and hear sing again was Prof. Leonard Harris of Birmnigham. Both Prof. W. M. Devaughn and Prof. P. B. Shaw were called upon to direct the second time.

In commenting upon the singing Mr. Akins Collins asked The Union-Banner to say: "We people of Collins Chapel appreciate the help of the singers from other parts of the county and state. We enjoy good singing and we like to see our visiting friends enjoy it. We certainly want to thank Prof. Shaw and the Ballard Quartet of Birmingham, as well as all other singers from both far and near. We invite you all back again next year."

WILL SING AT FRIENDSHIP SATURDAY NIGHT, JUNE 24

There will be a community singing at Friendship Saturday night of this week. It will be a joint singing by people from that community and Jackson Chapel. Singers and lovers of music of adjoining communities are invited to attend.—Virgil Smith, J. D. Collins.

THE BALLARD QUARTET

The singers of Chilton County have for the past week fallen deeply in love with the Ballard quartet of Birmingham. They sang at the courthouse Thursday night of last week and at the Collins Chapel singing last Sunday. Their numbers have generally met with more applause than any bunch that has been here in late years.

The bunch is composed of Mrs. Ballard at the piano; Mr. Carter, soprano; Mrs. Cooper, alto; Mr. Roberts, tenor; and Mr. Ballard, basso. Dr. Florence, also of Birmingham, does not sing, but he always goes with this quartet, and he really enjoys every rendition. Sometimes he fans them while they sing, and sometimes he fans the pianist, but he is always found near by lending them what assistance he can.

The singers and music lovers of Chilton County appreciate the singing and assistance given them by the Ballard quartet. They seem really to be in earnest with their singing. They not only sing in the quartets but help the class on almost every song. This is unusual for a quartet, and the singers of Chilton County appreciate it.

And our write-up of the quartet would not be complete if we did not mention their good friend and our good friend, Prof. P. B. Shaw of Brookside, Birmingham. It was very likely through the interest and efforts of Mr. Shaw that the quartet came here. Mr. Shaw has been at our singing at the courthouse for the last two times and he was at Collins Chapel Sunday. The singers of the county have come to love Mr. Shaw and they appreciate his interest and help in the singings over the county.

THE SINGING AT COURTHOUSE WAS ENJOYED BY MANY FOLKS

The singing held at the courthouse in Clanton last Thursday night was one of the best in a long time. The house was filled, and the spirit for singing was manifest everywhere. Prof. W. M. Devaughn was master of ceremonies, as previously announced, and he managed the large class and crowded audience in a masterful and satisfactory manner.

Prof. P. B. Shaw of Birmingham was present, and had with him, besides his family, the Ballard Quartet of Birmingham. All of these contributed much to the success of the singing. The quartet sung close to a dozen selections. Two duets were sung by Prof. Ralph Grant and Mrs. Lena Mae Hancock; one solo was sung by Prof. Ralph Grant, and the little daughter of Prof. Shaw sung "On the Jericho Road" as a solo. All were well rendered and received with much appreciation from the audience.

ELMORE COUNTY SINGERS MEET SUNDAY, JULY 9TH

Prof. J. B. Hammonds asks The Union-Banner to announce that the Elmore county singing convention will meet at Wetumpka in the high school building the second Sunday in July. The singers of Chilton County have an invitation to attend. The third Sunday in July there will be an all day singing at Liberty church, in Autauga County, on the highway.

SINGINGS THIS MONTH

Then the fourth Sunday the crowd will have to kind of split up and some go to Cane Creek and some to Mars Hill. Both these places will likely have good days with singers and directors to spare.

The announcement has been made of the annual singing at Oak Grove the first Sunday in July. This is an event to which lots of people look forward every year.

SAYS NEW TIRE SHOULD HAVE A NEW TUBE TOO

Local Goodyear Dealer Gives Important Tip About Mileage "Insurance"

Purchase of a new tube with every new tire is one of the best possible forms of mileage insurance.

"To get the greatest possible mileage built into a tire, a new tube is necessary," declares Mr. Diefenderfer, the local Goodyear dealer. "An old tube, even without patches on it, loses air faster than a new one. This causes underinflation and reduces the tire mileage.

"Any tube is certain to stretch with constant use, and when it is crowded into a new tire it will buckle. Buckling results in pinching and chafing, followed by a leak, puncture or blowout—all of which means a perfectly good tire is started on its way to ruin.

"By placing a new tube in the new tire, the motorist is guarding against worries of this sort, and has a feeling of safety. In addition, with the small investment in a new tube he is protecting his larger investment in a new tire, and is assuring himself of receiving the mileage he has every right to expect from the new tire.

"A new tube fits perfectly and lasts the life of the new tire. The element of safety should always be uppermost in the mind of the motorist, but use of old tubes carries the menace of a blowout swerving the car into a big ditch," Dief concluded.

LEAGUE PICNIC

The Epworth League of the Clanton Methodist church had a picnic on Thursday evening, June 15, at Mims's pond, 3 miles north of Clanton on the Lay Dam road. Besides a picnic supper of sandwiches and cakes, the group spent an enjoyable evening swimming. There were about 16 at this event.

OUR WEEKLY SERMON

Bible Subject Discussed by Rev. J. Robert Bean, Clanton, Ala.

"Our Being In The World"

Isaiah 43:7, "Even every one that is called by my name: for I have created him for my glory, I have formed him; yea, I have made him."

It is certain that we had nothing to do with our coming into the world. It is also certain that if we had never come into the world we would never have had any responsibility. Our parents were indirectly responsible for our being, and with our advent into the world we had thrust upon us a part of that responsibility belonging to all of those who came before us.

Our responsibility and human duty to parents, neighbors and all others of the human race are great within themselves, and we fall far short of rightly discharging them. Lots of times we are called upon to go to a friend or neighbor and apologize to them for our failure in the discharge of our obligations to them. For what purpose were we given a being in the world? Was it altogether to make men glad or to make men sorry, or did we come into the world just to satisfy our own lusts and to live in complete defiance of the will of the God that gave us a being in the world?

Some people live and act as though they hated God and were angry with Him for placing them here; others act as though they despised all law and authority, refusing every word of advice that in any way restrained them from following the bent of their own corrupt minds. The saying, "Let George do it," comes directly from the modern tendency of men to shirk all responsibility and to be free with no restraint whatsoever.

A man once said to me that as he had nothing to do with his coming into the world he didn't see how that he could be held responsible by the being that gave him an existence in the world. He afterwards became a Christian under my preaching, and when I saw him last he was still trying to please God with his life, and said that he believed that God was laying a greater responsibility upon him,—that of preaching the gospel. How one's attitude toward God changes when they become a Christian! The true child of God realizes that his whole mission in the world is to glorify God because man was made for God's glory. To glorify God should be the height of a Christian's ambition.

There are so many ways that we may glorify God that I can't here mention them all; so I will just mention two or three. Our first act of glorifying God is to become obedient to His will in accepting His son as our Sovior; for God says in His word that "He willeth not the death of any man but that all should come to repentance."

The next act of glorifying God is to join the church and follow Christ in baptism. We have quite a number of people who have repented of their sins and have taken Christ as their Savior and then stopped right there. I feel that they should continue to glorify God by identifying themselves with His church and follow their Lord in baptism.

A third way to glorify God is to be a regular attendant at church, to engage in the worship and service of God along with other Christians and to make one's self useful in the work of the church. And since Jesus said, "Go ye into all the world and teach all nations," Christians can glorify God by teaching the sinners around them the way of life.

As a rule, Christians are failing to glorify God along this line. So few Christians in this day of hustle and bustle will shoulder the responsibility of an ambassador for Christ. Christians, let's work for the salvation of those around us and by the one act of leading a soul to Christ we have saved a soul from death, made ourselves happy and also glorified God. Jesus said "There is joy in heaven over one sinner that repenteth more than ninety and nine just persons that need no repentance.

TWO-CENT STAMPS TO BE EFFECTIVE ON JULY 1ST

Washington, June 19.—An order restoring the two-cent local rate on first class postage on July 1 was signed today by Postmaster General Farley.

The reduction from the present three-cent rate is being made under a recently enacted law and Farley hopes the volume of business will be increased to a point where work will be provided for thousands of postal employees who otherwise might be furloughed without pay.

On July 1, postage on letters and other first class matter, except postal cards and private mailing or post cards, mailed for local delivery at postoffices having city, village or rural letter carrier service, will be at the rate of two cents for each ounce or fraction thereof. The rate on letters mailed to other cities or villages remains at three cents. The rate for cards remains at one cent.

WHAT NEGROES ARE DOING

Observations

I was out near Maplesville, in New Convert community the other day. I am here to tell you that those people out there have some mighty good looking crops, and they show signs of being well kept.

The farmers in the training school community seem to be just a little ahead of the New Convert farmers. Robert Williams, Will Abercrombie, Archie Hall, Fate Williams, Ralph Oden, Otho McKinney, E. W. Calloway, Rogers Bryant and Horace Brown have some good looking cotton. Earl Brown, Archie Hall, and Otho McKinney have some healthy looking corn.

Late Gardens

This is the month in which to start your early summer and late fall gardens. Most of those seeds planted during early spring should be planted now. Few people attempt to plant late summer gardens because of the difficulty of getting the seeds to come up. The following is a list of some of the seeds that may be planted: Cabbage, collards, rutabagas, white potatoes, lima beans, snap beans, June corn, tendergreens, rape and beets. You may eliminate trouble in having your seeds come up by simply rolling over the seeds in the drill with wheel barrow. This packs the soil and prevents planting too deep. Seed like cabbage, collards, rutabagas, tendergreens and beets may be dropped rather than sowed.

This Radical I. L. D.

Lest you should come in contact with some of the International Labor Defense sympathizers, let me acquaint you with the organization. The I. L. This organization, as you know, handled the defense of the recent Scottsboro case in Decatur, Ala. The I. L. D. has never won a case and in every instance embitters the feeling of our best friends. Guard yourself against such Bolsheviks.

A COMPANY THIRTY YEARS OLD

Last Friday the Ford Motor Company completed 30 years of automobile making.

It is also my fortieth year at the same job. I made my first engine in 1893, and it still runs. This is the engine that won the Selden Patent Suit---which took the motor car out of the exclusive class, and opened the automobile industry to hundreds of manufacturers who started during the last 30 years.

Some of the men who began with me that June day in 1903, are working here yet. All of the principles we laid down then, are still operative; we find that they have great survival value for the future. To date they have produced and sold over 21,000,000 Ford cars.

Although we created the automobile market we have never thought it was good for anyone to monopolize it. We have always believed that before business could be good for one, it must be good for all. Our discoveries and improvements have always been open to other manufacturers without patent restrictions.

Of course, there is one thing we cannot share---everyone must get it for himself---and that is experience. Money could duplicate our buildings and machines, but it cannot duplicate 40 years of experience. And it is experience that makes a motor car.

But the past does not especially concern me; it has all been a preparation for the future. For myself, I feel that I have just been gathering the tools to do something worth while, and that my real task is still ahead.

Great changes are upon the world. False ideas of every kind are vanishing in the general upheaval. Those who built truly on principle will survive---their service will carry over. Business integrity and commodity honor will be fully justified. And newer and better ways of living will appear.

That is the outlook for this young thirty-year old Company of ours.

REVIEW: JESUS OUR LORD AND SAVIOUR

GOLDEN TEXT—Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you. Matt. 28:19, 20.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Our Friend.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Our Saviour and Lord.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Trusting and Obeying Jesus.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Giving Ourselves Unreservedly to Christ.

Two methods are suggested which may be used for the senior and adult classes.

I. A Perplexities Review.

This is suggested by Dr. Amos R. Wells. A perplexity arising from each lesson of the quarter should be assigned to a member of the class a week ahead of time. Suggestions:

April 2. Why is sickness allowed in the world?

April 9. Why is the Christian life often so difficult?

April 16. Why does our Christianity sometimes lack splendor?

April 23. Why do some men grow hard as they grow older?

April 30. How can we give without pauperizing the needy?

May 7. Why must some be masters and others servants?

May 14. What degree of ambition is wise?

May 21. How can we conduct controversy without bitterness?

May 28. What proportion of our income should go to the church?

June 4. How can we make sure of a complete loyalty to Christ?

June 11. How is it possible for us to get rid of sin?

June 18. How can we be certain of living again?

II. The Summary Method.

The aim in the use of this method is to cast up to view the leading facts and deduce from them the leading lesson. The following is suggested:

Lesson for April 2.

Jesus responded to the fervent appeal of the Syrophenician woman to help her demon-possessed daughter. His sympathy is as wide as the race, and his power unlimited.

Lesson for April 9.

Before going to the cross, Jesus retired with his disciples to prepare them for the severe trial through which they were to pass. He instructed them concerning his atoning death, resurrection, and second coming.

Lesson for April 16.

Jesus transfigured. Two men from the upper world were sent to converse with Jesus about his approaching death at Jerusalem, the thing about which the disciples refused to talk.

Lesson for April 23.

The disciples were so steeped in selfishness that they were wrangling over official position while the Lord was facing the cross.

Lesson for April 30.

Jesus as a son was faithful to his parents. In this lesson he sets forth the truth concerning marriage, which is the foundation of the home.

Lesson for May 7.

The supreme purpose of Christ's coming into the world was to die for the salvation of sinners. Through the cross, judgment was passed upon the world, and Satan was cast out.

Lesson for May 14.

Jesus entered Jerusalem and officially presented himself as King to the Jewish nation, according to prophecy. He exercised kingly authority in cursing the fig tree and driving out the money changers.

Lesson for May 21.

The Pharisees, scribes, and Sadducees sought to entrap Jesus so as to hinder his work. The very ones who should have welcomed him sought to destroy him.

Lesson for May 28.

This lesson affords a study of a prophetic outline of events in the interval between Christ's crucifixion and his second coming. According to this outline the present age shows increasing evidence of the near coming of the Lord.

Lesson for June 4.

The black crime of Jesus' betrayal was committed immediately following the beautiful act of Mary's devotion to the Lord (John 12:1).

Lesson for June 11.

The crucifixion of Christ is the grand climax of the lessons for the last six months, and without apprehending its significance, all other lessons are meaningless. Christ saves, not by his ethical teaching, but by his shed blood.

Lesson for June 18.

The resurrection of Christ was announced by an angel, and he was afterward seen by many. Conviction touching the reality of Christ's resurrection is absolutely necessary in order to be an effective witness for him.

The Other Road

"A life of self effort will never reach the place where we shall glorify God; the other road is a road of faith; if you wouldest believe, thou shalt see the glory of God; let him do the thing for us."—Rev. Guy H. King.

St. John's Gospel

"St. John's gospel begins with the son in the bosom of the father (1. 18), and it ends with the sinner in the bosom of the son" (13. 23).—Mr. R. B. Stewart.

Misses Peggy and Sarah Beth Mullins of Mobile are visiting relatives here.

It is of course interesting to look at a list of those who bought stocks in 1929 at less than market prices. But to look at a list of those who in 1929 bought stocks at more than real value you would have to have a "city directory" of all the people in the United States.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

One of the soundest contributions to American economics published in many years is the address "National Ideals and International Idols," delivered to the Wharton Alumni Institute at Philadelphia recently by Wallace B. Donham, Dean of the graduate school of business administration, Harvard University and printed in the Harvard Business Review of April, 1933. Some copies of the speech in printed form have been issued by the Chemical Foundation Inc., in New York City, which has been called to the attention of the writer of this column. The address is comprehensive and convincing and should be read by every serious student of American and international affairs. It destroys many of the fond international illusions which have been built up in our country during the past few dozen years and points the way to solid recovery on a national foundation.

We have had so much bunk about restoring our prosperity through international agreements, the lowering of tariffs and the settling of troubles by a solemn power of delegates that the words of Dean Donham come like the blessed relief of a summer shower, settling the dust of error and clarifying the atmosphere of doubt. To review them would be impossible in one brief column. They form one of those documents that "must be read to be appreciated."

For example, in dealing with the popular fallacy of restoring our prosperity through foreign trade Dean Donham says in part:

"The burst of foreign trade during and after the war was an exotic growth. Until we realize this our national policies will be confused and our international policies inconsistent.

"There are bad times ahead in the international markets, and we shall do Europe a disservice if we secure competitors to secure an increasing share in these markets. We shall not succeed, for Europe must win such a competitive race or be lost.

"No international trade plan that involves our active efforts to expand foreign trade can be sound for Europe, nor can any such plan even if sound for Europe be a safe basis on which to rebuild our industry.

"We should look afresh at our relations to foreign trade. How important has it been?

"Our per cepita exports in 1931 were only 4 per cent of our per capita income and 6 per cent of our per capita production. Shall we allow such small percentages to control our future?

"We have lost less than 4 per cent of our volume in agriculture, mineral and manufactured production through the collapse of foreign trade, but we have lost from 45 per cent to 55 per cent of volume of manufactured goods right in the home market.

"Shall we seek to restore the 4 per cent in the international field and to increase the volume of manufactured goods several fold, or shall we try to regain a far larger volume at home? We cannot do both.

"The fetish of internationalism is indeed worshipped as an idol."

Dean Donham has done his country and the whole world for that matter a distinct service in this address, and other intellectual accomplishments along the same line. It is to be hoped that his voice and his pen will not falter in the effort to install economic truth in the minds of his countrymen.

LETTING THE TARIFF SLEEP—

No one, unless it be one of the handful of over-ardent internationalists, will question the wisdom of President Roosevelt in deciding not to ask Congress for power to negotiate reciprocal tariffs at the London economic conference. There are reasons political and economic for such a decision.

In the first place, the request from Congress of this tariff authority would precipitate the biggest fight in Congress which the administration has yet encountered. The tariff question is no longer a partisan one, and there are many Democratic members of both houses who would be committing hari kari were they suddenly to come out for a low tariff program. Congress has been gradually getting out of hand anyhow and the administration has undoubtedly been anxious to get the session over as quickly as possible even at the sacrifice of one or two planks in the President's reconstruction platform. The House has always been jealous of its tariff making prerogatives and while the majority machine has been able to get pretty much what it wanted, yet in the late days of the session there has been an undoubted disposition on the part of the members of the administration party to rebel and get out of hand. In other words Congress has "been good" just about as long as it can stand it.

From the ecenomic standpoint, there is abundant reason for not staging any tariff fight in Congress. There has been an upturn in business. Whether it is due to sound causes or mere inflation, or both, remains to be seen. But at any rate, it would not do American business any good to be confronted with the uncertainty of long reciprocal tariff negotiations at London. Producers of raw commodities and finished goods, who depend on protection of the home market to keep them going, would not know how to plan for the future if subjected to the uncertainties of tariff negotiation at London.

Although Secretary of State Cordell Hull is an ardent low tariff man and wants lower "tariff barriers" as far as possible, it is said that the American delegation to the world economic congress will not lose any sleep over not having authority to negotiate reciprocal tariff agreements which are the last thing on the calendar. Money stabilization and the elimination of artificial tariff barriers will come first. Unless these things can be agreed on, the conference will break down anyhow and there will be no use to worry about reciprocal tariff agreements. Again, if the European delegates get too enthusiastic about wanting lower tariffs to get into our markets, our delegates can refer them to the fact that any agreements made are subject to action by Congress anyhow. That makes them worth little more than the paper they are written on.

SHE WASN'T TACTFUL—

Secretary Frances Perkins believes, it appears, that a "social revolution will take place if you put shoes on the people of the South." Evidently Miss Frances has more fixed "ideas" than common sense. Already she has brought from a former Governor of Georgia a half satirical, half angry assurance that people below the Mason and Dixon line do sometimes wear shoes, and from Senator Glass a tart remark that when he was a boy "we didn't care a tinker's damn for a boy who wore shoes, and he was regarded as a sissy."

We are afraid Miss Perkins isn't going to be much of a hit in Dixie. After all, the people of this country are not clinical subjects for social workers, and they don't really care to be managed, even by a lady in high position in Washington. If the Secretary of Labor remembers this, she may increase her general usefulness as a public official.—Detroit Free Press.

BUILD NOW

A great many economists and a multitude of newspapers over the country are now wisely pointing to the fact that the summer of 1933 presents one of the most favorable times we have had in a generation for a building program. Building materials are cheap and labor is plentiful. The chances are that in the not distant future materials will be higher and that labor will be less available than it is today.

It is common to hear the expression that we are "over-built" as a nation. That may be true in some sections and with certain types of buildings. But the country is certainly not overbuilt on comfortable homes. There has been little building of this sort for the past two or three years. The process of forming new American families, each of which is entitled to a good home, has gone on just the same. The depression with its consequent loss of employment has induced many families to "double up" that is, two or more families in one house, each renting a portion of it to reduce expenses. In many instances the young married people have gone to live with the old folks. This has been made the apparent surplus of houses greater than is really the case. Vacant houses have "gone down" until many of them will be scarcely habitable when there is a demand for their occupancy. The restoration of normal conditions will inspire families to move into larger quarters, each with a home to itself wherever possible. The youngsters will want to establish a home for themselves away from the old folks, when they can afford it.

This will mean a lot of building and a great deal more repair work. When we get this condition, cost of materials and labor will go up rapidly and we will be in the throes of another building boom. Those who have the capital, and can afford it, ought to take time by the foreclock and commence building as soon as possible. There is no greater security for the future than the ownership of a cozy home.

While one American is preparing to ascend into the stratosphere another is arranging to decend 3,000 feet under the sea. One can always find a job by searching high and low for it.

That new material that stretches and stretches and then resumes its normal shape ought to be fine for budgets.

If any of those Chicago school teachers ever told their pupils that "education is wealth" we'll bet they are ashamed.

Chicago schools are closing two weeks earlier than usual to save money. There will be no objection either on the part of the taxpayers or of the small boys either, now that the swimming season has arrived.

Abandoned Weeks Ago.—Some of the London papers make the quaint, old-fashioned suggestion that President Roosevelt's proposals will not amount to much unless they are approved by Congress. It's hard for foreigners to keep up with political changes in this country.—Washington Post.

MAN IN THE MOON

My Kingdom for Shoes

"I got shoes; you got shoes; all God's chillun got shoes—" you have heard that old song, over and over again, I am sure. I thought everybody had heard it. Not so, though, evidently. Miss Frances Perkins, our illustrious Secretary of Labor, has never heard it, if we take with any degree of seriousness a recent speech of hers. She says: "The South is a great un-tapped market for shoes," and goes on to leave the impression that it is her idea that about three out of four of us—maybe more—do our going and coming on bare tootsies. Of course it was only a nasty slur at the South and her people—either that or a dead give-away of the ignorance of the secretary concerning Southern people. Maybe she will be wanting to send missionaries down here in the "deep, dark South" before long, to show us shoes and how to wear them. Maybe, too, she never heard that this has been called "God's country," and has an idea that it is the devil's half-acre, or something about like that. It goes to show the esteem the high officials hold for the South, which held on so faithfully to put them in their offices. They know they can ridicule the South as much as they wish, and get away with it, too. But you'll never hear of one little slur at the people of those sections which have learned to fight such light ridicule with their ballots. Oh, no! Those people must be catered to, or they might vote "wrong" the next time. Not so with the "good old solid South" though—her people will rally to the "cause" no matter how they are treated. They can take a joke—in fact we have taken quite a bunch of them—and have them all in high positions in the nation's capitol.

The President's Message—Recovery

A few days ago President Roosevelt opened his campaign for recovery. And on this occasion he made a speech which contained many passages of interest, which, if carried out in the manner the president evidently had in mind should work wonders with the low economic condition of the country. It may or may not have been best to give Mr. Roosevelt the dictatorial powers he has asked for—more about that later. Mr. Roosevelt has a few big plans in mind which he thinks —and rightly so—we the —he is trailing evention cost of governm he high We all know th Sunday in pure waste. ton Coun- cut in the wro end. The intentions will be for good, and that if he ever realizes his measures have been unfair, he will correct the error. Second—he is going full strength in trying to get more money into circulation, with the idea that the more money we have floating around, the better chance we all have of getting some of it, and, he has announced that he will keep close watch to see that we do not skid out on thin ice in this matter. Third—the president is taking new moves toward control of prices. If he can "control" prices, he will have accomplished something which has never been successful, though it has been tried many times. This is sure to be one of the hardest phases of his plans to perfect. Fourth—he has taken a firm stand on the war debt question. He places himself firmly between the American taxpayer and the debtor nations, demanding that these nations "come across" or show good proof of their inability to pay, or our money support will be withdrawn. Given loyal support, it may be that all these measures will do the big job.

"So I Took the Fifty Million"

Although we are willing to "try anything once" in the hope of bettering conditions, we also like to be able to see some chance of the plan working before we try it. This brings up the matter of the loan of fifty million dollars to China. There was a song a few years ago which ran: "So I took the fifty thousand dollars, and went and bought a cuckoo for the clock." NNow, what is there to force the Chinese to use the money in buying our goods. They might buy "cuckoos" too. True, there is an understanding that they will use this money to buy American cotton and wheat, but if they should decide to buy elsewhere there is nothing we can do to keep them from it. Can we use force? No! Can we compete in price with other sections of the world? No! It would only be good business for the Chinese to buy where thye can get the most for their money—hard headed business can never blame them for that. Here is an example of the matter. A man comes to a merchant and wants to buy a $2.00 pair of shoes, but has no money; the merchant will not sell on credit, but lends the man $2.00 to buy the shoes with; now the man can buy his shoes from this merchant, or he can go elsewhere, even though it has been agreed that he will buy from his creditor. Why not sell him the shoes on credit, in the first place, and be sure of the sale? Likewise, our government could have bought fifty million dollars worth of cotton and wheat and sold it to the Chinese—then we would have been sure of the sale, and the farmers would have profited. The American government is furnishing the money, any way. The Chinese may recognize the "undestanding" but if they don't, then it is just too bad. We "may" get our money back and we "may" sell fifty million dollars worth of cotton and wheat. But neither is sure.

Cats On the Payroll

That's enough of the deep stuff for one week. Now, let's have a little fun. And here is the first one. In Ulster County courthouse at Belfast, Ireland, there are fifty-two cats—on the payroll. Not long ago, the big courthouse was overrun with mice and rats. All kinds of poisons, etc., were tried, in an effort to rid the place of them, but the pests increased, instead of lessening. In desperation, the officials obtained fifty-two cats and put them in the building. They made quick work of the rats. Now, instead of removing the cats, and giving the rats a chance to come back again, officials have decided to keep them on the job all the time. As their food is paid for out of public funds, the cats are considered "on the payroll" of Ulster County, Ireland.

No Man's Land

There is a "No Man's Land" right here in these United States, believe it or not. Not long ago in a small town in West Virginia an election for mayor and councilmen was held. This was the result: a woman mayor was elected; and four out of the five council positions were filled with women. That made a "No Man's Land" of the place. Maybe somebody will say: "What about the other council position?" Well, that doesn't change the business a bit—it is still "No Man's Land." The other council seat was filled with a man. But, now, just what chance has one lone man of being heard where there are five women, one of which is his superior and the other four are his equals in authority? He hasn't a chance. I'll bet he never attends council meetings. What's the use? If the condition was reversed, with one woman and five men in office, she would still do more of the talking than all the men put together. And, as it is, they will never know he is there. He can't get a word in edgewise. Even if he did, nobody would hear it. He'll be the forgotten man in that town.—Man in the Moon.

A LESSON FROM CAMP KITS—

Latest investigation in the Senate paralleling the Morgan inquiry is that conducted by the Senate committee on military affairs into the cost of the camp kits provided for the workers of the forests. The amount involved is of course "pin money" when compared to the sums which roll glibly from the tongues of the investigators and the witnesses in the Wall Street investigation.

But although it develops that the 200,000 camp kits cost Uncle Sam only a mere $100,000 more than they should, there is a lesson to be learned from this unpleasant incident. Comebody was to blame for buying the outfits at a price higher than was necessary even after warnings had apparently been given by the War Department that the price was too steep. Just why the deal was consummated and who was to blame remains to be developed. Everybody connected with the incident has his own story. There has been a general application of the rules of the good old game of passing the buck.

The lesson to be learned is that governmental bureaucracy remains expensive and inefficient in any and all national administrations regardless of their personal or political composition. Bureaucracy just cannot be efficient, and the more bureaus involved or to be consulted, the greater the inefficiency and the less chance for assessing the blame properly when there is loss.

The remedy lies not in changing the faces in the bureaus but in abolishing the bureaucratic system itself. No matter whether the bureaucrats act in good faith or not, no doubt they generally do, the fact remains that they are generally wasteful and inefficient. Government operation of business and industry just will not work in a democratic government like ours. Yet there are some people foolish enough to believe that prosperity will only return if we have the government managing everything. What an economic calamity this would be can only be gathered from the results we have of bureaucratic operation today. What we need is not government operation of private business but a return to the old ideals of American freedom and the proper realization on the part of business itself of the duties and responsibilities to the nation.

COMMODITIES AND WAGES—

Writers on economic subjects in the United States are already pointing to the fact that prices are rising faster than wages. They show that many commodities have increased one hundred per cent in value while any wage increases have only been seen at the rate of five or ten per cent. Of course it is only fair to point out that percentage increase in wages and raw materials cannot remain fixed and constant. It is true also that when economic recovery starts after a long depression, the rise of commodities starts first, and is followed by wage increases and a gain in retail prices, just as when the depression starts, commodities and securities go down rapidly than wages and the l products.

ery must start with com- extend to industry, labor d retail business. When the purchasing power of the farmer is restored, business is bound to get better, and the gain will come not only in increased wages but in putting idle people back to work.

But, even if it is natural that wage increases follow in the wake of commodity and industrial price improvement, it must be admitted that if the gap becomes too great, or wage increase is too long delayed, recovery will be seriously retarded. This is one of the dangers of inflation. Its first effect is a rise in commodity prices and a stirring of industry, but if it continues too rapidly, or gets out of hand, the man who will suffer first will be the wage worker and the salaried employe.

It is to be hoped, therefore, that the rise in values will be orderly and long sustained rather than rapid, and that wages will be permitted to go up as quickly as it is possible so that the purchasing power of the country will be able to meet rising prices. Otherwise, as a nation, we are apt to run into serious trouble.

We trust there are still a few people trading in stocks and bonds who are old-fashioned enough to realize that one never goes broke taking a profit.

We understand that the old reliable mule is coming back into its own again. But what else would you expect after the sweeping Democratic victory last year?

Maybe the reason those camp kits for the forest workers cost so much was that each outfit contained a silver mounted manicure set.

The number of Democratic names appearing on the Morgan select lists indicates that the Republicans no longer have the exclusive right to the title of the Rich Man's party.

Of course the big nations of Europe want disarmament, providing the other fellow will do it first.

L. A. CALLOWAY DISCUSSES THE R. F. C. WORK

When the president of the United States conceived the idea of appropriating a large sum of money for relief, he was fully aware that it would be accompanied by loss or waste.

The congress was asked to pass laws making this money available to the needy. They were appraised of the truth that much of it would be used in the making, and large amounts would be spent before it could reach the public.

The R. F. C. federal administrators saw in this issuing large loop holes allowing much of it to drip through and not get to the fellow who was wearing the torn overalls. The state distributors, viz: Thad Holt, and Algernon Blair were aware of the fact they could not get this money to the poor without some of it slipping away from them and being wasted. Judge Reynolds facetiously referred to as the "King Fish" and by and large he has done many big things and handled many projects for the county at a saving to the tax payers and citizens of the county. When he was making his fight to secure Chilton County apportionment, knew that no federal funds had ever been used or expended without a heavy leakage, and that it would happen in this case, but was willing to justify himself on this score with the fact that Chilton County was entitled to her quota of this fund, in the face of the fact the other counties of the state was securing large amounts, and on the ground it was not to be returned or paid back later, it being a donation loan. The county commissioners knew then, and do now, that it cannot be handled without a certain amount spilling through and being lost.

The local administrators, Red Cross, Welfare and other R. F. C. administration employes, can see and realize there is bound to be waste and leaks to the spending of this fund. There has always been and will always be more or less presonalities and preferments in handling this kind of funds. It is unavoidable.

The overseers appointed to oversee the hands apportioned to them and to have the work done, know better than any one else that the work cannot be carried on as successful as if it was county or private funds.

It has been reported that the men and ladies employed and so apportioned to the several overseers to do the work look on this money as OURS and that there is no need of putting out to earn our own money. Other reports are to the effect that the hands are working good. The people everywhere look on these funds and have been made to believe by those higher up that this is a gift of relief for those in need, and that all that is required of them is to put in the time and get a ticket to draw on, and if any overseer should get hard boiled and begin calling on the men under them to bear down, you would hear a howl go up to high heaven against it.

They would say these men are under nourished and are not able to do heavy work like those who have had plenty to eat during the past months, so the leak is there and cannot be overlooked. Any man who has stopped to look around will readily see that every government job that has been advanced in this country was a big waste of money. Look to the lock at Wetumpka. How much was wasted there? How about the surveys for sea level elevation posts in this country? How costly were they? Then turn your eyes to the cantonments built by the government during the war. What about the loss of money there? And we can but look in the direction of Mr. McAdoo's railroad administration to see where millions, yes, billions of dollars were thrown to the four winds of the earth. We could name numerous other places where government waste has been seen in box car letters.

Now, in the face of all these facts, it is surprising to us to see a man, whom we regard as one of the best business men in Chilton County or the state, a man of keen financial acumen, and one who has been a close student of nature, and has been one of the few who had the financial vision to weather the depression, come out with a letter criticising some of the officials who are endeavoring to handle the funds in this allotment of relief money to Chilton County. I refer to the letter of my good friend, Mr. H. B. Oliver. Those who are employed in the work of distribution come from both political parties and are both men and women, and I feel that they are doing their best to handle these funds so there will be no more leakage or loss than there is dripping from other funds handled by men of other counties or states, and that they will acquit themselves with valor.

In conclusion may I say I have been closely associated with several of the personnel of this relief administration and I have found them to be equal in business ability to the average citizen of the county and I do not believe other men and women picked from the county at large would be able to do any better work. Some of these officials were elected to their places while others were appointed and as a whole are a representative lot.

COLUMBIANA BEAT CLANTON LAST WEDNESDAY, 12 TO 10

Clanton lost to Columbiana on the latter's ground last Wednesday, June 14, by a score of 12 to 10.

D. Faulkner started on the mound for Columbiana, and although Clanton did not score on him; was pulled at the beginning of the third inning and a lefty, Bird, went in. The Clanton manager immediately pulled nearly all his left handed batters, and Clanton scored eight runs off him before the third inning was over. Then, with right handed hitters in the Clanton line-up, Davis took the mound and held Clanton to two runs for the rest of the game.

C. Easterling was pulled in the third inning, without having given up a run, and Howard took his place for Clanton. He yielded three runs in the fourth and came out for Foshee after he had given up three more runs in a Columbiana rally in the sixth in which seven runs were scored, charging Foshee with the loss. Later, Columbiana got to Foshee and Howard, who had been switched to center field, was recalled to pitch the rest of the game. Extra base hits were plentiful on both sides, as were errors.

CLANTON BEAT NEW CEDRON BY 5 TO 4 ON LAST THURSDAY

Clanton took the New Cedron team on the local field last Thursday and nosed out over them by a score of five to four, although out-hit.

New Cedron wasted seven singles and three doubles on their four markers, while the Clanton team made good use of their six singles to score five runs.

Culp pitched a good game for the visitors, but the Clanton batters were geting their hits when hits meant runs. Nivens did not do as well as his opponent, but three brilliant double plays pulled him out of as many bad holes. One of these, Mullins to Littlejohn to Tiffin, cut a run at the plate, while another, Hayes to Littlejohn to Mullins killed off a runner coming into third base.

In this game, "Gabby" Tiffin, who has been in a batting slump since near the first of the season, came out of it for a perfect day at bat, and driving in two of Clanton's scores.

CLANTON TRIMMED MARBURY 4-2

Clanton came from behind in the eighth inning of the game played on the local field Tuesday afternoon, to beat Marbury four to two.

The two teams battled through six scoreless innings before Marbury took the lead in the seventh, scoring twice on three singles.

After two were out in the eighth, Parrish walked, McCullers booted Glasscock's grounder with a made-to-order put-out in sight, and all hands went safe. Jones singled, scoring Parrish when Mitchell dropped the throw to the plate, and Glasscock went to third. Nivens drew a pass, filling the bases. Howard, batting for Simpson, worked Grant for a pass, and Glasscock strolled home with the tieing run, and leaving the bases filled again. Hayes followed with a high bounder to short which hopped over H. Dennis' head for a double, scoring Jones and Nivens. Littlejohn ended the inning, short to first.

Marbury threatened again in the ninth. Nixon singled; Sykes fanned and M. Dennis was out, Nivens to Littlejohn, as Nixon took second. Price drew a pass, but McCullers went out on strikes.

M. Dennis doubled for Marbury. Nivens tripled and Hayes doubled for Clanton.

The hitting was evenly divided, each team gathering nine. Marbury bobbled four times afield, and Clanton three. Marbury pulled the only double play of the game.

BE CAREFUL ABOUT FIRES WHILE WEATHER IS SO DRY

People over Chilton County and other sections where it is so drf are urged to be carfeul about letting fires get started. Everything is so dry that lots of living vegetation will burn profusely when once started. Folks should exercise care about pastures, woodlands, etc. A fire allowed to get headway now might do untold damage.

Former Chilton Citizen Gives Some Facts of Early History

Akins Mims Tells What This County Was Like Three-Fourths Of A Century Ago

(By Byron Bean)

Mr. W. Akins Mims, of Mobile, Ala., has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Collins of Clanton, Mr. and Mrs. John Harrison Collins of Thorsby, and other relatives in Chilton County for the past several days. Mr. Mims, who is now 83 years old, is a native of Chilton County. He was one of the most prominent members of the Collins Chapel community until 1905, when he moved to Mobile County.

Uncle Akins remembers when Chilton County was a frontier county—when the nearest settlement was often as far as 5 miles. He recalls the time when everyone lived in log cabins, and many of the houses had dirt floors. His first rememberance of dining was in an unfloored room. In his younger days people had no way of travel except by horse-back or on ox carts.

He states that his grandfather moved to Chilton County from South Carolina in a one-ox cart.

He tells how his father used to work for the pony express which carried mail daily from Wetumpka to old Elyton, which is now Birmingham. On this express each rider had a section of 10 miles to cover, and the average speed for the trip was 10 miles per hour, which was then considered fast. With the company furnishing the pony, his father received $8 per month for his services. These private carriers charged 10c for carrying a letter.

Mr. Mims relates that in the 60's and 70's it was nothing uncommon to see men driving great droves of hogs from Tennessee and Kentucky—making about 8 miles a day—to Montgomery to get 5c a pound or less.

Concerning the pioneer days, he speaks of going to Montgomery on an ox wagon to haul cotton, carrying possibly one bale, and taking a whole week to make the trip.

Uncle Akins affirms that he has seen the day when Secretary Perkins' article about the South being an "untapped market for shoes," would have been very timely. He declares that he was married in his first store bought suit of clothes and pair of shoes. In those days the live-at-home arrangement was characteristic of all southern homes.

In speaking of his home county, our visitor reports that the Mobile vicinity has not suffered as greatly as some other places, from the depression, due to several large jobs in that section. An enormous bridge has been constructed across the bay, which gave employment to many. A dry dock, which cost $10,000,000 has been built, and two banks in Mobile have made large additions. The Merchants Bank added 18 stories, making it the tallest building in Mobile.

Uncle Akins says Mobile County is a mighty fine place to live; that there are thousands of acres of level land that is excellent for farming, however, he relates that it isn't cultivated as extensively as is the land in Chilton County. There is little cotton raised for the larger part of the farming consists of trucking products such as watermelons, cantaloupes, Irish potatoes, beans and tomatoes. He tells of one man who has a 350-acre crop of Irish potatoes. Mobile County, he asserts, was once a great cane raising county. In those days 40 acres in a cane field was common, and a production of 600 gallons of syrup to the acre was considered an average yield, although 1,000 gallons per acre has been known.

One great advantage that Mobile County has over Chilton, of which he speaks, is the absence of a great number of pests there, which are found here. The bean beetle, the boll weevil, and the cantaloupe borers are practically unknown.

Uncle Akins is proud of the fact that Mobile County has more paved roads than any other county of the state.

UNION GROVE

Our Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. are not so good as they have been on account of so many all day singings. Almost everyone from here attended the singing at Collins Chapel Sunday.

There will be three big games here and lunch for the players, ice cream and cold drinks. Come and enjoy yourself the 4th at Union Grove.

Miss Jessie Dorminey spent last week in Montgomery with her brother, Mr. J. T. Dorminey.

Miss Guy Eula Collins, of Collins Chapel, spent Sunday night with Misses Artell and Onzell Thrash.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

The divinest thing on earth: A mother, a baby just born, its head on its mother's arm, a loving and happy father leaning over the bed.

"I want a career." That is what the mother of six beautiful children told me one time. "You have three boys and three girls," I replied. "You have a career rearing those wonderful children." I then gave her these figures: "If every married woman should become the mother of six children, she would in six generations be the mother, the grandmother, the great grandmother, etc., of fifty-five thousand, nine hundred and eighty-six human beings. Suppose in each family there should be just one minister, and suppose that minister led one hundred to Jesus; then this normal married woman could go home to heaven and watch multiplied thousands come home to God through the influence of her offspring." The very greatest career God ever offered a woman is the career of being a good mother.

Woman was the last at the cross. She was first at the open tomb. The best thing outside of heaven is a good woman—and the meanest thing outside of hell is a mean woman. It is probably true that the form of death by crucifixion was developed first in the mind of a woman. Woman is the divinest earthly creature of God when she is good. She is the devil's best worker when she is wicked. When there is suffering, a good woman's hand gives the soothing touch; but when woman is wicked and crime is committed, she shares in the worst of cruelty. It was a woman whose voluptous dance sent Herod to hell. And Herod is not the only man who was ever sent to hell by the dance of a woman. I think the highest seats in heaven will be reserved for faithful, trusting Christian women. It may be that the hottest places in hell will be reserved for wicked, God-rejecting women.

OAK GROVE

We had a fine preaching service Saturday night, although our crowd was not so large as it should have been. It was decided to change the date for our revival meeting from the first Sunday in August to the fifth Sunday in July, as that was the date on which Oak Hill church had announced their meeting.

The young people of the community and the singers attended the singing at Collins Chapel Sunday afternoon.

On last Sunday night our B. Y. P. U. was visited by a group of young people from Pleasant Grove, west of Jemison. They gave us a program that was really worth while. This was rendered in three parts. The first part, "The Church that Christ built," by Mr. Maurice Hodgens," the second, "Home Missions," by Miss Gwendolyn Clements, and the third part, "Foreign Missions," by Miss Ada Rascoe. We extend our thanks to these young people and assure them that we appreciated and enjoyed this service. It was rendered in a very appropriate and entertaining manner, and we are sure that Pleasant Grove church has cause to feel proud of these boys and girls. We ask them to come and be with us again at any time convenient for them to do so.

Everybody keep in mind that the first Sunday in July will be our all day singing date. Everyone is invited.

Mr. Harry Martin and sister, Miss Lois Martin, of Birmingham, were visitors here Sunday.

Reese Wyatt of Birmingham was a visitor to Clanton this week.

PROMINENT CITIZEN OF STATE WILL VOTE FOR WARRANT LAW

Birmingham, Ala., June 19.—Donald Comer, in a statement issued today, says that he will cast his ballot on July 18th for the McDaniel Warrant Amendment to validate the floating debt of the State of Alabama. In a letter sent to Dr. Sterling J. Foster, Acting Chairman of the Debt Refunding League, Mr. Comer says that he thinks it is right for him to vote for the amendment and, therefore, he will do so because it is right and for the further reason that he considers the warrants stand for an obligation that the State has incurred. The statement of Mr. Comer, who is credited with being one of Alabama's most thoughtful and public spirited men, as made public by Dr. Foster, is as follows:

"I shall vote for the refunding of the outstanding warrants. I think this is right. These are obligations of the State and have been put in the hands of our citizens for services performed, and they should be validated in such a way as to become negotiable at their real value. I have been out of the State for over a year but I will be here to vote, as outlined above, on this matter."

"INDIA SPEAKS" AT WADESONIAN THEATRE MONDAY AND TUESDAY

Where a thousand golden towers hide a million mortal sins is one of the themes of the great romantic adventure motion picture, "India Speaks," which will be at the Wadesonian Theatre in Clanton Monday and Tuesday, June 26 and 27.

Richard Halliburton, globe trotter, is seen as a daring trespasser in forbidden realms of the orient. The picture reveals how zealots go stone blind from gazing at the sun; how religious fanatics lie in beds of sharpened spikes; how depraved gods sanctify human sin; how living serpents are employed in gruesome stunts; and how romance alternates with horror in the remote reaches of the fabulous Orient.

All this and much more is shown in the most astounding manner when "India Speaks" appears on the screen. It is a treat. Don't miss it.

MRS. MARY ANN PATTERSON

Mrs. Mary Ann Patterson, age 56 years, wife of Mr. Frank Patterson, died Saturday night, June 17, at her home west of Verbena. Burial services were held at Bethel Monday.

The services were conducted by Elder B. F. House, assisted by Revs. Tucker, Joe Howell and Joe Kelley. Mrs. Patterson is survived by her husband, six sons and one daughter.

Through this committee an active campaign will be inaugurated in the county with the purpose of informing the people of important facts in support of these various amendments between now and the election, July 18.

Plan To Destroy 10 Million Acres Of Cotton Outlined

Washington, June 20. — Secretary Wallace today called for the destruction of 10 million acres of growing cotton in a long-limbed experiment to curb production and reduce the potential surplus of the South's big money crop.

The secretary announced that maximum processing taxes — about 4.1 cents a pound on the basis of present price relationships — would be levied, beginning August 1, to finance the program under which growers will be asked to plow up portions of their crop in return for rental benefits payments and the right to obtain options on government-owned cotton.

A campaign will be started in the south next Monday when growers will be asked to sign contracts to rent cotton lands at from $6 an acre up, depending on the average past yields and estimated producton of the land this year.

The farmer can either offer to take an outright cash payment for plowing up portions of his crop or can take a smaller rental and obtain in addition an option on about 2,400,000 bales in an amount equal to the estimated output of the land he retires from production.

These options will be offered him at six cents a pound or nearly three cents below the current market price. He may order these options exercised at any time the difference between the six cents and the price cotton is selling for at the time he sells.

Wallace said operation of the whole plan was contingent upon the degree of cooperation shown by growers during the week's campaign to obtain contracts.

Unless Wallace is certain that he can take a large amount of cotton out of production, equivalent to at least 2,000,000 bales production, he is not prepared to proceed further with the plan.

However, he indicated that he was confident of the success of the campaign and his associates said there was virtually no doubt but that the plan would be employed and that about $100,000,000 would be distributed in rentals to growers in the next few months.

Wallace will use about $54,000,000 from the $200,000,000 made available by the farm act and subsequent laws to acquire full title to cotton on which government loans were made by the farm board and other agencies. He is making settlement for the cotton, which is under the control of the new farm credit administration at the rate of 9½ cents a pound.

Wallace, in whose name the pool cotton will be held, may sell any portion of it he desires up to March 1, 1936, when the law requires that he must complete disposition of it.

While fixing a 2,000,000 male minimum, Wallace hopes to take out of production land capable of producing at least 3,000,000 bales. When the contract offers to be gathered up during the campaign have been brought together, the official decision will be made as to which shall be accepted.

The campaign will be handled by extension workers and other agricultural officials and will involve contact with nearly 2,000,000 cotton producers. The drive will be conducted on a county basis with an effort made to distribute rental payments as widely as possible in order to make the moneys serve the purpose of widespread business stimulation.

Yields vary widely in cotton, the average production being about 1-3 of a bale to the acre. By offering rentals on the basis of yield, Wallace will be able to avoid removing from production marginal lands or those with the poorest yield which might make a big showing in terms of acreage but would not be substantial in reducing the potential harvest.

Wallace said the cost of the program would depend on the manner in which producers choose to offer their cotton acreage to the government under one of the two plans devised for the purpose.

The rate of the processing tax will be announced shortly before August 1, and after Wallace has received and accepted enough offers from farmers to take a substantial amount of cotton lands out of production.

The rate under the law, when levied at its maximum as Wallace said he intended to do, is the difference between the current average farm price and the "parity" price based on pre-war average farm prices.

The pre-war average is about 12½ cents and the average farm price for cotton during the first part of June was 4.1 cents less than that, which would make the latter sum the amount of the tax, if it went into effect at once.

In cases where the grower agrees to take an option at six cents a pound the rental payment per acre will be based on these yields:

One hundred to 124 pounds of lint cotton per acre, $6; 125 to 149 pounds $7; 150 to 174 pounds, $8; 175 to 224 pounds, $10; 225 to 274 pounds, $11; 275 and upwards, $12.

In cases where the grower does not care for an option he may elect to receive a cash payment in full for plowing up a portion of his crop.

For each acre yielding from 100 to 124 pounds, the payment will be $7; from 125 to 149 pounds, $9; 150 to 174 pounds, $11; 175 to 224 pounds, $14. and 275 pounds and upwards, $20.

The voluntary agreements or contracts to be signed by producers will constitute an irrovocable offer for a specified period of time during which Wallace may accept or reject it.

Administrators feel that offers to retire up to 20,000,000 acres may be obtained from growers and that this will make possible great selectivity in accepting offers and assure Wallace that a large portion of cotton of the potential harvest this year will be eliminated.—Roy F. Hendrickson, in Montgomery Advertiser.

STATE OF ALABAMA
A PROCLAMATION
By The GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama at its last extraordinary session ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which proposed amendment is herein set out, and ordered that the election be held on the first Tuesday after the expiration of three months from and after the final adjournment of the said session of the Legislature at which the amendment was proposed, and

WHEREAS, the said session of the Legislature at which the said amendment was proposed finally adjourned on Friday, April 14, 1933, and the first Tuesday after three months from and after the said final adjournment of the said session of the Legislature is Tuesday, July 18, 1933, and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, is required by law to be given by a proclamation of the Governor;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, B. M. Miller, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday the 18th day of July, 1933, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama in the manner and form required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:—

ARTICLE XXII. The Legislature shall have the power to levy and collect taxes for State purposes on net incomes from whatever source derived within this State, including the incomes derived from salaries, fees and compensation paid from the State, County, Municipality, and any agency or creature thereof, for the calendar year, 1933, and thereafter and to designate and define the incomes to be taxed and to fix the rates of taxes provided that the rate shall not exceed 5 per cent nor 3 per cent on corporations. Income shall not be deemed property for purposes of ad valorem taxes. From net income an exemption of not less than Fifteen Hundred Dollars ($1500.00) shall be allowed to unmarried persons and an exemption of not less than Three Thousand Dollars ($3000.00) shall be allowed to the head of a family, provided that only one exemption shall be allowed to husband and wife where they are living together and make separate returns for income tax. An exemption of not less than Three Hundred Dollars ($300.00) shall be allowed for each dependent member of the family of an income tax payer under the age of 18 years. The Legislature shall reduce the ad valorem tax from time to time when and to such an amount as the revenue derived from the income tax will justify. In the event the Legislature levies an income tax, such tax must be levied upon the salaries, incomes, fees, or other Compensation of State, County and Municipal Officers and employees, on the same basis as such income taxes are levied upon other persons. All income derived from such tax shall be held in trust for the payment of the floating debt of Alabama until all debts due on Oct. 1st, 1932, are paid and thereafter used exclusively for the reduction of State ad valorem taxes.

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks next preceding the 18th day of July, 1933, in each County of the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said County.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this the 3rd day of May, 1933.

B. M. MILLER,
Governor.

What Makes a Safe Tire? ...I KNOW!

ARE you willing to risk your life on advertising statements claiming blowout-proof and unblowable tires? One manufacturer gives as the reason for claiming blowout-proof tires—the use of one ply of another color—another, a patented "no breaker" construction—a mail order house, high stretch "elastic" cords, etc., etc. Actually the fundamental cause of a tire blowout is the flexing of the tire which causes friction of the fibers in the cord, resulting in heat and causing the rubber to soften and the cords to deteriorate.

There is a reason why Firestone Tires have won the 500-mile Indianapolis race for 14 consecutive years, the most gruelling tire test. The reason is the Firestone patented extra process of Gum-Dipping which saturates every fiber and insulates every cord with pure rubber —which gives strength to the cords and prevents friction and heat in the fibers. This year 42 drivers in this race equipped their cars with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires and not a single driver had any tire trouble.

Race drivers know why Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires are safer and not subject to blowout and will not risk their lives on ordinary tires. Your life and the lives of your family are often in danger at the high road speeds of today and you should not take greater risks than the race drivers who make sure that they have the best and safest tires they can buy—Firestone. Come in today. We will give you a liberal trade-in allowance for your old tires on new Firestone High Speed Tires—the safest tires in the world

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

NATURAL TREND NO ANSWER TO SURPLUS, SAYS AUBURN

Auburn, Ala., June 17.—Crop and market trends for 1933 indicate that nautral factors alone will not reduce agricultural production in the United States this year enough to dispose of the burdensome surpluses of farm products.

The American cotton carryover this year is two and a half to three times normal, approximately thirteen million bales—just about what the world annual consumption of Americon cotton has averaged during the last three years. The average production of American cotton during the last five years has been about 14,000,000 bales. Any cotton raised this year would be added to a carryover already equal to a year's consumption.

The hog surplus, judging from current trends in production and exports, is likely to be greater in the coming season, because there are more hogs in this country and because the domestic market is being forced, by decreasing export demand, to consume a greater proportion of the total pork produced in this country.

The new crop of wheat is now generally expected to be smaller than last year's, in view of the winter wheat acreage that has been abandoned, but it probably will be sufficient to cover current domestic consumption. If there are no material changes in the export demand for American wheat, and the coming year's shipments are no larger than those of this year, or even smaller, a carryover of two and a half times the normal volume is likely to plague the wheat belt in 1934.

In spite of the fact that the 1933 winter wheat crop is forecast as being 124,666,000 bushels smaller than the 1932 crop, it is unlikely that the present wheat surplus will be overcome as a result. The United States wheat carryover at the beginning of the present marketing year was approximately 363,000,000 bushels. The normal carryover is in the neighborhood of 125,000,000 bushels.

BRIEF FARM ITEMS

Power and labor constitute 60 per cent of the total costs in farm production.

Farmers who do not wish to pay high prices for mules should take steps to produce and grow their own.

Plant collards, snap beans, corn, and other vegetables, and set tomato plants now in order to have fresh vegetables in late summer and fall.

Timber is an essential part of the equipment of every farm, and any rational farm program must include the growing of timber for home use with a surplus for sale.

TALLAPOOSA FARMERS GET CASH FROM CREAM SHIPPED

Alexander City, Ala., June 17.—Many farmers of west Tallapoosa county are realizing a nice income from the sale of cream.

Sales are made possible by a cream truck which runs from Alexander City to Wadley. When this truck was first started five years ago only 10 farmers sent cream on the first trip, but now 172 farmers are participating. The truck was started as a result of the leadership of S. M. Day, county agent, who is making a special effort to increase the home production of feed. He reports that 6 trench silos have recently been dug in the county.

MILK STOOL MUSINGS
By W. H. Eaton, Auburn

Modern athletes and gladiators have endorsed milk highly. Jack Dempsey drank four glasses of milk after each training. Gene Tunney was also a great believer in milk.

Admiral Byrd took large supplies of both dried and condensed milk with him on his expedition to the antarctic.

In the Czechoslovakian army milk replaced black coffee, which was once a part of the regular ration.

Science agrees that the child should consume one quart of milk every day and the adult at least a pint.

FORESTRY MAIL HEAVY

Montgomery, Ala., June 20.—Handling the heavy influx of mail incidental to the inauguration of President Roosevelt's reforestation program in Alabama is one of the major administrative talks of the state commission of forestry. "Never before in the history of the department has there been such a mass of correspondence material," says Colonel Page S. Bunker, state forester. "Hundreds of letters are arriving daily, and the clerical staff is hard pressed even to record and file the numerous communications."

Most of the letters received, according to Colonel Bunker, are applications for employment, recommendations filed in behalf of applicants, requests for the establishment of forestry camps in various parts of the state, applications for the service of the forestry crews on particular lands, requests for information by prospective contractors, questionnaires from authors seeking material for newspaper and magazine articles, suggestions as to special lines of work to be undertaken and sales and advertising letters, all in addition to the regular official correspondence necessitated by the actual carrying on of the work. Numerous public spirited persons have written tendering assistance and cooperation in various lines.

Naturally, the official correspondence incidental to the actual carrying on of the work has the first claim upon the headquarters facilities of the department. This part of the correspondence is in itself very heavy and leaves but little opportunity to handle the remainder. As a result, hundreds of letters remain temporarily unanswered and even unacknowledged. It is hoped that as soon as all of the camps are in routine operation the headquarters staff of the department will be able to give these communications appropriate consideration and reply.

Prof. J. Leonard Harris of Birmingham attended the singing at Collins Chapel last Sunday. His many friends in the county were pleased to see Mr. Harris again.

CONTROL MEASURES FOR GARDEN PESTS

Auburn, Ala., June 17.—The Mexican bean beetle and Harlequin cabbage bug are two serious pests of the home gardener at this season, and control measures are given by Julian Brown, extension horticulturist of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

"For the Mexican bean beetle dust with one part (by weight) of magnesium arsenate to 4 parts (by weight) of hydrated lime or flour, or spray with 2 tablespoonfuls of magnesium arsenate in 3 gallons of water," he said. "These materials should be applied to the underside of the leaves every week or 10 days.

"The Harlequin cabbage bug, commonly known as the fire bug, is a sucking insect and feeds primarily on the greens. It cannot be poisoned. The crops on which it feeds should be destroyed as soon as they are of no further value. If the insects are on crops in large numbers after the harvest season, spray with kerosene oil and plow the crops under. This will help prevent damage in the fall garden."

Miss Gertrude Jones of near Clanton has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Jones of Clanton during the past week.

W. S. Clark of Mt. Creek was in Clanton Monday attending the hospital stockholders meeting.

AGRICULTURE
By Clifford M. Manning

Cross Pollination

Insects

The number of different species of insects has been estimated at 600,000, and the loss of various crops at from 5 to 10 per cent of their total value, thus making the losses from insects total nearly two billion of dollars, without including direct losses to humans from disease nor costs in controlling insects. It is estimated that about half of our worst insect pests have been imported into this country, most of them coming from Europe. From the standpoint of farm crops, some of the most important pests brought in accidentally, are the European Corn Borer, the Hessian Fly, the cotton boll weevil, the pink boll worm, the sugar cane borer, the alfalfa weevil, the pea weevil, and the angoumois grain moth.

In some cases insects, in addition to causing direct loss, may carry diseases to plants; the ophids carry mosaic to the potato, sugar cane and tobacco; the leaf hoppers carry the curly leaf of beets and the Colorado potato beetles carry the wilt of the potato.

Nearly every day during the early seasons of the year a new kind of insect comes to the farmer as an enemy, and most of them bring along a disease to give to his plants for him to fight in order that the plants will produce. Still the prices of food that the farmer raises decreases nearly every day, because of the competition of the farmers and the complaint of the customers.

Next week's topic will be, "Controling Insects."

FARM AND GARDEN QUERY BOX
(By K. C. Davis, Knapp School of Country Life, Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn.)

Q. Will you please suggest a good way of colonizing or otherwise handling young pullets during the summer time?

A. Fix up a shed or improvised shelter, enclosing it with netting, in a field, or move one of the portable houses out to a field close in so marauders cannot enter easily. Fix it so that the pullets can go in and out through a small opening. Spray it thoroughly inside with oil and have the roosts in good condition. Then put in some dry mash that will supply them with feed at all times when needed. Let them have ample range in the field all summer to collect waste grain, insects and weed seeds and have plenty of pasture. Be sure that a good supply of water is kept handy by fixing a barrel of water which can drip steadily into a drinking vessel.

Q. What are the most necessary elements in the successful feeding of young pigs to make them grow rapidly?

A. While they are still running with their mother be sure to keep them on pasture and treat them all once for lice and for intestinal worms. For lice use oil on them as you would for chickens. For worms put some tobacco dust in their feed or give them each a dose of worm seed. Make a small pen where the pigs can enter and get a good supply of feed every day but which their mother cannot take away from them. Change them on to fresh pasture every few weeks. After weaning, give them plenty of wet mash such as ground corn meal, mixed with a little tankage, and let them have good legume pasture. About six weeks after weaning, begin to feed them with dry grain, such as corn, in addition to wet mash. Let the wet mash have some skim milk or buttermilk in it, if possible, particularly when tankage is not supplied. Be sure that the pigs have an ample supply of mineral matter such as coal ashes, salt, lime, iron, sulphate and sulphur. Mix these together where the pigs can have constant access to them.

BORERS ARE DAMAGING OUR ALABAMA CORN CROP

Corn borers, believed to be the larger corn stalk-borer and not the European corn borer, are doing considerable damage to corn over south and central Alabama.

Commissioner of Agriculture Seth P. Storrs has sent several stalks of corn to Lee A. Strong, Chief of the bureau of plant quarantine, Washington, for definite information of the caterpillar. He has also sent stalks to W. A. Ruffin, entomologist, Auburn.

Available information at the agricultural department shows that throughout the south from Maryland to Louisiana and westward to Kansas City more or less serious injury is done by large white, brown-spotted caterpillars which bore into the stalks and so weakens the plants that they are readily broken over by the wind. Where the pest is abundant a loss of from 25 to 50 per cent of the crop often results.

The young larva bores into the stalk, often destroying the bud and then at or near the ground where it burrows upward in the pith, seldom damaging the stalk above the third joint. As the borers grow they become quite active and frequently leave and re-enter the stalk, thus making several holes.

In contrast the European corn borers tunnel through all parts of the corn plant and destroy or severely injure the ears and stalks.

Rotations of crops and burning the old stalks and butts in the fall are the best control methods.

F. C. Gibson and Hoyt Freeman of Beat 14 were here Saturday.

ALABAMA SHIPS NURSERY STOCK ALL OVER WORLD

Alabama ships about 300 carloads of nursery stock into all countries of the world each year.

This is reported by B. P. Livingston, chief of the division of plant industry of the state department of agriculture, who declares that Madison County probably has the largest nursery in the entire United States and one of the largest in the world. There is more nursery stock in Madison County than in any other county in the south, he said.

Other leading Alabama counties in nursery stock production are Mobile, Lee, Covington, Jefferson, Cullman and Baldwin.

Commissioner of Agriculture Seth P. Storrs, reports that all nursery stock shipped in Alabama or to other states and nations must first be inspected and certified by the department of agriculture.

STANDARD OIL LABORATORIES DEVELOP NEW MOTOR-FUEL

Will be offered motorists on Saturday

Motorists throughout the South will be interested in the announcement by W. E. Smith, President of the Standard Oil Company Incorporated in Kentucky, at Louisville, that a brand-new type of motor fuel will be sold by Standard Oil Company dealers and service stations effective Saturday of this week.

This new motor fuel, which will be colored orange and marketed under the well known name of Crown Standard Gasoline, was developed in the Standard Oil Laboratories. It will be a more powerful fuel, with actual, added anti-knock properties, but will be sold at no additional cost.

In discussing this new product, Mr. Smith states: "We feel that the public is tired of the exaggerated claims that are making gasoline advertising so hard to believe. We make no extravagant claims for this new Crown Standard Gasoline. We merely state that it is a better fuel at regular price than has yet been made for the modern motor. We stand squarely back of Crown Standard Gasoline as such a fuel, and guarantee its smoother, more powerful performance. We say this fully aware of our responsibility to our many customers in making such a public statement."

HOPE TO BEGIN GAS LINE WORK

Prospective Gas Users Are Being Solicited To Sign Petition This Week

Within ninety days a natural gas line will be under construction to Clanton from Coosada, in Elmore County, which will give work to about 300 men, is the hope expressed by Mr. Thomas J. Arledge, promoter of the line.

Mr. Arledge has been in Clanton for the past several days drawing maps and making plans preparatory to the construction of the line. He states that he is thoroughly satisfied with the progress that has been made. His plans are that this line shall furnish all the towns and villages along the way between Coosada and Clanton and that the line shall follow as near as possible the old Montgomery highway. After the line reaches Clanton it is to go up the Birmingham highway about ½ mile above Watt Willis's Tourist camp, out toward Concord to Mr. E. H. Mims's place, out the Lay Dam road to Mr. W. T. Bean's place and down on the Selma highway to Mr. Wiley Gray's place.

In regard to the gas Mr. Arledge states that it will come to the consumer through a pipe in the form of air and that there will be no smoke, smell, soot or ashes. Furthermore, he relates that the heat will be instantaneous for both cooking and heating.

With reference to the figures used by the Alabama Public Service Commission for Montgomery and Selma, Mr. Arledge estimates that the average consumption per residence for Clanton for both cooking and heating would be about 34 thousand cubic ft. per year, which would amount to a cost of about $42 a year. The promoter asserts that for the summer months the average monthly charge for cooking would hardly ever exceed $1.50 per month. He states that the charge for winter months for an ordinary residence of 7 rooms for both heating and cooking should never exceed the maximum of $7.50 per month.

REYNOLDS REPLY TO H. B. OLIVER

Probate Judge Answers Questions About Economy In R. F. C. Work

Editor Union-Banner:

There appeared an article in your paper last week signed by Mr. H. B. Oliver of Verbena, Alabama, some parts of which I doubt if I fully understand, but I will endeavor to answer and give the best information possible.

It is always a pleasure for me to explain any of my official acts to the taxpayers of the county and any other matters with which I am connected as I believe that the people are entitled to be informed about every public matter and to know where every dollar of public money is spent or invested for him.

Mr. Oliver says: "It is rumored that Judge Reynolds's Executive Committee of the R. F. C. met for the purpose of cutting overhead expenses, and did cut some employees and cut down the salaries of others, but not all." The Executive Committee of the R. F. C. funds is composed of Mr. C. Fenn Jones, Charlie Duke and myself. The committee had a meeting and discontinued the services of two of the four social workers at a salary of $100 per month each and also discontinued one clerk at a salary of $40 per month. This was a savings to the county of $240 per month. The committee were of the opinion that two social workers and one clerk could do the work and that the $240 per month would help to relieve the distressed situation in the county.

Now, as to the $85.00 and $50.00 per month men Mr. Oliver referred to, I presume Mr. Oliver had in mind as the $85.00 man, Mr. H. A. Harris, who draws this amount as the clearing officer of the R. F. C. Funds and the $50.00 per month man as Irving P. Kennedy, who was elected clerk in road matters by the court of County Commissioners last February.

The Executive Committee has nothing to do with fixing these salaries or reducing them. Both Mr. Harris and Mr. Kennedy's salaries were fixed and paid by the Court of County Commissioners, and they alone have the rgiht to reduce them.

As Judge of Probate, it is my duty to preside over and record the proceedings of the Court of County Commisisoners, and I am as much in the dark as to the duties and services rendered to the taxpayers of Chilton County by Mr. Kennedy for the $50.00 which he draws from the treasury each month as any taxpayer in the county. The only duty I hear of him performing is that he checks lumber for the county, for which Mr. Dewey Rockett was paid the sum of $5 per month before Mr. Kennedy was elected clerk.

In another paragraph of Mr. Oliver's letter he say, "Another rumor is that Judge Reynolds has diverted all the road funds to drainage of the Clanton swamps." I want to make it plain that I have had nothing to do with and have not suggested any project for the county to engage in since the four commissioners took charge early in the year, and I here disclaim all responsibility for the success or failure of any such projects. If the Commissioners have been successful in the handling of county affairs, the credit is theirs. If there is criticism then the four commissioners and their advisors around the courthouse should assume the blame. When the two new commissioners took office in January they seemed to have but two purposes in view. The first was to get rid of me and all my friends at any cost and the second was to take the taxpayers money and build up a political machine for the benefit of themselves and a few others around the courthouse, regardless of the costs to the taxpayers of the county.

I do not approve the way the commissioners have spent the county's money this year. I request all parties interested to read the treasurer's report which will be published July 1st in the Union-Banner and you can see for yourselves how the money has been spent.

If there is any further information that anyone of Chilton County wants to know, if they will request the same, I will be glad to furnish them with the same.—Respectfully, L. H. Reynolds, Judge of Probate.

P.S.—Since writing the above article the commissioners court have discontinued the services of the other two social workers and Mr. H. A. Harris until further orders of the court.

The scout executive announces that the second session of the Council camping program will open July 2nd at the island site near Clanton, Alabama with between forty and fifty campers. The first session is opening this week at the old camp site Camp Spring Villa. Sixty scouters are there from Alexander City, Opelika, Auburn and sourrounding cities. John Coley, first eagle scout of Alexander City, is serving as assistant camp director.

Sea scouts from Opelika, Tallassee, Alexander City, and Selma will be among those campers at Treasure Island in July. A special incentive for these sea scouts have been given as the best camper will be chosen as this council's representative on the Pensacola cruise the later part of July with all expenses paid. Reservations number 1 on this cruise was made by this central Alabama Area Council by the executive early in April.

Mate R. W. Worthy of the Alexander City sea scouts will superintend the building of a ten foot row boat by the sea scouts at the local camp. Clanton scouts with those of Ashland and Selma, not sea scouts, will also have a special course in that of marksmanship so that they may earn their marksmanship merit badge during the encampment. Messrs. Smith and Inzer, local leaders of scout troop 47 as well as Messrs. Lakeman and Deal of Troop 51 and Mr. Sharp of the Mitchell Dam Troop all will attend this camping session and assist the scout executive who serves as camp director in running the camp.

This year the campers pay less than last year and in some cases food stuff will be taken in lieu of cash. John Hollis, as camping chairman, will have other statements shortly.

THORSBY PLANS FOR JULY FOURTH

Prizes Will Be Given Away by Parent-Teachers Association, Sponsors of the Day's Program

Plans for the Fourth of July celebration at Thorsby are fast taking on concrete form. Already a number of interesting features have been placed on the program, and the committees are busy arranging for other things to entertain the crowds of people that are expected to attend.

The latest announcement is that a prize will be given to the resident of Thorsby who has the most beautifully decorated automobile. Also the boy or girl of the town who has the prettiest decorated bicycle will get a prize. As stated last week, there will be a parade at 10 o'clock, followed by a speech by Dr. O. C. Carmichael of Montevallo. The ladies will have plenty of cold drinks, sandwiches and lunches for sale all times of the day.

The people of Chilton County have a cordial invitation to come to Thorsby and spend the Fourth.

DR. GRAGG SAYS

debt and run the state treasury over with revenue. In the first place, it will not do all this; and, in the second place, if it did do these things, the money must come from somewhere and 90 per cent of that somewhere will be the pocket of some poor tax-ridden, hard working man whose family is going hungry and needs clothing and who owes honest debts that are due and unpaid.

Where does most of the money go that is spent for beer? Let's say that it will sell for fifteen cents per bottle, which must be a reasonable estimate, for they tell me they charge more than that for near beer.

It costs less than two cents a bottle to make it; and let's estimate the revenue would be three cents per bottle. That leaves a ten cents per bottle for Mr. Schlitz, Blatz, Budweiser and Co. So you don't wonder at the brewer fighting for repeal. It means millions paid in by the poor tax-ridden common people and most of the benefit accruing therefrom to the already rich brewer.

The biggest argument we hear for repeal is that prohibition does not prohibit. Well, it is true that some liquor is sold, but not nearly so much as will be if its sale is legalized.

Certainly, if and when we pass a law to legalize the sale of intoxicants, we have placed the stamp of our approval on such intoxicants and our boys and girls will look at it that way.

They say do away with prohibition laws because some liquor is still sold regardless of such law. If that argument is sound, then why not do away with all law against murder, for some murder is committed still?

Why not take the law against rape off our statutes; for, so far, we have failed to punish the Scottsboro negroes for one of the most flagrant violations of its kind ever known in this state?

Why not cast aside all laws against embezzlement, robbery, deceit, fraud and misrepresentation in general? For men in high places have talked about economy, lower taxes and better schools when seeking office, but when and after they get in office begin at once to unnecessarily squander money, raise taxes, and destroy schools by diverting school funds, and now have the nerve to come back and ask you to vote for more to be handled likewise.

Don't fail to go out and vote and think. Think several times before you vote. Use your head and reason this matter well.

Think that there are poor people who have paid in tax money in the past that are now suffering for the necessities of life.

Think that there are doctors in your county who have been forced to curtail much needed charity work because of high taxes on gas, cars and drugs. Think that some good farmers, honest men and true, have lost their homes because they could not keep up the tax and earn a living for themselves and family. Think that many others are on the verge of going the same way if the same causes still keep up. Think that your children have been forced out of school because the school funds have been taken from them by men that are now in office and who are asking you to vote more taxes. I say think of this, and then vote your honest convictions.—Dr. V. J. GRAGG.

ALL DENOMINATIONS URGED TO ATTEND COURTHOUSE REVIVAL

The following statement and announcements are made by Revs. Caswell and Marty, who are engaged in a 10-days revival at the courthouse:

We have been made to realize the need of cooperation among the Christian workers in Clanton. Probably we did not make it plain enough last week that we desired the presence of all the ministers, their congregations and friends in order to make this meeting a blessing to all.

The purpose of the meeting is not to build denomination, but for the salvation of lost souls. The meeting has been well attended and there has been a good response to the messages on repentance and faith in God.

We hope you will be with us to enjoy the closing messages in this campaign for souls. Sermon subjects are as follows: Thursday, "Signs," Friday, "Live as you Please," Saturday, "A Funeral Service," is to be preached for the two worst men in town. Sunday closing service, an illustrated message on the ten commandments. Don't miss these meetings.

DR. GRAGG NAMED DRY CANDIDATE

Nominated By Anti - Repeal Meeting Held Here On Last Saturday

Dr. V. J. Gragg was nominated by the anti-repeal forces of Chilton County as a delegate to the Alabama State Convention cencerning the repeal of the 18th amendment at a meeting in Clanton on Saturday, June 24 at 2:00 p.m.

The principal speaker of the occasion was Dr. L. E. Barton, secretery of the State Dry organization, who has been working without pay in interest of Prohibition for the last three months.

Dr. Barton cites that the 18th amendment was a result of a long process to get rid of the liquor traffic and that it became an amendment by the vote of a greater majority of the states than was the case of any other amendment. The speaker declared that wet organizations in the country are demanding the return of the saloons in direct violation of two clauses in the Democratic presidential platform, which stated that the saloon should not return. He also acclaims that the wets have ignored the clause in the platform which said that dry territory must be protected.

"All who can remember the open saloon know that it was the most sordid, wicked, and infernal institution ever devised by man or devil," emphasized Dr. Barton. The speaker denied that the recent presidential election was a mandate from the people on the liquor question as the wets assert, but rather he declares that it was a mandate solely on economic grounds. Dr. Barton propounded various arguments to show that the prohibition amendment has not been a failure as the wets claim. Further, the speaker discussed the evils of whiskey as a poison to the numerous systems of the human body.

It is estimated that there were about 75 at the meeting and various ones of this number spoke their views in regard to the evils of whiskey and the need of maintaining the 18th amendment.

During this week and from now until the election the drys of Chilton County plan to launch a strenuous campaign throughout the county in defense of the 18th amendment. Speakings are to be held at various points in the county. These will be announced later.

Dr. S. J. Ezell was chairman of the meeting Saturday in the absence of the permanent chairman, and Rev. R. P. Cochran was secretery of the meeting.

Judge Reynolds advises that his office has received pension checks for balance due Confederate pensioners in Chilton County for the April quarter. Warrants will be delivered from the Probate office on Saturday of this week, July 1st.

SCOUT CAMP TO START JULY 6TH

Location At Treasure Island In Paint Creek Above Lay Dam

Thursday morning, July 6th, has been definitely set by John Hollis, chairman of camping for Boy Scouts of Clanton District, as the opening date for the second camp under directions of John J. Sigwald, scout executive.

On this date over 40 scouts are expected to encamp at Treasure Island, the picturesque 60-acre site on Paint Creek, above Lay Dam. This setting for the scout camp should bring back to the minds of the boys many enchanting stories of pirate ships and loads of golden treasures.

The camp director, himself impressed by the desirable setting for such adventures, has arranged for the scouts in camp a real treat in the form of a treasure hunt.

Local scouts should apply at once to their scoutmaster for the camp application blank. Send it in post haste to scout council headquarters at Opelika. Mr. Sigwald will then enter your name on the preferred list.

The executive assures all local friends of scouting that all food, supplies, etc., needed for the camp, will be purchased in Clanton. Thursdays and Sundays will be visitors days at camp. Every scout in the Clanton territory should by all means enlist for Treasure Island July 6th.

UNITY YOUNG PEOPLE URGED TO ATTEND W. M. U. INSTITUTE

The annual Unity-Chilton W. M. U. Institute will be held at the Clanton Baptist Church on July 11, 12, and 13. A fine program has been planned and the best speakers and teachers available have been secured. Dr. Beagle, of the Home Mission Board who has worked so many years with the Indians, will be among those who will help to make the Institute the very best. Do not miss his messages.

Classes will be arranged for each Young People's organization and a live teacher present. I am urging all Unity Baptist boys and girls to attend, and especially the members of our organizations.

Plan to be there every day. Do not miss so great an opportunity to get information, aspiration and inspration. There will be fun galore. It will fill your soul with joy.

Young people, let us meet the 100 per cent goal on reports this quarter. The W. M. S.'s reported 100 per cent last time; surely we can do as well! Send them in after the last June meeting or bring them to the Institute.—Lydia Williams, Young People's Leader.

DOCTOR ROBINSON ILL

Mr. J. M. Robinson, co-owner of Robinson Machine Shop, Clanton has been very ill at his home in Clanton for the past week. Mr. Robinson, it is reported, is suffering from heart trouble, which his doctor states is a result of a bad liver. He is fast improving, and it is hoped that he will be able to return to his work in a few days.

LUTHER LITTLE BECOMES OUR SUPERINTENDENT SATURDAY

By virtue of his success in the recent election in Chilton County, Prof. Luther E. Little will take charge of the duties of Superintendent of Education of Chilton County on next Saturday, July 1st. He will succeed B. Lawrence, who has been holding this office for the past eight years through appointment of the county board of education.

Mr. Little's election was under the provisions of a local bill enacted in the last special session of the legislature of Alabama. It was the first time in many years the people of Chilton County had an opportunity to vote for a county superintendent.

Mrs. Curry Thomas and niece, Blanche, returned to Clanton Saturday night, June 24, from a visit of three weeks with Blanche's parents at Port Arthur, Texas.

ASHLEY HELD ON BOND OF $2,500

Preliminary Trial For Railroad Officer Who Shot Alex Frazier

Preliminary hearing was held Tuesday morning for E. G. Ashley, L. & N. railway detective, who shot Alex G. Frazier Tuesday night, June 20, near the depot at Clanton.

The trial was held by Justice of the Peace, Conrad Wilson. Ashley was placed under $2,500 bond pending an investigation by the Grand Jury.

Only three witnesses testified: Messers Irby Popwell, Aaron Dennis and E. W. Miller. Mr. Irby Popwell testified that he was at Dief's filling station Tuesday night, June 20, when he heard some hollowing followed by firing of 7 shots, west and a little south of that place. He went in that direction, according to testimony, and found J. A. Nivens, night police, and Ashley and Frazier. Popwell stated in the witness chair that Frazier told Nivens that he had the wrong man, and that Nivens upheld that he knew that he was the right man, because he saw him breaking into the box-car when he flashed the light on it.

Aaron Dennis, who works for Taylor Grocery Co., testified that the car in question, which was stationed at the rear of Taylor's Grocery store was loaded with sugar. He stated on the stand that two twenty penny nails were paced in the west door of the car on the evening before the shooting. He declared in his testimony that the morning after the shooting the west door of the car had been moved about 3 inches, but that the nails had not been removed from their sockets.

Mr. E. W. Miller testified that he and Mr. Van Buren Edwards had a private talk with Frazier the evening before he died, when he, himself, realized that he was going to die. According to the testimony Mr. Miller and Mr. Edwards asked him if he had done that which he was accused of and he replied, "Jesus Christ knows I did not think of such thing. I do not know why they shot me unless it was because I was passing through there." According to further testimony Frazier stated to Mr. Miller and Mr. Edwards, "I didn't know what happened until I was shot. They came shooting and hollowing and two negroes came running by me."

The state's case was presented by G. C. Walker, county solicitor, and the defense was maintained by Lawrence Gerald.

DITCHING RESUMED

After a recess of two weeks, the ditching activities in the swamps near Clanton were resumed on Monday, June 26. The relief administration of Chilton County has received $3,800 additional funds to carry on this progrom. There are about 25 men each day employed in this ditching program. Miss Austin, the relief administrator of this county, announces that about 1,300 men were started to work throughout the county this week. Most of these work only one day during the week.

NOW MEMBER OF FEDERAL RESERVE

Another Milestone In The Progress of Peoples Savings Bank

Announcement that the Peoples Savings Bank of Clanton is now a member of the Federal Reserve System marks another milestone in the progress of this popular and reliable banking institution. When interviewed on the matter Mr. Frank J. Callen, president of the bank, made some statements which are of wide interest to our readers, because of the intimate touch held by this bank with the life of Chilton County during the past thirty years. Mr. Callen said:

"The Peoples Savings Bank of Clanton has seen many and various changes since its day of beginning, over thirty years ago. Starting business in 1901 during the reconstruction period after the Spanish American War this institution has steadily grown and prospered. The panic of 1907 found this bank so thoroughly established that it was able to withstand the ravages of those trying days and emerged safe and sound to enjoy the period of business activity that followed till the dark days of 1914 when the equilibrium of the whole world was disturbed by the outbreak of the World War.

The Peoples Savings Bank, because of its firm foundation, weathered this period without flinching and stood sound and steadfast all through the war period ending in 1918. The depression of 1920-21 found this bank again ready to test its strength against the panic pysychology. It weathered this period with flying colors and entered the boom period 1923-29 untarnished, unmoved, unafraid, and ready for whatever the future might have in store. The trying days of 1930-31-32 and into 1933 beat their waves of doubt and despair against the foundations of American business. Some caved in, others totered, but many, this bank among the numbers, stood the ravages of this depression and emerged again safe, sound and ready for whatever may come.

"The Peoples Savings Bank is proud of its achievements; proud of the truthfulness of its slogans which have grown out of its record of service; Safe since 1901—Owned by Citizens of Chilton County—My Bank to hundreds of satisfied customers—Straight ahead for over thirty years.

"We are proud of these slogans," said Mr. Callen, "and we are now equally proud to add another—Member of the Federal Reserve System.

"June 23rd this bank qualified as a member of the Federal Reserve System. We are now subject to Federal Reserve regulations, we now enjoy all privileges incident thereto.

"We look forward with courage, if the times are good, we, with our numerous friends will rejoice; if they are bad, we will, as heretofore, weather the storms and emerge victorious.

"We are not unmindful of the fact that our position is what it is because of the faith of our friends and customers, we appreciate this faith and confidence and our aim at all times is to so conduct our affairs that we will continue to merit your faith and confidence."

Bean Expresses Appreciation For Support of His Friends

To the Voters of Chilton County:

I wish to say in as grateful a manner as possible that I appreciate the vote and support that was accorded me in the recent election for County Superintendent of Education. I wish it were possible that I could see everyone who voted for me and express my gratitude to him or her personally.

I congratulate my victorious opponent, and assure him that he shall have my earnest cooperation and support in all that he undertakes for the betterment of the educational opportunities of the children of Chilton County. I have confidence that Mr. Little is a real gentleman and worthy of everyone's assistance in making our schools just what we hope for them to be.

I would like to say just a few words here relative to why I or the Republican party went down in defeat. Many have told me what they thought to be the cause, but I have diagnosed the situation for myself, and I have come to the conclusion that it was not really a defeat, but a "go to sleep" of the party. According to the vote cast in the November election of 1932, the Republicans last week polled about 59 per cent of their normal strength; whereas, according to the same election the Democrats polled last week, about 93 per cent of their normal strength. I fully believe that the reason that this happened is because the Republicans were very much over-confident of a great victory and many of them stayed at home. By a conservative count, there are about four hundred Republicans in the county who did not pay their poll tax this year and were not qualified to vote in the recent election. There were a few minor causes for the defeat, but my honest belief is that the two major causes were that the voters were decidedly over-confident of success and that a great number of voters failed to pay their poll tax.

I bear malice toward none, but many statements were made in the recent campaigns that are absolutely false. Let it be understood just here that I do not hold any of this against my opponent, for I conscientiously believe that he did not even know that such was being circulated, neither do I believe that he would have permitted a false statement to be circulated. Space will not permit me to clear up those matters now, but I want to ask every one to watch the local papers for another article from me soon on this.

Again assuring you of my fullest appreciation of your interest taken in my behalf and the Republican party, I am.—Yours very sincerely, W. T. Bean.

REEDIE TAYLOR WILL OPEN NEW STORE

Following the announcement last week of the sale of his interest in Chicago Sales Company to R. W. Taylor, Mr. Reedie Taylor this week says that he will open a new store of his own in Clanton about the first of August. The location of the new business will be in the building formerly occupied by Robinson Department Store.

Mr. Taylor says he will carry in his new store a large and complete line of dry goods, shoes, notions, and clothing of all kinds, similar in its general aspects to that which he has been handling at his store for the past several years.

Reedie Taylor is well known to the people who trade in Clanton. In his conduct of business for several years he has gained a place of confidence with the many hundreds of people who were his customers. He is one of the keenest business men of our town, and the announcement that he will continue in business here will be weclomed by the public.

THE FARMER AND THE INCOME TAX

A Discussion of the Question By Mr. W. S. Moors, of Jemison

It is amusing to note how much the capitalist would have you, Mr. Farmer, believe he is looking out for your interest. They are spending thousands of dollars in order to get the income tax defeated. They are even publishing a paper called, "County and State" and sending it to citizens throughout the state free of charge, mind you. Now, Mr. Farmer, do you believe that the rich of this state are all that interested in your welfare? Or is it to save their pocketbooks?

I leave this up to you. If they had had last year, this love for you and your children, would they have permitted the schoolhouse doors to close in the face of your children, while their children, located in the richer counties, completed their school year, either in a public or a private school? Would they have allowed the taxes on many homes in Chilton County to have gone unpaid?

I ask you, Mr. Voter, did they help you through this crisis? No, the rich will love you so much as to put their arms around you, tell you what a fine fellow you are, how you have been mistreated by the legislature and governor, provideed you will do just one thing, and that is to vote against an income tax which will finally lower your advalorem taxes and make them pay a fair part of taxation. If you, Mr. Farmer, will have all the taxes, the so called Economy League will say you are a good citizen who attends to his own business and don't harm anybody.

The income tax amendment states specifically that after the floating debt of Alabama is paid the returns from this tax will go to reduce advalorem taxes. Also, Mr. Voter, think what a luxurious living one has before he has an income tax to pay. If he is a married man, he has to make three thousand dollars net, and is allowed three hundred dollars exemption for each dependent under eighteen years of age.

How many farmers in Chilton County made that much last year? I am sure every farmer wishes he could make above this amount where he would have to pay an income tax.

Who is it that is fighting the income tax? It seems that Victor Hanson of the Birmingham News, whose salary often ranges above $100,000 per year, I am told, and Horace Wilkinson, who received approximately $53,000 during the Graves administration. It doesn't take a man with two good eyes to see why they are so bitterly opposed to an income tax. However, Mr. Farmer Voter, they could afford to pay a small income tax to the State of Alabama, help us get out of debt, and then they would have more than fifty average citizens left.

The income tax cannot be handed down to the little man as some people would have you believe. When a man tells me it can, it sounds as ridiculous as the story the carpet baggers told the negro during the civil war; that was, when they secured their freedom they would be given a mule and forty acres of land. The statement that the income tax can be handed down has about that much truth in it. How is the salaried man going to pass the tax down? How is the business man, when he is going to have to meet competition? It just can't be done, and that is why the fight is on. I say, Mr. Farmer, don't let them pull the wool over your eyes. Go to the polls on July 18 and vote for the income tax amendment. This means a beginning of reduction of taxes on homes and farms.—W. S. Moors, Jemison, Ala.

SNELL OPENS FIRE ON DEMOCRATS

Vigorous Attack On the Administration and Leadership in Congress

Washington, June 25.—A vigorous attack on the Democratic administration and its leadership in the session of congress just closed was initiated today by Representative Snell of New York, the Republican leader, with a declaration that the Democrats had gone on a "spending spree."

The New Yorker asserted that the Federal budget was more out of balance today than at any time in the history of the country with the exception of a single year during the World War, and that the administration was "keeping two ses of books" in reporting an equilization of receipts and expenditures.

Describing the special session as extraordinary, Snell said no legislative body in the United States "ever wrought such profund changes in the laws and the Constitution," he added.

"It appropriated more money, levied more and heavier taxes and authorized a larger bond issuance, calling for heavier annual interest charges, than any congress in the history of the United States, with the single exception of the congress in session during the World War."

Snell said the national legislators continued $400,000,000 in new special taxes enacted last year and in addition added $220,000,000 to make a total of $620,000,000 "additional new taxes to be paid by the American people during the coming fiscal year."

"This congress authorized the issuance of $8,560,000,000 in new government bonds and securities," he added. "The government disavows responsibility for the payment of the principal of $4,000,000,000 of this amount.

"With the issuance of these bonds our interest bearing public debt will exceed by $5,000,000,000 the peak of our public debt during the World War.

"In view of this, what of the pledge of the Democratic Party to reduce expenditures of the Federal government 25 per cent and balance the budget? It has gone to the realm of forgotten things—just another one of those Democratic campaign promises.

"Instead of reducing the federal expenditures 25 per cent, the Democratic adiministration in 100 days, more than doubled them."

SAM JOHNSON HIT BY CAR

Little Sam Johnson, 12 year old son of Dr. and Mrs. Napoleon Johnson, of Clanton, came near being seriously injured Sunday night when he was struck by a Chevrolet coupe driven by Jay Tippett. Sam was riding on a bicycle down the highway in front of the Dixie Cafe in Clanton. It is reported that he was practically uninjured, but that the bicycle he was riding was torn up.

Sam was carried home by J. L. Teel, who runs a filling station just across from the Dixie Cafe.

It is reported that the only thing that saved Sam from receiving a broken leg was the fact that he was riding a girls bicycle, which does not have a cross-bar.

Court Clerk Says He Saves the County $20 Each Month

Editor Union-Banner:

Please publish the following statement from me, relative to my employment by the Commissioners Court:

Under this authority I was employed and under same authority I work. Likewise was the former clerk employed.

Prior to the time I assumed my duties as clerk of the court of county commissioners of this county a clerk was employed and paid from the county treasury, $65 to perform the duties outlined above. An additional $5 per month was paid for a lumber checker to assist this clerk, making this clerk cost the county $70 per month. I am paid only $50 per month, which is a saving to the county of $20 per month.—Irving P. Kennedy.

WHAT NEGROES ARE DOING

Fourth Day Celebration

One of the biggest celebrations ever witnessed will be sponsored at the county training school July 4th. Remember the cake eating, hog calling and cow calling contests. You must be there early to see the broad jump, high jump, wheel barrow and sack races. The activities will begin about 11 o'clock, immediately after the first ball game. Come, everybody!

Up About Lomax

I was up above Clanton the other day, looking over crops and other things. As a whole everything looked rather prosperous. Richard Turpin seems to be the leader up there. I am reminded here of the remarkable accomplishment he has made along the line of educating his children. One of his daughters graduated from the county training school a few years ago, went directly to Tuskegee and is now home economics teacher in one of our new county training schools. Two of his daughters are moving rapidly toward graduation and he declares they shall follow in their sister's footsteps.

Mr. Turpin has a big strawberry farm which he says has helped him materially in keeping him running. In addition to that he has a very prosperous looking crop.

While up there I stopped at Mr. J. N. Knight's place. He is doing a servicable piece of work up there in Lomax. He commands the respect of everybody through his congeniality, poise, business methods and fairness. We need more men like him. Booker Washington said, "The individual who can do what the world wants done will in the end make his way regardless to his race." Let us strive to make our way.

Line Up One Time

I was talking with a farmer about cotton acreage reduction, and he made this remark: "I don't know, looks like they are so tricky." I told him that he had tricked himself by planting all cotton and little or no food and feed crops. He has no milk, a few chickens and a very small corn crop. Now, there is the trick, folks, and it's going to continue tricking you as long as you say, "Cotton, I stretch my hands to thee. In thee only have I faith." The recent drive for cotton acreage reduction is 100 per cent good and should be followed. You had better line up one time. Come to Clanton Saturday and learn more about it.

Folks We Can Do Without

Those who sneak while others sleep, who relieve one of what he desires to keep.—Benj. Anderson, teacher of vocational agriculture.

WALNUT CREEK

Everyone is invited and you are especially urged to come to Walnut Creek Friday night, June 30, at 8 o'clock to hear Dr. S. J. Ezell speak against the repeal of the 18th amendment.

If you care for yourself, for your family, your home or your country don't fail to come. Then, if you don't care, come. The main point being "come."

DROUGHT SPREADS OVER A WIDE AREA IN MIDDLE WEST

Kansas City, Mo., June 25.—Drought conditions resulting from the worst heat wave in thirty years rapidly assumed serious proportions in mid-America Saturday night.

The Red Cross marshaled its forces in three states as dismaying report of damage and suffering came from a wide area.

Governors of affected states sought federal relief loans.

Surveys indicated a serious grain crop failure.

Live stock began to perish in Oklahoma. In three counties of that state authorities feared half the population would require county charity unless rain or federal aid came within a few days.

Texas County, Oklahoma, which produced more wheat than any other county in the nation three years ago, will not produce enough for seed purposes this year. Other crops were raised to sustain the live stock.

Governor William H. Murray sent urgent appeals to Washington for $30,000 immediate, special federal aid.

No adequate rain has fallen for two years in parts of Oklahoma, and dust storms this year completed the destitution of many farmers.

The topsoil of plowed fields was blown away and shifted around like desert sands. And soil was stopped by accumulation of tumbleweeds and other vegetation and formed dunes as high as fences.

Red Cross authorities were asked to supply funds to keep milk cows alive in northwestern Texas. Slight rains during the week failed to relieve the situation. Conditions were even worse than seven days ago.

Relief workers recommended immediate highway construction expansion to provide jobs for destitute farmers.

Water supplies began to fail in Nebraska, where the town of Homer faced a shortage. Natural springs which supply the town began to dry up.

Grain growers of the McCook District sought to salvage stock feed by cutting their rapidly searing fields of wheat, oats and barley. Conservation authorities moved fish from drying streams to lakes to save them from perishing.

In the northeastern part of Nebraska grasshoppers added to the destruction, and ten cars of poison mash were provided by the state.

The potato crop of southeastern Missouri has been cut in half by the heat and drought, reports from Poplar Bluff said.

Only one-third the grain stands of the wide and flat Arkansas Valley prairie land in western Kansas and eastern Colorado is worth harvesting.

Governor Alfred M. Langdon, of Kansas, has co-ordinated Red Cross and state and federal relief workers in western Kansas, devoting the last ten days to the task.

Reports from Lamar, Col., said many farmers plowed up their wheat fields and planted other crops, some of which had to be seeded two or three times due to dust storm damage. —Atlanta Journal.

G. G. Gray, miller of Clanton, was carried to a Birmingham specialist Monday morning. His condition was not considered serious. He returned home but will go back for an operation in a few days.

Jim—My, but you have a tiny little waist.

Jane — Yes, there's no getting around that.

PUT ON PROGRAM AT FRIENDSHIP SUNDAY

Editor Union-Banner:

The program of education and inspiration put on at the Friendship church last Lord's day by Miss Odine Thomas and her party, Mr. and Mrs. O'Neal and Mr. Hand, was, to say the least of it, just simply grand.

The earnestness with which each, rendered their part, and the good things that was said by each speaker was the topic of conversation for some time afterward. I am sure that I received a great blessing from their visit, and am confident that if everyone present should express themselves they would say the same. I thank God for just such young people. May His blessing be on them and their work.—J. Robert Bean.

SERVICES AT CHURCH OF CHRIST

10 a.m.—Bible study for all.
11 a.m.—Preaching and worship.
6:45 p.m.—Preaching and young people's Bible study.

The meeting at Mineral Springs schoolhouse came to a close Wednesday night, having been well attended and additions made to the church membership. The church believes much good was done.

The meeting at Rambler's Rest is to begin Thursday night, June 29th. Lights and seats are provided in the grove at the filling station. We are expecting another interesting meeting, and are praying that every attendant may be blessed. Come.—R. L. Huffman.

Dr. J. Lamar Calloway came back to Clanton from Philadelphia a few days ago and he is leaving one day this week with Dr. Sam Upchurch for Duke University at Durham, North Carolina.

Miss Ola Mae Parrish spent last week visiting Prof. and Mrs. Euell Robinson at Childersburg.

STATE TEACHERS EXAMINATION WILL BE HELD HERE JULY 17-19

The next annual state examination for teachers will be held at the courthouse on July 17th to 19th, 1933. No third grade examination will be given but applicants for second grade certificates failing to make the necessary grade for such certificate may receive a third grade certificate, provided the papers show a minimum of 40 per cent on each subject and an average of at least 60 per cent on all subjects. No third grade certificate may be substituted as part of an examination for second grade.

No one will be permitted to take the second grade examination who does not submit satisfactory evidence of graduation from a junior high school or of equivalent education. Each application for a first grade certificate shall submit evidence of graduation from an accredited senior high school or of education that is the equivalent.

An applicant for a first grade certificate may substitute a valid second grade certificate for all second grade papers.

Each applicant for a life certificate shall satisfy the examiner that he has held a first grade Alabama teacher's certificate, or its equivalent, for at least five years, within which time he has taught a minimum of forty scholastic months, and that he possesses a "high degree of proficiency and professional attainment."

An examination for music certificates will be given at this time. Applicants for music certificates who pass the theoretical examinatons will be notified as to the time and place of the practical tests.

Those applying for first grade and substituting a valid second grade certificate as a part of the first grade examination need not come until noon Tuesday. All other applicants should be present at 9:00 o'clock Monday morning, July 17th, 1933. Respectfully,—B. Lawrence.

OAK GROVE

We had a real nice rain over the week end, which we were glad to see.

We had no Sunday school Sunday morning on account of the rain. Attendance at B. Y. P. U. Sunday night was not so good as we would have liked to see, but we hope to have a larger crowd next Sunday night.

The group of young people from here who carried the play to Longview Saturday night report a pretty small crowd attending, which was rather discouraging, but they had an enjoyable time anyway.

Mrs. Harsel Gilbert and baby of Hueytown are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Edwards.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Pierce have moved to the house just south of the railroad, near the overhead bridge.

There will be preaching here next Saturday night instead of Sunday morning, so that the all day singing will not interfere with the preaching services. As this will be the last announcement before the singing, we wish to urge everyone to come and spend the day with us. We are expecting to have some fine singers here on that day.

On next Friday afternoon there will be a meeting at the church for the purpose of cleaning up the church and grounds. All who are interested should come.

MISSION INSTITUTE OF UNITY AND CHILTON ASSOCIATIONS

July 11, 12, and 13th should be checked on your calendar today and plans made right now by all Baptist families that nothing prevent you from being in Clanton at the Baptist church at least ten minutes before ten o'clock each day, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, July 11, 12 and 13th, for the greatest institute ever held in this part of the state.

For four years, now, we have been having an institute each summer in which the Christian people of our two associations come together for 3 days of fellowship, information and inspiration. This year we have secured an unusually strong faculty. Dr. John R. Sampey, Louisville, Ky., is to be back with us; Dr. J. W. Beagle, superintendent of home missions; Miss Emma Leachman, home mission field worker; Dr. Frank McDonald, pastor of Woodlawn, Birmingham, and many other fine speakers and teachers. The program will be given in full next week.

We are to study home missions particularly this year. Cheap books have been secured and will be on sale. None cost more than twenty-five cents each. Any one wishing a book may buy it. All the books are worth far more than they cost.

The lunch plans are as usual—each church bringing lunch one day. The menu and lunch chairman is printed in the W. M. U. book of Unity Association. The superintendents—Mrs. J. W. Jones, Thorsby, and Mrs. Grady Heflin, Clanton—are urging every church in their association to be represented. The pastors and the Sunday school superintendents are asked to make the above announcements next Sunday and the Sunday following. A pressing invitation is extended to all our pastors to come and bring all the workers in their churches.

This is a special meeting for the women, the men, the young people, and the children. Plan to come and bring every member of the family. Each W. M. U. organization having one fourth the active members taking this course will be credited with a mission study class. — Mrs. S. J. Ezell.

—lagging appetite

There is a reasonable way to correct this condition. Pause and reason. You know that body weakness is frequently the result of a weak blood "picture"—lowering of the red-blood-cells and their hemoglobin—that are so very necessary to strength and vitality.

Then why not try S.S.S.—the proven tonic for decades? Its value has been proved by extensive scientific research and by millions of happy users.

Take S.S.S. and note the way your strength and appetite are restored. Two convenient sizes at all drug stores—the larger size is more economical. Don't permit any one to "switch" you in your determination to restore your red-blood-cells and their hemoglobin content for regaining strength. © The S.S.S. Co

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

A little suggestion for a religious drama. A home in Jerusalem. It is evening time. There is a mother, a widow. There are several children in the family circle. John, a vigorous youth about the age of fifteen. The mother is speaking: "John, you had better go to the temple and bring your crippled brother Thomas home." John replies: "Oh mother, there is no hurry about this. I'll go later." Mother speaks again, "John, your poor brother has been at the temple all day. He is there begging. It has been a long, hard day. Go at once and bring your crippled brother home." John replies, "Aw, mother, you don't care anything about anybody except Thomas. I know he is crippled and has been all his life, but he is not the only child you have. I am tired and it's been a busy day with me."

The drama continues. John is reluctantly getting up to start for the temple. Somebody is heard whistling on the street. Then there comes bounding into the house a vigorous, healthy young man about twenty-one years of age. "Oh, my boy, my son, Thomas," cries the mother. They are in each other's arms. Tears of joy flow down their cheeks. All the children leap with excitement. "I am not crippled any more, mother," says Thomas. "I can run and skip and jump. I am well and strong." "How did it happen," inquires the mother. "Two men named Peter and John went to the temple at the hour of prayer. Because they went to the place of prayer I am able to wak."

There are cripples in every community—moral cripples—men and women who have been crippled all their lives—men and women who have inherited moral deformities, men and women who cannot walk. They have tried and they have failed. These cripples can be set free only by men and women who go to the place of prayer.

There has never been a time when we had a better trained ministry or better trained choirs, or finer places of worship, or better eclesiastical machinery than we have now. But something has gone wrong. Family altars have fallen down. The mid-week prayer meeting is deserted. Men are too busy for private devotion. No wonder the moral cripples are not healed.

THOMAS JR. CLUB NEWS

Last Wednesday, June 21, we had a large group of ladies and young girls at the home of Mrs. Farley Mims. We have twenty-seven enrolled and hope to have more next time.

We learned many new and helpful things about canning vegetables and fruits and also pickles. We think that Miss Pardue has already enlightened us on many things.

Mrs. Mattie Lou Crew, Mrs. W. C. Moore and Miss Gladys moore are on the committee to arrange about the canning equipment. — Mrs. Myrtice Smith, Reporter.

PREACHING AT JACKSON CHAPEL

There are two sermons scheduled for Jackson Chapel this week end. Rev. A. E. Trice will preach there Saturday night, beginning at 8 o'clock. Then Sunday at 11 o'clock Rev. J. Robert Bean will preach. The people of that community and all others who can are invited to attend and hear one or both of these sermons. Both preachers will likely have worth-while messages for you.—Virgil Smith.

PREACHING AT JEMISON

The Rev. J. W. Jones, of Thorsby, was in Clanton Monday and gave out the following announcements in regard to his regular services at the Jemison Baptist church for Sunday, July 2: Sunday school at 10 a.m., and preaching at 11 a.m. and 7:45 p.m.

Along with this announcement, Rev. Jones said: "Through The Banner I want to urge the folks in and around Jemison to attend our church services next Sunday in particular, and at all other times in general."

UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala., June 25.—Conference week for the educators of Alabama and for the Alabama Congress of Parents and Teachers came to a successful close at University of Alabama Friday, June 23rd. The five-day period was marked by important discussions led by the retiring United States Commissioner of Education, Dr. W. J. Cooper and by an address by President Denny dealing with the educational situation in Alabama.

Declaring that the service arm of government in Alabama is paralyzed and that education, public health, and child welfare are almost destroyed, Dr. Denny told the P.-T. A. that there has never been a time when Alabama needed more the idealism and uncompromizing devotion to childhood of the parents of this state. This period, he said, demands the highest type of patriotism and demands solidarity and a critical searching examination of all governmental agencies to determine which, if any, are falling short in efficiency and which are nonessential.

The U. S. Commissioner of Education, Dr. Cooper, called upon the people of Alabama to economize in education rather than retrench. He said that a democracy needs more education thany any other form of government. "I do not oppose tax reductions, but we must be reasonable about it. We ought to have economy in the common school sysem, but the superintendent of education should have a fair warning so that he may decide what to do in economizing."

In his opening address Dr. Cooper said that the schools are going to have to teach the idle to use leisure time unless our unemployed have some constructive work in which to employ their energies. He called for more attention to educating people to enjoy literature, music, and the fine arts.

In another address he said that teachers of physical education of this country must introduce games into the schools which will carry over into adult life and which will encourage healthful habits.

"Business must call the school to its aid if it would avoid unemployment due to technological advance and to increased efficiency in management. Business must support also colleges and graduate schools for the scientific study of business problems. One of the difficulties with American business today is that in it are too many who dropped out of school and too few with the brains to do the school work," he said in discussing relation of business and education.

NEW CEDRON BASEBALL CLUB

New Cedron visited Thorsby last Thursday, June 22nd, and played a very interesting ball game. The star winner was Penton, who won a triple, two singles out of four trips to bat. Had nine chances at short, making them all good. Then came Culver, pitching a most splendid game of ball.

New Cedron played Sardis on the local mound Saturday afternoon with much interest. Culp pitched two innings. The score was 5 to 2 in favor of Sardis.

Williams relieved Culp, pitching 5 innings with one hit and no runs. Williams led to bat, getting 3 singles out of 5 times at bat. Culver caught. New Cedron Beat Sardis 7 to 5 in the wind-up game.

New Cedron will play Sardis on the Sardis field Thursday. New Cedron will also play Marbury and Billingsley at Billingsley Saturday at 3 p.m.

New Cedron played 17 games; won 11 and lost 6.—James Burnett, Mgr.

MT. CREEK-MIDWAY CLUB MET

The Mt. Creek-Midway Club met with Mrs. Charles Cooper June 22nd at 1:30 p.m. Miss Pardue gave a demonstration on canning. She canned lima beans, snap beans and made peach preserves. She used the steam pressure cooker with these. A canning center was discussed and it was decided to have it at Mt. Creek, at the Jordan home. We will can each Friday and Saturday of the week.

There were 17 present with three new members. We especially urge that everyone that can be present.—Mrs. Russell Milstead, Reporter.

Lesson for July 2

JOSHUA

LESSON TEXT—Joshua 1:1-9; 23:3, 4, 14.

GOLDEN TEXT—Have not I commanded thee? Be strong and of a good courage; be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed: for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest. Joshua 1:9.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God Helping Joshua.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Captain Courageous.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Joshua Succeeded.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Source of Joshua's Strength.

The book of Joshua, from which our lesson is taken, is a history of the conquest of the promised land and its division among the tribes of Israel. It takes its name from its principal character, Joshua.

I. Joshua, the New Leader of Israel.

1. His appointment (Num. 27:18-20). The people were not to be left in doubt as to a leader when Moses was gone. The leader was to be appointed and to be given recognition before the people.

During the wilderness journey Joshua was Moses' minister and the captain of his army. When Moses was denied the privilege of going over the Jordan, Joshua was appointed to the leadership of Israel.

2. Joshua's fitness for the leadership of Israel (Deut. 34:9).

a. He was full of the spirit of wisdom. Although not dependent upon human wisdom, God selects as his representatives men whom he has endowed with the proper wisdom.

b. He was divinely ordained for the work at the hand of Moses, for "Moses had laid his hands upon him." This he had done at the commandment of God (Num. 27:18).

c. The people owned him as their leader. For successful leadership, a ruler must have the individual affection and allegiance of the people.

II. Joshua Commanded to Take Charge (vv. 1, 2).

Moses was dead, but God's work must go on; therefore, God issued the command for the new leader to assume his duty.

III. God Renews His Promise to Israel Concerning the Land (vv. 3, 4).

This promise had been given to Abraham and renewed to Isaac, Jacob, and Moses. It is now renewed to Israel as they were about to enter upon its possession. The nearest this territory was ever possessed was during the reign of David and Solomon. This land still belongs to the Jews, and in God's own time they will possess it. The world will not be at peace nor the fullness of divine blessing come upon the world until Israel is in this land. The present distressful condition in Germany and other parts of Europe may hasten the movement of Israel to their own land. As these notes are written, Great Britain is being advised to open Palestine to the Jews.

IV. The Promise of the Divine Presence (v. 5).

Joshua was entering upon a perilous and difficult enterprise. The difficulties before Joshua were:

1. The Jordan river (v. 2). This river was now at its flood (Josh. 3:15), making it impossible for armies to cross.

2. People were living in walled cities (Num. 13:28). Notwithstanding this, God was ready to insure success.

a. "I will not fail thee, nor forsake thee" (v. 5).

b. "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee" (v. 5).

c. "As I was with Moses, so I will be with thee" (v. 5). Because of his conviction that God had been with his master he was willing and ready to cross the Jordan at its flood tide and courageously meet his enemies.

V. Conditions of Blessing in the Land (vv. 6-9).

1. "Be strong and of good courage" (v. 6). His mission was to go in and conquer the land and then to divide it among the tribes for an inheritance. To do this required courage.

2. Unwavering obedience to the Word of God (v. 7). In all his work he must conform his life to the law of God. In order to accomplish this the law of the Lord must be in his mouth continually. Joshua rendered prompt obedience.

VI. Joshua's Retrospection (Josh. 23:3, 4, 14).

As his life was now drawing to a close, he summoned the people and rulers and gave farewell counsel.

1. Rehearses God's goodness (v. 14). God had given rest to Israel from all their enemies and had brought them into the land of plenty.

2. All that had been done for them was by the hand of the Lord (vv. 3, 4). God had fought for them. No one was able to stand against them.

The Vision of Life

This vision of life in the cross is not a vision of despair but of confidence and hope, because behind it there is the empty tomb, and the figure with wounded hands outstretched to bless, ascending into glory.—G. A. Studdert Kennedy.

CARD OF THANKS

As it is impossible to see everyone personally who helped us during our trouble, we wish to take this means to thank each and every one who so willingly and faithfully helped us during the illness of our wife and mother.

The neighbors and friends have been so good to come and help in every way they could, and we assure every one who helped in any way that it was highly appreciated and we will never forget your kindness. We also wish to thank those who visited mother while she was in the hospital and those who sent flowers.

It is indeed a comfort to know we have friends who will stand by in time of sickness and trouble to help and cheer along life's way. Especially do we thank Dr. Arthur Johnson, Dr. David S. Moore, the other doctors and nurses at South Highland Infirmary, and Dr. R. B. McNeil for their faithful services.

May the Lord bless each one who helped in any way.—N. A. Dennis, Doris and Irene.

Nobody would object to our reorganizing Russia if it would only shave off its bolshevik whiskers.

We can't see any use of holding an international economic conference in London. There is enough fog there already.

We still fail to see why Uncle Sam has any more at stake in the London economic conference than other nations.

France wants the American dollar pegged and we would like to peg a few of 'em long enough to get a new Palm Beach suit.

William Allen White, writing from London, says that most of the delegates to the economic conference look like congressmen. That is the unkindest cut of all.

Remember the good od days when Lillian Russell was your stage ideal, Hans Wagner was your baseball hero, and you didn't have to worry about any incime tax collectors?

We are gradualy coming to the opinion that Cordell Hull loves a tariff just about as much as the average barber admires a safety razor

Australia and Canada are in favor of restricting production of wheat, so they say, but they want the other wheat growing nations to start it first.

Jim Farley has found out that you can't pay seventy billions of debt with four billions of gold. He is also beginning to learn that you can't fufill seventy milion campaign promises with four thousand jobs.

What the European nations really would like would be to have Uncle Sam cancel the war debts, lower his tariffs and stabalize the dollar at a high figure so that Europe could outsell us in the foreign markets. If we agree to do that they will agree in turn to junk a few old cannon and blow up a few barrels of powder celebrating our fine "cooperation."

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

We have heard a gread deal of late about international cooperation, lowering of trade barriers, free trade, and other things which the proponents say will in some way or other lead to permanent peace among the nations of the world. In all the publicity attendant upon the Geneva and London conferences, it will not do to overlook one little Washington dispatch which has an important bearing on the maintenance of world peace, and what is even more important to us, peace and tranquility so far as the people of the United States are concerned.

The dispatch referred to is the one which come out of official circles at Washington the other day to the effect that President Roosevelt had agreed to a new naval construction program of three years duration, to build 32 new ships at an estimated cost of $238,000,000. The money is to come from the $3,300,000,000 public works act passed by the recent session of Congress. Of the total amount to be expended in building up our navy the sum of $46,000,000 will be spent the first year, $105,000,00 the second year, and the balance in the third year of the program. The ships to be constructed are two aircraft carriers of 15,000 tons each; four light cruisers of 10,000 tons each; two gunboats of 2,000 tons each, and four submarines of 1,400 tons each. The total is 111,000 tons.

In commenting on the new naval program, Secretary of the Navy Swanson said: "It is a start toward a treaty navy. We are going to construct these thirty-two ships as quickly as we can. It is a program to put labor to work and labor will get more from shipbuilding than anything else. Eighty-five per cent of the money spent on bulding American warships goes for labor. * * * The limit we can build is measured by the capacity of the yards. We think we can build to the fullest capacity of both public and private yards for two years."

It is entirely true, as Secretary Swanson asserted, that the building of these warships will employ many thousands of workers and many more thousands indirectly; that the "steel industry, the railroads and allied lines throughout the length and breadth of the land will of necessity benefit." Secretary Swanson is again worth quoting when he says: "I know of no more effective or praiseworthy way of giving our industrial life that country-wide stimulus which it so sorely needs than by devoting a portion of the money and energy which is to be used for public construction to this vital arm of our national defense."

The construction of these ships will undoubtedly contribute in an important way to our national industrial revival. But there is an even more important angle. The ships will contribute toward building up our navy to strength agreed to in the London naval conference. Not to build up to this strength would be a betrayal of the best interests of the American people. No nation wants war less than does the Unted States. If we follow the wise policies of Washington and Jefferson we will not engage in war unless it becomes a matter of national self defense. And the American navy is our first arm of defense. Separated from Europe and Asia by thousands of miles of ocean, there is little danger of an invasion of Amercan soil by an alien foe so long as we maintain a navy as good as the best. The facts are so plain as to need little explication. The proposed construction of thirty-two new naval vessels is a big step in the right direction. It is a threat to no nation and a notice to all that Uncle Sam will not be caught unprepared in case of attack.

F. D. R.'S BUSY SEASON.—

With the adjournment of Congress, there will still be plenty to do around Washington. President Roosevelt promises to be a busy man. In fact, he will be the busiest peacetime president we have ever had, if he carries out all the functions which have been heaped upon him by Congress.

Certainly no American Congress has ever, in time of profound national peace, given so much power to a President as the first session under the Roosevelt administration has given to Mr Roosevelt. Every phase of our national life is affected—financial, agricultural, industrial and social.

Fortunatey for Mr. Roosevelt and for the country, the President is given wide latitude to use his own judgment in carrying out some of the ideas of Congress. In other words, the legislators in many instances have given the Chief Executive the power to make over our economic fabric, but they have not made the process mandatory. He can do as he pleases

The list of powers, either mandatory or discretionary, conferred on the President make an imposing list. They have been summarized by Oiver McKee, Jr, and published in a recent issue of The Boston Transcript, as follows:

"To make heavy reductions in the acreage devoted to farming.

"To levy a tax on the processors of agricultural products.

"To approve codes of fair competition in industry.

"To fix minimum hours and minimum wages for industrial employees, with the licensing of business enterprises.

"To spend up to $3,300,000,000 on construction of public and semi-public improvements.

"To spend up to $250,000,000 on the maintenance of the Civilian Conservation Corps.

"To modify or suspend anti-trust laws when industries come to agreements among themselves satisfactory to the President

"To fix pensions for war veterans and their dependents, and to change existing pension regulations.

"To raise or lower the wages of Federal employees on the basis of the rise and fall in the purchasing power of the dollar.

"To legaize or outlaw the possession of monetary gold stocks by American citizens, and place an embargo on the exportation of gold, and require licenses to engage in foreign exchange transactions.

"To direct the Federal Reserve Banks to purchase up to $3,000,000,000 in government obligations.

"To issue up to $3,000,000,000 in new currency.

"To fix the gold content of the dollar at any level between 50 and 100 per cent of the present content.

"To embargo commodity imports, raise tariffs, or fix import quotas as he may consider necessary to protect American industry from foreign competition

"To cancel or annul existing air and ocean mail contracts containing subventions to carriers.

"To raise or lower charges for mail service within certain narrow limits."

All of which indicates that President Roosevelt is going to have a busy summer and perhaps a still busier autumn. Every real American, regardless of party, will wish him well in his job and hope and pray that he will not use the dictatorial powers any oftener than is absolutely necessary.

CURTAILING WHEAT PRODUCTION

For some time we have heard advocacy of a world-wide agreement for the curtailment of the production of wheat. But the first interchanges of opinion at London do not make the prospects any too bright. While most of the wheat growing countries of Europe seem willing to curtail the production, it is said that unexpected opposition has come from Canada and Australia, two of the great cereal producing nations of the world. While the experts of these two nations do not take a stand directly opposed to curtailment they feel that the other nations of the world should take the first step and "feel the way," so to speak.

The reason given for this is that Australia and Canada are "new countries" without diversified industry and that they depend on the export of wheat to a greater extent than the older countries. This stand, taken with the uncertainty about what Russia will do, make the prospects for wheat curtailment not so bright as they appeared to be a few weeks ago.

Of course all of the other wheat growing nations would be willing for Uncle Sam to do the curtailing. And perhaps he will have to do this in self-defense, if the other nations refuse to go in on the plan. Certain it is that if the United States were on a domestic basis, so far as its wheat supply is concerned, the price of the important cash commodity could be regulated upward much easier than at present.

And competition in the wheat markets of the world is going to get rougher and rougher for Uncle Sam as the years roll on. The reason is that Canada and Australia, to say nothing of soviet Russia, can produce wheat much more cheaply than can the United States, and will thus be able to undersell us in the world markets despite any agreements about "elimination of trade barriers" and so on.

Therefore the big hope of the American wheat grower is in the home market. What we need is carefully curtailed production, and a prosperous America with the number of idle workers reduced to a minimum so that the demand for bread will be steadily increased. Of course, world curtailment of production may be desirable but let us not forget what we can do to help ourselves.

A squall forced the President's vacation yacht into port. But having been through a special session of congress the squall did not bother Mr. Roosevelt, personally.

Bedside Bulletin

Casual observation, and information derived from the results of last Tuesday, prompts the following bulletin from the bedside of the Republican party organization of Chilton County. The party is in a grave condition. There is still hope—well-founded hope—if the attending physicians can get together on their treatment. That is the main cause of the trouble anyway. The party has always been a hale and hearty one, except for occasional flurries, and the beginning of this ailment was regarded as just one more of these flurries. But difference of opinion as to treatment has caused the condition to grow worse, instead of better. Now, if those in charge of this treatment will get together for the good of the party, instead of trying to carry out their own personal desires, all will be well. Otherwise, there is no hope, and the party will die within the next year. Hints have been given, too, that the friends of the party organization, who have become thoroughly disgusted with these differences of opinion, may discharge the whole present force and call in another outfit to manage the party.

It Works! B'Gosh!

You have heard that "a prophet is without honor in his own country." I know you can think of instances, too, where outsiders got away with adventures which home folks would know better than to even attempt. Traveling people get by with traffic violations in nearly every city, where the home folks would be fined for the same offense. That brings us around to those "outside" letters on politics which were published a few weeks ago in favor of the Democratic candidate. I thought our people had too much self-respect to be told what to do by some rank outsider. I thought they would resent such reflections on their judgment. But it seems this was not the case. They took it all on the chin without a murmur. They gave up without a semblance of a fight. No backbone! No resentment of orders given by people without authority! Week-kneed! Listening to every whim and puff and obeying without the slightest investigation!. The very fact that Republicans were appealed to, was a dead give-away that the Democrats knew they had no chance within themselves! And to think that Republicans were careless enough to let themselves be led off in this manner! What a party!

Let 'Em Rave!

After the returns form the election came in last Tuesday night, one not acquainted with matters around Clanton might have thought that something had turned the chicken roost over and stirred up all the roosters in the neighborhood. Such crowing I never heard. Those Republicans who helped the Democrats to victory must surely feel ashamed that they gave such help, only to hear themselves and their party so subjected to such derision. They should feel such shame, any way. As for the Democrats, though, no one can blame them. They certainly put over a good one. And they certainly have let it be known, too. Of course they feel elated, putting a Democrat in a county office after a 23-year Democratic drouth, even though they were helped by misinformed Republicans — more than apt they despise our people for being so easily led astray. And they do not give any part of the credit for victory to the Republicans. That is theirs to enjoy. Let them rave! The thicker they lay it on, the better. Maybe they wil carry it so far as to turn the stomachs of our week-kneed brethren and they may see the error of their ways. Unless they are blind—as well as weak, they will come to realize this sooner or later.

All For One

Give him credit—Mr. Roosevelt certainly knows how to handle that bunch of henchmen he has up at Washington with him. When he cracks the whip, they jump; and when he tells them to lie down and play dead, then dead they are. You have heard of the traditional Rooseveltian "big stick". Teddy, himself, started wielding it and got results. And his illustrious fifth cousin, F. D., has taken the cue and, likewise, gets results. However, the present Roosevelt has had occasion to use his big stick on his congress for the most part. And his stick is different from Teddy's The present big stick is the radio. If the brethren up Washington way take it into their heads to try to put some of their own ideas through, Mr. Roosevelt has only to say: "All right, I'll tell the people of the whole country how things are going on over a nation - wide hook - up." It works wonders. Those fellows know that if he does that, it will mean their political heads at the next election. And those two-by-four congressmen change their minds in droves. If they want to cut governmental expense, one good way would be to send themselves all home and stop their salaries, they do nothing but fill up seats and spout hot air, any way. When the show-down comes they merely ascertain how Mr. Roosevelt wants them to vote, and that's the way it goes.

The Forgotten Man

Much has been said about the "forgotten man." At first, we didn't know exactly what was meant by the forgotten man. Many jokes made the rounds about it. Some thought it might mean the unemployed man. Some married men thought it meant the husbands of bridge addicts. And then the women came back and said they had it all wrong—it should be "the forgotten woman." They had an idea it meant the wives of golf players. Now I hear a lot of fellows saying they have, at last, found out just who the forgotten man is. They think it should be the "forgotten men"—the soldiers. One man says: "Oh yes, I know who the forgotten men are now. They remembered us for a while—long enough to cut a big chunk out of the pittance they were paying to the veterans, and then they forgot us—completely." They think, too, that the congressmen ought to have shown a little more back-bone and fought for what they thought was right in regard to the soldiers, instead of giving in so easily when the "economy" stick was waved over their heads. Well, sooner or later, people are going to learn to look ahead a little and see if it is humanly possible to fulfill all promises. Without trying to pull an "I told-you-so" trick, we want to remind everybody that a warning was issued last year that if government expenditures were to be cut in order to carry out the promised economy measures, somebody would be forced to feel the cut. But people had visions of honey ponds and flap-jack trees just at that time, and took no time to reason out the promises made. Plenty of time, now, though, to do that, while those honey ponds are showing up.

Jews and Germans

For some time past Germans have been dealing all Jews in Germany holy misery, solely because they were Jews. They boycotted their business houses, put restrictions on their liberties, and persecuted them in many other ways. Then, when the Jews decided to give in, peacefully, and take their money and leave Germany, since they seemed to be an undesirable element, a ban was put on the removal of their money from the country. All this began just as soon as the new Hitler government went into power. There is one Jew, however, who has been able to get his laugh over a German, and that is Max Baer. In his recent fight with Schmeling, late world champion boxer, and a German, which took place while the Germans were especially vicious toward the Jews, Baer whipped Schmeling all over the ring, and a referee stopped the bout, with Schmeling a bleeding hulk, and Baer the same light-footed, game boxer he was at the beginning. What extra pleasure that scrap must have afforded Baer. And what a laugh he must have gotten out of the next morning's paper, as he read in one column of the brutal treatment being meted out to his people by Hitler, and in another column read of his decisive victory over Schmeling. Maybe all Jews shared in this pleasure, as was overheard in one city the next morning. Two young Jews met on the street and stopped to discuss the fight. One said: "Oi, Oi! But wasn't that a nice scrap?" The other replied: "Yah, and didn't Maxie give Hitler's boy hell, though?"—Man in the Moon.

4,000,000 BALES OF COTTON

Why destroy the fruits of labor when some can be stored for future use? Four million bales of cotton at 5 cents per pound equals $100,000,000. Figure it out. Why destroy this cotton, for who knows what the future holds. A drougth or rainy season or the King boll weevil either one might appear in 1934, 1935 or 1936 to reduce our production , no telling to what extent. If we destroy four million bales of cotton do you think we have any control over how much Russia, Egypt, India and other cotton raising countries could produce? Is not cotton a world commodity? Would or could they not profit by our mistakes?

How could we profit by not destroying this cotton. We could build 4 large concrete and steel warehouses—scattered over the South where rail and water transportation was out of this hundred million dollars—at a cost of 20 million each, — say at Dallas, Memphis, Montgomery and Charleston—under the supervision of the War department.

This would put thousands of the unemployed to work, would help the steel and concrete industry as well as, to a certain extent, lumber and other industries. The other 20 million dollars could pay for the picking ginning compressing and transportation to the warehouses. The cotton seed could be made into four products and turned over to the Red Cross to feed the hungry and homeless this winter—with too much to eat in the country. Thousands are hungry with too much to wear.

Millions are ragged with too many homes to live in. Millions are homeless; and it will soon be with too much beer in the country, thousands will be thirsty. We might as well destroy wheat, corn, hay and produce then as to destroy cotton. Cotton will not deteriorate in a concrete steel fire proof warehouse. It is a valued war product. I say let the government put the unemployed to work instead of destroying the fruits of labor.—N. W. Whitfield, 431 Broad St., Selma, Ala.

IT WAS NOT FIAT MONEY.—

Excavation on the site of ancient Pompeii has recently brought to light the skeletons of two men who, from certain articles of dress still discernible, are known to have been slaves. A bag of coins and various articles of personal adornment were found by their sides. They were evidently carrying these when they were overcome by the shower of volcanic ashes.

They lay in an underground passage leading to the strong-room of one Menandro, who must have been one of the very rich men of Pompeii but whether, like faithful servants, they were trying to save the family treasure, or to make way with it under the general confusion that prevailed, must be left to conjecture. What matter now? Master and slaves, riches and penury, power and poverty were leveled in the great disaster.

The gold coins bear the images of Roman emperors, but they do not depend for their value upon that. It was not fiat money. The gold in them is worth today just about what it was when Vesuvius buried Pompeii and Herculeaneum.

Neither disaster nor time has been able to affect that value. And yet, some insist that all money is at bottom, fiat. These old coins go to museums where their historical value is vastly more than that of the gold that composes them; but there is a lesson value in them that is specially needed just now when there is so much wild talk about money.

Good Rains Reported Tuesday

Many farmers from the east and south portions of the county came into town shortly after noon Tuesday wearing those kind of smiles that can be produced only when a good soaking rain comes to break the spell of parching drouth. Local showers have been reported from many sections of the county for some days past.

Wallace C. Edler Died

The Union-Banner has received notice from postoffice authorities in Seattle, Washington, advising us of the decease of Mr. Wallace C. Edler. The date of his death was not given. Mr. Edler will be remembered by many friends in Chilton County as the founder of "The Union" in 1903, and editor and publisher of that paper until its consolidation with "The Banner" in 1912. He continued to live at Thorsby until about three years ago when ill health forced him to go to Seattle where he could have the care and attention of members of his family. He was more than ninety years old.

Why the Democrats Won

Here are sime figures in percentage which may serve to answer for someone the question of why the Democrats won in the election for County Superintendent on June 20th. In this election, as compared with the general election of November, 1932, the Republicans polled 59 per cent of their strength, while the Democrats polled 93 per cent of theirs. It means something when 41 per cent of the Republicans stay at home on election day; also when some unknown percentage of these who do vote, support the Democratic candidate.

The Cotton Future

Just now there is much interest in the government's effort to curtail cotton production. Authorities on the subject are agreed that the farmer can have no hope for a fair price for cotton in the months to come if there is produced this year a large surplus crop to add to the thirteen million bale carry-over. That is reasonable. In my opinion it will be wise if cotton farmers will accept the government's offer and take out of production enough acreage to reduce the crops two million bales this year. The matter is being put squarely up to the farmers. If they do not cooperate they should not grumble if low prices come and consume the profits of their labor.

Cotton At Ten Cents Again

This week, for the first time in about three years, we have seen the price of cotton reach the ten-cent mark. This has made everybody feel good, except perhaps some of the boys who sold a few weeks ago at eight or nine cents. After all is said and done, nothing so quickly and widely affects the business pulse of the South as the price of cotton.

Mr. Little Takes His Office

Prof. Luther Little takes up the duties of County Superintendent of Education Saturday. In beginning his service in the office, Mr. Little has emphasized his policy as being free from the restrictions of politics. He has appealed to all citizens, regardless of politics, to help him give the best possible administration of our schools. That is the right course to pursue. We ought not to have any politics in the election of our school officials. If we can't avoid politics in our elections, we still can avoid politics in our school administration.

CHILDREN "SCOURGE" TO REDS.—

The lot of children in Soviet Russia has long been pitable. During and after the famine ten years ago homeless children were a common sight, but as they died off or grew up or were organized and taken in homes in labor colonies, they disappeared for a time. Last autumn they reappeared. The Riga correspondent of London Times says that Vyshinsky, who prosecuted the British engineers, has held a special conference with the Ogpu and the police with the object of devising means to combat the "new scourge." The ruthless determination of the Communists is responsible for what they call "the new scourge." The children came to the towns in thousands from the villages in consequence of the eviction and banshment of their parents during the great grain drives last autumn.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

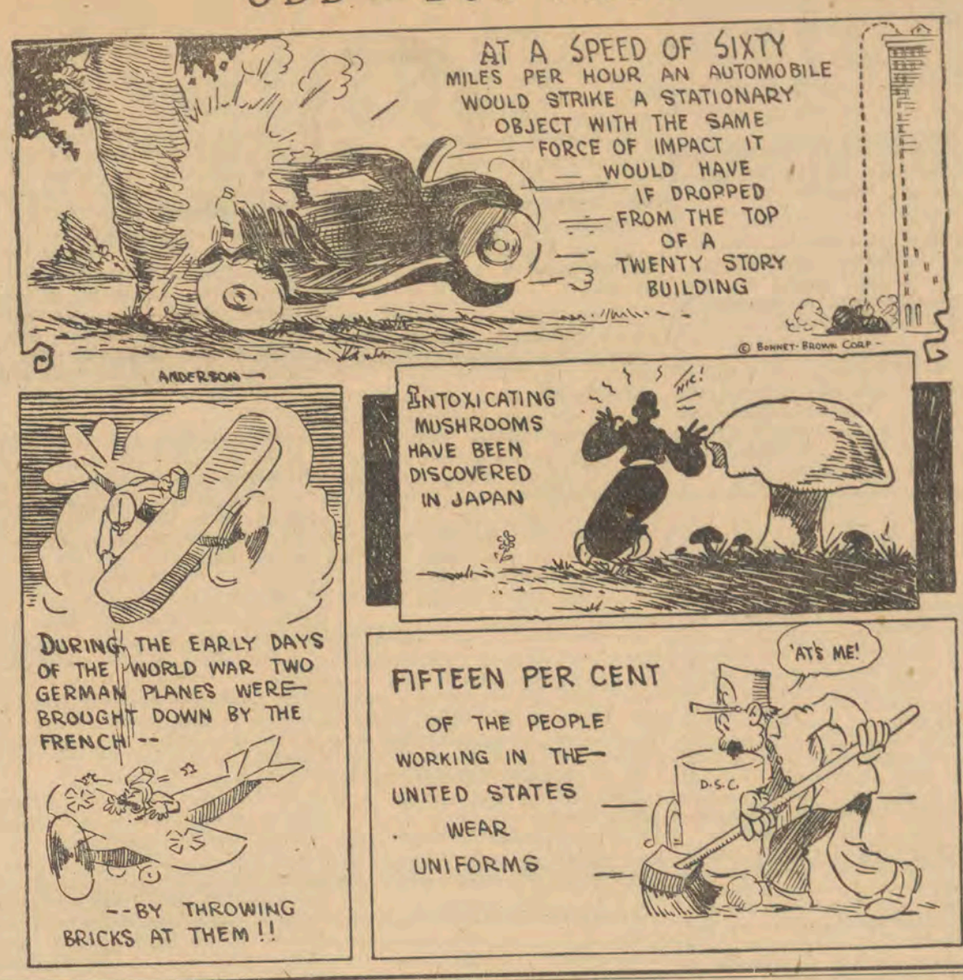
ODD --- BUT TRUE



REVIVAL AT THE COURTHOUSE WAS CLOSED ON SUNDAY NIGHT

The ten days revival meeting at the courthouse, conducted by evangelists H. H. Caswell and Henry C. Marty, came to a close last Sunday night.

The average nightly attendance was 147. The total number of those who answered the call to repent of their sins, take up their cross and follow the Lord was 40. The total offering was $25.09.

We have learned that there are many people in Clanton and surrounding country hungering after righteousness. The evangelists believe there is a great need for a county-wide revival campaign for the sole purpose of giving those who want to be saved an opportunity to hear the gospel and make their decision for eternity. Plans are already under way for a great campaign by a nationally-known evangelist during the months of August and September.

We want all Christians in this county to aid in prayer that such a revival may be made possible. Through prayer we may see many things accomplished. Jeremiah 33:3 reads: "Call upon me, and I will answer thee, and shew thee great and mighty things, which thou knowest not." In unity is strength. Let us all ask of God that we receive this blessing. Remember: "Ye receive not because ye do not ask." This is an opportunity for parents to pray that their children and loved ones may be saved.

The evangelist expects to make Clanton his headquarters for some time, and Mrs. Caswell will be acting pastor of the Clanton Foursquare church, while he is away in campaigns, returning here from time to time. There will be preaching services at the church next Sunday morning at 11:00 a.m. and at 7:30 p.m.—H. H. Caswell.

THE WASHINGTON MASQUERADE HAS POWERFUL APPEAL

Lionel Barrymore Tops All Previous Roles as Vivid Political Leader

Lionel Barrymore, as a brilliant, domineering leader who rules men, but is in turn ruled by a woman who almost plunges him to ruin, is the unique figure of a unique story in "The Washington Masquerade," Metro Goldwyn-Mayer's sensational drama of national politics to be shown at the Wadesonian Theatre.

In striking contrast to his portrayal of "Grand Hotel," is the role of the dominant Jeff Keane, senator and national political power, who, though men are his political tools is nevertheless the tool of a woman who, employed by the "lobbyist racket," deceives him and rules him by guile until the astounding dramatic climax.

Barrymore probably never had a greater role. In "The Claw," on the stage, he made the role theatrical history. In the screen adaption, modernized and with authentic inside facts added by Samuel G. Blythe, famous political writer who collaborated with John Meehan, he has a mighty portrayal. In his speech before the senate he even outdoes his famous work in "A Free Soul."

Karen Morley Scores

An elaborate cast surrounds Barrymore. Karen Morley, who played with him in "Arsene Lupin," scores as the wily charmer, employed by the lobbyists to keep the recalcitrant senator under control. Nils Asther is effective as the suave foreign affairs lobbyist, whose love affair with the wife finally precipitates the astounding denouncement. C. Henry Gordon, who played the secret agent in "Mata Hari" has an equally gripping role as Hinsdale, chief lobbyist, and Diane Sinclair, Reginald Barlow, William Collier, Sr., William Morris, Rafaela Ottiano, Burton Churchill and Henry Kolker also score.

Charles Brabin, who directed "Sporting," "Beast of the City," and other recent hits, directed the new story, presenting Barrymore in a "Barrymore-sized" role.

POPLAR SPRINGS

Every body seems to be about up with their work and hoping it will soon rain.

It seems that more are getting interested in the church work than have been for some time. Our pastor delivered two wonderful sermons Saturday and Sunday which were enjoyed by a large crowd both days.

We had with us Thursday and Friday night a young preacher from Montgomery, which brought us two fine messages. We welcome him back into our midst.

Our Sunday School and B. Y. P. U. are doing fine. We had 115 present at Sunday School Sunday morning and a larger crowd for preaching services.

The singing was fine at both services. We were very glad to have all the visitors to help us in our singing and welcome you back every Sunday. Ray Devaughn sang a solo which everyone enjoyed. Two duets were rendered by Prof. W. M. Devaughn and Jessie Jones. We are proud of the fact that we have such fine talent at home and if we should be caught with no help from some where else we can still have some good sniging.

Prof. Devaughn promised us Sunday night that he would have something "special" for us next Sunday night so you had better be there for you can never tell what to expect when he gets in a singing spirit.

The social at Miss Ora Devaughn's was enjoyed by a large crowd Saturday night. We were very glad to have with us our pastor, Rev. W. P. Lowry and wife. He seemed to have enjoyed it as well as the young people. There are plenty of ways to have "good" good times and there are too many ways to have "bad" good times. So lets remember and always choose the good.

Come back and be with us next Sunday and Sunday night. We need you.

JACKSON CHAPEL 4-H CLUB NEWS

Jackson Chapel 4-H Club held its regular meeting Saturday, June 24, with Clifford Manning, president of Chilton County 4-H Club boys, as a guest. He took Mr. Stapp's place and outlined plans of coming events for the boys.

We enjoyed Mr. Manning's visit very much and hope he will come again. Other visitors are welcome.

We hope our absent members will come out next time. Our club will give a chicken supper in the near future which will be announced later. The proceeds are to go toward sending one or two of our 4-H boys to the World's Fair in Chicago.—Calvin Williamson, Reporter.

Yearlings and two-year-olds may do well on pasture alone, but calves under six or eight months of age require grain feeding in order to be kept thrifty and growing.

ARTICLE XXII. The Legislature shall have the power to levy and collect taxes for State purposes on net incomes from whatever source derived within this State, including the incomes derived from salaries, fees and compensation paid from the State, County, Municipality, and any agency or creature thereof, for the calendar year, 1933, and thereafter and to designate and define the incomes to be taxed and to fix the rates of taxes provided that the rate shall not exceed 5 per cent nor 3 per cent on corporations. Income shall not be deemed property for purposes of ad valorem taxes. All income derived from such tax shall be held in trust for the payment of the floating debt of Alabama until all debts due on Oct. 1st, 1932, are paid and thereafter used exclusively for the reduction of State ad valorem taxes.

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks next preceding the 18th day of July, 1933, in each County of the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said County.

* THIS AND THAT *
* By W. J. Baldwin *
* * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * *

Nobody, except those on the inside, really knows just what Uncle Sam is doing for Alabama through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. This organization, born of the Hoover administration and nourished and perpetuated by the Franklin Roosevelt regime, is pouring money into the pocketbooks of every crossroads, hamlet, village, town and metropolis of the state. Not only that, but it is making, or rather letting, boys and men earn it by the sweat of their brows.

Reforestation alone, an idea hatched in the alert and busy mind of President Roosevelt, and looked after by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, pours $2,000 every week into the coffers of Alabama laundries and washerwomen.

It takes $1,500 worth of food to feed the woodmen one day. All of the food, so far as it is practicable to do so, is purchased in Alabama.

It sends $825,000 every six months to the parents of these boys. This money does not miss a single crossroads.

$165,000 more is spent monthly by the boys themselves. Every boy encamped gets $5 each month for his incidental expenses, such as chewing gum; cigarettes and nicknacks, all of which he spends with the merchants in the nearby towns. He needs money for no other purpose. He is fed, housed, clothed and kept clean at Uncle Sam's expense. Just imagine if you can, what $825,000 every six months means to the folks hack home. And what a joy it must be to the boys to know that they did it.

Thanks to Thad Holt for this interesting information.

Ninety thousand packages of garden seeds were distributed in the spring by the R. F. C. to Alabama gardeners. Last week, down in the southern section of the state, the canning of the vegetables raised from these seeds was begun. And Uncle Sam is furnishing cans, too. Relief Associations, Home Economists and county officials are assisting. Sixty-four counties will have set up canning plants when the year ends. Three more counties very likely will join the movement before the cans get cold. Home economists will be there to show the housewives how to can.

One million, five hundred thousand cans of home-grown fruits and vegetables will help Alabama keep the wolf from the door.

The canners agree, when they accept Uncle Sam's aid, no to sell one can of the food. It MUST be consumed at home, except when passed to needy families unable to do their own canning.

Some good advice: "If you can can, can."

This canning movement will move like the wedged-shaped harbingers of summer, travel northward as the crop matures.

With Alabama's young manhood planting trees, growing in body and health in the great out-o'-doors, their families getting most of the pay, and housewives "putting up" 1,500,000 cans of foodstuff, it begins to look like the winter won't be so hard after all, thanks to Uncle Sam.

Now, if Alabama's more fortunate folks who earn more than a living would just agree to pay a little income tax on what they earn above a living, and vote to validate the state's debts so the 12,000 underpaid and unpaid school teachers could pay their bills and buy a few of the necessities and comforts of life, everything would be hunky-dunky.

Miss Perkins is coming down to Atlanta to see with her own eyes whether or not the people of the South wear shoes. May I suggest, respectfully and appropriately, that the Tuskegee Quartet sing "All God's Chillun Got Shoes," and somebody recite "The Barefoot Boy."

I am going up now to the Repeal Headquarters on the mezzanine floor of the Gay-Teague (some hotel) and chew the rag a bit with Alf Tunstall, Atticus Mullin, Brooks Smith and Ed Taylor. Then I'll go around to the other side's headquarters and see how they are coming along. Maybe next week I can give you the low-down on how old man Volstead's pet is faring under the cross fire of repealists and cannonites, as Atticus has dubbed them.

CARD OF THANKS

To our many neighbors and friends we acknowledge with sincere love and deep appreciation the many tender sympathies and loving kindness. Also the many beautiful flowers rendered in the recent illness of our loving daughter, Jewel. And especially do we thank Dr. Franklin of Thorsby, and the nurses of the Central Alabama Hospital, for their help and kindness. May the Lord, our God, extend to each of you His loving kindness and tender mercy throughout your life, is our prayer. She is so much better.—Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Barrett and Children.

OUR WEEKLY SERMON

Bible Subject Discussed by Rev. J. Robert Bean, Clanton, Ala.

HELP

Note—This, perhaps, will be the last of my sermons in the paper, at least for the time being. My revivals will take just about all of my time for some time to come. I would like to be free during the revival season so that I may devote myself wholly to that work.

The scripture selected for this last sermon is in Acts 16:9. "And a vision appeared to Paul in the night; there stood a man of Macedonia and prayed him, saying, come into Macedonia and help us."

One thing that we should remember in connection with this text is that Paul and his party was under the guiding influence of the holy spirit, and that this "vision" of a man standing before Paul was God's way of making known to Paul just where he should go next. The beauty of it is found in the fact that Paul was ready to follow wheresoever the spirit led. We find this statement born out of the next, or 10th verse, namely, "And after he had seen the vision, immediately we endeavored to go into Macedonia, assuredly gathering that the Lord had called us for to preach the gospel unto them."

God knew that the people of Macedonia needed the gospel and that they were ready to receive it. God also knew that he had a man in the person of Paul that was ready to act the moment he had knowledge of God's wishes. Applying this text to ourselves, let me say to the church people, if you could just see how badly your pastor needs your help, you surely would be found ready to render to him every aid and assistance possible, giving him your cooperation and prayers at all times.

At the evening service of one of Mr. Moody's evangelistic meetings a preacher asked him to tell him just what was the source of his great power over men that caused so many to quit the walks of sin and take Christ as their savior. Mr. Moody turned and said, "follow me." They crossed in front of the stand to the right side of the auditorium and Mr. Moody noiselessly opened a door that opened into a large room and stepped aside, waving his hand into the room, and what that preacher saw spoke louder and with more force than any words Mr. Moody could have uttered, for there, on their knees were a number of men and women, and as Mr. Moody silently closed the door he said, "That, so far as human help is concerned, is the source of my power. For," said he, "These men and women didn't come to hear me, but to pray that sinners might hear me. They are there talking to God for me while I preach."

Some preachers will change churches next year and their places be filled by other preachers just because, as the church will say, they didn't accomplish anything as pastor, when the poor fellow did the best he could without the help of the church. Get behind your pastor wih your prayers and give him every assistance possible, for he needs it, and that very badly, and besides, it is your duty.

Now let me close with this: The only object that I have in view in trying to write these articles for the paper was to help someone, and while only a few have taken the trouble to tell me so, I feel that others have been helped also. But, of course, if the people are not reading them, it would be better to discontinue them because the space could better be filled with something else that would appeal to them. One thing I know, I have gotten lots of joy out of the labor of them, hoping each week that I might be of help to some one. Brethren pray for me. — J. Robert Bean.

SPORTS

VERBENA VS. CLANTON TODAY

Announcement is made that Clanton will play Verbena here on the local field at 3:30 p.m., today (Thursday), June 29th.

Verbena has a good team, and an interesting game is expected. The admission remains the same—10c.

ONE GAME RAINED OUT

The game scheduled to be played between Clanton and Maxwell Field Tuesday afternoon was called on account of rain in the fourth inning, with Maxwell Field leading at the time, four to one. However, as the game did not go the required five innings, it was counted no game. The above statistics and indivdual percentages include all games through the Wetumpka game last Thursday.

Clanton was scheduled to play at Marbury Wednesday afternoon; taking Verbena here today, and to go to Selma Saturday.

OUR "KID" TEAM

It was a bit interesting to listen to the Wetumpka fans as they commented on our team at Wetumpka last Thursday.

When they first appeared the boys were the objects of much good-natured "ragging," and quite a few times they were referred to as a "bunch of kids." They expected the "bunch of kids" to show very little against their crack team which sports Tommy Sewell, "Monk" Debardelaben, Russell Lewis and others well known in Central Alabama baseball circles. But the game was not very old until words of admiration could be heard as our "kids" cracked out base hits, and fielded like veterans.

Clanton has a good baseball team even if they are kids. They merit your support. See that they get it.

CLANTON WON FROM COLUMBIANA

Clanton beat Columbiana on the local field last Wednesday afternoon 6 to 3.

Rutland allowed Columbiana only four safe hits, while Clanton was collecting 13 off Kendrick, including Littlejohn's triple and doubles by Simpson, Jones and Littlejohn.

Three errors were made by each team, but all of these played big parts in the scoring. Littlejohn led the locals with three hits out of four times at bat, with Rutland close with two out of four. Goodwin led his team with two out of four.

The box score:

CLANTON BEAT WETUMPKA 6 TO 4

Clanton went to Wetumpka last Thursday afternoon and won their fourth straight victory, by the score of six to four. Clanton scored once in the first inning. Simpson drove Palmer's first pitch to right center for a double. Hayes popped to first base. Simms hit a hot grounder to Brown at short, and Graham at third dropped Brown's snap throw to third trying to nip Simpson. Littlejohn doubled to score Simpson.

In the third inning Sewell let Simpson's looper back of second bounce out of his glove. Hayes's out put Simpson on second. Taylor in right field dropped Simms's fly, Simms taking second and Simpson third. Littlejohn's second hit scored both of these.

In the fourth Glasscock walked, Tiffin sacrificed him to second. Watkins flied to left. Simpson walked. Hayes doubled to score Glasscock and Simpson, and Simms doubled to score Hayes.

In Wetumpka's fourth, Sewell singled, Lewis doubled, Hayes threw wild to first, Sewell scoring, Lewis taking third and Fain second. Whitaker's double drove these in and Graham's single drove in Whitaker. Wetumpka's runs all came in the fourth. Watkins allowed only two singles after this.

Jones is due special mention for his brilliant defensive play at second. Watkins allowed only six hits; one of these might have been a put-out with a little faster fielding.

Littlejohn led Clanton's hitters with a double and single, and Jones got two singles. Simpson got one hit, was safe on an error once, and drew three free passes in his five appearances. Palmer, Wetumpka's starting pitcher, saw his 7-game winning string broken, this being his first defeat of the season.

ALEX FRAZIER DIED

Mr. Alex Frazier, age 39 years, died Sunday afternoon at the Central Alabama Hospital in Clanton as a result of wounds received when he was shot Tuesday night, June 20, by E. G. Ashley, L. & N. railway detective, in the freight yards at Clanton. Mr. Frazier was buried Monday at 2:00 p.m., at Samaria, with the Rev. S. J. Ezell conducting the services. A large crowd was present to pay their respects. The burial was in charge of Martin.

Mr. Frazier is survived by a wife, Mrs. Aurabelle (Edwards) Frazier, three sons, Elliot, James Donald and Harold; three daughters, Marie, Edith and Mary Lou; four sisters, Mrs. E. W. Miller, of Clanton; Mrs. Van Buren Edwards, Lomax; Mrs. Herman Eubanks, Chattanooga and Mrs. Conrad McDowell, also of Chattanooga.

Mr. Frazier had only one brother, Milton Frazier, who died about 25 years ago as a result of injuries received when a horse ran away with him.

MYRTIS ADAMS KILLED

Miss Myrtis Adams, age 19, of Birmingham, niece of Miss Cleo Broadhead, of Clanton, and known to many throughout Chilton County, died in a Birmingham hospital Saturday, June 24, as a result of injuries received when the car in which she was riding was struck by a street car in West End Friday night.

Miss Adams is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Adams, who formerly lived near Maplesville, but who have been living in Birmingham for the past 15 years. Mrs. Adams was formerly Miss Inez Broadhead, sister to Miss Cleo Broadhead, of Clanton, and daughter of Mr. L. B. Broadhead of Maplesville. Both Mr. and Mrs. Adams were born and reared in Chilton County. Mr. J. H. Broadhead of Clanton was an uncle of the deceased, and Mr. W. F. Broadhead, of Birmingham, who is connected with Tiffin-Klinner Furniture Co., of Clanton, was also her uncle.

The other parties who were in the car with Miss Adams at the fatal event were Miss Rosa Nell Dowling, Mr. Grady Garner and Mr. A. L. Norris, all of Birmingham. Both Miss Dowling and Mr. Garner received fatal injuries. Mr. Norris is still in a Birmingham hospital in a serious condition.

Funeral for Miss Adams was held at her home, 957 North Fifty-Third Street, Birmingham, Sunday, followed by burial at Forest Hill cemetery, with Ridout directing.

In the past Miss Adams has been a frequent visitor in and around Clanton. It is reported that it was her intention to have visited in Clanton with Miss Cleo Broadhead this past week end.

In the Birmingham Post of Tuesday night appeared the following: "Across a marriage license in the office of Eugene Henry, county commissioner, is written the notation, 'Miss Adams passed away before the ceremony could be performed.' The license was issued May 16th to Miss Myrtis Adams, 19, and J. D. Sanders, 21."

PRESENT TIRE PRICES STILL BELOW 1926

"Since 1926 the trend of tire prices has been steadily downward and they are still 55 per cent below the point at which they were nine years ago, even with the two recent increases this year," said L. E. Diefenderfer, the local Goodyear deader.

"But with the upward movement of general commodity prices, raw material prices, especially cotton and crude rubber which have shown sharp rises since April, tires may go higher.

"At any rate, tire prices are about at the same level as they were a year ago, and my advice to those who are in the market is to buy now before prices go up again, since it is a foregone conclusion, in my opinion, that the present low point of 55 per cent below 1926 figures will not continue long on a steadily rising commodity price market."

Further explaining his contention, Mr. Diefenderfer said that crude rubber was selling at three cents per pound in April while early in June it reached six and a quarter cents per pound, or more than double.

Cotton, on the other hand, has climbed from seven and a half cents to nearly eleven cents early in June, an increase of 46 per cent.

"I give you these figures," Mr. Diefenderfer told The Union-Banner, "not because I want to scare people into buying tires, but because I see the possibility of increased prices as a natural sequence of what will certainly follow with the return of better business conditions.

Tire business at Dief's Service Station has shown a steady improvement in the past several weeks, reflecting the effect of the national administration's "new deal."

MT. PLEASANT 4-H CLUB

All boys of the Mt. Pleasant community are urged to meet at the school building next Friday night, June 30, for the purpose of organizing a 4-H club.

H.A. Harris Explains R. F. C. Relief Work

Editor Union-Banner:

Since there has been some discussion through your paper relative to the duties and responsibilities of the director of work relief of R. F. C. organization of Chilton County, I am writing this letter to explain some facts pertaining to this office.

First, I want to say that I was employed by the County Commissioners, who fix and pay my salary. Not one penny of it comes from the R. F. C. funds. My duties and responsibilities have to do altogether with the people who are certified for R. F. C. work and reaches to every nook and corner of the county. After the social department has received the applications, made their investigation and determined who is entitled to relief and how many days per week, they send to my office a certificate showing the serial number, name, date, address and number of days per week.

It then becomes my duty to issue and deliver to the person an identification card showing the above facts and assign him to some work project. I must then make a work project sheet showing the serial number, name and number of days per week the person is to work. This sheet is made in triplicate—one copy must be delivered to the foreman of the work project, one to the disbursing officer, and one filed in my office. These work projects too, are all over the county.

The certifications are made daily and therefore makes it necessary for me to be in daily communication with workmen and work foremen, and also changes in the number of days per week the men are to work, and removals are being made, which makes it necessary to change all work sheets and notify men and foremen of such changes. And as director of the work it is my duty to advise and plan with the work foremen concerning the work and then to inspect it.

All these communications must be made by mail and by personal visits. I must also keep the foremen supplied with forms for making reports and help them in every way I can to see that men are worked and paid for their work, besides answering hundreds of questions daily.

The identification cards, work project sheets and weekly payroll sheets are furnished by the R. F. C. organizations. All other expenses and supplies I furnish myself, such as postage, paper, pencils, pens, ink, gas, oil car, upkeep and repairs. All of those are expensive and aftey they are paid the salary is considerably reduced. As I said in the beginning my duty covers the entire county and therefore requires quite a lot of travel in my car. In fact everyone connected with R. F. C. work has plenty to do.

Again I want to say that my duties begin after the men have been identified for work. As to who works, the number of days per week, when these days are increased or decreased or when the worker is removed, I have nothing whatever to do.

I hope this letter will help the people to understand the discussions that have been printed in your paper. —Respectfully, H. A. Harris.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

CASH FOR ALABAMA COTTON GROWERS WHO CUT ACREAGE

Auburn, Ala., June 26.—Payments totaling approxibately $10,000,000 would be possible for Alabama cotton growers and 988,000 acres of Alabama cotton land might be retired from production this year, if cotton producers agree in sufficient numbers to cooperate with the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in its proposed acreage reduction program.

Farmers themselves will answer the question of whether the acreage reduction program is carried through. In every cotton growing county of the South this week, including all those in Alabama, growers are being offered an opportunity to decide whether they will cooperate with the government in reducing the cotton acreage and helping restore the buying power of the Cotton Belt.

Contracts are being made available to growers through the Extension Service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute under the leadership of Dr. L. N. Duncan, director, with county agents in charge in the counties.

County agents are being assisted by local committees of growers. Signers of the contracts agree to take out of production from 25 to 40 per cent of their cotton acreage.

Consideration offered cotton producers for their land is contained in two alternative plans. Under the first the cotton grower would be given an option on government-held cotton in an amount equal to that which he agrees to retire from production and at a price of cents per pound, and, in addition, would receive a cash payment of $6 per acre for land yielding on the average 100 to 124 pounds of lint per acre; $7 per acre for land yielding 125 to 149 pounds per acre; $8 for land yielding 150 to 174 pounds per acre; $10 for land yielding 175 to 224 pounds per acre; $11 for land yielding 225 to 274 pounds per acre; and $12 for land yielding 275 pounds and over per acre.

Under the second plan the growers would not receive an option on government held coton but would receive a cash benefit of $7 per acre on land yielding on the average 100 to 124 pounds of lint cotton per acre; $9 on land yielding 125 to 149 pounds per acre; $11 on land yielding 150 to 174 pounds per acre; $14 on land yielding 175 to 224 pounds per acre; $17 on land yielding 225 to 274 pounds per acre; and $20 on land yielding 275 pounds and over per acre.

GROWERS MAY TAKE OPTIONS IN PLACE OF REDUCED ACRES

Auburn, Ala., June 25.—Under the cotton option plan of the Agricultural Adjustment Act the grower who removes a portion of his crop from production this season may take an option for the same amount removed from cultivation. The cotton on which this option may be taken is held now by the Government and is available to those growers cooperating to reduce the existing surplus.

Therefore, thise growers who do cooperate to remove a part of their crop from production this season may be assured that they will have as much cotton to sell this fall as if part of their present crop had not been removed from cultivation.

If a grower reduces his production this year by say ten bales this grower will be paid a fair price for the land so removed from the cultivation of cotton. In addition, he will be given an option on ten bales of Government cotton at a price of six cents a pound. This option costs him nothing and if the price goes down, the farmer has no obligation in the matter, but if it goes up he receives the benefit of the increased price.

In this way the cooperating farmer will have just as much cotton to sell this fall as he would have had normally, and is saved the expense of cultivating, harvesting, ginning, and marketing the part removed from cultivation. He will also receive an immediate cash rental payment on the land removed from cotton production and still have the crop produced on his remaining acreage to sell on the open market.

It is expected that Alabama cotton acreage will be reduced 988,000 acres and that growers of the State will receive around $10,000,000 in cash benefits.

Miss Austin of the relief administration of Chilton County announces that cans are to be furnished by the government to the R. F. C. families of the county. She states that these families are expected to bring vegetables to these centers where the steam pressure cooker and sealers, bought by the county commissioners, will be used.

Fruit jar tops and bands which the R. F. C. has already, may be obtained at Red Cross warehouse Saturday, Miss Austin asserts. It is suggested by Miss Austin that letters are being sent out next week notifying the various families which center they are to attend and dates and place of meeting.

Farm prices advanced 17 per cent from April to May and 27 per cent from February to May. Economists say that the principal cause of the rise is due to "controlled inflation" measures passed by Congress.

AGRICULTURE

By Clifford M. Manning

General Method of Controling Insects

There are helpful insects as well as harmful ones, and sometimes we destroy the helpful ones in trying to rid ourselves of the insect pests. A few years ago there was some complaint about cotton poison (calcium arsenate) killing honey bees.

The control of insect pests is partially effected by natural means. When a particular insect becomes very numerous, further development is checked by its natural enemies such as birds, parasitic insects, diseases, and unfavorable food or climatic conditions. This control, however, may not effect any noticeable reduction until after serious losses have been suffered as a result of crop damage.

Other methods of control have to do with prevention of breeding and hibernation, mechanical destruction by means of cleaning up trash in and around the fields, plowing and rotation of crops. Losses are sometimes reduced by regulation, the time of planting and the method of growing the crops, and also by using resistant varieties. The insects are often destroyed in large numbers by trapping them in certain stages of development and by the use of insecticides.

Insecticides for insect destruction are of three types, use with reference to the habit and nature of the insect. (1) Poisons such as arsenicals, Paris green, hellebore, etc., are used for biting or eating insects, in various mixtures as dusts or liquids.

(2) Poisons and other contact substances, such as tobacco extracts, oils, soaps, emulsions, lime sulphate and various dusts are used in the control of sucking insects.

(3) Gases, such as carbon-bisulphide, hydrocyanic acid gas, paradichlorobenzene, and calcium cyanide are used for either biting or sucking insects.

The insects which have caused most damags to corn, wheat, sorghum and cotton crops, or promise to be the most destructive, are the Hessian fly, the chinch bug, the cotton boll weevil and the European corn borer, or the larger corn stalk borer.

For more information read the two articles under County Farm Agent's Notes of last week's issue, June 22, of The Union-Banner, "Control Measures for Garden Pests," and "Borers are Damaging our Alabama Corn Crop."

My topic for next week will be "Plant Diseases."

GAME AND FISH NEWS

Montgomery, Ala., June 27. — Bait casting is the casting of an artificial bait or lure by the use of rod, line and multiplying reel. It is one of the latest methods developed for catching black bass and is widely used.

Although comparatively modern, little history is available on this method of casting. A story, which has been accepted as authentic by a great many sportsmen, said it originiated as follows:

A wood-chopper, working along the edge of a lake, noticed that when a chip would fly into the water the bass would rise and sometimes strike. This led him to rig up a crude fishing outfit with which he "cast" by whirling the line above his head and heaving his lure out into the lake, then "reeling in" hand over hand. Strange as it may seem, he caught fish. From this unpretentious beginning the great number of lures that commonly are referred to as wooden minnows, or plus, were developed.

Casting of the lure "just where it should go" is an art acquired only by practice. Necessary equipment consists of a bamboo or steel rod, three to six feet long, a hard, braided silk line, with a nine to 24 pound test, and an assortment of wooden minnows, pork rind bait, spinners, bucktails, etc.

The principal idea is to cast in places frequented by bass and try to induce the big fellows to strike. To accomplish this, grasp the rod firmly by the grip with the right hand, with the thumb resting on the spool of the reel. With elbow close to the waist, raise the rod with a steady backward motion until the tip of the rod and the lure have swung to a point behind the head and over the shoulder.

When the lure has reached the limit of the back swing, start the rod tip forward. Release the pressure on the spool slightly at the start of the forward cast and follow the lure with the tip of the rod until it points to the spot the lure is to fall. The lure will shoot forward and as it strikes the water the spool must be stopped entirely and the caster must immediately begin to retrieve the lure to give the bass a moving object.

This method is known as the "overhead" cast and is used best in open water. The "side" cast and "underhand" cast frequently are employed, depending upon the conditions confronted.

BLACKBERRIES ARE NOT POISONED AS IS REPORT

Because of the drought and an epidemic of locusts, Miss Ruth Pardue, home demonstration agent, has received numerous inquiries relative to blackberries being poisoned and unfit for use this year.

She stated that she has been advised by Auburn specialists that the locusts have had no harmful effect on berries, and that they are suitable for food either cooked or raw.

Farmers Urged To Raise Less Cotton

All farmers of Chilton County who are interested in seeing the price of cotton rise to a price on a level with what the farmers have to buy will take out of production a part of their cotton crop, is the opinion of county agent Stapp, in regard to the Less Cotton Appropriation Act, which was passed in the last session of congress.

The Extension Service of Alabama has been drafted to present this issue to the cotton farmers of this state. County Agent Stapp held two meetings, at 10 a.m., and 1:00 p.m., Saturday, June 24, in Clanton, in the interest of this cause.

At the morning hour, Mr. Stapp held a conference with about 30 of the leading farmers of the county, upon whom the responsibility is to be placed of presenting this plan to the individual cotton farmers of Chilton County during the week of June 26 to July 1. At the meeting at 1:00 p.m., Mr. Stapp presented his program to about 150 farmers, who met at the courthouse. Many questions were asked, and practically every farmer present manifest his intense interest in the plan.

Before Secretary Wallace will declare this act in force, the cotton belt must agree to take out of production 10,000,000 acres of cotton. Of this amount the quota of Chilton County is 12,000 acres, and of Alabama 988,000 acres.

The government is offering two plans of settlement for cotton taken out of production. One is the full cash settlement, which ranges from $7 to $20 per acre and the other is the part cash settlement, which ranges from $6 to $12 per acre, plus the right to buy at 6c, government cotton. The government has 2,500,000 bales of cotton on hand which it has taken from farm bureaus, farm boards and various cooperative concerns.

Each farmer who takes advantage of this second plan of settlement will be allowed to buy as much cotton as it is estimated by the committeeman of that district that he has taken out of production. None of the government-bought cotton is to be sold for less than 9½ cents prior to December 1, 1933.

The various committmen whom Mr. Stapp has appointed are to inspect individual farmers' fields and estimate on basis of the last 3 years' crop the yield of each farmer's crop and decide what is to be the basis of settlement. After each farmer has divided how many acres, if any, he wishes to take out of production, the committeeman of that district is to select a plot of this amount in what he considers to be average cotton of the man's field.

The committeemen are to sign contracts with the farmers relative to the amount of cotton they wish to take out of production and the plan of settlement agreed on same. Daily reports are to be made by these committeemen to Mr. Stapp, who in turn reports to Mr. L. N. Duncan, head of the extension service at Auburn. Mr. Duncan, together with other state heads of extension service must report daily to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace the progress being made, and by the end of the week the Secretary will be able to announce whether enough farmers are interested, for the plan to be executed by the government.

No cotton taken out of production will receive settlement from the government that has not been inspected both before and after plowing. The contracts the farmers are signing will not be in force until after July 1, at which time Secretary Wallace will be able to announce definitely the policy the government is to follow. If the secretary announces that the plan is to go through, then the contracts the farmers have signed will be irrevocable. Through the state 20 vocational teachers have been appointed to settle all trouble cases.

Mr. Stapp, together with the committeemen he has appointed, are holding meetings all over the county this week for the purpose of presenting this plan to the farmers. Following is the itinerary of Mr. Stapp's program for the remainder of the week:

Thursday, June 29, 9:00 a.m., Maplesville school, Shiloh school, Minooka school; at 1:00 p.m., Stanton school, Jemison school, Thorsby school.

Mr. J. P. Montgomery, vocational teacher at Jemison, and Mr. Earl Thomas, vocational teacher at Isabella, are to aid Mr. Stapp in making these appointments.

PLAY AT ISABELLA

An entertainment sponsored by the 4-H Club will be presented at Isabella High School Saturday, July 8th, at 8 o'clock p.m. Admission charges will be 10c and 15c. The program will consist of varied features of interest.

TREES BORN ALIVE

Montgomery, Ala., June 27. — The bearing of living young is not limited to the higher animals but also occurs in the plant world, points out Colonel Page S. Bunker, Alabama State Forester. Most trees with which we are familiar are produced mainly by seed which germinate and start growing after leaving the parent plant. However, vivipary, or the production of living off-spring is characteristic of certain kinds of trees.

This phenomenon is most readily noted in species inhabiting the tropical Mangrove swamps. In these situations the tides flow back and forth leaving the mud exposed for a period each day. The Rhizophora, a small evergreen tree growing in such situations, furnishes a good example of vivipary among trees. The seed germinates while still within the fruit on the tree. The rudimentary stem grows downward and the young plant remains for some time in this position. Often the seedling attains a length of two feet or more before it leaves the parent tree. When it drops in the mud the sharp point of the elementary stem penetrates the surface and maintains the seedling in an upright position. Roots spring from the lower part of the stem, and from this point onward the growth of the young tree proceeds in normal manner.

Will Vote For Warrant Act And Against Income Tax

Two former governors of Alabama, Hon. Chas. Henderson of Troy and Hon. W. W. Brandon of Tuscaloosa, announced this week that they would vote for the warrant act, but against the income tax amendment, both of which will be submitted to a vote of the electorate on July 18th.

In a letter to state senator E. F. Hildreth, chairman of the campaign against increased taxation, Governor Henderson stated that he has been opposed to the income tax all the while and has not changed his views, although he will vote for the amendment validating outstanding warrants. Governor Henderson wrote:

"About two weeks ago I had a letter from Mr. Sterling Foster, manager of the campaign in favor of the amendment validating outstanding stae warrants, asking me for my opinion and whether I did or did not favor the amendment. I replied promptly that I did favor the Amendment validating outstanding state warrants. I've had letters since that statement questioning if I favored the income tax. It seems they, in some way, gathered the impression that I favored the income tax. I am writing you, as chairman of the campaign against the income tax, that I do not favor the state income tax amendment. It does not appear to me, from the statement of Mr. Hard, that the reduction in expenses and in increased revenues of the state, that there should be any lack of funds to take care of the outstanding state warrants."

A similar position is taken by former governor W. W. Brandon. In a speech before a meeting of farmers in Tuscaloosa Saturday, Senator Hildreth declared he was authorized to make the following announcement for Governor Brandon, who sat on the platform with him:

"Governor Brandon authorizes me to say that his reasons for opposing the income tax are that it will hamper our industrial growth; that we need the man with an income not only for aid in the recovery from the depression but also in future development and expansion of the state. The former governor believes it will require encouragement, rather than discouragement of capital to spur business recovery and create work for the army of idle. Former Governor Brandon also believes that the warrant amendment and the income tax proposal are not joined together or interdependent and that the people should ratify the warrant amendment.

HAYES MOTOR CO. HAS CHEVROLET DEALERSHIP NOW

New Firm Will Be Ready For Business Now In A Few Days

Dick and Jack Hayes take over the Chevrolet automobile agency in Clanton this week. Hayes Chevrolet Company is the name of the new firm. Dick will manage the automobile business here, while Jack continues to play baseball with the Chicago White Sox.

They take over the Chevrolet franchise Friday, July 7. Location of the business is in the Hayes Building next to Dief's Cafe. The office, showroom for new cars, and parts department will occupy the building fronting on the highway. Connecting back of this building and fronting on First Avenue will be the used car display room and the repair and service departments.

This concern will be the only authorized Chevrolet dealers in Chilton County. They will sell and service the new Chevrolet automobile as well as carry on a used car department and up-to-date automobile repair plant.

The personnel of the organization will be composed of hustling young men of proven ability and long experience with Chevrolet.

Dick Hayes, the manager, is himself a man of experience in the automobile game. He was a successful Chevrolet salesman prior to the time he went with Alabama Power Company at Lay Dam.

Barney Burnett will be bookeeper and have charge of the parts room. He has been engaged in this phase of Chevrolet service since 1929 with Polk Brothers.

Arthur Watson will be mechanic in charge of the service and repair department. Mr. Watson has been engaged in this line of work since 1926. He has had special training in several Chevrolet schools for mechanics. His fine work in Chevrolet service and repair work has already established him well in the confidence of Chevrolet owners throughout Chilton County.

While not yet definitely completed, Manager Dick Hayes says he will have a force of the best automobile salesmen it is possible to obtain in order to properly represent the great value of Chevrolet to every automobile prospect in this part of Alabama.

If hard work, hustling, fair dealing and courteous service can be depended upon to win, it is a foregone conclusion that the Hayes Chevrolet Company is destined to reap a harvest of good business in the future. They have in Chevrolet one of the most popular automobile values of the present day. Enthusiasm for service to the public is the constant desire of every member of the new firm from manager down to floor sweeper. Such a combination is bound to win a tremendous response of approval from an appreciative public.

Everybody is invited to visit Hayes Chevrolet Company any time after tomorrow, Friday, July 7th.

BIG PROJECT IN WEST CHILTON

Atchison Engaged In Clearing Channel of Oakmulgee Creek

About one hundred and fifty men are now employed in the clearing of Oakmulgee swamp west and southwest of Shoults. This work is under the supervision of county commissioner J. C. Atchison. The county and R. F. C. together are financing this activity.

This program involves the clearing of about four miles of the channel of the big creek. This work is being done in order to prevent overflow, and in order to protect property and roads throughout that section of the county. The channel of the creek was filled with torn up timbers by the big storm of March 21, 1932, and this program that is being launched is purposed to reopen this channel.

The storm of March 1932 went diagonally across Oakmulgee swamp and left greater timber wreckage behind than was the case of any of the other storm areas. Since the closing of the channel of the creek by the storm, high water has caused much damage in that section of the country.

UNITY YOUNG PEOPLE URGED TO ATTEND W. M. U. INSTITUTE

Plan to be there every day. Do not miss so great an opportunity to get information, aspiration and inspration. There will be fun galore. It will fill your soul with joy.

Young people, let us meet the 100 per cent goal on reports this quarter. The W. M. S.'s reported 100 per cent last time; surely we can do as well! Send them in after the last June meeting or bring them to the Institute.—Lydia Williams, Young People's Leader.

The regular meeting of the Chilton County post of the American Legion was held at the courthouse in Clanton at 8:00 p.m. Monday. The chief business of the evening was the election of officers for the coming year. Grover C. Bice, postmaster at Thorsby, was elected commander. The following were elected to compose the new executive committee: R. D. Woodson, of Lay Dam; K. M. Vinson, W. M. Wyatt, A. L. Robinson and Zeb Lockhart. The new commander appointed V. C. McKee. Fairview, to serve as adjutant for the coming fear.

At the meeting the post voted to take active part as a group in the county-wide picnic on July 21. At that time, it was announced, the delegates to the state convention at Tuscaloosa, July 23-25, will be choseh.

There were two visitors present at the meeting Monday night; Hunter Burnett and "Bunk" Hayslett, both of Tuscaloosa. Mr. Burnett is commander of the Farley W. Moody Post of the American Legion at Tuscaloosa, and Hayslett is service officer for that Post.

Mr. Burnett addressed the Post Monday night in the interest of adjusting the compensation claims of ex-service men under the new law. He spoke as a representative of Congressman W. B. Oliver, by whom he has been employed to handle all claims of ex-service men in the Sixth District. It is suggested by Mr. Burnett that all who are interested in communication with him in regard to this may find him at Box 844, Tuscaloosa, Ala.

Beginning next Monday, July 10th, Prof W. M. Devaughn, will teach a three-weeks singing school at Chestnut Creek, Cooper.

Prof. Devaughn is known better probably nowhere else in the county than he is at Chestnut Creek, as he has lived in that community the greater part of his life. The people there know of his ability as a singer and as a teacher, and the people of that vicinity will know of the opportunity that is before them in having a teacher of Prof. Devaughn's ability and ripe experience.

In making the announcement Prof. Devaughn permits The Union-Banner to quote him as saying: "The people of Chestnut Creek know me as a singing and music teacher, and they know that I will give them the best that is in me from the first day to the close of the school. I ask for the best and fullest cooperation that the people of the community are able to give, and in return I promise to teach them a worth-while singing school. Of course pupils from other communities are welcome and invited. There will be classes from the lowest to the highest, and the tuition will be reasonable."

Plans For the County-Wide Picnic Here July 21st

At the county-wide picnic last year it was voted to make it an annual affair. There were more than 2,500 at the picnic last year and it is the general opinion that there will be 5,000 in attendance this year. All who fail to attend on July 21 will miss a worthwhile program.

The program for last year was splendid and efforts are being put forth to arrange an even better program for this year. Several outstanding speakers have already accepted an invitation on this occasion. The 4-H club boys and the Future Farmers of America are planning something of interest. The leaders of the home demonstration clubs are also arranging an interesting program, which will include some exhibits.

Prizes are going to be offered again to fiddlers. A prize is also to be given to the largest family, all of whom must be present; to the couple married the longest, both of whom must be present; and to the newest "newly weds" in attendance.

The Kiwanis and Pilot clubs are cooperating in promoting the picnic again this year. A committee composed of Drs. C. O. Lawrence, and V. J. Gragg of the Kiwanis Club are arranging for a first aid booth on the picnic grounds.

There will be plenty of ice water furnished free to all. Cold drinks and pop corn will be available for those who wish to buy. The proceeds from the sales are to go to help defray the expenses of the picnic.

The place of the picnic is the same as it was last year—in the pine grove at Boswell's Tourist camp—about 2 miles south of Clanton on the Montgomery highway. The time is from 9:30 a.m., to 3:00 p.m. on July 21.

It is hoped that farmers, merchants, lawyers, doctors, bankers, and in fact people in every type of gainful occupation will join in and help make the program on this occasion worth something to Chilton County.—C. E. Stapp, county agent; Miss Ruth Pardue, home demonstration agent.

Polk Brothers Now Selling Chrysler and Plymouth

Polk Brothers announce that they are changing motor car agencies this week. They are taking over the Chrysler and Plymouth, which they consider to be a better motor car than they have been handling. Mr. Polk considers it quite a step of progress for his firm to take over this line of cars which is making such favorable records in the American auto field. Chrysler cars, it is cited, now occupy second place counting all its cars against General Motors cars, while oniy a few years ago it occupied twenty-seventh place.

The Plymouth, it is related, is the lowest priced six cylinder four door sedan on the American market. The people of Chilton County are entitled to all they can get for their dollar and the only way they can get it is to drive a new Plymouth, it is declared.

The Plymouth has more anti-friction bearings than any other low-price car on the market. This car has an automatic clutch and it is equipped with hydraulic brakes. The floating power of the Plymouth, which has proven such a success for the past two years eliminates all body vibration. Also the rigid frame and the safety steel body of the Plymouth are features that contribute considerably to the outstanding progress that the Plymouth has made on the American market.

The centrifuse brake drums of the Plymouth, it is shown, combine lightness and strength of steel with the soft braking advantages of cast iron. This type of drum prevents overheating and is the same as the drums used on higher priced cars. Another attracting feature of the Plymouth is the oilite springs which prevent all squeaks. Oilite discs separate each spring and keep all the springs well lubricated.

The easy shift all-silent transmission can also be had on this high class car at such a low price.

Dealers and distributors reveal, that oil doesn't have to be changed in the Plymouth except about every 1,500 miles and that no oil has to be added in the meantime.

In a few days Polk Brothers expect to have a full line of Plymouths and Chrysler eights as well. They invite the public to come down and inspect their new car and it will sell itself.

Polk Brothers are retaining the same shop and equipment to service others cars as hertofore and are only adding to this equipment to service Plymouths and Chryslers.

JOHN ADAMS IN WRECK

Mr. John Adams of Jemison had an auto wreck Saturday night near Willis's Camp ground just north of Clanton on the Birmingham highway. It is reported that the Adams car was pushed off the road by a car driven by a negro, and that the car turned over several times.

It is reported that Miss Katheryn Foss, Miss Edith Foss and Mr. Herman Robinson, all of Thorsby, were in the car with Mr. Adams. Several of the party suffered minor injuries, but no serious injury was reported. The car, however, was badly crushed.

Stapp Reports Contracts Already Signed For About Half of Chilton County's Quota of Cotton Acreage Reduction

BUSINESS MEN ENDORSE PLAN

Farmers Urged to Help Out In Plan to Reduce The Cotton Crop

When a representative of The Union-Banner interviewed Mr. John C. Page, cashier of the First National Bank of Clanton, for an expression on the proposed cotton acreage reduction plan, Mr. Page promptly gave his whole-hearted approval to the movement, and voiced the hope that the farmers of Chilton County will respond readily with their cooperation.

"I stand squarely for the proposal to take a large acreage of cotton out of production," said Mr. Page, "believing it is the only means whereby the future price of the staple can be upheld."

Mr. Page turned to a government bulletin on his desk from which he quoted these words by President Roosevelt:

"The fate of the plan depends upon the support it is given by those who are asked to put it into operation. This program for the cotton producer essentially places the responsibility upon the individual farmer. He and he alone will in the last analysis, determine whether it shall succeed. This plan offers the cotton producer a practical, definite means to put into immediate application the method which congress has prescribed to improve his situation. I have every confidence that the cotton producers will face the facts and cooperate fully in the reasonable and practical plan that is proposed."

Concluding his remarks, Mr. Page said: "I agree with the government agencies that this program is the best and surest method of making the adjustments necessary to improve the cotton farmers' situation. I have hope and faith that the farmers of Chilton County will come across with their quota by Saturday night."

MULLINS FAVORS COTTON PLAN

Mr. Renfroe Mullins, who is one of Clanton's best authorities on cotton, is heartily in favor of the government plan for reduction of cotton acreage. He believes that this proposition offers a workable plan to raise the price of cotton if farmers will only carry it out. Mr. Mulins shows that if 11,000,000 bales were worth 9 cents as shown in August of last year and that when the final estimate was shown to be 13,000,000 bales that the price of cotton dropped to 6 cents, farmers can't expect anything above 6 cents this year unless they take advantage of this government plan. Also he cites the 13,000,000 bale carryover which will be coupled with 14 or 15 million bales this year to lower the price of cotton if farmers don't take advantage of this plan that the government is offering.

Mr. Mullins declares that he is in favor of the option plan in preference to the full cash settlement plan, because by this means the farmer gets the same amount of cotton that he would produce and, also, gets all the advantage in the rise of prices.

Further it is affirmed by Mr. Mullins that he has heard this plan discussed through newspaper, over radio, and from the rostrum and yet he has the first man to see who can prove that this plan would be a failure if it is carried out.

This is a good plan also, Mr. Mullins believes, because it will aid the farmer in producing more food-stuff for his family and stock, which is absolutely necessary at the present time for any farmer who wishes to borrow money or get loans extended at banks.

FRANK CALLEN'S STATEMENT

Mr. Callen declared that he and the Peoples Savings Bank are behind the proposition 100 per cent. "It hits the nail on the head with the idea of regulating the supply to meet the demand. We have no reason to anticipate an increased demand for cotton this year, so naturally the only possible way to give the cotton farmer relief will be to prevent over-production."

WORKERS ARE PUSHING PROGRAM DURING THIS WEEK

Twelve thousand acres of cotton signed up to take out of production in Chilton County by Saturday night is the goal of County Agent C. E. Stapp and his corps of 50 assistants who are working to put over our part in the government's cotton control program.

Up to last Saturday night Mr. Stapp reports 1,193 contracts signed involving 4,934 acres. The field workers had a meeting Monday night and took a new start toward completing the job this week:

Mr. Stapp Monday addressed the following letter to all cotton farmers in the county:

The final call is being made to see who is willing to cooperate in a cause which we think means for improvement in price of the cotton farmer's crop. We have at present enough cotton to supply another year. The present report on cotton conditions shows an increase of 7 to 10 per cent in acreage, 25 to 30 per cent increase in fertilizer, stand good, weevil infestation very little, and an outlook for more than fourteen million bales of cotton this year. This crop added to our present carry over of about thirteen million bales will make a total of twenty-six to twenty-seven million bales of cotton.

Our government is offering to help us to help ourselves. I must say here that surely the cotton farmer who is not interested in cooperating in this great move must not understand it. I urge that if you know a farmer who is not willing to cooperate in this proposition that you get a committee of 2 or 3 who know this person well and you and the committee go to him and do your best to explain, and ask his cooperation.

At a meeting of field inspectors this morning, I instructed them to see everyone they could within the next few days and get a statement from the grower as to what he thinks is a fair basis of settlement and get his signature to same. I instructed the committeemen to not make any inspections this week until all who wish to sign are given an opportunity.

Realizing that the committeemen will miss some cotton growers, I am arranging to have someone at the places listed below all day Thursday, July 6th, to talk to and get the signature for all who do not have a chance to sign up prior to that time.

Schoolhouses — Mars Hill, Isabella, Mt. Pleasant, Enterprise, Shoults, Stanton, Union Grove, Mineral Springs Culp, Providence, Beat 16.

Other meeting places—Old bank building, Jemison; courthouse, Clanton; Irby Deramus store, Verbena; L. & N. Depot, Mt. Creek; Kincheon (gin); Cal Foshee's store, Maplesville; city hall, Thorsby; Dennis's old store, Cooper; Shaw's store; Macedonia church; Pletcher, depot.

Again I wish to impress upon every cotton grower of Chilton County that the responsibility is upon the cotton grower. The government has offered to cooperate. If this plan fails it is going to be due to the failure of cotton growers to cooperate. I am anxious to see Chilton county do her part in this campaign and I am going to count on you doing your part. At the close of this week we hope to have a list of every farmer in this county who has signed, agreeing to cooperate in this move, also a list of all farmers who were given an opportunity to cooperate but refused.

GAME AND FISH NEWS

Birmingham, Ala., July 3.—Three prominent Alabama sportsmen, outstanding for their efforts in behalf of wild life conservation, have been named to represent this state on the Southern Regional Council of the Alabama Game Association.

They are I. T. Quinn of Montgomery, state commissioner of game and fisheries, Carson Adams of Birmingham, and Carl Lay of Gadsden.

The appointments were announced by A. C. "Zan" Heyward of Columbia, S. C., southern regional director for the association, following a conference here between Commissioner Quinn, Mr. Adams and himself. Mr. Lay previously had accepted a place on the council.

Each of the twelve southern states will have representation on the council which has been created to aid and advise in the rehabilitation of the wild life of the south. Mr. Heyward said it would devote its efforts primarily to solution of problems common to the entire southern area.

"The council will take no part in internal affairs of the conservation departments of the several states unless specifically invited to do so," said Mr. Heyward, "but will aid and cooperate with all departments and sportsmen's organizations within the region."

By promoting a program of research, education, demonstration, and practical application of the principles of conservation, the council hopes to develop more knowledge of the life history, habits and requirements of the various species of game and fish and closer cooperation between sportsmen and landowners in wild life restoration.

STATE OF ALABAMA
A PROCLAMATION
By The
GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama at its last extraordinary session ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which proposed amendment is herein set out, and ordered that the election be held on the first Tuesday after the expiration of three months from and after the final adjournment of the said session of the Legislature at which the amendment was proposed, and

WHEREAS, the said session of the Legislature at which the said amendment was proposed finally adjourned on Friday, April 14, 1933, and the first Tuesday after three months from and after the said final adjournment of the said session of the Legislature is Tuesday, July 18, 1933, and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, is required by law to be given by a proclamation of the Governor;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, B. M. Miller, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday the 18th day of July, 1933, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama in the manner and form required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:—

ARTICLE XXII. The Legislature shall have the power to levy and collect taxes for State purposes on net incomes from whatever source derived within this State, including the incomes derived from salaries, fees and compensation paid from the State, County, Municipality, and any agency or creature thereof, for the calendar year, 1933, and thereafter and to designate and define the incomes to be taxed and to fix the rates of taxes provided that the rate shall not exceed 5 per cent nor 3 per cent on corporations. Income shall not be deemed property for purposes of ad valorem taxes. From net income an exemption of not less than Fifteen Hundred Dollars ($1500.00) shall be allowed to unmarried persons and an exemption of not less than Three Thousand Dollars ($3000.00) shall be allowed to the head of a family, provided that only one exemption shall be allowed to husband and wife where they are living together and make separate returns for income tax. An exemption of not less than Three Hundred Dollars ($300.00) shall be allowed for each dependent member of the family of an income tax payer under the age of 18 years. The Legislature shall reduce the ad valorem tax from time to time when and to such an amount as the revenue derived from the income tax will justify. In the event the Legislature levies an income tax, such tax must be levied upon the salaries, incomes, fees, or other Compensation of State, County and Municipal Officers and employees, on the same basis as such income taxes are levied upon other persons. All income derived from such tax shall be held in trust for the payment of the floating debt of Alabama until all debts due on Oct. 1st, 1932, are paid and thereafter used exclusively for the reduction of State ad valorem taxes.

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks next preceding the 18th day of July, 1933, in each County of the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said County.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this the 3rd day of May, 1933.

Governor.

REV. F. A. GIBSON DIED

The Rev. F. A. Gibson, age 77, died Thursday June 29 at the home of his son, J. W. Gibson at Salem near Opelika, Alabama, after an extended illness. Funeral services were conducted by the Rev. T. C. Cassady of Montgomery Friday at 2:00 p.m. at Pleasant Grove church about 6 miles west of Clanton. Masonic services were held at the grave, and C. R. Sumners of Opelika was in charge of the burial.

The Rev. Gibson is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary (Henley) Gibson of near Pleasant Grove; one son, J. W. Gibson of near Opelika; one brother, Jim Gibson, in California; and one sister, Mrs. J. A. Wentworth of Tampa, Florida.

The Rev. Gibson was a minister of the Protestant Methodist church in Chilton County for more than fifty years until about two years ago. He joined the conference in 1888. When he first came to this county from Pike county over a half century ago Rev. Gibson did his first work in the Clanton circuit. He preached his first sermon at Walnut Creek and continued to preach there for many years. Uncle Lige Parrish states that Rev. Gibson ate his first meal after coming to this county at his home near Walnut Creek church.

In his day Rev. Gibson was one of the most prominent ministers in Chilton county. Some of the places where he preached were: Cedar Grove, Mount Pisgah, Pleasant Grove and Shady Grove. Also he did a little work in some of the surrounding counties.

Up until last November, when he moved to his son's home near Opelika, Rev. Gibson lived near Pleasant Grove about six miles west of Clanton.

Those who knew Rev. Gibson testify that he was a noble character, a faithful man, and that he lived a life after which one would do well to pattern.

The first sermon that Rev. Gibson preached at Walnut Creek more than fifty years ago was on Job 14:1. "Man that is born of women is of few days, and full of trouble." Two years ago when he preached his last sermon at Walnut Creek he used the same text, and also added that the answer to this passage was found in John 14:1: "Let not your hearts be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me." Those who were accustomed to hearing him say that this was the masterpiece of his entire life.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

When I get a good idea I like to pass it on. I never hear a good story when I am away from the Bob Jones College but what I want to bring it back to my boys and girls. Somehow or other, I have come to think of everything in the terms of our students. I have never understood why people wanted a blessing just for themselves. A blessing that we do not share with others ceases to be a blessing. It becomes a curse.

Sometime ago the Bob Jones College decided to move to some center where we would be nearer our constituency. A number of towns in good centers were open to us, but Cleveland, Tennessee, had a community spirit which I have never found in any town or city I have visited. Therefore, the Bob Jones College is located in Cleveland, Tennessee.

This is the thought I should like to pass on. We miss a great many things in this world because we haven't the right kind of spirit. I have been in communities where churches fight each other, where the people are all divided over politics, and where the leaders of the community have financial differences. Communities do not progress under such conditions. Natural resources are to be desired, but it takes more than natural resources to make a community. It takes a real, honest-to-goodness community spirit.

Often when I am in a city or town I saw some progressive young person, "What does this town need?" And I get the reply, "We need some funerals." The young man means to say, "Our older citizens are blocking progress."

When I was a country boy I had a dog. He was just an ordinary, plain, country dog, but he was my dog. I wouldn't let anybody kick him or abuse him. He belonged to me. Do you realize that the newspaper in your town is your newspaper; the manufacturing plants are your manufacturing plants; the stores are your stores; the schools and churches are your schools and churches? Constructive criticism is all right. You should give it, but about the most ornery fellow I know is a fellow hanging around town with a hammer in his hand always knocking something or somebody.

Isn't it strange how selfishness, prejudice, and sin blind us? Wouldn't it be a wonderful world if we were all big enough to understand each other's view point and sympathize with each other in our individual problems?

One time on a church wall I saw this motto: "I am only one, but I am one. I cannot do everything, but I can do something. What I can do I ought to do and by the grace of God I will do." What a wonderful community we would have if each individual would make this his motto and live up to it!

COMMITTEE HEAD ISSUES WARNING

Warning the friends of education and state honor to be on their guard against eleventh-hour propaganda, Chairman W. H. Mitchell, of the Income Tax and Warrant Amendment Committee, issued a statement today in which he expressed the belief that the opposition to the two measures will flood Alabama during the last few days of the campaign with some new brand of misleading information.

"When the opponents of a measure find it difficult to base their opposition on facts, they usually come out at the last minute with newly hatvhed stuff, knowing the proponents will not have time to get the real facts to the voters before election day," declared Mr. Mitchell

"You can always count on that in any campaign where the opposition is desperate, as is the case in this campaign. When they can't find facts with which to fight, they manufacture their material, and at the last minute, hatch up new ideas with which to fool the voters. We want our friends to know that this will be done and to be on their guard against it.

"Our opponents have been and are making a desperate effort to prove that the amount of the state's current indebtedness, for which validation is sought, has been padded. They first said it had been padded $5,000,000. A few days later they said it was $7,000,000. Next week it probably will be ten millions. (They are good at juggling figures). The charge is too absured to justify denial. Eighty-six members of the legislature knew the debt was $19,000,000 when they voted to submit the amendments to the people. Our opponents know that Governor Miller paid $2,000,000 on the debt after the legislature adjourned, but they hate to admit it.

"They tried to convince you that a 3 per cent tax on net earnings of corporations would drive industries out of Alabama and divert others to the few states where no income tax is levied. They cited the influx of cotton mills from New England to the south as an example, but they didn't mention the fact that a majority of the mills went to the Carolians, where the average income tax is 5 per cent. Neither did they explain why the mills didn't go to Florida where there is no income tax. Nor did they explain why Alabama didn't get as many mills as Georgia, despite the fact that Alabama has no income tax and Georgia exacts 4 per cent from corporations. They said that the mills were driven out of New England on account of excessive income tax, but they failed to say that Massachusetts, the state from which most of the mills migrated, levies a minimum income tax of only 2 per cent. They said nothing about Maine. New Hampshire and Rhode Island not levying an income tax. They expected you, an intelligent voter, to believe all of the rot.

"They also expected you to believe that the state's treasury balance was $1,500,000 more than it actually was. And they even went so far as to say that the treasury balance should be used in paying off some of the warrant indebtedness, knowing that would be a strict violation of the law and subject the violators to imprisonment.

"Fortunately these gross misrepresentations were perpetrated in time for us to give the voters the facts. Having failed to mislead the voter, it is only natural to expect them to manufacture a lot of last-minute buncombe in their desperate and selfish effort to keep a tax off their own incomes and put a sales tax or some other kind of tax on the little folks who are already struggling for existence.

"The friends of education in Alabama and all others who put honor and integrity above petty politics and selfish greed are going to the polls on July 18th and tell the world that Alabama has some honor left; that she wants to protect her credit; that her school teachers are going to be fed; that all of these things are going to be done and those most able are going to do it."

SINGING SCHOOL AT ENTERPRISE

We wish to announce to the public to those interested that a singing school will begin at Enterprise school building on July 10th. Prof. O. L. Devaughn will be the teacher, and the school will run for three weeks. Prices will be reasonable. We feel that we are fortunate in securing his services, as his ability and talent in this vocation is well known all over the county. We are hoping that all who are interested in music will cooperate and help us make a success of this opportunity.

The Tyus family of Chilton county, Ben, Julia Belle and their son, Edgar, paraded before federal authorities Thursday, as a result of a misunderstanding. They were arrested, brought here and arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Henry F. Irwin. Edgar came along too, and was sentenced to 60 days by Judge Kennamer.—Alabama Journal.

Lesson for July 9

CALEB

LESSON TEXT—Joshua 14:6-14.

GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed is that man that maketh the Lord his trust, and respecteth not the proud, nor such as turn aside to lies. Psalm 40:4.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Truthful Soldier.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Fearless Soldier Rewarded.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Caleb the Courageous.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Caleb's Confidence in God.

Caleb stands out in Bible history as a strong personality. He was a man of such character as deserves special study.

I. Elements of Caleb's Character.

1. Independence of spirit (Num. 13:30). Though the multitude clamored to follow the report of the ten, Caleb determined to stand alone. This is a highly important element in human character. One should stand for what he knows to be right regardless of the sentiment of the crowd.

2. Loyal to convictions (Josh. 14:6; cf. Num. 14:6-9). What Caleb knew and felt he spoke out. He did not wait for the opinion of others and then shape his own to suit that of the crowd. The man who can be trusted is the one who is loyal to his convictions. Joseph was an earlier, and Daniel a later example of the loyalty to conviction exhibited by Caleb.

3. Unselfish (Josh. 14:12). He did not wish to thrust some one else into the place of difficulty. He desired to go into the place where it would require fighting in order to drive out the giants which were in the land.

4. Courageous (Josh. 14:12; cf. Num. 13:30). This courage he displayed when he insisted that they were able to go up from Kadesh-Barnea and take possession of the land. Forty-five years have elapsed since that time (Josh. 14:10). Though he would be now considered an old man, he still desired that place for an inheritance which would require fighting to possess. He said, "I am as strong this day as I was in the day that Moses sent me: as my strength was then, even so is my strength now for war."

5. Loyal to God (Josh. 14:8; cf. Num. 14:24). He served God with a whole-hearted devotion. A man who is thoroughly loyal to God is always true and magnanimous in his dealings with his fellows.

II. Caleb Laying Claim to His Inheritance (Josh. 14:6-12).

Caleb was accompanied by the children of Judah. He did not come alone to present his claim, lest he be suspected of taking advantage. Then, too, he did not wish to wait until after the lot was cast for God had already given a certain portion to him (Num. 14:30). The basis of his claim was:

1. The ground of his service (vv. 6-8). He had endangered his life in spying out the land—had gone to Hebron when the giants were there. He brought back a true report even when his brethren were all against him. He bore his testimony and insisted that they go up and take the land even though to do so incurred the displeasure of his brethren, making it necessary for him to stand alone.

2. On the ground of the oath of Moses to him (v. 9). Joshua had respect for Moses, and was bound to follow the counsels of his faithful master whom he succeeded.

3. On the ground of God's providential dealing with him (vv. 10-12). God had preserved him in bodily health. His natural forces were unabated, though he was now eighty-five years old. He still regarded himself as capable of driving out the giants who possessed the land. The preservation of one's health is an indication of God's will that there is still work to do.

III. Joshua Giving the Inheritance to Caleb (Josh. 14:13, 14).

1. Caleb blessed by Joshua (v. 13). He not only acquiesced in Caleb's claim, but bestowed the blessing of God upon him in it.

2. The inheritance given (vv. 13, 14). Hebron, which means fellowship, was the name of the inheritance. Only those who fully follow the Lord can enjoy fellowship with him. Though Caleb now legally possessed Hebron, it was necessary for him to fight to drive out the giants who infested it. In the Lord Jesus Christ we have an inheritance which God has given us. We, too, must fight because the enemy is unwilling to relinquish the claim upon it. Caleb got what he asked for because it was in keeping with the will of God. We, too, are sure to get that which we claim when we lay hold on that which is according to God's Word.

Will Open Any Lock

What a fool, quoth he, I am thus to lie in a stinking dungeon when I may as well walk at liberty; I have a key in my bosom called promise that will, I am persuaded, open any lock in Doubting castle.—John Bunyan.

The Road to Faith

"Are we prepared to tread this road of faith? God has given it to us as his appointed way. Are we ready just to trust him, doing step by step what he asks?"—Rev. Guy H. King.

SAYS COMPANY HOLDS UNUSUAL SALES RECORD

For the eighteenth consecutive year Goodyear tires enjoy a greater public preference than any other kind, according to Mr. L. E. Diefenderfer, local Goodyear dealer.

"Recent national surveys indicate that public preference for Goodyear tires is even greater in 1933 than it was before," Mr. Diefenderfer stated. "Nearly one-third of the tires sold in this country are Goodyears.

"During the past five years many newcomers have taken their place in the Goodyear line—the airwheel for airplanes, the airwheel for passenger cars, the pneumatic lug tire for tractors, the pneumatic farm tactor tire, the new and advanced Goodyear bus and truck balloons that have revolutionized long-distance pay-load hauling.

"Early this spring Goodyear concentrated its production of passenger car tires on but two main lines, both manufactured with full center traction for gripping the road and with the famous supertwist cord which gives the tire longer life and greater mileage," he continued. "Overwhelming public preference indicates the motorist would rather buy first-choice merchandise, especially when it costs no more than second-choice. This has been my experience too, during the many years I have been selling Goodyears.

"When one considers the pioneering that has been done by Goodyear in all phases of tire development, and the consistent quality that has been built into that line of tires, it is no wonder the statement that 'more people ride on Goodyears than on any other kind' has held true for 18 straight years," concluded Mr. Diefenderfer.

SCHOOLBOY FARLEY

Postmaster General Farley is the first member of the cabinet to come to the defense of the government's voiding of the gold contract in its bonds. He declared on Monday at Rochester that "much nonsense" has been talked about this breach of national good faith. If Mr. Farley, as chairman of the Democratic National Committee, keeps in touch with local sentiment throughout the country, he must know that the nonsense to which re refers has, indeed, been talked North and South, East and West, in newspapers of both parties and all shades of opinion. Nothing yet done or favored by the Roosevelt administration has had to undergo such general criticism and reproach. That sentiment wil surely not be changed by anything which Mr. Farley, suddenly stepping forward as a great financial authority said at Rochester.

"A schoolboy in the fourth grade," he remarked, "knows that it is impossible to pay sixty or seventy billions of dollars of debts with four billions of dollars of gold. Why then keep up the pretense?" Mr. Farley assured his hearers that "our debts will be paid in dollars of unquestionable value." But just there he lost sight of his schoolboy. Even one in the third grade, doing simple sums in arithmetic, would know that it is impossible to pay sixty or seventy billions with a currency which, in all its varieties, amounted in May to only a little over ten billions. Incidentally, it is a pity that Mr. Farley did not have his schoolboy at Mr. Roosevelt's elbow when the latter assured the country last November that "no responsible government" would ever think of throwing doubt upon the sacredness of the "covenant" to pay its obligations in gold.—New York Times.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

The progress of the London conference during its first week brought out one salient fact —that while the French, the British and the Italian delegations probably knew exactly what they wanted, there was no such unanimity of opinion among the members of the American delegation. As Senator Couzens very pertinently pointed out, the first thing that would have to be done by the members of the American official family would be to decide on a policy, either of nationalism or internationalism. It was evident, as he pointed out, that little could be accomplished by a delegation that was neither one nor the other, only a mixture of both.

All of which strengthens the belief in many quarters that there has been no unanimity of opinion in the president's official family on international affairs. For example, there are leading supporters of the administration including Secretary of State Cordell Hull, who are internationalists, especially where questions of the tariff are concerned. They want tariffs reduced under the mistaken belief that the way to restore prosperity is to throw the American market open to the competition of the poorly paid labor of Europe and Asia the hope of benefitting abroad.

On the other hand, there are prominent supporters of the administration who disagree with Mr. Hull and the proponents of the free trade school thought. Among these are no less personages than Pro. Moley, one of the President's chief advisers, who is reported not to think so much of what can be accomplished at London, and Mr. Bernard Baruch, who is said to feel that it will be impossible to raise further the standard of living and to restore prosperity in America, if this standard is to be subject to the assault of floods of cheap imports from Europe.

Evidently the schism extends to the American delegation at London which is neither fish nor fowl when it comes to the question of nationalism versus internationalism. We were informed, unofficially of course, that measures had been taken for international stabilization of currency and the eventual return to the gold standard. Securities and commodity markets took a short but sharp nose dive. Then came the announcement from Washington that no such step was contemplated. Then followed a recovery in the markets but an increase in the temperature of the London conference.

Next we got news that the American delegation was to propose a ten per cent horizontal slash in tariffs. Hardly had the acclaim from the lips of the internationalists faded to an echo, before we were informed that once again the public had been misled by idle rumor. In fact Mr. Hull has been compelled to raise the complaint that the rumor factory has been so zealous in its overtime activities that the peace and good will of the conference is endangered. Mr. Hull is still sure that the boys will get together and accomplish a lot for humanity before the conference is over.

Back in the United States, however, where we are influenced more by the shadow of the Washington monument, and the whirr of the pheasant, than the shades and mellow tones of internationalist diplomacy, there is a growing feeling that perhaps the country would have continued its march back to normalcy at a more rapid pace if the economic conference had been postponed for a year or two. There are some iconoclastic enough to express the opinion that even now it is not too late to recall the American delegation and call it a draw.

SOME PITFALLS AHEAD

A question which many people are beginning to ask themselves is whether the party now in power at Washington will repeat the political errors of 1919 which brought its disastrous defeat at the polls of 1920. That there is now a struggle going on in the administration between two factions, one proposing nationalistic and the other internationalistic policies, goes without saying. It is recalled, however, that many of the old leaders who took part in the internationalistic movement in the early days are again in the limelight. Among them may be mentioned Governor James E. Cox, the Democratic standard bearer in 1920; Bernard Baruch, William Gibbs McAdoo and last but not least, the present Secretary of State and head of the American delegation at the London conference, Mr. Cordell Hull of Tennessee.

Embarking on a policy of internationalism, it is believed, will eventually injure the party in power and give the opposition the issue for which it has been looking since its disastrous defeat in 1932. Many of the administration leaders evidently realize that the American people have had enough of Europe's cancellation talk, its building of big armies and navies, and its trade conspiracies and are demanding today that we solve our own problems and let Europe go its own road.

Professor Raymond Moley, considered by many to be the chief advisor to President Roosevelt, it is reported has cautioned him against international maneuverings and he has warned that little can come out of the present London conference but grief for the administration. Bainbridge Colby, secretary of state in the Wilson cabinet, who seems to be one of the old regime who has changed his mind, recently stated that "more hope for the United States and the world lies in the domestic constructive policies of the Roosevelt administration than in international conferences." He rightly believes that "with the purchasing power of our people restored, our foreign trade will normally revive without the artificial help of international accord."

In the meantime, the opposition leaders are not indifferent to the issues of the day. They realize that Americans are tired of European diplomacy and propaganda against Uncle Sam. This was proven by the refusal of certain Republican leaders to serve at the present conference in London where the United States is represented by only one of the party among the half dozen delegates, and he with his "fingers crossed". Senator L. J. Dickinson, vice chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign, has already announced that the Republican party keynote for 1934 campaign will be "No Foreign Alliances." The Republican party, he says, will launch an intensive campaign for the "maintenance of America's traditional policy of no entangling political or economic alliances with Europe." Senator Dickinson has demanded the return of the American delegation from the London conference, declaring that European nations are lined up solidly against the United States. He warned further against the "wholesale disregard for the American system of government through sweeping delegation of power to the President," and, asked for tariff protection, sound money, economy with the taxpayers' money and a policy of no entangling alliances with foreign countries.

Representative Bolton of Ohio, Chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee, has also launched a broadside into the Democratic ranks, asserting that the American people are aroused against the "raw deal" of the "new deal" and predicting that the Democratic party his many "pitfalls in store." Soon the old game of politics will be on again.

A SHATTERED PROMISE

One is almost tempted to suggest that the American delegation at the London economic conference pack up and come home. It has been insulted and humiliated, and is being made the butt of malicious and unwarranted attack by groups of other delegates.

The conference is not of America's making. It was devised by nations of Europe for the romoving of the awful burden of post war depression from their own shoulders. The United States consented to attend only after repeated requests—pleadings, in fact—and representations that her presence was necessary if the world were to be saved.

Our delegation sailed in the hope of being able to contribute something to the alleviation of suffering in other parts of the world. It was recognized and admitted there was little that it could do for the advantage of the United States.

Knowing the usual tenor of international conferences and the jealousies of European nations for America's near self-sufficiency we sought protection only upon one point before we consented to attend the meeting, namely, the debt question. It was agreed without participating that this subject would not be discussed. With that promise in hand Uncle Sam went to the conference willing to do all in his power to help his neighbors in distress, despite the fact that he had an enormous job of his own at home upon his hands.

But before he was fairly seated at the conference table, England demanded that the debts be reduced by so great an amount as to equal cancellation. France objected to give the chairmanship of the important monetary committee to Delegate James M. Cox, insisting that she, or some nation friendly to herself, have it. And throughout the assembly the harrassment of United States is being plotted.

The United States, great and independent nation that it is, does not need to stand for this kind of treatment. America is sitting atop the economic world such as it is. It has the upper hand of every nation represented. Its delegates should not be asked to take European insults or permit themselves to be made the targets of European cabals.

If Europe is not sincere in its desire for a straightforward conference, nor has any real intention of finding a solution to the economic problems of the world by which all concerned may profit, there is no use of the United States remaining there longer.

If this is to be a poker game, the object of which is for every nation represented to out-wit every other for its own distinct advantage and for the distinct loss of the rest, we might as well withdraw now as later. We can get along better without Europe than Europe can without us, and especially without Europe's deceitful, faith-breaking tactics.—Ohio State Journal.

MAN IN THE MOON

Looks Over All—Overlooks None

Give Us A "New Deal"

Let us think a little more, this week, of our Republican intra-party troubles. First, I am quite sure that our good Republican citizens have not really deserted the party. If they have not, then there must be some good reason why they stay away from the polls on election day, or, worse, take flirtatious rounds with the Democrats. After investigation of the cause, it is not hard to find the WHY of these flirtations. Our people are tired and disgusted with the tactics of our would-be leaders in our own party. To present a solid front, we must have leaders who work together in harmony, working out our problems for the good of the whole people and the party, rather than placing the personal desires, whims, aspirations, greviences and prejudices before their desire to see the good of the party and the will of the people served first. For some time this spirit of harmony has been sadly lacking. Instead, we see personal hatred. That there is a split, and a bad one, I think no one will dare deny. But the split is not in the rank and file of the people who make up the party as a whole —it is among the "leaders", where it can do the most harm. And I do not believe we can lay any more of the blame at one door than at another. "The kettle cannot call the pot black". The moment a member of one "wing" of the leaders does or says something, someone in the other "wing" goes to the trouble of going over this word or deed with a fine-tooth comb—trying to find a flaw. And the worst part of it all is, neither of these "wings" will give in one whit. They will not even TRY to meet on middle ground and adjust their differences, and the condition goes from bad to worse. But this cannot go on forever. It will soon stop itself—when the leaders no longer have an army to fight over. There is yet time to come to terms and save the Republican party of Chilton County, but it must be done soon. Those who aspire to leadership must surely know that the only way to save the party and themselves is thru harmony among themselves, or by selection of other leaders. If they, knowing this, refuse to come to terms, or make any move toward unity, but contend for their own views, even in the face of a party death, then they might be termed traitors to their party and its people, and as such, have no right to ask our voters for their support. Let us begin to move, if our leaders will not do so, for something must be done. Let us call upon them, once for all, for unity, pointing out the dire necessity for such, and, if by their action they refuse, we will know that they are not deserving of our votes, and that they have only their own wishes and desires at heart rather than the good of our party. And, if this is the true state of affairs, it is our DUTY to chuck the whole outfit, bag and baggage, and look for new leadership which DOES have only the good of the party at heart. Every member of the Republican party in Chilton County should be thinking and acting if we are to remain a strong and active power. Will you do your part? If so, let us know, with a letter, just how you feel about the matter.

Nothing To Gloat Over

Percy Taylor, in his Birmingham News column, "What's Happening In Alabama," seemed to get quite a kick out of my "Bedside Bulletin" in last week's issue of The Union-Banner. I think, however, that what Mr. Taylor liked most about it was the statement that the Republican party in Chilton County was "in a grave condition". Therefore, I hasten to add, for the benefit of Mr. Taylor, and any others like him who may hold hopes of a wholesale Democratic victory in this Republican stronghold, that it is just a little early to crow, as yet. Evidently, they do not know the Republicans of Chilton very well—or I do not know them very well, myself. If our Republicans have just one-tenth the foresight I believe they have, they will take a big lesson from the Democratic victory scored a few days ago, and will begin to take steps to remedy our party rupture. Some of our political opponents give our Republicans credit for very little reasoning power, if they think our people will allow that victory to pass unnoticed. It is a pointer which they can not overlook. It may be that the election of a Democrat in this usually Republican county will wake our people to the grave state of affairs so that they will be up and doing to prevent a repetition of that victory on a larger scale. It might cause our people to decide to discard all our earmarked aces, kings, and what-not, and call for a clean, new deck, and one which we can all play with on an equal footing, without anyone having the "inside" of things any more than anyone else. That MAY have to be done. If the recent Democratic victory can bring about unity in our party, and among its leaders, it will be well worth the loss of this one little election. For it will be the salvation of the Republican party in Chilton County, and put us on the high road again.

What A Man!

A few weeks ago I told you of a curious walking stick which was fashioned by Rheuby Chasteen, of Clanton Route 7. And, in meandering around, just to see what I might see, I have run up on something else made by Mr. Chasteen. But I can't give you the name of this article. I don't believe he could tell you, himself, just what it is, and he made the thing. This one is a combination—one way you spread it out and it is a nice porch or lawn chair; turn it inside out and it is an ironing board; turn it again and it becomes a step-ladder. Besides all this, there is a little box built up in the thing, but I never did figure out what it was there for, unless it is to be used as a match or ash tray while sitting and smoking, or a tallow box to use while ironing, or a nail or tack box while it is used for a step-ladder. Now, just what could you call such a thing? But drop into Rockett's hardware store and see it—it will be worth your trouble. Confined to his chair all the time, and unable to enjoy the pleasures of free action like the most of us, Mr. Chasteen gets a kick out of thinking out and making such curious oddities. He's great at it, too.

NEW WAR DECORATION AWARDED CONGRESSMAN LAMAR JEFFERS

As recognition of exceptionally meritorious action at the front during the World War, the U. S. War Department recently awarded the decoration of the Purple Heart to Congressman Lamar Jeffers of the Fourth Alabama District. Congressman Jeffers was formerly Captain of Company G., 326 Infantry, 82 Division, and participated with his organization in several major engagements in France.

The award of the Purple Heart can be made only to those who are entitled to wear a wound chevron on account of injury received in battle and who have received citation for exceptional meritorious and conspicuous service. The Purple Heart decoration is a revival of an award established by General George Washington during the war of the Revolution. It consists of heart shaped medal, its face gold bordered and its center of purple enamel. On it appears a likeness of General Washington with the inscription "For Military Merit."

During the advance of the American Forces through the Argonne Forest and just at the northern edge of the forest stubborn resistance was encountered at St. Juvin where the enemy was making a determined rear guard stand in the effort to hold back the American advance as much as possible and cover their own retreat. Under orders to attempt to continue advancing at all costs, Captain Jeffers led the infantry attack against the strongly fortified position which had been taken up by the enemy. In this engagement he received machine gun bullet wounds through the right knee and the right side of the face. The official citation in the record is as follows:

"For extraordinary heroism in action near St. Juvin, France, October 11, 1918. On the night of October 10-11 Captain Jeffers reconnoitered a badly damaged bridge, and early in the morning of the 11th he supervised its repair, being continuously under an intense machine gun fire. He later led the leading company of the battalion over this bridge and across an open and level terrain, where all of his officers and almost two-thirds of his men became casualties and he himself was seriously wounded. He continued to lead his company forward until he fell, shot through the jaw with a machine gun bullet."

On account of the above citation Captain Jeffers was decorated with the American Distinguished Cross while in France, and this, coupled with the fact that he suffered injuries in combat with the enemy, caused him to be eligible for the recent award of the Purple Heart.—Rockford Chronicle.

ABOUT THAT WALL

One of the most frequent of international statements is one to the effect that of course "we cannot expect to build a wall around the country and live to ourselves in happiness and prosperity without reference to the rest of the world."

Statements of the kind are usually made in launching an attack on our system of tariff protection which seeks to equalize the cost of production at home and abroad and so preserve from cut-throat competition from abroad, our American wage scale and standard of living.

The statement is about as exaggerated in its implications as most brain waves which come to us from the internationalists. Nobody plans to build a wall around the United States and live like the Japs did in the early days. The protective tariff advocates, and other nationalists, have never contemplated such a program. The internationalists like to talk about the attitude of the Smoot-Hawley tariff which has "strangled" foreign trade. Yet under this tariff about fifty-three per cent of our imports come in free of duty and there has been no greater falling off in our importation of articles bearing a tariff than in those which come in free. We haven't a wall even half way round the country so far as the tariff is concerned.

What protective tariff oppontents believe in is giving the local producer, whether he be farmer or mill owner, or wage worker, an even break in this American market, the richest in the world, which always absorbs more than ninety per cent of our domestic products. They do not believe that we ought to turn over the ninety per cent market to the peasants of Europe and the coolies of the Orient in an effort to increase the ten per cent.

Uncle Sam will always import great amounts of raw materials and other commodities which cannot be produced in America. The more prosperous he is at home, and the higher the standard of living here because of the protection to our own industries, the more he can import from abroad and the better for world trade in general.

The statement that the nationalists are trying to build a wall around the country compares in truthfulness with the one that Uncle Sam caused the world depression by insisting that European nations pay a small percentage of their just debts.

It would be great if President Roosevelt could put the unemployed to work removing motgages from farms.

The birth rate may be declining, but P. T. Barnum's observation will probably be just as true as ever.

Sentiment for world peace probably has one tangible result—most nations seem to prefer not to fight without actually declaring war.

An expert on beer says that, to be perfect, the amber fluid should appeal to all the five sense. We presume the appeal to the senses of hearing comes from the rythmic tapping of the bungstarter.

"India Speaks"

A few nights ago I attended the Wadesonian Theatre's showing of "India Speaks". I had not the slightest idea what I was going to see, but supposed that it would be just another movie, with the plot, etc., all laid in India. But I was very much surprised—and pleasantly surprised, too. The picture was a kind of travelogue, dealing with different sections of India—their castes, their thousands of gods, their strange customs and beliefs. It was as if dark India was being turned inside out for our benefit, and we were able to understand about these strange Indian traditions and customs about which we have heard so much, yet know so little. If there were any people there who favor "foreign missions" I believe they had every right to feel that their views were right, without any doubt. If there were any present who look at the matter otherwise, they must surely have gone away with something to ponder over, at least. It was a great picture, and one which everyone should see.—Man in the Moon.

The Man on the Corner

Some Sights He Saw— and Some He Saw Not

Our Federal Employees

Is you mail carrier your friend? Have you a friend who is closer to you than the one who passes by your mail box every day? If you have never found out what a good friend he will make, you ought to try him and see. Last Friday night Cohen Stapp gave a barbecue picnic for the Federal employees in order that they might get better acquainted with each other. It was my privilege to attend, and a finer bunch of fellows I never met.

Really A Busy Place

The office of County Agent, C. E. Stapp, has been a very busy place for the past few days. The cotton acreage reduction plan has caused a mighty lot of office work, as well as effort on the part of the field workers. "This week will wind it up," said Mr. Stapp Tuesday. "We have attained about half our acreage quota in Chilton County, and we hope to go over the top by Saturday night."

My! What a Difference!

How can our friend, the weather man, make his menu with such sharp variations? Example: Monday so hot it was almost unendurable. Tuesday so cool coats felt good. Maybe the big rain Monday night upset his calculations like it did in the case of a farmer I heard about Tuesday. One day last week a good sized rain came and broke through his terraces. Monday he went out to fix them. Laboring until after dark Monday night, he came to the house, shovel on his shoulder. "I've got 'em fixed now so they will hold," he declared. When he arose to survey the scene Tuesday morning he could scarcely tell where his terraces had been.

Brock Wells Here Tuesday

Brock Wells and family, of Selma, spent Tuesday with relatives in Clanton. Brock is a Chilton County boy, the son of the late Ben Wells. His wife is Lou Ella Parrish, daughter of Uncle Bill Parrish. They have two fine boys, who spend their days in school, and their afternoons hunting with their daddy in the Alabama River flats. Brock is now foreman of the composing room of the Selma Times-Journal. He used to be with The Union-Banner before he went to Selma. We are proud of him. He is a good printer, who has lived frugally, saved some of his earnings, and faces a promising future.

Sie Foshee Will Sell Chevrolet

Dick Hayes, manager of Hayes Chevrolet Co., announces that he has engaged the services of Mr. Sie Foshee as salesman. Mr. Foshee is a veteran automobile salesman who has been in the game a long time. He has man friends throughout Chilton County.

Chrysler and Plymouth

Terminating a dealership of many years with Chevrolet, Polk Brothers make the announcement this week that they are changing over to Chrysler and Plymouth. A full statement from them will be found in another place in this paper. Chrysler and Plymouth are always popular with a number of owners in this territory. The establishment of a dealership for these cars in Clanton is a welcome step of progress.

The New Chevrolet Dealers

The new Chevrolet agency in Clanton is about ready to perform. The Hayes Chevrolet Company is a combination between Dick and Jack Hayes, whereby Dick is to run the automobile end of the business and Jack is to play the baseball. THORSBY SECTION

(S. E. Norton, Manager)

The big event of this week in Thorsby was the Fourth of July celebration under the auspices of the Parent-Teachers Association, held on the Thorsby Institute campus grounds, where speaker's stands and several booths for the sale of lemonade and cold drinks in different parts of the campus had been set up. Tables were arranged for dinner on the grounds. A very attractive parade was staged with decorated autos, floats and bicycles. The float that received the first prize was occupied by Miss Columbia, Lois Thompson and her maids, Misses Jean Swanson, Ella Howard, Dorothy Butler and Mary Sue Porter. Mr. Nat Bentley's car took first prize for the most attractive private car, and Mr. H. L. Collins won first prize for the most attractive bicycle. After the parade, the following program was held: Welcome address by Mrs. Claude Billingsley; flag parade by the little children; prayer by Rev. J. W. Jones; trio by Misses Katheryn Foss, Agnes Gerald and Mr. A. Laurell; speech by Mr. Little; Solo by Katheryn Foss; address of the day by Dr. O. C. Carmichael, president of Alabama college in Montevallo. The speeches were very fine indeed and the music was unusually good. At the noon hour, dinners were sold amounting to $40. Nine dollars and firty-five cents was taken in from the sale of cold drinks. In the afternoon a double-header baseball game was held between Thorsby and Randolph. The celebration really began Monday night at eleven o'clock with one of the heaviest electrical storms ever occuring in Thorsby. Thunder rolled, lightning flashed, and rain fell in torrents. The display continued for about two hours and cooled the air off delightfully for the Fourth. No serious damage has been reported.

LOCAL BOY WINS HONORS

Special honors of national importance have been won by a local boy, Oliver O. Manning, junior student at Alabama Polytechnic Institute, accord to an announcement just released by the Danforth Foundation and Purina Mills at St. Louis, Misouri. Manning is one of the 30 American and Canadian college agricultural students to receive fellowships calling for four weeks' training in business and agricultural leadership.

This group of honor men are scheduled to arrive in St. Louis on August 7 and for two weeks will be actively engaged in a study of the operation of big business organizations. Then they are to spend two interesting weeks on the shore of Lake Michigan near Shelby, Michigan, at the American Youth Foundation Camp where recreation and inspiration will be combined in a strenuous course of leadership training along with other young people from all over America.

These fellowships are awarded jointly each year by the Danforth Foundation and Purina Mills, manufacturers of Checkerboard feeds and cereals. Wm. H. Danforth, chairman of the board of Purina Mills, is the founder and organizer of this special summer training course. In an interesting way he tells how this project came to be established.

"Oftentimes, college graduates lose two or three years time finding their largest place in life," Mr. Danforth declares, "To help students make decisions, to enlarge their horizons, to broaden their contacts—is the purpose of this four weeks' summer fellowship.

"For this reason," he continues, "The Danforth Foundation and the Ralston Purina Mills are providing opportunity to one member of the junior class of a group of agricultural colleges to study at first hand the problems of manufacturing, sales, promotion, grain exchanges, stock yards, research laboratories, farm experimentation and management."

In the summer of 1929, twenty-two agricultural juniors were awarded a similar fellowship. In 1930 thirty agricultural juniors received this fellowship. In 1931 there were 31 fellowship awards. Again in 1932, thirty-one agricultural juniors in the United States and Canada received the benefit of this fellowship. This year 30 more are coming in for training.

According to the established practice, three candidates were selected by the dean of agriculture at Alabama Polytchnic Institute and from these three, the officials of the Danforth Foundation have picked Oliver O. Manning as the man whose ability and experience seemed to make him best qualified for the training.

At college, Manning is a member of the Block and Bridle, Ag Club, Glee Club, and Kappa Delta Pi. He was secretary of the Future Farmers of America in 1929-30, and obtained his National Farmer degree in 1931.

TO THE VOTERS OF ALABAMA

The last legislature passed two very important measures which are to be approved or disapproved at the ballot box by the people of our state on July 18th. These bills are known as the warrant refunding bill and the income tax amendment.

Allow us to speak to you very frankly concerning this warrant bill. What is it? What is its purpose? What will it accomplish? This bill, if approved, authorizes our state to issue interest bearing 5 per cent state warrants, the purpose of which is to pay the state's outstanding debts. As you know the teachers and school bus drivers of Alabama have been paid for the past two years with certificates of indebtedness issued by the county boards of education based on state warrants in the hands of the treasurers of the school boards. Because the teachers have received almost no real money some have been reduced almost to penury, shame and suffering.

These county warrants have been used to buy merchandise, to pay board bills, grocery bills and thus enable the teachers to carry on. These county warrants and state warrants have gone through the channels of trade until nearly every merchant, banker, farmer and school teacher have accumualted large quantities of them which bear no interest and now have little value.

They were paid out in good faith. They were received by business men in good faith; they were used throughout the state in business transactions. There is now a great network of these debts created by the exchange of warrants. More than eleven millions of dollars are now owing by the boards of education and other legal officers. To repudiate these debts will make the state a fraud and a defaulter. It will knock thousands of people out of honest money and will be a disgrace to the state forever. Let's vote to validate these warrants on July 18th.

The Incmoe Tax

The other measure known as the income tax amendment was enacted for the purpose of paying interest on the state warrants, and providing a sinking fund whereby the warrants might be gradually retired and finally when this is done to be applied to the reduction of taxes on farms and other property.

An income tax is a tax on income above certain exemptions. Only those people who derive an income from their business in excess and beyond certain exemptions will have to pay an income tax. If he does not make it, he does not pay it. We have to pay on our homes and farms whether we make it or not. For example: Mr. Jones has a wife and one child. He has an income of $4,300. He is exempt from paying on $3,000 because he is married; he is exempt from paying on $300. because he has one child. Thus his exemptions are $3,300 and he pays 1 per cent on the remaining $1,000 or he pays $10.00 income tax. A single man has an exemption of $1,500.

What are the rates of taxation in proposed tax? The rates of taxation are graduated from 1 to 5 per cent for private incomes, but definitely fixed at 3 per cent on corporate incomes.

Please think this over for yourself and we hope you can see your way clear to vote for both.—Yours very cordially, J. A. Mitchell, chairman citizens council.

This plan of reorganization is dated October 1, 1932 and provides that a new company shall be organized which by appropriate and necessary procedure, to be determined upon by counsel of the respective parties and interest, shall acquire free and clear of all debts or obligations, except current accounts payable and accrued taxes and other obligations in the ordinary course of business, all of the properties and assets of every kind and description of Alabama Mills Company. The following is the capitalization of the present company:

Three million dollars, first mortgage 6½ per cent bonds, due 1943, (in default); $815,000 6 per cent notes (in default as to principal and interest); 7,488 shares $7 preferred stock, no par value; 14,550 shares, $7 cumulative stock, no par value; 180,000 shares common stock, no par value.

The following is the proposed capitalization of the reorganized company: $100,000 five year 6 per cent notes; $1,695,000 convertible income debenture 6 per cent bonds, due 1953; 214,848 shares common stock; (428,418 shares of common stock will be authorized; of which 213,570 shares will be reserved for conversion of the $1,695,000 convertible income debenture 6 per cent bonds.)

This plan provides that the holders of cumulative preferred stock of Alabama Mills Company shall receive for each share of such stock four shares of common stock in the reorganized company, all fully paid and non-assessable. The cumulative preferred stockholders will therefore receive a total of 58,200 shares of common stock of the reorganized company, representing 27 per cent of the total original issue of said stock.

The position of the cumulative preferred stockholders will be materially improved by joining in the reorganization as the existing company had, as of March 25, 1933, $4,527,000 in debts which ranked prior to such cumulative preferred stock, would amount to approximately $1,908,000. That is to say, that the reorganized company would have all the assets of the old company and the interest of the cumulative preferred stockholders, who join in the plan, would be improved materially, due to the fact that the debts of the reorganized company which will rank ahead of the cumulative preferred stockholders' interest wil be reduced approximately $2,619,000. It should also be noted that the new issue of $1,695,000 convertible income debenture 6 per cent bonds of the reorganized company shall not be entitled to a fixed interest return, but will be entitled to interest on said bonds only when the same is earned by the reorganized company.

As hereinabove stated, this plan of reorganization has been approved by the directors of the company representing, in a large part, the cumulative preferred stockholders, and it is our opinion that the interest of these stockholders will best be served by joining in the plan of reorganization which should provide them a means to recover a substantial part of their investment in this company.

You have probably received a letter from Messrs. Martin, Thompson, Turner & McWhorter, attorneys, Birmingham, representing the trustee, advising you that it will be necessary for you either (1) to deposit your stock certificate for the purpose of participating in the reorganization or (2) to file your certificate with a claim in order to participate in any cash dividend which may be available; and that in either event you should make such deposit or file such certificate on or before July 9, 1933, with Paul A Redmond, trustee, Liberty National Life Building, Birmingham, Alabama or with the referee in bankruptcy, Hon. Geo. P. Bondurant, P. O. Box 2512, Birmingham, Alabama. —Respectfully, R. A. Shillinglaw, chairman; E. D. Mims, L. W. Roberts, Jr., Bondholders Protective Committee.

If holders of this preferred stock do not want to send their certificates in direct as outlined above, they may leave their certificates with Mr. Frank Callen at Peoples Savings Bank not later than Saturday of this week. Remember that Sunday, July 9th, is the last day on which certificates may be filed, so Saturday is the last day on which certificates may be left with Mr. Callen.

PLANT DISEASE

The loss in various crops due to all diseases has been estimated each year from 1920 to 1930 inclusive. The extremes for each crop during the period are as follows: Wheat losses from 8.9 to 16.9 per cent caused by bunt, stem rust, smut and scab.

Corn losses from 6 to 12 per cent, caused by ear rots, root rots, smut and leaf rust.

Cotton losses from 9.1 to 20 per cent, caused by angular leaf spot, wilt root knot and anthracose.

Potato losses from 16.2 to 21.7 per cent, caused by blight, tipburn, mosaic and rhizoctonia.

Sweet potato losses from 7.5 to 36.2 per cent, caused by storage rots, stem rot and black rot.

Dry bean losses from 3.7 to 20 per cent, caused by bacterial blight, mosaic, root rots and anthracose.

There are a number of other crops that the same disease effect but these are the main ones.

Plant diseases may be classified as parasitic, nirus and non-parasitic. The parasitic diseases are the direct result of the attacks of parasites, mainly fungi, bacteria, and nematodes. The direct effects of insect attacks on plant are not ordinarly as diseases in the United States. The nirus disease belong to a special class and might be considered as a group under the parasitic. They are infectious, have definite geographical distribution and act in many ways like parasitic diseases, but no casual organisms have ever been isolated from them.

The non-parasitic diseases form a large and varied group, comprising all types not caused by parasites or by infectious nirus. These are due in a general way to environmental conditions and to some extent to disturbances within the plant itself.

Weather conditions, especially the extremes, have a profound effect on all three of these classes of disease and in the nonparasitic class may be the main or the sole cause.

Plants suffer from unfavorable weather in various degrees. It is only the results of extremes which produce some marked injury or symptom which they do not recover or recover imperfectly or slowly, that should be classed as disease.

The various weather factors may be outlined as follows: Temperature, precipitation den, rain, hail, snow, sleet), relative humidity, sunshine, wind velocity, barometric pressure, and electrical conditions. All these, except possibly the last two very definitely influence plant diseases.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

ALABAMA IS SOILD FOR ACREAGE CUTS

Auburn, Ala., July 3.—Alabama producers, bankers and others interested in the cotton crop are presenting a solid front from the Tennessee line to the Gulf in favor of the cotton acreage reduction program, according to Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the extension service of the Alabama Polytechinc Institute.

Reports by telegram and letter which he has received from every county of the state show that the federal battle against the cotton surplus will meet with an overwhelmning victory in Alabama. The objective in this state is to retire from production nearly 1,000,000 acres of cotton land.

Some delay was experienced at the beginning of the campaign due to the fact that complete instructions from Washington had not come through to the counties, but by the end of last week every county had full information and needed supplies.

Every indication was that Alabama would reach and perhaps exceed its quota by the end of this week.

Producers are being compensated for taking their cotton out of production under two plans. Under one they are paid from $7 to $20 per acre, depending on production, and under the other they are paid $6 to $12 per acre, depending on production, and in addition receive an option at 6 cents per pound on the amount of cotton the acres taken out of production would have produced.

Details of the application of the program are being handled under the leadership of county agents by Beat committeemen who inspect the fields before and after the cotton is taken out of production and estimate yields.

COTTON ACRES MAY SUPPLY FEED NEED

Auburn, Ala., July 3.—A two-fold benefit from the removal of one million acres of Alabama land from the production of cotton as proposed by the federal government at Washington is visualized by Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the extension service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. The first is the immediate financial remuneration—now estimated at $12,262,000—and the second is the increased production of food and feed crops, thus affording an opportunity for Alabama farmers to balance properly their operations.

Mr. Duncan has assembled figures on the Alabama consumption of things to eat. He found that it amounted to $220,650,145 per year.

And, this, a substantial proportion is not being produced within the state. Corn production, for example, last year was 24,566,535 bushels short of the state's needs; oats 18,717,631 bushels; and hay 1,993,276 tons.

The population of Alabama now stands at 2,646,248 according to the 1930 census. The cost of feeding this population an adequate diet one year—based upon 1932 prices—is $220,650,143. Distributed according to the food requirements the cost would be as follows: cereals, $18,934,412; milk, $77,058,654; lean meat, fish, eggs or cheese, $39,342,131; vegetables and fruits, $59,995,666; fats, $8,494,726 and sweets, $15,824,544.

"What shall we do with the million acres from which cotton is to be removed?" asked Dr. Duncan. "The answer is to put it in food crops and feed ourselves.

"By the proper adjustment of production of cotton to normal market demands, which will bring to the farmers a fair price, and by the wise and judicious use of the acres thus released for the production of food for our people and feed for our animals, the southland should become the richest and most prosperous agricultural people in the wide world."

Mr. Carl Jones of Clanton spent last week end in Birmingham visiting friends.

MILK STOOL MUSINGS
By W. H. Eaton, Auburn

Do not breed the heifers too early. They should be bred to freshen at from 24 to 30 months of age, depending on growth and development.

This is an ideal season for calf scours and other digestive disorders. Keep the feeding pails clean and avoid overfeeding.

The good cow that has just calved in poor condition of flesh will need some extra attention in the way of grain feeding this month.

At the beginning of July let's do a little dairy bookeeping. Total the milk and feed records for the half year period. Add to the inventory the value of the calves born since January. A slight change in method may show more profit for the remainder of the year.

WOODMEN LOGROLLERS MEETING

The first field day of the Woodmen Logrollers Association of this district is to be held in Clanton during July is the opinion expressed by Mr. J. L. Thornton of Montgomery. Mr. Thornton is an agent of the Logrollers Association.

Montgomery and Clanton Camps have credit for having the liveliest organizations in this district, and thereby they have the best showing for having the first field day. Clanton's hopes are increased by the fact that the Montgomery unit is desirous that Clanton shall have the first field day.

The Logrollers Organization at Montgomery has invited the Clanton team to Montgomery for a meeting on the night of July 11. At this time joint initiatiin is to be held of the classes of the different camps of the district, and plans are to be laid for permanent organization. Also preparations are to be made for the field day at Clanton. The exact date of the occasion will probably be announced at the meeting on July 11. From time to time field days are to be held at the various cities in the district.

At these field days the most prominent men in the stae will attend and speak. Baseball and games of all sorts will be played.

The counties in this distrist are Lowndes, Montgomery, Crenshaw, Macon, Bullock, Coosa, Elmore, Chilton, Autauga and Bibb.

Mrs. C. E. Stapp has returned to Clanton from Gadsden, Alabama, where she has been serving as director of social service work of the R. F. C. administration of Etowah county. Mrs. Stapp expects to be in Clanton for some time.

A letter from Jack Hayes Monday says that he has been taken out of the White Sox line-up for a while to get a much needed rest. He says he will be back in the game soon and expects to cheer his friends with another shower of base hits.

STATE WIDE DAIRY MEETING

Seth P. Storrs, commissioner of agriculture, has called a statewide meeting of milk producers, distributors and manufacturers of dairy products for July 11 and 12 at the Gay Teague Hotel, Montgomery, to work out a code of fair practices to present to the United States secretary of agriculture for approval. The meeting will convene at 10 o'clock July 11.

After conferring with the various groups including dairymen, manufacturers of butter and ice cream, distributors of fluid milk, health department officials and others, commissioner Storrs called the meeting declaring it advisable for dairy interest to submit their code at the earliest possible date.

Mr. Bridges, assistant commissioner of agriculture of Georgia, who recently spent about five weeks in Washington working with Secretary Wallace on the Atlanta code which has already been approved, has been invited to attend the Alabama meeting and to work with the dairymen and manufacturers for the two-day session.

The cooperation of the Alabama Health Department has been assured in the movement by Dr. C. A. Abele of that department.

All interested in the dairy industry are invited to attend the meeting.

Mr. Walter Kelley Gillespie returned home last Thursday night from a week's visit in Rockford.

FARM AND GARDEN QUERY BOX
(By K. C. Davis, Knapp School of Country Life, Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn.)

Q.—What spray material should be used on tomatoes?

A.—This crop is bothered with a disease called blight which withers the leaves but does not make a black ring inside the stem. The black ring is an indication of wilt which is not controlled by spraying. If the plants are healthy, always spray them in advance of their sickness by using Bordeaux mixture to which arsenate of lead has been added to keep off several kinds of eating insects, such as horn worms and tomato fruit worms. Bordeaux mixture is made by slacking four pounds of lime in about twenty gallons of water. Then dissovle four pounds of copper sulphate in a like amount of water. These solutions can be kept separate for any length of time desired. When you use them, put together an equal amount of each and spray. Be sure to add the arsenate of lead at the rate of one ounce to every two gallons of the liquid. This same combination of spray material can be used also on celery, Irish potatoes, eggplant, and, in fact, almost all garden crops except those which are to be eaten directly without much washing. If any of the plants are sprayed just before harvesting, the product should be washed thoroughly.

Q.—Does the din of a beaten pan aid in the housing of a swarm of bees? We have been debating this question a great deal and want your opinion.

A.—When a swarm of bees are in the air, they are following the hum of the queen and trying to stay as close to the queen as possible. The beating of a pan or drum which makes a loud noise often drowns out the sound of the queen and causes her to light very quickly on a limb or other object. Thus the whole swarm may be saved from a long flight. They can be brushed into a basket or box and taken, with a cover over the container, to a hive and placed in it.

NEW MARKET BUILDING BUILT IN BIRMINGHAM

Birmingham's open air farmer's market which has been an outlet for the produce of truck growers in all parts of Alabama and some neighboring states for more than five years, is in a new location this year. The market has been moved inside a handsome brick building, 150 by 140 feet, at Seventh Avenue and North Twenty-Sixth Street, Birmingham, two blocks north of the Terminal Station.

The market, known as the Farmers & Truck Growers Terminal, Inc., will be in a much better position to serve farmers and buyers alike from this building. The framers may drive their trucks directly into the building, which is enclosed and screened. Their produce will be protected from the heat of the sun and this feature will mean a great saving to them, as truck stuff will keep much longer.

The market was moved because of the desire of the operators to afford this convenience to farmers and because of strict requirements set up by the Birmingham Health Department, which has ruled that this year farmers will not be allowed to sell their produce from trucks parked on open lots or on the streets of Birmingham.

It is planned to operate a part of the former lot at Third Avenue and North Twenty-Fifth Street as a wholesale market, running only during the early morning hours. Farmers wishing to retail their produce then may move a few blocks northeast to the enclosed market. The latter building has concrete floors, brick walls and steel windows. It is the most desirable site in Birmingham for a market of its kind and will not be surpassed for convenience by any market in the South.

MORE PIGS SAVED; LESS SOWS TO BE FARROWED

By saving 476,000 pigs Alabama farmers to June 1 this year saved 24,000 more pigs than they did to the same date last year when they saved 452,000. This is a 5 per cent increase.

When reporting the above F. W. Gist, department of agriculture statistician, reported 69,000 sows to be farrowed in Alabama June 1 to December 1 this year compared with 73,000 farrowed during the same period last year.

"The number of pigs saved in the United States during the spring of 1933 was 3 per cent greater than the corresponding period of 1932, but less than the corresponding period of 1931 he said. "The big crop this year was practically the same as the average of the five years, 1928 to 1932 inclusive. Sows to be farrowed this fall in the United States are estimated at 8 per cent over last year's farrowing."

STATE TO CONTINUE INSPECTION OF HAY

Notified that the federal government had cancelled its appropriation for hay inspection in Alabama, Seth P. Storrs, commissioner of agriculture, announced that the state department would attempt to continue the service.

The work has been carried out as a cooperative move between the state and federal government, and Mr. Storrs said that its discontinuance would be "disastrous to the hay producers of Alabama."

THE LYNCHING RECORD FOR THE FIRST SIX MONTHS OF 1933

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, I find that there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negroes. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occured and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

MT. PLEASANT SUNDAY SCHOOL

We will have Sunday school next Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. Our new literature will be there by that time. Everybody is invited.—Lee A. Popwell, superintendent.

FEWER WATERMELONS THIS YEAR THAN LAST

Alabama is this year producing 1,300,000 watermelons compared with 2,048,000 last year, reports F. W. Gist, statistician of the department of agriculture.

"The acreage to watermelons this year in Alabama is 4,700 against 6,400 last year and the indicated yield this year is 290 melons per acre against 320 last year," he said.

"The production for sale this year in the second early states, running from Alabama to Texas, is 28,000,000, against 29,000,000 last year."

It is time to begin thinking of how much hairy vetch or Austrian winter peas to plant this fall. These legumes are the recognized champion soil builders of Alabama.

Trees are a crop and should be treated as such. When properly cared for, in some cases, trees become one of the most profitable of farm crops.

TREASURER WANTS TO KNOW THE OWNERS OF WARRANTS

Editor Union-Banner:

Please permit me to call attention of the public to that part of my report lister as "Outstanding Witness Fees in the Fiduciary Fund." These were fees which had been left by witnesses in the Circuit Clerk's office for a period of five years and were then turned over to the treasurer, as is required by law. After they have remained in this office for five years it is the duty of the treasurer to place them in the general fund. They have been in this office four years, and I have advertised them each six months and have found many of the owners, but there are still a few that I am unable to find. I am asking my friends to look over the list and if there is any person whom they know, to please come in and leave their address so that I may get in communication with the owner.—Respectfully, Gertrude P. Calloway, county treasurer.

Besides his grist mill, this wide-awake merchant carries almost anything that the average family needs. Read his adv., and visit his store.

REPEAL OF PROHIBITION

Repeal means free flowing whiskey, addled brains, poverty, disease, cuttings, automobile accidents, stabbings, unsafe street assaults on women, riot, murders and 99 other evils.

Prohibition yet means most boys are not drunkards—money is safe for family needs—our roads are safe—the devil is chained.

Repeal is a state referendum, and not a party matter. Money made out of misery is cursed.

Protect the boys of Christian families in Alabama. Jesus said, "But whosoever shall offend one of these little ones that believe in me, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea," Matt. 18:5.

Vote on July 18 against repeal for Alabama by electing prohibition candidates only. Christian men! Christian women! Organize your neighbors and Christian friends? Men and women, go in groups to the polls to vote for dry candidates! These will then save prohibition by their votes in the Alabama convention.—George D. Hunt, R. A. McKay, F. P. Ensminger, committee of the Alabama conference of Congregational and Christian churches.

Howard Robinson, son of W. G. Robinson of near the cotton mill and a Mr. Thomas (nickname Bluejohn) from South Clanton had an auto accident Thursday night just north of Ellis's Filling Station on the Birmingham highway. There were no injuries to the persons of either party, but the cars were badly wrecked.

It is reported that there was only one light on each car. The drivers misjudged the lights and the result was a head on collision. The Robinson car, which was going north, had the left front wheel, fender, running gear, etc., wrecked. The Thomas car suffered about equal damages to the right side.

LAWRENCE ACTIVE MANAGER OF CLANTON TRACTOR COMPANY

Mr. B. Lawrence, upon retiring from the office of county superintendent of education, took over Saturday, July 1, the active management of the International Harvester or the McCormick-Deering agency here in Clanton. He is located in the old Joe Maddox store at the intersection of the Birmingham-Montgomery and Selma highways.

The new manager states that he handles everything in the way of farm hardware, and is anxious to sell the farmer anything from a plow-bolt to a tractor. In his stock of hardware is included saw mills, syrup mills, dairy equipment, and International trucks. Mr. Lawrence cites that it is a recognized fact that better terms can be had on farm hardware with this company than with any other.

The Gulf station in connection with the store is also to be operated by Mr. Lawrence, and automobile greasing and polishing service of all kinds are to be offered to the public. In connection with the filling station a garage is to be operated, over which Mr. Lawrence suggests that he has a real mechanic. Mr. Leonard J. Jones, the mechanic, is especially an expert on adjusting hydraulic brakes, it is stated.

The patronage of everyone in Chilton County will be appreciated by Mr. Lawrence.

JOHN HOLLIS IN AUTO WRECK

Mr. John Hollis, superintendent of the Alabama Power plant at Mitchell Dam had an auto wreck Saturday afternoon about three and one-half miles below Clanton on the Montgomery highway.

Farmers Called To Meet Here Saturday

Stapp Requests Cotton Growers To Attend For Final Check-Up on Cotton Acreage Reduction Plan

Mr. C. E. Stapp is calling a meeting of all the large cotton growers in the county for Saturday, July 8, at 10 a.m., to be held at the courthouse in Clanton. At this meeting a report of the total acreage signed up will be given, and if the report shows that Chilton County is short of its quota, an appeal will be made to those present to increase their contracts for acreage to be taken out of production. This is to be done in order that Chilton County's full quota of 12,000 acres can be offered at the close of the meeting.

Up until Wednesday morning, it is announced that 7,000 acres have been signed up with the government.

FEWER WATERMELONS THIS YEAR THAN LAST

Alabama is this year producing 1,300,000 watermelons compared with 2,048,000 last year, reports F. W. Gist, statistician of the department of agriculture.

"The acreage to watermelons this year in Alabama is 4,700 against 6,400 last year and the indicated yield this year is 290 melons per acre against 320 last year," he said.

"The production for sale this year in the second early states, running from Alabama to Texas, is 28,000,000, against 29,000,000 last year."

It is time to begin thinking of how much hairy vetch or Austrian winter peas to plant this fall. These legumes are the recognized champion soil builders of Alabama.

An entertainment sponsored by the 4-H Club will be presented at Isabella High School Saturday, July 8th, at 8 o'clock p.m. Admission charges will be 10c and 15c. The program will consist of varied features of interest.

BEES—AND OTHER THINGS

Editor Union-Banner:

If you will please furnish space in your paper, I shall be delighted to run a series of articles on the above subject.

As we now have an organization in the county to cooperate in the matter of bee culture, we wish to give the subject our best effort.

When I was just a boy, I became interested in bee culture by contact with my grandfather, who was almost an expert in the business. Since then I really enjoy the work and study of "these little folk", for they not only produce a sweet that is unsurpassed, and a product that would be lost, but they are very valuable in the matter of pollination of plants.

The honey bee is dreaded by most people because she (not he) is ever ready to give marauders a serum by injection. This is the means of protection God gave the bee. By a careful study and work with bees, anyone can avoid almost all stings. They are "non-respectors of persons", and the saying that bees just naturally sting some and do not sting others is false. They are exceedingly sensitive to the way you do, the way you smell, and when you work.

The most experience some people have in working with bees is robbing them, and hiving them in an old-fashioned hive. Some old-fashioned things are good, but not an old-fashioned bee hive. Robbing and hiving are only small parts of bee work. Having them in patented hives so that you can work with them properly is just as essential as spraying fruit to have worm-free peaches.

Please let us consider two points to begin with: (1) The getting rid of old-fashioned hives, by transferring. (2) The getting rid of the old black bee by re-queening every year. The experience of the best bee-keepers is that the Italian is far superior to the black bee in every respect.

I shall be glad if I can be of any assistance to anyone in bee-keeping. It is hoped that everyone in the county having even one hive will send in his name to Mr. Stapp or to me. It costs you nothing.—G. G. WILLIAMS, Chairman, Chilton County Bee Asso.

AUTO WRECKS NEAR VERBENA

There were two auto wrecks about two miles north of Verbena Monday night, in which one man was badly injured and several others suffered minor injuries.

Mr. J. W. Wells, of Montgomery, who was badly hurt in the first wreck, was brought to the Central Alabama Hospital Monday night. According to the X-rays made, he has five broken ribs and a crushed ankle.

It was reported that two large cotton trucks were parked on a hillside near Verbena without lights, and that while the Wells car was passing these on the right side of the road, a car of five negroes, driving at a terrific speed came over the hill, whipped around the trucks, and headed straight into the Wells car. The Wells car turned over three times, throwing two or its occupants out, and pinning another under the car.

The other two occupants of the Wells car, Mr. H. E. Palmer, of Montgomery, and Mr. Ted Jordan, of Tuscaloosa, were uninjured.

In the negro car, which bore an Indiana tag, there were three women and two men. One of the women was badly shaken up and another received a cut on the leg, but none were seriously injured.

At the time of the accident, Mr. Wells was en route from Tuscaloosa, where he has a building contract, to his home in Montgomery. Both cars in the accident were Model A Fords.

Another wreck happened at the same spot within a very short time. A salesman out of Montgomery, in a Model A Ford roadster ran under one of the big cotton trucks. According to reports given here the man was practically uninjured, but the car was very badly wrecked.

REDUCTIONS IN RAILWAY RATES

The L. & N. announces that on Sunday, July 9, there will be a special round-trip excursion rate of $1.75 on to Pensacola, Florida. A special train is to leave Clanton at 7:00 a.m. Sunday to arrive in Pensacola at 12:45 p.m. On the return trip the train will leave Pensacola at 10:30 p.m. and arrive at Clanton about 4:30 a.m., Monday. In comparison with the regular one way fare of $4.09 to Pensacola this is a very cheap rate.

It is also announced by the L. & N. that 1 cent per mile excursion rates may be bought at the following dates: August 3, 4, 5; September 1, 2, 3; October 5, 6, 7; and November 27, 28, 29, and that the return limit from the time of the purchase of the ticket by coach will be approximately 8 days. According to this rate the passenger will pay one cent per mile traveled to all stations in the territory east of the Mississippi and south of the Potomac River and to Cincinatti, Ohio; St. Louis, Missouri; Washington D. C., and Havana, Cuba. These special excursion tickets will be honored on coaches or chair cars, also in sleeping or parlor cars upon the payment of the proper sleeping or parlor car rates. Stop-overs will be allowed at all stations on either going or returning trips or both within the final limit of the ticket. Reduced pullman rates are also authorized.

Since April 1 of this year the L. & N. has had a 2 cent rate per mile good on all coaches. This 2 cent rate is also in effect on the A. & W. P.; M. & O.; N. C. & St. L. railways. Also since April the pullman tickets have been selling at 3 cents per mile. The old rate was 3.6 cents per mile on both coaches and pullmans.

According to the old rate it cost $2.03 to go to Birmingham, whereas with the new rate it costs only $1.13

MISSION INSTITUTE OF UNITY AND CHILTON ASSOCIATIONS

July 11, 12, and 13th should be checked on your calendar today and plans made right now by all Baptist families that nothing prevent you from being in Clanton at the Baptist church at least ten minutes before ten o'clock each day, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, July 11, 12 and 13th, for the greatest institute ever held in this part of the state.

For four years, now, we have been having an institute each summer in which the Christian people of our two associations come together for 3 days of fellowship, information and inspiration. This year we have secured an unusually strong faculty. Dr. John R. Sampey, Louisville, Ky., is to be back with us; Dr. J. W. Beagle, superintendent of home missions; Miss Emma Leachman, home mission field worker; Dr. Frank McDonald, pastor of Woodlawn, Birmingham, and many other fine speakers and teachers. The program will be given in full next week.

We are to study home missions particularly this year. Cheap books have been secured and will be on sale. None cost more than twenty-five cents each. Any one wishing a book may buy it. All the books are worth far more than they cost.

The lunch plans are as usual—each church bringing lunch one day. The menu and lunch chairman is printed in the W. M. U. book of Unity Association. The superintendents—Mrs. J. W. Jones, Thorsby, and Mrs. Grady Heflin, Clanton—are urging every church in their association to be represented. The pastors and the Sunday school superintendents are asked to make the above announcements next Sunday and the Sunday following. A pressing invitation is extended to all our pastors to come and bring all the workers in their churches.

This is a special meeting for the women, the men, the young people, and the children. Plan to come and bring every member of the family. Each W. M. U. organization having one fourth the active members taking this course will be credited with a mission study class. — Mrs. S. J. Ezell.

LOCAL POST CARRIER IN CONTEST TO WIN TRIP TO WORLD'S FAIR

This trip of a lifetime will be awarded to the 12 N. B. A. Post carrier boys, who win a simple, easy contest for obtaining new subscribers to the Birmingham Post. Boys who do not win a Chicago trip will receive other valuable prizes to repay their efforts.

Here is the chance to do a good turn for the friendly carrier boy who has served Post readers so faithfully for many months. You'll agree that he deserves a summer vacation. The Post is offering this never-to-be-forgotten trip in exchange for a little spare-time effort during the next few weeks, getting new subscribers at the low weekly rate of 12 cents.

Our local boy has entered the contest. Tell him the names of your friends who do not take the Post. Say a good word for him to non-subscribing neighbors. Ask about his progress every few days, and encourage him to succeed! He will appreciate your interest and aid, and he will be eager to repay you with extra good newspaper service. And, if he wins, you'll have the immense satisfaction of having helped a worthy boy win the thrilling trip of his young life.

Morris Pyron, of Clanton, the local Birmingham Post carrier, is in this contest.

You will laugh at Salesman Bill Saturday night at Isabella high school auditorium. Admission 10 and 15 cents.

CLANTON LOST TO VERBENA, 5-3

Clanton lost to Verbena on the local field last Thursday afternoon, five to three, in a 13-inning battle.

During the second inning a shower fell, but after about 30 minutes play was resumed, in a veritable sea of mud. None of the pitchers tried to put much on the ball, on account of the weather, which also caused many errors.

Trailing on the short end of a three and two count, Clanton tied it at 3-all in the ninth. Neither team could score until the 13th, when Grant singled, Hamel tripled, and A. Rutland singled, scoring two runs. Clanton went out in 1-2-3 order in their half to end the game.

The Clanton team celebrated the glorious 4th by winning from Billingsley on the latter's field, three to two, although they were outhit nine to six.

Billingsley bobbled four times in the field, and Clanton three.

This game saw the entrance of a newcomer in the Clanton line-up, "Dock" Baker. He is expected to give someone some stiff competition for a place in the infield.

Mass Meeting Held At Clanton Saturday

Resolutions Passed Asking the Commissioners To Provide Money

A mass meeting of around 250 citizens of Chilton County was held at the courthouse in Clanton Saturday, July 8, at 2:30 p.m. This meeting was in response to a petition call of 61 citizens to request the commissioners court to reconsider their action in turning down an opportunity of gaining additional aid from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, to provide employment for the 1,315 unemployed families in Chilton County.

By vote of the meeting, Judge Reynold was made chairman of the evening. Judge Reynolds explained the situation which was facing the county in regard to the R. F. C. aid. It was rehearsed how the Hoover administration had appropriated $300,000,000 for aid of the unemployed, and that the Roosevelt administration had appropriated an additional $500,000,000 to carry on this program. Further, it was related that under the new law regulating these funds Chilton County would automatically receive from the federal government only as much R. F. C. money during the months of July, August and September as was received during the months of April, May and June. This would mean that Chilton County would receive only about $7,000 for the next three months unless the commissioners see fit to take advantage of the proposition proposed in the resolution below. The following resolution was submitted to the meeting and was adopted by a vote of 130 to 15. The resolution reads as follows:

"Whereas, the Commissioners Court of Chilton County submitted to the people at an election held Februray 21, 1933, the question of the county making an application for $50,000 of R. F. C. relief funds, and a majority of the votes cast at said election being in favor of the commissioners court making application for said relief funds; and

"Whereas, Chilton County has received about $25,000 of said funds, and under the provisions of a new federal law in effect July 1st, another appropriation of five hundred million dollars was made available for relief of the needy and unemployed people of the United States; and

"Whereas, Mr. Thad Holt, director of the Alabama Relief Administration, has made a proposition to Chilton County that if the commisisoners court would put up $2,000 per month for the months of July, August and September, he would put up $5,500 per month for the said three months, making $7,500 per month for the months of July, August and September, to be spent under the direction of the commissioners court of Chilton County for the relief of the needy and unemployed, and that the county would be given back one-third of the amount so appropriated, such refund to be used also for the relief of the needy and unemployed; and

"Whereas the commissioners court of Chilton County has failed or refused to accept the offer of Mr. Holt of the Alabama Relief Administration, as outlined above for the months of July, August and September; and

"Whereas, it will cost the people of Chilton County just as much not to receive any of this money as it would to get their share, therefore be it

"Resolved by the people of Chilton County, in mass meeting assembled, that we earnestly implore and beg the commissioners court of Chilton County that they comply with the expressed vote of the people in favor of securing relief funds for our needy and unemployed, and that they reconsider this matter and put up the required amount of money to obtain and make available the sum of $22,500 to be used to help the distressed situation of many people in our county for the months of July, August and September; be it further

"Resolved that we beg the county commissioners and other officials of our county to think seriously and carefully of the poor, suffering, needy and unemployed people of our county. May we ask: 'What hope have we of helping them in their destitute condition, if our county does not use its opportunity to secure aid for them through the R.F.C.' The sum total of the proposition as it now stands is this: 'Our Commissioners Court by spending $4,000 can secure $22,500 to give work relief to our needy people during the next three months; and we most earnestly beg them to proceed to do this without further delay."

Another resolution was also adopted by the meeting by about the same vote as the preceding proposition, and it reads as follows:

"Whereas the people of Chilton County are in financial distress, many are not able to pay their tares, and the Tax Collector has extended the time for payment of taxes in order to

SELMA-CLANTON HIGHWAY

A delegation from Clanton went to Montgomery Thursday, July 6, in the interest of the paving of the highway from Clanton to Selma from a portion of the $12,000,000 which the federal government has allotted to Alabama to be used for the building of roads.

Those who went from Clanton were: Judge L. H. Reynolds, commissioners J. E. Cobb, J. C. Atchison, J. M. Mims and C. D. Duke; also Messrs. Fate Popwell, D. O. Manning, and Hill Foshee. There was also a delegation from Dallas county working together with the Chilton group and this included: Probate Judge Vaughn, the board of revenue, which corresponds to the Chilton County Commissioners; Circuit Judge Hobbs, of Selma; Hunt Frazier, secretary of the chamber of commerce of Selma and the mayor of Selma.

These delegations were given audience by L. G. Smith, state highway director, and he seemed very favorable for paving the road under discussion. Mr. Smith, however, told the delegation that both the state and the federal governments would have to give the project their okeh.

The delegation also conferred with Mr. Wells, the federal engineer, who must okeh all road building projects under this government grant. He assured the group that if the project came to him he would give it due consideration.

Under the old law concerning federal road building aid, the states had to use all the funds on federal highways, but according to the new law 25 per cent of the $12,000,000 allotted to Alabama may be used on state or lateral roads. It is from this 25 per cent that it is hoped the state will construct the Clanton to Selma highway.

FIREMEN VS. LAY DAM THURSDAY, JULY 20TH

A team made up of the members of the Clanton Fire Department will play a game with a team from Lay Dam on the local field on Thursday, July 20.

The regular Clanton baseball team has consented to allow the firemen to use their uniforms. Mayor Smith has agreed to try to get all the business houses to close for the game. The proceeds of the game will go to the special firemen's fund, which is reported to be very low at present.

Remember the date and hour—the Clanton baseball park, Thursday, July 20, at 3:30 p.m.

Dr. Gragg Says No On Income & Repeal

A letter to voters in general and Mr. Pattillo in particular:

First of all I wish to thank Mr. J. C. Pattillo for the prominent and especially multiple mention of my name in his recent letter to the paper.

I fully agree with him when he says, "The fact is the laborer, merchant, doctor and all consumers are paying the tribute already to the men and corporations of big incomes." And that is just why I am trying to get over to the voters. We don't want to raise the tribute any more.

My friends, in the last few days, have you read about Mr. Mitchell, the banker, or J. P. Morgan, the great financier, how, when our great federal government brought him to task, how he admitted scheming them out of hundreds of millions and then laughed in the very face of his investigators and got away with it all?

Here in our own state the governor and his tax-raising bunch have taken the Birmingham News and Mr. Hanson for their text showing them with an income of around one hundred and fifty thousand dollars per year; and what is the reply? They, Hanson and the News, show that they lost nearly that much last year and more than half that the first half of this year, so you can see they are already fixed to pay no income tax.

However, if they could not fix it that way, they could charge one dollar per year more for their paper and one cent more per inch for their advertising space and you and I, the consumer, would have to pay for it.

What I want you to see is that when you add more to the taxes of Mellon or Rockefeller that the price of gas goes up and you pay it. If you add more to the American Tobacco Co., the "little negro" or the poor white boy, who smokes cigarettes, pay it. If you add thirty cents a bushel to manufactured wheat that $1.50 per barrel is paid by the individual who eats the biscuit and not by the milling company who ground the flour.

There is a tax now passed recently somewhat similar to the income tax, on telephone and telegraph companies. Who pays this? When you pay sixty cents to talk to a party in Birmingham for the same time that did cost you fifty cents it seems plain to me that you and not the company pays that fifteen cents difference.

Amzi Barber To Speak Here Saturday, July 15

Amzi Barber, representative of Jefferson County in the Alabama legislature, will speak at the courthouse in Clanton Saturday afternoon, July 15th at 2:30 o'clock.

He will present arguments in support of the income tax and the warrant act.

Mr. Barber is one of the most forceful speakers in Alabama and he is considered the strongest factor in support of the measures he will discuss.

Every citizen should hear his speech on Saturday, July 15.

ASKINS-DAVIS WEDDING

Mr. Lonza Askins and Miss Pauline Davis were married Sunday, July 9, at the home of the Rev. B. Lawrence, near Clanton. The bride's brother and sister, Mr. Stanley and Miss Bernice Davis, and the Lawrence family were the only witnesses present for the ceremony.

Both the bride and the bridegroom are well-known in and around Clanton, and their many friends, to gether with this paper, extend congratulations.

Miss Davis is the daughter of Mrs. W. C. Davis of Enterprise and Mr. Askins is the son of Mr. L. F. Askins of near Billingsley.

Mr. Askins has been working for some time past at Culver's I. G. A. in Clanton. The bride has been for some time a waitress in Matt's Cafe at Clanton. The newly weds moved Monday into the house just back of the old Thornton house, which is just across from the Wilson Hotel in Clanton.

KIWANIS CLUB MEETING

The program of the Kiwanis Club Thursday night, July 6, was in charge of Dr. V. J. Gragg, and was centered around the project of securing for Clanton an airplane landing field. The American Legion is working together with the Kiwanis Club on this project.

A distinguished guest at the Thursday night meeting was the Hon. H. C. Armstrong, president of the City National Bank of Selma, who is one of the foremost civilian fliers in this state. Mr. Armstrong spoke on this occasion on the requirements Clanton would have to meet in order to secure a landing field. He spoke from a very practical viewpoint covering his own experience, not only in flying, but also in helping to lay out landing fields in different places in Alabama and Mississippi. In regard to the requirements for a landing field, it appears that it will be easily possible for Clanton to find a suitable location near the town.

The Kiwanis Club and the American Legion plan to follow the suggestions outlined by Mr. Armstrong and make an aviation field a reality for Clanton.

At the meeting Thursday night, a special musical number was rendered by Misses Marylin Hardy and Hilda Hart.

RESOLUTIONS COMMENDING COUNTY AGENT C. E. STAPP

At a meeting of the field inspectors and other farmers at the courthouse Monday afternoon, July 10, the resolutions found below were adopted in commendation of County Agent C. E. Stapp. The meeting in which these resolutions were adopted was held after it had been learned that Chilton County farmers had agreed to retire 693¼ more acres than its quota of 12,000 acres.

The resolutions read as follows:

"Be it resolver by farmers of Chilton County in public meeting assembled, that we hereby express our appreciation to Hon. C. E. Stapp for the fine service he has rendered our county as farm demonstration agent during the past six years.

"Resolved further, that we do and now voice our gratitude to Mr. Stapp for the splendid service in helping all our farmers to understand, and leading them to participate in the reduction of cotton acreage. In this work his courageous leadership has challenged our highest admiration and stimulated us to strive for the accomplishment of the national goal. In all of this, he has displayed a patience and fortitude worthy of the example of all of us.

We are happy to bear this testimony of this worthy public official—servant of the people."

GEORGE MIMS DIED

Mr. George W. Mims, age 88 years, died at this home about 7 miles west of Clanton, Saturday, July 8. Funeral services were held at Cedar Grove church Sunday at 3 p.m. The serviies were conducted by the Rev. M. J. Parrish. Six grandsons acted as pallbearers. Spigener Funeral Home was in charge of the burial.

The deceased is survived by his wife, Mrs. Charlotte Mims; six sons, J. W., J. A., J. M., A. F., Rev. M. W., and G. C. Mims; two sisters, Mrs. Rosa J. Foshee and Mrs. Lillie Higgins.

Wilkinson Will Speak Here Saturday A. M.

The Hon. Horace Wilkinson, one of the most prominent lawyers in Birmingham, will speak at the courthouse in Clanton Saturday, July 15, at 11 a.m.

He will present arguments against the repeal of the 18th amendment.

Mr. Wilkinson is a forceful speaker and a recognized factor in the politics of the state. Everyone is urged to come out and hear him next Saturday.

C. FENN JONES WANTS VOTE WHETHER FOR REPEAL OR NOT

To the Voters of Chilton County:

A few weeks ago I yielded to the request of some of my friends to offer myself as a candidate for a delegate to the state convention to be held in Montgomery, Ala., in connection with the repeal of the 18th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

I do not consider this entirely a party question, and have felt inclined to allow my friends and the voters to decide the matter for themselves, undisturbed by me, and I still feel that way, but I do desire to say I shall certainly appreciate your vote, whether you are for or against the repeal of the 18th Amendment.

You understand that all delegates to this convention are pledged and honor bound to vote according to the way the majority of the state votes, that is to say, if the state votes to repeal the amendment, all delegates regardless of their personal opinion must vote to repeal. Should the majority of the voters of the state vote against repeal then all delegates must vote against repeal.

Therefore the question at issue is not affected at all by the personnel of the delegates to the convention, and your choice of the candidates will only serve to afford one man from Chilton County the honor of attending the convention, and I am writing especially to assure you that I will greatly appreciate your bestowing upon me the honor. As has been explained in a number of the papers the repeal of the 18th Amendment does not change in any way the prohibition law of Alabama, but does allow the authorization of each state to pass such laws as the individual state may want on the prohibtion question.

Is there anything alarming or fundamentally wrong in that policy of government?

What right have the people of Alabama to say to the people of California that they shall not pass such laws as are best for their interest according to their own wishes and convictions or to deny the same privilege and right to all the other states of the Union? This is a question you are asked to decide on the 18th of this month, and not whether Alabama shall legalize the sale of whiskey and beer as some people think.

I am perfectly willing for each state to govern themselves on this matter and on all other questions of local interest, but if you send me to to the convention, I shall vote the way the majority of the people of Alabama vote, whether for or against the repeal of the 18th Amendment.

This being the first time I have ever asked the people to vote for me, it may be interesting to some to know I am asking for a position in which there is no salary, but I shall be grateful for your vote and pleased to serve you in this instance without pay.—C. Fenn Jones.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATION

A civil service examination to secure a collector of cotton statistics for Chilton County was held at the County high school building in Clanton Friday, July 7 at 8:30 a.m. Mr. L. P. Bean, of Clanton postoffice, was in charge of the examination.

The one employed by the examination is to collect information as to cotton crop conditions, including boll weevils during the growing season, and after the harvest begins he is to keep a record of gin and warehouse reports of the county. The information gathered is to be turned over to the government at Washington where it will be used in the making of government forecast.

Examinations of this nature were held all over Alabama Friday. It is beleived by the postoffice officials here that other examinations of this nature are to be held in Chilton County in the near future for this place. The salary of the one appointed will be $318 for the first year.

There were 21 who took the examination. Among those who took it were Chester Mims, Stanley Davis, R. B. Johnson, J. C. White, Rev. W. H. Wilson, Stanley McNeil, S. W. Collins, Bernice Vance, Marvin Martin, Willie Crowson, Phillip Fashee, Cornelius Hand, John M. Culp, Simuel Mims, Philip Eiland, G. L. Sutley, H. L. Aldridge, Howard Oden and Alex Maddox.

For the past week, Deputy Sheriff Gillespie reports only two arrests—one for transporting liquor, and one for driving without lights. There were 6 in jail Wednesday.

CHILTON FULFILLS HER QUOTA

From the office of County Agent C. E. Stapp came the report Monday afternoon that Chilton County had overstepped her quota of cotton acreage by around 700 acres. This gave Chilton Monday night a total of 12,700 acres to be taken out of production. This number of acres was included in the contracts of 3,021 farmers.

For the past two weeks County Agent Stapp and his corps of 50 assistants have been working hard to make it possible for Chilton County to fulfill her allotted amount of the immense reduction plan that the government has launched. On Saturday, July 8, at 10:00 a.m., County Agent Stapp held a meeting with about 400 of the leading farmers of the county. This meeting was purposed to get enough farmers to raise their acreage in order to raise the quota of Chilton by Saturday night. There were about 500 acres signed up Saturday morning, but there remained lacking 937 acres to finish the quota. Not only this 937 acres but also 700 extra acres were raised before night Monday through the efforts of County Agent Stapp.

A strenuous effort has been made by Mr. Stapp and his corps of assistants to make Chilton County come up to her expectations and the farmers of Chilton County owe Mr. Stapp a debt of gratitude for his unfaltering service.

PROCESS TAX AFFECTS FLOUR

The Federal government process tax on flour went into effect Saturday, July 8, at 12 p.m. This tax amounts to $1.39 per barrel and is assessed on all wholesale merchants in the United States. The retail merchants are exempt from this taxation for 30 days in order that they may have ample time in which to dispose of their present stock of flour.

The process tax on wheat is purposed to reimburse the government for the cost of the wheat acreage reduction plan whach has been launched in the middle west. The plan for the reduction of wheat acreage was similar to the plan for the reduction of cotton acreage.

If the plan for the reduction of cotton acreage passes, there will also be a process tax placed on cotton goods in order to provide to reimburse the government for the expense of carrying out this plan. If the plan goes through it is supposed that this tax will go into effect on cotton about the first of August.

Sid Gibson Says Yea To All Amendments

Verbena, Ala., July 10.—Heaven knows, I wish I had to pay an income tax to the State of Alabama. It is a wonderful state and deserves the full support of every man and woman within its bounds. I have never been smart enough to make money enough to require the payment of such a worthwhile tax, but there is one thing sure, on July 18th, I shall go to the polls and cast one vote in an effort to compel those more fortunate than I to return to the state of Alabama a part of their income.

In my opinion, that man or woman in Alabama, who would be subject to an income tax and who votes against this amendment, is a "thankless child" who grabs all from his parent state and returns nothing.

Whatever can be done to pay the school teachers who have labored at a small promised salary, to enlighten the children of our state, I am for it. If men and women of today have any higher ambition than to educate and lift to a higher plane of living the children they have brought into the world, I just cannot imagine what that ambition could be.

Of all the positions or jobs in this nation, especially in the South, the school teacher's job carries with it the greatest responsibility of them all. We inflict upon the school teacher a six-year-old tow-head, often spoiled and in many cases with bad blood in his veins, and expect the teacher to begin moulding this human being into becoming a merchant, farmer, doctor, lawyer, preacher, governor or president, and yet you can hear many selfish income and other tax dodgers and unappreciative citizens remark that the teachers are being paid too much money. They have been paid all too little ever since the educational system began.

Some persons appear to feel they are doing the teacher a great honor in sending their child to school, when if the truth is known they dance a jig of perfect relief as soon as the little whelp is off and under the watchful care of little Miss So-and-So, who has to sweat blood with the combination of natures mixed up in her room five days a week.

Of all the men and women who are doing the world's work, the school teacher is the very poorest paid, and if there is any doubt about Alabama's

Rev. Butler Urges Voters To Consider

Stresses Importance of Studying Measures Before Voting

Forty years ago a small town editor in Kansas wrote an editorial on the subject, "What's the matter with Kansas?" Within a month that editorial had been quoted all over the country and now for 40 years no name in Kansas has been more widely known than the name of that small town editor, William Allen White.

A great many editors and a great many other men have been discussing that kind of question for Alabama. Some are trying to answer it. President Carmichael, of Alabama College at Montevallo, speaking at Thorsby last Tuesday said that the greatest achievement of this nation in its last 150 years has been the development of the educational system. And he appealed to his hearers not to let the system break down in Alabama. John Temple Graves a few days ago, in the Age-Herald, said that Alabama ranks 44th among the states of our country in literacy and 47th in per capita wealth. He quotes an answer Dr. Curry once gave to the question "Is Alabama too poor to educate her children?" "Alabama is too poor not to educate her children." Carmichael suggests that America is wealthiest among the nations because of her educational system. Graves suggests that Alabama is poor because she is illiterate and illiterate because she is poor. The two go together.

The Union-Banner stated some months ago that Chilton County ranked 62 in literacy among the 67 counties of Alabama. Alabama, 44th among the states, Chilton 62nd among the counties. Perhaps we may take some comfort in the fact that we haven't far to fall.

I heard something in Clanton the other day which makes me think the above rating for Chilton County must be about right. A man who knows the county well was speaking of the general attitude of the people towards election next week as indicated by the common declaration, "I'm going to vote agin everything." Well, that is cheap and easy, and there is a good deal of excuse for it. But the trouble is that the cheap and easy way doesn't get us anywhere. We'll continue to remain at the foot of the class until we are willing to give some real study to our problems.

All the questions to be voted on next Tuesday are tax questions. And none of us love taxation. Some of us hate the very word. However, the question is not, "Shall we have taxation?" We shall have taxation as long as we have government. But the question is "Who shall pay the taxes?

The different questions we have to vote on next Tuesday amount to that. Who shall pay the expenses of Alabama's government and of the federal government?

Take the question of the repeal of the 18th Amendment. Irenee Dupont, one of the country's very wealthy men, is reported to have said, "The Repeal of the 18th amendment would save me a million dollars in taxes." The same thing explains why Raskob, a multimillionaire, left the Republican party in 1928 and went to the support of Smith. President Roosevelt has announced that when the 18th Amendment has been repealed, the country will be relieved of certain taxation schemes now in force. And if we in Alabama vote for repeal next Tuesday, the next step will be to repeal Alabama's prohibition laws so that we may get our share of the revenue. Let's drink ourselves rich.

We have repeatedly been told that if we vote for the income tax it will be passed down to the consumer. It is no credit to our intelligence if we believe that argument. That is the one tax that can't be passed down.

I have a model T Ford. I bought a license tag for it last fall. I had to pay more for the license tag than I could have sold the car for without the tag.

The other day I bought six gallons of gas and paid 66 cents for the gasoline, 42 cents tax on the gasoline and 2 cents tax on the check I drew to pay for it. Just two thirds as much for government tax as the gasoline cost.

The government can pass on to us the tax on gasoline and the tax on every letter we send. Every farmer or laboring man in Alabama who has been trying to pay for or to keep up his farm or his home knows who pays the taxes on that home. Every man who smokes a cigarette ought to thrill with patriotism, for he is helping to pay the taxes of our great government with every breath he draws.

If we get beer in Alabama, Alabama's men and boys will pay their part of the hundreds of millions of dollars taxation which they promise us will be paid by the beer business. Those who drink the beer will pay the taxes, and their mothers and wives and children will help pay that

SOME REASONS WHY I SHALL VOTE AGAINST THE REPEAL

(An article by J. E. Dillard in The Alabama Baptist, submitted to The Union-Banner by Rev. J. W. Jones, of Thorsby, Ala., for reprinting.)

1. Because I am opposed to the liquor business. It has done more harm and caused more disease, misery and crime than anything I know.
2. Because the 18th amendment is the best law against the liquor business ever passed.
3. Because no other plan of handling the liquor business is offered in place of the 18th Amendment.
4. Because the prohibition law, while not thoroughly enforced, is probably as well enforced as any other law against crime.
5. Because I well remember the deplorable conditions existing before we had prohibition.
6. Because the liquor business is wrong and I will not vote to make it right.
7. Because I am opposed to the government going into the liquor business.
8. Because I am opposed to trying to balance the budget with blood money.
9. Because I am more interested in boys and girls, fathers and mothers, than I am the brewers and distillers, saloon keepers and wine dealers.
10. Because it would be a backward step in an effort to have a sober world.
11. Because the 18th amendment is the result of the prayers and efforts of good men and women over a period of a hundred years.
12. Because it would take a generation to get as good a law passed as the 18th amendment.
13. Because the trouble is not with the law but with its enforcement, and study should be given to methods of enforcement and not repeal.
14. Because the repeal of the 18th Amendment would result in hundreds of millions of dollars being spent for liquor instead of food, clothing and other necessities of life.
15. Because the repeal of the 18th Amendment would leave no way of protecting dry states against wet states.
16. Because you can't feed hungry families by encouraging them to drink intoxicating liquors.
17. Because the passing of the 18th Amendment resulted in the closing of 177,790 saloons, 1,247 breweries and 507 distilleries, and its repeal would mean the return of even more deplorable conditions.
18. Because the liquor business is inconsistent with our complex modern civilization and every effort should be put forth to destroy it and not to make it legal and respectable.
19. Because state control of the liquor business has been tried and found to be a failure.
20. Because the repeal of the 18th Amendment would not do away with bootleggers, speakeasies, blind tigers and other illegal methods of manufacturing and selling liquor.
21. Because prohibition at its worst has been better than license ever was at its best.
22. Because the Bible, experience and common sense say that whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap; and I don't want to reap the results of helping to make the liquor business legal again.

DeMabel's Beauty And Art Salon Observes Sixth Year In Business in Clanton, Ala.

The popular DeMabel's Beauty & Art Salon has passed its sixth birthday, according to Mrs. Ed Sims, efficient operator of the establishment and also founder. Mrs. Sims, the former Miss Mabel Howard, has, during these years, taken much interest in every lady and girl in this section, in the appearance of their hair and skin.

When first opened in Clanton, upstairs in the Mullins Building, DeMabel's Beauty Shoppe, as it was known then, occupied a small room and was equipped with a small amount of items, compared to the many modern pieces of beauty shop equipment now being used. Now, this popular beauty shop occupies two large rooms and carries a complete line of items that will interest and fascinate every woman.

MRS. ED SIMS (Mabel Howard)

During these six years, Mrs. Sims has built up a clientele that places the utmost confidence in her work and the preparations she has for sale. She uses the best of material she can secure, and the years of patronage she has enjoyed are evidence that her customers are always satisfied.

In a statement, Mrs. Sims said, "I want to improve my customers' looks, if possible, and I intend for them to leave satisfied and to be glad to come back again." Mrs. Sims is an ardent reader of the latest books and magazines on beauty culture. She has attended several interesting and informative conventions of beauty specialists, from which she derived many helps to pass on to her customers.

Besides her beauty work, she has a very attractive novelty department, carrying a line of hand-made and hand-painted gifts for all occasions. She is quite a gifted artist in handling a paint brush in making dainty cards, and tinting all sizes of photographs. Her work in this line has been attracting considerable attention in this section.

DeMabel, as she is known to her friends and customers, extends a most hearty welcome to all the ladies and girls to visit her place of business. She also expresses her sincere thanks to everyone for the splendid patronage she has enjoyed during the past six years in Clanton and assures them that her shop wil continue to give the best in service and work in the future. Mrs. Sims is to be congratulated on her splendid success in business.

FRIENDSHIP PICNIC

The Intermediate class of the Friendship Sunday school had a picnic Thursday night at Mims's pond, about three miles north of Clanton. The picnic lasted from 7 to 10, and an enjoyable time is reported. A PROCLAMATION
By The
GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama at its last extraordinary session ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which proposed amendment is herein set out, and ordered that the election be held on the first Tuesday after the expiration of three months from and after the final adjournment of the said session of the Legislature at which the amendment was proposed, and

WHEREAS, the said session of the Legislature at which the said amendment was proposed finally adjourned on Friday, April 14, 1933, and the first Tuesday after three months from and after the said final adjournment of the said session of the Legislature is Tuesday, July 18, 1933, and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, is required by law to be given by a proclamation of the Governor;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, B. M. Miller, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday the 18th day of July, 1933, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama in the manner and form required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:—

ARTICLE XXII. The Legislature shall have the power to levy and collect taxes for State purposes on net incomes from whatever source derived within this State, including the incomes derived from salaries, fees and compensation paid from the State, County, Municipality, and any agency or creature thereof, for the calendar year, 1933, and thereafter and to designate and define the incomes to be taxed and to fix the rates of taxes provided that the rate shall not exceed 5 per cent nor 3 per cent on corporations. Income shall not be deemed property for purposes of ad valorem taxes. From net income an exemption of not less than Fifteen Hundred Dollars ($1500.00) shall be allowed to unmarried persons and an exemption of not less than Three Thousand Dollars ($3000.00) shall be allowed to the head of a family, provided that only one exemption shall be allowed to husband and wife where they are living together and make separate returns for income tax. An exemption of not less than Three Hundred Dollars ($300.00) shall be allowed for each dependent member of the family of an income tax payer under the age of 18 years. The Legislature shall reduce the ad valorem tax from time to time when and to such an amount as the revenue derived from the income tax will justify. In the event the Legislature levies an income tax, such tax must be levied upon the salaries, incomes, fees, or other Compensation of State, County and Municipal Officers and employees, on the same basis as such income taxes are levied upon other persons. All income derived from such tax shall be held in trust for the payment of the floating debt of Alabama until all debts due on Oct. 1st, 1932, are paid and thereafter used exclusively for the reduction of State ad valorem taxes.

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks next preceding the 18th day of July, 1933, in each County of the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said County.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this the 3rd day of May, 1933.

B. M. MILLER,
Governor.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

I have read a great many books but I make no claim to scholarship. However, it was my privilege to come in touch with outstanding leaders in all walks of life. I have had most delightful associations with preachers. The rank and file of the preachers of this nation are true blue, self-sacrificing men. I am for them.

I have known rather intimately most of the evangelists and leading preachers of America. Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman and Dr. R. A. Torrey were both close, personal friends of mine. I know Billy Sunday well. He is a most lovable man. Paul Rader of Chicago is one of the most dynamic and fascinating men I know.

George R. Stuart, who for a number of years was connected with the old Centenary college at Cleveland, Tenn., where the Bob Jone scollege is now located, and whose body rests on a hilltop near Cleveland, was a unique, gifted, attractive, entertaining personality. He was a man of uncompromising convictions. In the old days, he was one of the most popular Chautauqua lecturers and prohibition lecturers in the nation.

"Dr. Stuart, who is the most brilliant man you have ever know?" I inquired one day. George Stuart hesitated a moment. "Bob, Sam Small has the most wonderful mind of any man I have ever known. He hasn't an equal in straight, unadulterated brain power in this country." That was Dr. Stuart's reply.

Later, I came to know Sam Small. He visited me in my home. Several years ago, just a few weeks before we opened the Bob Jones college, Dr. Small was in my study. He was talking to me about outstanding men in the political, religious, and business world. "Brother Small, I have tried to find somebody who could write an orthodox creed for our college. I want a creed which covers the fundamentals of the Christian faith and I want it so worded that it will not give offense to any Christian of any orthodox denomination. I am unable to find anyone who can write that creed. I can't write it. Can you write it for me?" Dr. Small hesitated a moment and then said, "That ought to be easy." He took an envelope out of his pocket and wrote the second paragraph of the Bob Jones College Charter which incorporates our creed. He did it in three minutes. It wasn't necessary to change one word or to even change the punctuation. As an illustration of the genius of this great man, I quote the creed below:

"The general nature and object of the corporation shall be to conduct an institution of learing for the general education of youth in the essentials of culture and in the arts and sciences, giving special emphasis to the Christian religion and the ethics revealed in the Holy scriptures, combating all atheistic, agnostic, pagan and so-called scientific adulterations of the gospel, unqualifiedly affirming and teaching the inspiration of the Bible (both old and new testaments); the creation of man by the direct act of God; the incarnation and virgin birth of our Lord and savior, Jesus Christ; His identification as the Son of God; His vicarious atonement for the sins of mankind by the shedding of His blood on the cross; the resurrection of His body from the tomb; His power to save men from sin; the new birth through the regenration by the holy spirit, and the gift of eternal life by the grace of God. This charter shall never be amended, modified, altered or changed as to the provisions hereinbefore set forth."

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

©, 1933, Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for July 16

DEBORAH

LESSON TEXT—Judges 4, 5.

GOLDEN TEXT—God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble. Psalm 46:1.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God Helping Deborah.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Woman Courageous.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—An Inspiring Leader.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Leadership in Emergencies.

In order to teach this lesson intelligently, it is necessary that the teacher have a grasp of the book of Judges from which it is taken. In chapter 2:6-19 is given a synopsis of the book. Observe:

a. The sin of the people (vv. 6-13).

b. God's judgment for their sin (vv. 14, 15).

c. Repentance of the people (3:9).

d. God's deliverance at the hands of the judges (2:16-19).

A repetition of sin, oppression by the enemy, repentance on the part of the people, and God's deliverance, is the story of the book of Judges.

The book covers the period from the conquest of Canaan and death of Joshua to the judgeship of Samuel. While Joshua and the elders of his generation lived the people in some measure remained faithful to God, but the very next generation went into apostasy.

I. The National Emergency (vv. 1-3).

1. Lapse into idolatry (v. 1). Ehud was not only a righteous but a strong ruler. As soon as he was dead, the people turned away from God.

2. The bondage of the people (v. 2). The Lord abandoned them to be oppressed by Jabin, king of Canaan. For twenty long years they were under the hand of this king who had nine hundred chariots of iron.

3. The people cried unto God (v. 3). Affliction brought them to their senses.

II. The Judgeship of Deborah (vv. 4-10).

The great national emergency which confronted the nation was met by a woman named Deborah. Her name means "Bee." As suggested by another, she answered her name by her industry, sagacity, and public usefulness. This woman was called to the judgeship of the nation because there seems to have been no man capable.

1. The place where she judged Israel (v. 5). It was under a palm tree, showing that she held an open air court for the administration of justice.

2. Her method (vv. 6-10).

a. Her summons to Barak (vv. 6, 7). Barak means "lightning." Deborah, being a prophetess, was able to select a man whose gifts would enable him to rally the forces needed to gain the victory over the formidable foe. Judging from his accomplishments, Barak was true to his name, for with lightning dispatch he wrought deliverance. It was really God calling Barak through Deborah. She gave definite instruction as to the number of men and the strategy to be employed, assuring him that God would deliver Sisera, the captain of Jabin's army, into his hand.

b. Barak's reply (v. 8). He expressed an unwillingness to go unless Deborah would go with him. This unwillingness should not be considered as weakness, for the presence of the prophetess would inspire courage.

c. Barak rebuked (vv. 9, 10). Deborah yielded to his request, but made it plain to him that it would detract from his honor as a conqueror, "for the Lord shall sell Sisera into the hand of a woman."

III. The Defeat of Jabin's Army (vv. 11-16).

Sisera, the captain, gathered a mighty army and went forth, confident of victory over the ill-equipped, undisciplined army of Barak, but he made one sad mistake. He did not consider that it was the Lord's battle (v. 15). At the psychological moment Deborah gave the signal to charge, assuring Barak that the Lord had gone before and would give the victory (v. 14). Through supernatural interposition the enemy became panic-stricken (5:20).

IV. Sisera Killed by a Woman (vv. 17-24).

In his flight he took refuge in Jael's tent. In the guise of friendship, she committed a most heinous murder after inviting him into her dwelling.

V. The Song of Deborah and Barak (ch. 5).

This song was composed and sung in celebration of the marvelous victory which God had wrought. Deborah set forth in the most definite way that the secret of victory was the help of God. Praise is given to those who responded to the cry, and scorn is heaped up on those who remained behind.

Dark Streets are dangerous Streets

Dark, dimly lighted streets are an invitation to the holdup man and to accidents. That is why the benefits of good street lighting cannot be reckoned in money alone.

It hampers crime—it reduces accidents—it facilitates traffic movement—it accelerates business—it strengthens property values.

Ally yourself with a movement for "white way" lighting in your city. It is universally conceded that good lighting is a valuable investment in safety and in civic prosperity.

GOOD ADVICE FROM Z. J. JONES

To Man in the Moon:

Relative to your party leadership, I am with you to a finish. The present condition has gone on long enough. There must be a change or else the party will go to the bad. The party is now humiliated by the results of June 20, and next year is in serious doubt. I regret this, yet, I have talked for harmony for quite a while.

My Beat, 14, is loyal, I am glad to say. I am getting old, but wish to see the Republican party in Chilton County prosper as it has in the past. It will require extra hard work next year to pull through. We have had so much disloyalty, and I fear too much advice from the other side.

So, keep on, and arouse the voters if you can. Something must be done. Get the loyal ones behind it.—Sincerely, Zac J. Jones.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

A number of newspapers have commented on the statement of Col. House the other day, to the effect that the United States is without a friend among the nations of the world. The statement is undoubtedly true, but why confine its logic to the United States? How many real friends has Great Britain, or France or Italy among the nations of the world. Not one. Unfortunately there is no such thing as disinterested friendship among the nations of the earth, and never has been. Perhaps there will be some time in the future when the internationalists succeed in changing human nature, but that time is several thousand years distant. So the United States is in no peculiar position in lacking friends among the governments of the world. George Washington well understood the fact that there are no lasting and disinterested friendships among nations. That is why he advised us to avoid European alliances and entangling commitments with foreign powers.

It is true that many of the citizens of one country may admire the traditions, people and policies of another nation. But there is no lasting national friendship. There is frequently an alliance between nations, just as there is often mutual hostility between nations. But neither condition is permanent because it is dictated by self-interest and conditions which make for self-interest have a habit of changing in this world of ours. For example, for centuries Great Britain and Spain were enemies, and so were Great Britain and France. Then the rise of Germany made allies out of France and Great Britain. The friendship has cooled and warmed many times since the signing of the treaty of Versailles and will continue so to change its temperature. On the other hand, Germany and Italy, once allies, then enemies, have become friends again. But the friendship is apt to crack at any time over a disagreement of policy toward Austria.

Perhaps the latest example of the shifting likes and dislikes among the nations can be found in the Orient. Japan and Russia were long enemies. Often during the past few years they have seemed on the verge of war over the great Asiatic railway. But during the past year a great change has come about. Japan has dared to invade Manchuria and to penetrate the Great Wall of China, and and there has been no Russian protest. Later came the sale of the Russian "interest" in the much disputed railroad to Japan, and now comes the rumor that Russia may even dispose of her port of Vladivostock to her erstwhile rival.

What has caused this sudden change of hostility to friendship? Has it come about because the Japs and Russians have decided to join some international brotherhood whose fundamental principle is loving one's neighbor? Not in the least. It has been brought to pass by self-interest. In this instance the forming of a new understanding between Japan and Russia has been and will continue to be at the expense of poor China. There are interesting reports to the effect that Japan has been financed in her Chinese adventure by France. Then later have come stories of a closer understanding between France and Russia. Perhaps we will learn later of a Russo-Japanese-French understanding to exploit China with Russia and France getting concessions in other parts of the unfortunate country to make up for their disapproval of Japanese penetration of Manchuria.

The question then arises as to where Great Britain comes in on all this. Certainly with the most powerful fleet in the world Great Britain will have to be reckoned with. Whether she will eventually see advantage in permitting things to work out in the direction they are now headed, or whether she will oppose the supposed new combination, remains to be seen. John Bull is a good business man and can be counted on to look after British interests first.

At any rate friendships and misunderstandings among nations are only temporary, and the friends of today may easily become enemies tomorrow. So when Col House or any other man of diplomatic wisdom rises to remark that the United States possesses no friends among the nations, we may well ask in turn, "Who does?"

EUROPEAN DEFAULTERS

Every consideration that can be shown foreign debtors of the United States has been shown.

In spite of numerous revisions downward of the debts agreements, and the moratorium of a year and a half granted in 1931, European nations seem on the verge of default, and it is virtually taken for granted that France and her allied nations will repudiate their debts, which in theory they have already done.

Great Britain, whose attitude has been more honest and who has maintained her payments up to the present, now threatens to join the others by offering a partial payment to Washington.

Since the settlement of reparations at Lausanne when Europe formed a solid front against the United States in economic affairs, hope of collecting the debts has waned, although this country has never conceded that German reparations were directly related to the sums borrowed here during and after the war.

More recently in the inflations act, a provision was included permitting Europe to pay in silver up to two hundred millions, making payment much easier, but then America in the process of freeing herself completely from a gold basis, and changing the status of many contractual obligations, thereby helped set the example upon which England seized as a pretext to avoid payment. And though the cheap American currency araising from this act should have simplified payments abroad, it had the opposite effect in that it incensed both France, now left nearly isolated on a gold basis, and England, by offsetting the depreciated pound with which she was striving for world trade.

But there is nothing for the United States to do except to stand firm upon its present debt agreements until after the London conference. Concessions now under pressure would mean not only loss of prestige and enormous sums, but would permit Europe to evade the stigma of repudiation which she is not entitled to escape.—Columbus, Ohio, Evening Dispatch.

THE DEMAGOGUE

Since the beginning of time the demagogue, the man with a glib tongue and a calloused conscience, always has been able to attract and hold public attention far more quickly and easily than the man who has been content to let his actions speak for him and has tried to think and do right without boasting about it.

There is something in human nature too which makes a man incurably fond of a spectacular show, particularly a show in which there are victims. The Roman arena catered crudely to this instinct; so does the Spanish bull ring. The demagogue has through the ages played upon it with more subtlety and cleverness, and in consequence more dangerously.

From the beginning the person with an easy flow of language and no scruples, but with desire of notoriety or power has, in particular, been one of the great political, religious and social dangers of America because there has been no way of placing any protective check upon him. Time and time again with reckless, specious and oftentimes deliberately and maliciously false assertions, he has defeated statesmanship, sober thought and sound policies, and thrown filth upon what is clean, honorable and honest. He has, all in all, been a greater peril to this land than any outside foe.

Of late the radio has given the demagogue a new opportunity to exercise his dubious talents and in a peculiarly monstrous way. Hidden in a broadcasting room, secure from the chance of being obliged to face the objects of his attacks, unseen by his auditors, he has become an insidious voice out of the void, disseminating veiled propaganda or telling vicious lies to millions of people who have no possible way of determining whether he is speaking the truth or uttering falsehoods. The ancients in their most lurid flights of fancy imagined nothing more dreadful than this modern visitation.—Detroit Free Press.

FORMER CLANTON PASTOR WANTS THE DRY LAW TO REMAIN

Vote for 18th Amendment and Against Repeal

Tampa, Fla., July 10.—Through the valuable columns of The Union-Banner, which I have read constantly and which has followed me in all my wanderings since I was a citizen and the former pastor of the Clanton Baptist church, I am constrained to make an earnest appeal to all patriotic citizens who love righteouness, temperance and soberiety, and believe in protecting innocent childhood and the homes of our nation, for them to cast their ballot on July 18th against the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Do not default by staying at home, but be sure to exercise your rights of citizenship, both men and women, in this most important election that has claimed your support for more than thirteen years.

The issues involved are very great. Gasoline and whiskey do not mix. Twenty millions of cars travel the highways of this great nation. It is safe to estimate that a minimum of sixty millions of lives are jeopardized through accidents of all kinds caused by drunken drivers if the liquor traffic should be legalized, which may God forbid. The screams of the dying and wounded of innocent children and families, many of them suddenly ushered into eternity should ring in the ears of everyone who contemplates to vote otherwise than for repeal.

No better representative could have been chosen for Chilton County to represent the drys than my esteemed friend and long honored citizen, Dr. V. J. Gragg. As a practicing physcician and skillful surgeon, none knows better than he the evil effects of alcohol on the body when applied by drinking intoxicating liquors.—P. G. Carter.

Business is sure picking up. Friend of ours boarded the train to Chicago the other day and said he found enough passengers in the pullman to start a bridge game.

Nothing so much helps government agriculture planning programs as a short wheat crop.

Having devalued the franc about eighty per cent the French are naturally pained and surprised that Uncle Sam would even consider permanently devaluing the dollar.

Over seventy-five per cent of the people in the United States didn't know the nation was off the gold standard until they read it in the papers. Another five per cent don't read papers and don't know it yet.

One good way to punish congressmen for their sins would be to compel them to sit and listen to phonographic records of their own speeches.

MAN IN THE MOON

Looks Over All—Overlooks None

Waiting for the Light

Now, don't put me down as a prospective member of the Ananias Club when you read this one—it is the truth, strange as it seems. Standing on the Upchurch corner one day last week, I witnessed the following: A dog came down the sidewalk by the banks, walking along as leisurely as you please. When he came to the crossing, it so happened that he turned south. Just at that time the red light was against him. He chanced to glance upward, much as a person might, halted then yawned wearily. Here the light turned, and traffic on the north-south course started, and the pup started with the rest of the pedestrian traffic, taking his own good time, just as if he knew he had the right-of-way. And he didn't start on the "caution" light, either. I have seen people who might have been present and learned a much-needed lesson from this law-abiding dog.

Something New

"Nothing new under the sun"—ever hear that? Well, it's all wrong. Every now and then something new does happen. And on Thursday, July 6, "something new under the sun" did happen. It was just a baseball game, but what a game. Every year we have the World's Series, a trial of strength between the best clubs of both the major leagues. But the game last Thursday was more than just another inter-league game. This one was between two teams made up of the cream of both leagues. Powerful hitters, all of them, hand-picked from all the 16 different clubs. And this is the first time such a game has ever been staged. For years and years sports writers have written comments regarding such a game, and they have called it "the dream game of baseball" where the "greats" of every club could be brought together. And what a couple of teams it all formed up into. Imagine how great these teams must have been, when such clouters as Jimmy Fox had to sit on the bench, just because his place was taken by a better man.

A Holiday For All

The "glorious Fourth"—last Tuesday. Americans all over the world celebrated the occasion. But it didn't stop with that. The thermometer went American and took a day off, too. The little glass instrument put up a mean fight on Monday before the Fourth, with the mercury trying to blow out through the top, and then it decided to take Tuesday off, too, along with the rest of us. And when the weather man caught the weather watchdog off the job, he proceeded to try out his hand with some freak weather. He sent cooling winds over the desert, usually an open-air oven; people all over the nation were sent scurrying for blankets, wraps, and whatnot to shut out the chilly November weather; and to cap the whole affair, a flurry of snow fell up in Pennsylvania, where the day before people had been falling out from sunstroke. "A cold day in August;" it wouldn't surprise us much now. We may expect anything.

This Bee Business

In last week's sisue, Mr. G. G. Williams began a series of articles about bees. If you happened to skip over that, thinking it might be dry and uninteresting, you missed something. Whether you have any bees or not, the article makes interesting reading. For people who live on a farm, or anyone who may have a vacant lot where he may keep a few hives of bees, I think bee-keeping would prove an interesting and paying enterprise. Bee-keepers tell me they get a great kick out of fooling with the busy little fellows, and their product is always in demand. No matter how much honey is made, there is never enough, and the proceeds from the sale of honey is almost 100 per cent profit. A little cost for modern, up-to-date hives, and a little time spent in arranging things for the bees, and they will do the rest. Read Mr. Williams' articles on the subject, as he is an authority, and knows exactly what he is writing about.

An Airport for Clanton

For some time, I have been hearing rumors of an airport or landing field for airplanes to be fixed up somewhere close in to Clanton. What a break that would be for our little town. And we have plenty of good places near the town where a landing field would be easy to rig up. In 1930 I made a trip through several Western states, and I was surprised to find that every little town along the route had its landing field. The little towns were not considered complete without them. As a result, these towns received their daily air mail, and nearly every day from one to a dozen planes hovered around and came to rest on the fields. Nowadays, big business does much of its traveling, and much of its shipping, by plane. But, to do this, the people who use these planes must follow a course which affords them landing fields in case of engine trouble, or mishaps of any kind. As these little towns in the West fixed up their fields, this air traffic followed them, and there is hardly an hour but that the drone of a big cross-continent passenger plane, or a big freight carrier can be heard. It may seem that this is no benefit to the small town. But air transportation is the coming mode, and the sooner a town can get on the "air highway" the better. Here's hoping the sponsors of the landing field see their dream realized.

No Spoils System

In passing by the office of the County Superintendent of Education one day last week, I stopped to hob-nob with Mr. Luther Little, the new Superintendent. When I left, it was with the impression that he is an official of a type I had come to believe to be extinct, or nearly so. Said Mr. Little: "The election is over. I am still a Democrat, but, first, I am Superintendent of Education of Chilton County—all of it—and I intend to see that, insofar as this office is concerned, Republicans and Democrats receive like treatment—and that the best that I can give. When I accepted the nomination, it was with the distinct understanding that, if elected, the office would be used for the administration of the county's school matters, and not as a rendezvous for politicians, in which to gather and work out political schemes. And I still stick to that contention. If I am to give the people of this county the best that I have in the office to which they have elected me, I must be rid of petty politics and its hamperings, and I must have the cooperation of all the people. In order to merit this cooperation, I am, in advance, pledging my own cooperation to all in matters pertaining to the education of the young people of our county, and, so far as my official duties are concerned, I know no politics." I believe I know Mr. Little well, through close contact with him during high school days, and I believe he is fully competent to discharge the duties of his office. He should have the full cooperation of all while in office, for the best interests of Chilton's youth. When election time comes around again will be soon enough to put political stumbling blocks in his path. We will have every right to try to elect a Republican then, if we can, but to try to hamper Mr. Little in his efforts for the best interest of the schools would brand us as traitors to our own children. I believe that Mr. Little's statement of policy, however, proves that he isn't such a dumb politician after all—statement of his policy, and proving of word by deed would be the best campaign material he could use. —Man in the Moon.

UNCLE SAM'S PULLING POWER

While European diplomats are barking at London because the United States does not agree to submerge her national interests for European benefit, it is interesting to note that since March, because of the rise in the price of certain commodities, foreign countries have increased their purchasing power on four items alone in the sum equal to forty per cent of our total manufactured exports in the year 1932.

The American exporter points out that the actual increase in the price of rubber alone between March 1 and June 15, plus the estimated increase in consumption indicates that the countries which grow rubber will derive from the American market an increased purchasing power in the American market of nearly fifty million dolars in the year 1922. The rubber producing countries will of course benefit through the increased world price of rubber, but it is not to be forgotten that the chief benefit they derive will come from our own country which uses 64 per cent of the rubber produced in the world.

The exporter in estimating the advantage of China and Japan in the American market because of the increase in the price of raw silk, states that this increase in the value of silk exported to the United States will give China and Japan an additional purchasing power of over $166,000,000 in our markets. The advantage which Cuba will get because of the increased price in sugar is over $40,000,000 and of tin nearly $50,000,000.

All of which indicates that in sugar, tin, rubber and silk, four of the raw commodities which Uncle Sam imports, the producing countries will benefit in the sum of more than $256,000,000 because of the increase in the price of these commodities. Nobody doubts that the principal reason for the increase is the change of business psychology in the United States. Uncle Sam is the greatest consumer of these raw materials and of many others. When he is prosperous he buys them in increasing quantities and the whole world feels the effect. Yet for purely selfish reasons the manufacturing countries of Europe want to pull Uncle Sam down to a lower level in order to derive a transitory benefit to themselves.

STANDING UP FOR RIGHTS

According to some newspaper comment, in the absence of the president on his sea vacation, and in the departure of Professor Moley for Great Britain the acting president was to be the well known financier Barney Baruch. Whether this is true or not the report makes the recent public remarks of Mr. Baruch of greater interest. In a recent interview Baruch was quoted as saying he believed the president would "play a waiting game" on the war debts. He added:

"It is a well-known fact that I believe the debts should be paid. Every debt we forgive to other nations lifts a burden from their distressed business and adds it to ours, doubling our handicap."

The financier was equally positive in discussing stabilization of the dollar, remarking:

"It is time we ended this twiddle twaddle by other nations who went off the gold standard before we did and now criticize us for taking the same course. The United States gets blamed for everything. It is time we asserted our rights."

If those remarks represent the views of Mr. Baruch on international affairs then Mr. Baruch can no longer, at least, be regarded as of internationalist tendencies. Not long ago he issued a statement in which he called attention to the fact that it would be a little difficult to raise the standard of living in the United States by increasing wages and shortening working hours, and at the same time lower our tariffs so that the cheap products of European nations could flood the country—products from nations which care nothing about working conditions and high standards of living.

Ever since the end of the World War, when the United States refused to be a party to the Versallies treaty, Uncle Sam has been blamed for everything wrong that has happened in the world. We can all agree with Mr. Baruch that it is about time we ended this "twiddle twaddle." The way to end it is to stand up for our own rights, refuse to be cajoled or hoodwinked into doing things for the benefit of Europe at the expense of the United States, and to develop a policy of taking care of America first. Such a policy will be good not only for ourselves but in the long run for the rest of the world, too. If the London conference does no more than scatter the fog of illusions which the internationalists in our own country have been helping to raise during the past dozen years, it will be worth its cost.

Speaking of that proposal for a ten per cent general tariff reduction, some of the boys on our delegation must have got their signals mixed.

Secretary Hull had an audience with King George the other day but the dispatches do not state whether Cordell convinced George of the iniquity of tariff barriers.

One way to promote peace would be to find a way so that all future wars would be fought on the pay-as-you-enter plan.

Former Mayor Walker says that the would rather become a gentleman farmer in England than return to politics in New York. And probably New York feels the same way about it.

POLITICS SHAPING AGAIN

There can be little doubt that President Roosevelt's political honeymoon is coming to a close. The final hours of the congress which adjourned, gave abundant evidence of this. On several occasions the congress, though overwhemingly Democratic, actually got out of hand and there is little doubt that the administration leaders breathed a sigh of relief when the curtain was rung down on the special session.

Another evidence of the end of the era of good political feeling may be found in the fact that the Republicans are beginning to bestir themselves and talk about the congressional campaign next year. The opposing party is watching very closely the trend of events at London. It is preparing to "jump on" any proposed agreement which would mean entangling engagements for the United States, an infringement of American sovereignty or a reduction of the tariff to a point where American industry would be still further handicapped by cheap products from abroad. Just at this time it seems likely that little will be accomplished by the conference, which might turn out to be a good thing both for the country and the political future of the Democratic party.

The Republicans, however, will not confine their ammunition to internation issues, as was evidenced by the recent satement of Representative Snell, miniority leader in the House. Mr. Snell charged that the Democratic promise to reduce governmental expenditures 25 per cent and balance the budget had passed "into the realm of forgotten things." He said that federal expenditures had been doubled rather than reduced and declared that the congress "appropriated more money, levied more and heavier taxes and authorized a larged bond issuance calling for heavier annual interest charges than any congress in the history of the United States—with the single exception of the congress in session during the World War."

Taxes have been greatly increased rather than reduced, he charged, and in addition, he added, more than eight and a half billions in new bond issues had been authorized with annual interest charges of a quarter of a billion dollars. Mr. Snell added further that instead of reducing expendiutres, new activities had been calling for new outlays of nearly four billions and he charged that the national budget is now more out of balance than at any time in the history of the country. In order to bring about an apparent balancing Mr. Snell charged the administration is keeping two sets of books one for "ordinary" and the other for "extraordinary" budget. He added:

"Tricky bookkeeping, devised to conceal from the public the real financial condition of the government, may succeed in its purpose for a brief time, but it does not pay off debts. It does not stop the strain on the public credit. It does not stop the increase in interest charges. It does not halt the upward march of federal taxes."

In conclusion Mr. Snell said:

"Whether or not the measures enacted by this congress fulfill the hopes of those proposing them is a question which time only will determine. If they prove successful their very success is the vindication of their wisdom. But if they fail, let it be said that they failed, because they were economically unsound, rather than because they were unwisely administered."

The proof of the pudding is in the eating thereof. The administration will have to stand or fall on the results of its program. The congressional campaign next year is going to be an interesting one.

Tax Commissioner Whittle, newly appointed in New York, at least, has an auspicious name.

Miss Louise M. Popp, New York telephone employee who won $118,000 in the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes, evidently did not get the wrong number.

Even more than the gently needed return to prosperity, we need a presevation of the principles of honesty and honor in government policies.

The rule against smoking at the London conference has been rescinded, and the boys now enjoy their pipes and cigarettes while working. The change probably was made on the theory that nothing could make the fog any thicker anyhow.

A new gun has been perfected which is so speedy and powerful it will break an atom. What we need more, however, is something that will keep things from breaking.

It is said that the return of beer has helped the demand for cheese. In other words the cheese market is getting stronger.

VOICE VISITS BY TELEPHONE GAINING FAVOR

T. E. Harris
DISTRICT MANAGER
SOUTHERN BELL
Telephone and Telegraph Co.

Families are fast discovering that the least expensive and most convenient way to visit with out-of-town relatives and friends is by telephone. It is just like being there in person.

Many people say they find a telephone visit once or twice a month keeps family ties alive and warm.

For example, an elderly couple living in Alabama have a married daughter in Nashville, another in Atlanta and a son in New Orleans. It is arranged for the son to call back home the first Sunday of each month, one daughter on the second Sunday and the other on the third.

It is surprising how little these voice visits cost. By using night station-to-station service you can talk 150 miles for about 50c.

If you have sons or daughters living in other cities try this plan. The operator will tell you the rate to any place.

Farmers say that long distance service is a blessing for them, too. They use it to sell their produce. Recently a farmer said a single telephone call made him many times the cost of his telephone service.

Merchants say that the service enables them to make profitable trades that would be lost if they had to rely on slower methods.

Probably nowhere is telephone service more appreciated and valued than in rural sections. It is depended on for so many things and costs so little in comparison to the advantages it affords.

Would you like to know how the telephone was invented — how the Bell System was organized — how and why it has grown to a world-wide system, and many other interesting things? Write or call the telephone office for the 26-page illustrated book, The Telephone's Message. It will be mailed free.

Rev. Lockhart is one of Chilton's most prominent young preachers and all who possibly can will do well to hear him preach at one or the other of these places on this vital subject.

AMERICAN LEGION INDORSES INCOME TAX AND WARRANT ACT

The following resolution was passed unanimously by the Chilton County Post No. 6 of the American Legion at the regular July meeting:

Resolved that the Chilton County Post No. 6 of the American Legion heartily indorses to the voters of the county and state the proposed income tax amendment, No. 2, and the proposed warrant act amendment, No. 3, which is to be voted upon next Tuesday, July 18.

Be it further resolved that we are highly in favor of forgetting politics and think of our children. We must protect them and keep the schools open. What we pay out will be returned in good citizenship.

Resolved further that the income tax will hurt no one. Realizing that only those who earn more than is required to live, educate their children and pay for other necessary things in life, will have to pay the tax. And,

Be it resolved further that the tax is only imposed upon those who are able to pay and realizing that it is for the best interest of the masses of the people that this equitable limited income tax be passed, and realizing further that it will be written into the constitution of our state that after the income tax cares for the outstanding debts of the state that all revenue collected thereafter will be used in reducing ad valorem taxes on all property, we commend this income tax amendment to the voters of our county and state.

We realize and believe that the so-called "Economy League" is a mere smoke screen by the moneyed interests of the state and nation to defeat paying an equitable, fair and just income tax and thereby carrying their part of the tax burden of the state and nation.

Be it further resolved that we desire to validate instead of repudiate the honest debts of the State of Alabama, most of which are due the school teachers, and we urge that when you go to the polls on July 18, go with the purpose and determination to protect the teachers, school children and schools and vote for the validating of our warrants.

Resolved further that we believe that the old warrants are in our judgment just I. O. U.'s. The new warrants in fashion will be like money. They can be used to pay the debts, buy goods and they will maintain the state's honor.—Grover Bice, Percy M. Pitts, W. M. Wyatt, Committee.

WHERE ARE THEY?

CLANTON TO PLAY BALL TODAY

The game today, Thursday, at the local field will be between Clanton and Independence. A good game is assured. Time, 3:30. Usual price.

A MEAN TRICK

A game was scheduled for the Sunset Mills team from Selma lat Saturday afternoon, but on account of a mix-up in dates, the Selma team went to Uniontown instead of coming to Clanton. A good crowd turned out to see the game, but when it became known that there would be no game the club was forced to give the admission money back. When the money was all gone, some 35 or 40 people had failed to get their money. Evidently, several people who had gotten in on passes or had been admitted for running down foul balls which had gone over the fence, must have called by and received money as they passed out.

The club is struggling to keep its head above water, so far as money matters are concerned. The club was forced to make up the deficit from funds from other games. The players get nothing for their services, and the merchants have shown a fine spirit in furnishing the uniforms. But some people at the park Saturday must have been dishonest ones—just a plain case of dishonesty and poor sportsmanship.

ELMORE 15—CLANTON 0

The Clanton team suffered its worst defeat of the season, so far, on last Thursday, taking a 15 to 0 swamping at the hands of the Elmore team.

Nivens gave up 11 hits, five of them doubles. In addition to this, Clanton bobbled six times. Elmore took advantage of all of this, together with slow, listless play by the whole Clanton team.

Clanton got only four hits, all singles, two of these coming in the last inning.

CLANTON 9—RANDOLPH 4

Clanton defeated the Randolph team here last Friday afternoon, nine to four.

The first three innings were scoreless, but in the fourth Randolph coupled together an error, a sacrifice, and two hits to score three times. CLANTON 9—WETUMPKA 3

Clanton took Wetumpka in for the second time this season, Tuesday afternoon, on the local fied, trimming them nine to three.

Wetumpka opened up in the first inning, scoring all their runs on a sacrifice, three errors and three hits.

Clanton came back fighting in the last half of the first, and evened the count, scoring two runs on two hits and two free trips to first, and putting Parrish on third. Here Parrish caught the Wetumpka team napping, and the old master got away with a clean theft of home plate for the tying run. Clanton added another in the third on a free pass and two hits, and another in the seventh on three hits. In the big eighth a hit batter and four hits sent four more runs in to put the contest on ice.

Fain and B. Jones batted best for Wetumpka, with two hits each, and Simms and Hayes led for Clanton. All of Clanton's 11 hits were singles. Watkins yielded eight safeties, including a triple and a double.

JOHN W. KELLY DIED

Mr. John W. Kelly, age 64 years, died at his home near Verbena, Tuesday, July 11, after an extended illness. Funeral services were held at Chestnut Creek church Wednesday, at 11 a.m. The burial was in charge of Spigener Funeral Home of Clanton. The deceased is survived by his wife and three daughters, Misses Mary, Jane and Fannie Mae Kelly. He is also survived by his mother.

LATEST COTTON REPORT

The number of acres of cotton that were contracted to be retired in Chilton County amounted to 12,840 acres Wednesday morning. This number of acres was included in the contracts of 3,081 farmers of Chilton County.

As will be seen in another item in this paper Chilton County reached her quota early Monday morning, but Mr. Stapp was not satisfied to stop at the minimum requirement, but continued his program until Wednesday Chilton had 840 acres over its quota.

The signing of contracts was closed at 12:00 p.m. Wednesday. In a very short time farmers of Chilton County ought to know whether or not the plan has gone through. From all indications it appears that there is little doubt but what the plan will go through.

Miss Austin of the Relief Administration of Chilton County relates that the relief work of the R. F. C. in Chilton County has been temporarily suspended due to the lack of funds.

CANNING CENTERS OVER COUNTY ARE BEING REORGANIZED

Many have been wondering why the canning centers have not been in operation as was announced. The reason for this delay has been because there have been no field workers to aid in this program. When Miss Pardue came to this county, four field workers were promised her, but for some reason these have not been furnished by the county. It goes without saying that it would be a physical impossibility for Miss Pardue alone to operate nine canning centers.

Miss Pardue announces that the canning program will be reorganized this week and that notices will be sent out to the various points where canning centers have been announced.

Miss Pardue further announces that anyone who is interested in securing tin cans may order from Loeb Hardware Co., Montgomery, Alabama. She relates that everyone in ordering should state that the cans are to be used in the R. F. C. canning program of Chilton County.

The prices should be as follows: $2.30 per hundred for No. 2 plain cans and $3.25 per hundred for No. 3 cans.

It was stated in last week's issue of this paper that cans are being given by the R. F. C. This giving of cans applies only to R. F. C. people.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

WAIT FOR NOTICE TO REMOVE COTTON

Auburn, Ala., July 11. — Cotton growers of Alabama who have signed contracts to cooperate with the government in reducing the cotton surplus were warned to not remove their cotton from production until they are notified that the secretary of agriculture has declared the plan operative and authorized the contraction of acreage.

Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the extension service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, says that the acreage offered must be inspected by the local committee both before and after the crop is removed. "When the secretary of agriculture declares the plan operative and authorizes the contraction of acreage, the growers, after being notified, will then proceed to remove the amount offered from production, after which the local committee will again inspect the acreage and certify that the cotton has been removed according to agreement and that the grower is entitled to his rental benefit," he added.

"I feel it is important to make this announcement for the reason that some growers may proceed to remove their crop before the acreage has been inspected and certified to by the local committee, and before receiving notification from the secretary of agriculture."

Dr. Duncan also pointed out that it is extremely important that all claims for acre production of cotton be kept at a conservative figure.

"We know of course that many of those who were the first to sign the contracts are among some of our best and most progressive farmers," he said. "Naturally those men use good seed; rotate their crops; fertilize rather heavily and otherwise use their skill to produce high acre yields. They would be loath to offer this acreage at too great a sacrifice to themselves. However, there are many acres of cotton which we know will not yield so heavily and in all cases, the grower should play fair with his government."

NEW METHOD OF MAKING BUTTER

Selma, Ala., July 11.—Mrs. J. D. Giles, former president of the Alabama council of home demonstration clubs, who lives near here, is successfully using a method which is expected to revolutionize butter making in the home.

This method is made possible by a little attachment for cream separators which is now on the market and which retards the flow of milk into the milk bowl, thereby causing the spearated cream to be about 75 per cent butterfat instead of 35 to 40 per cent which it is when the attachment is not used.

"After the cream has been separated it is placed in the refrigerator and kept at a temperature around 56 degrees for about 60 minutes," Mrs. Giles explained. "After the cream congeals it is then turned into a homemade butter worker, salt is added at the rate of one ounce per pound and the cream is worked into butter. This usually takes about five to eight minutes. When the butter granules are about the size of grains of wheat water is poured over the butter to wash out the curd."

In order to produce good butter it is necessary to have good clean flavored milk, Mrs. Giles said. At present she is marketing around 90 pounds of sweet cream butter a week.

"Although it commands a premium of 5 cents a pound above ordinary farm butter, I have not been able to supply the demand," she said.

Mrs. Giles got her idea from her home demonstration agent, Mrs. Annette Smyth Breeden, and she suggests that other farm women interested ask their home demonstration agents for information.

MILK STOOL MUSINGS

With the present low price of dairy products it is all the more important for the dairy farmer to keep accurate records of both production and feed costs on individual cows.

In many cream producing areas the amount of available pasture for this summer and legume hay for next winter should largely determine the size of the herd. With low dairy markets the need for home grown feed increases.

Each child in the family should have a quart of milk per day together with all the cream and butter desired. Adults should have at least a pint of milk per day. The use of more dairy products on the farm provides excellent food—reducing both grocery bills and the amount of dairy products put on the market.

BRIEF RURAL ITEMS

Boll weevils are not as numerous as usual this year, it appears from reports received from county agents.

Plan now to plant a large acreage of winter legumes this fall and thereby make farming more profitable. Winter legumes furnish nitrogen in its best and cheapest forms.

The big cotton surplus which has helped keep prices down for the past three years will not be so burdensome if the cotton acreage reduction program is carried through to success.

COFFEE TREE RELATIVE IS IN FAR AWAY ASIA

Montgomery, Ala., July 11. — The coffee tree of the southeastern United States has its only close relative in southwestern Asia, according to the Alabama Commission of Forestry. The two species belong to the same genus and are hardly distinguishable from each other. It is perfectly evident that both descended from a common ancestor.

Since trees are not given to crossing oceans and establishing new colonies, it is clear that there was in ancient geological times a fairly connected forest growth extending between the two regions. These regions later became separated by the intervening of the seas which now lie between the continents. It is probable that at one time the two species, or at least their common ancestor, existed through northwestern North America, the Artic region and possibly Europe.

GAME AND FISH NEWS

Montgomery, Ala., July 11.—A pair (correct) of homing pigeons winging their way from Dauphin Island in the Gulf of Mexico to Montgomery will bring the first news of the official start of Alabama's fifth annual deep sea fishing rodeo the morning of Auguest 7.

As the sun peeps over the horizon the starter's gun will bark and the flotilla of fishing craft bearing a cross section of the nation's sporting life will weigh anchor for the first of a three-day angling adventure.

The starter's gun will be the signal for the release of the first of two pairs of carrier pigeons with rodeo news for the Associated Press in Montgomery. The second pair will be held in readiness for the report of the first tarpon catch which will be dispatched in news message form via the same route.

The pigeons have been carefully trained by Virgil Chandler of Montgomery who will contact the Associated Press bureau immediately upon their arrival. Mr. Chandler relies upon the theory that "two heads are better than one" when his pigeons go sea-faring without a compass.

By using this means of communication, word of the start and landing of the first tarpon should reach mainland points several hours ahead of the time it would if carried by an afternoon boat to Mobile and then relayed by wire.

Preparations for the rodeo are in the finishing stages, attractive prizes have been secured to lure the anglers and all indications point to one of the most successful rodeos the state has sponsored.

Charles, Joe and Helen Moore, Peggie Mullins, and Hal Broadhead returned Sunday from a trip to the Century of Progress World Fair at Chicago.

Mrs. Harrison Taylor spent last week in Birmingham with her daughter, Mrs. Charles Seibert.

Miss Eloise Ertzlinger has returned to her home at Bay Minnette after a visit with Miss Roberta Cochran.

Mrs. Sallie Prince, Miss Ruth Prince and Mrs. Anna Gardner and daughter, Katherine, all of Alexander City, spent the week end here with Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Prince.

BALDWIN FISHING RODEO PROMISES SPORTING THRILL

Foley, Ala., July 12.—A record-breaking crowd of sportsmen from all sections of Alabama and adjoining states will participate in the annual Baldwin Fishing Rodeo here on July 27 and 28, it is indicated by inquiries and advance reservations which have already been made to the Baldwin County chapter of the Izaak Walton League of America, sponsors of the annual event. Many prominent men have alread forwarded entry fees and made reservations.

Selection of dates was made after a careful study of tidal and weather conditions which might affect catches. That no mistake was made is indicated by the large number of big hauls made during the last few days, when the first catches of the season resulted in from 10 to 14 large king mackerel and 40 to 50 Spanish mackerel to each boat, along with numerous cavalla, reds, bonita and skipjacks. A 57-pound ling, a 32-pound cavalla, and a 17-pound bonita were among the very first victims in the preliminary "run-off" by sportsmen who started early in getting their tackle and arm in shape for the rodeo. Past fishing history locally indicates that deep sea fishing, starting at this time, should be at its peak late this month. Therefore, rodeo officials are already congratulating themselves on their choice of dates.

But deep-sea fishermen are by no means the only ones who will enter the Baldwin Fishing Rodeo, or who will cash in on the many fine prize trophies. The event includes the catching of both salt and fresh water varieties, including tarpon, cavalla, ling, redfish, king mackerel, bonito, Spanish mackerel, black fish, speckled trout, ray, dolphin, shark, black bass, perch and bream.

STORRS SENDS MEN TO HELP IN COTTON PLAN

Every employee of the Alabama Department of Agriculture will devote all of this week helping with the government cotton reducing campaign.

Seth P. Storrs, commissioner, has instructed all employees of the department to drop their present work and "report to the county agent in their home county Monday morning for week work in cotton campaign."

This action was taken by Commissioner Storrs following a request from Dr. L. N. Duncan, Auburn, director of the campaign in Alabama, for additional help in carrying the message and agreements to every cotton farmer in the state.

Mr. W. S. Willis and William Arthur left Monday by auto for the Worlds Fair, where they expect to spend several days.

Cotton --- Prosperity

The surest and most immediate approach to restored prosperity in the south lies in a reasonable price for cotton this fall. If cotton sells for as much as from 12 to 15 cents a pound the restored purchasing power of the people of the South will result in a surge of proseprity and a tremendous speeding up of all forms of business that will definitely mark a return to normal times.

A few weeks ago the prospect for a good price for cotton was remote. A larger acreage than last year's had been planted; 50 per cent more fertilizer had been bought; an excellent stand and good prospects generally indicated a crop of from 14,000,000 to 15,000,000 bales. A crop of this size added to the enormous carry-over for two or three years past, would have pressed the price down, despite all efforts, to figure which would have left the producer no profit to spend.

Happily, the situation is now changed. Cotton has gone up nearly $10 a bale in the last week, and it seems certain that something like 10,000,000 acres will be taken from the area planted, through the government's acreage reduction plan, resulting in a decrease of from 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 bales in the crop.

It is a matter of special interest to Alabamians that their own senator, John H. Bankhead, was a leading figure in the effort to bring about the improved cotton situation. The fact is, the people of the South have Senator Bankhead to thank chiefly for an important part of the legislaton designed to improve cotton conditions. The betterment of the situation of the cotton farmer by reducing excess production has been his principal concern since he entered the senate. His vision of the necessity for decreased production and his persistent efforts toward that end are largely responsible for the government's acreage reduction program. It was Mr. Bankhead's original suggestion that a large proportion of planted land be rented and plowed up, and it was upon his earnest insistence that President Roosevelt agreed to appropriate $100,000,000 for renting lands now planted in cotton in order that they might be withdrawn from production. This appropriation was passed through congress by Senator Bankhead.

This was a fine service which the junior senator from Alabama rendered to the people of his state and of the entire cotton-growing region. It is already bearing fruit in the increased and increasing prices for cotton, on which must depend so largely the South's rescue from misery and want and its restoration to prosperity and happiness.

By Clifford M. Manning

PLANT DISEASE CONTROL

Plant diseases scatter about the same way as animal diseases, and sometimes plant diseases are carried by small animals. Insects carry more plant diseases than any thing else.

Varieties and strains of a variety may differ widely in their susceptibility to disease. Plant breeders and pathologists have been cooperating in searching out and developing resistant varieties and strains of plants. Resistance to wilt in certain strains of flax, cotton, cowpeas and other crops are good examples of resistant varieties. Markton is an oat practically immune to covered smut. Many other resistant types have been discovered, and continued work offers promise from this means of combating diseases. It is possible that many so-called resistant varieties may be found susceptible to other forms of the causal organism as it is known that there are distinct forms of many of the disease organisms.

The eradictation of bushes of the common harberry in the control of the block stem rust of wheat and of the buckthorn in the control of crown rust of oats are examples of disease control through the eradictation of host plants. Alternate hosts have been found in a number of diseases of plants and the eradication of these offer a feasible means for the control of these diseases.

Certain disease producing organisms live in the soil, and soil treatments are possible which aid in reducing the loss from these. Sulphur is sometimes used at the rate of 300 to 600 pounds per acre in the control of potato scab. Heating the soil in tobacco seedbeds in the spring of the year some time before the seed is sown, by steam or by dry heat, is a rather common practice to control seeding diseases and kill weed seed.

Many diseases are carried over from season to season on the waste crops, residue, as stalks, straw and stubble. The covering of such material by deep plowing or its destruction by burning, is advocated in cases of infestation with certain diseases.

Continued next week with "Control of Plant Disease in Rotation of Crops, Eradication, Clean Seed, Small Grain Smut and Potato Seed."

Why Vote Against Repeal July 18th

MR. AND MRS. VOTER:

One of the greatest MORAL and political issues ever presented to Alabama voters will be settled by YOU on July 18th. In the interest of our children, our citizenship, our homes, our churches, our schools, our State, our nation, and civilization itself, we appeal to you to go to the polls and vote AGAINST REPEAL, for the following reasons:

BECAUSE our children and citizenship have a right to be protected from the vices and temptations that would be put before them.

BECAUSE the city, county, State and national governments should not sell their citizenship and children into SLAVERY for REVENUE.

BECAUSE beer, wine and liquor have caused more CORRUPTION, CRIME, DISEASE and DEBAUCHERY than anything else.

BECAUSE the liquor business is wrong. We do not need repeal but ENFORCEMENT.

BECAUSE our children, mothers, fathers, husbands, friends and citizens should be cared for, rather than a few rich brewers and saloon keepers.

BECAUSE the 18th Amendment put 175,000 saloons out of their damnable business. Repeal will set up a saloon in every grocery store, drug store, restaurant and filling station. This is being done where they have voted repeal.

BECAUSE the $3,000,000,000 national drink bill must be paid out of the needs of our children and the American homes. If it goes for drink it cannot be spent for groceries and other needs.

BECAUSE it will take at least $100,000.00 from CHILTON COUNTY for us to pay our share of the 500 millions of revenue the BREWERS offer us for the right to debauch our citizenship. It also will take 600 thousand dollars from Chilton County for us to pay our part of the three billion dollar national drink bill to the brewers and saloon keepers. Can legitimate business in our county afford to lose this $700,000.00?

BECAUSE it will take at least $75,000,000.00 for Alabama to pay her part of the two and one-half or three billion national drink bill. This is twice as much as we now spend for roads, schools and all the State government. Will this waste and curse help business?

BECAUSE 26 million automobiles and the liquor business cannot operate together and give the public its right to safety.

BECAUSE prohibition, with a half-hearted enforcement, has reduced the consumption of liquors to one-third its former consumption.

BECAUSE George Washington said: "The source of all EVIL and the RUIN of half the working men of the country is DRINK." Abraham Lincoln said: "Liquor is not a thing to be cultivated, but a cancer to be eradicated." Henry Ford said: "Only on one condition can the nation let booze come back. That is that we are willing to abolish modern industry and the motor car."

BECAUSE a vote for repeal is a vote AGAINST your children, the home, the church, the school, our State, our nation, and civilization itself.

BECAUSE a vote for repeal would bring prosperity to the undertaker, the saloon keeper and the brewer only.

Mr. and Mrs. Voter, if YOU are interested in YOUR children, home and nation, hear HORACE WILKERSON discuss this vital issue at the Courthouse SATURDAY MORNING, JULY 15, Eleven O'clock. Bring your friends. Save this paper and vote FOR these DRY candidates---Dr. V. J. Gragg, J. A. Carnley, J. M. Bonner, G. L. Comer, J. B. Mills, W. D. Graves, Joe D. Heacock, Mary M. McCoy, Guy E. Snavely, John J. Sparkman, Ida M. Stallworth. IMPORTANT: Be sure to mark your ballot where it says "Against Repeal of the 18th Amendment." GO to the polls and vote!

CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE AGAINST REPEAL.

On Sunday morning at 9:45, the Sunday School meets with a class for every age. Regular morning service begins at 11 a.m. The Crusader service, or young people's service is held at 6:30 p.m. and the evening evangelistic service begins at 7:45.

The Crusader Band has been reorganized and the young people are getting in the line of service. We are trying to make these services of special interest to the young people and invite all who have no church affiliation to come and get into a live, young people's organization, and into service for the Master. The church service on the last Wednesday night of each month will also be in charge of the young people.

Don't forget the county-wide revival which we are planning on during the month of September.

I have traveled in evangelistic work in almost every state in the union and in Canada, and everywhere I have gone, when we talk about righteousness people say, "If you want to find religion, go south." The South has been known for many years for its righteousness. It is the highest honor that could be conferred upon any country, state or city, to be commended for righteousness.

During the past two years I have traveled extensively in the South, and I have found a great need of a turning back to the righteousness that the South once possessed.

Modernism has pressed its way through the South, leaving a path of sin, sickness and sorrow. "Wherefore He saith, awake thou that sleepest and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light." Eph. 5:14; also in Mal 3:7 He says, "Even from the days of your father ye are gone away from mine ordanances and have not kept them. Return unto me and I will return unto you, saith the Lord of hosts."

Earnestly contend for the faith once delivered to the saints. Sinners need salvation, the same kind that was delivered to the saints 1,900 years ago; the sick need healing, and the hearts need to be comforted by this gospel message. He is coming soon. I Thess. 4:18, "Wherefore comfort one another with these words."

We hope you are still praying with us, to see mighty things done in the name of the Lord. Jere. 33:3, "Call unto me, and I will answer thee and show thee great and mighty things, which thou knowest not."

II Chron. 7:14, "If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves and pray, and seek my face, and then turn from their wicked ways; then I will hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."

F. A. GULLEDGE WRTIES

I have been asked by one of the most prominent citizens of Chilton County to give my views through the Chilton County papers on the income tax and other amendments. I am unalterably and unequivocally in favor of them all, and will so vote on next Tuesday. I do so in what I consider the face of the most meritorious question that has been before the body politic in many years. I entered my endorsement on the income tax through the Advertiser more than two years ago, and if you will give me the business, that I may have the profit, I will cheerfully pay the income tax without question. From the time the United States Income Tax Law was passed until times got so hard that I had no income, I paid the income tax most cheerfully. So would I pay a state income tax, cheerfully, if my income warranted it. I paid a poll tax the year I was nineteen, twenty and twenty-one, in Coosa County, under Republican graft, and upon the election of George S. Houston, as governor of Alabama, and the taking charge of the government by the democrats, my three year's of poll tax, towit, $7.50, was refunded to me. I have never dodged a poll or an ad valorem tax, and know that today I pay at least my part of the taxes imposed by the state and county, city or otherwise. I think the other amendments will take care of themselves, including the repeal of the 18th amendment. And I cannot be called a toper because I vote for the repeal. Neither am I a tee-totaler, but have lived a sober life always, yet I am not one of the ones that denies everybody the right to take a dram.

I was under the influence of whiskey the last time, perceptly, on February 12th, 1875. Am now 84 and I reserve the right, if I could get it, to buy whiskey and use it in moderation when I felt the need of it. On the same date of 1875, three Missionary Baptists, one a deacon and one of the best men I ever knew, came to Verbena from Coosa County and when through with our business, bought a half gallon of whiskey jointly, same to be divided when we got home. It rained and turned cold, caused us to imbibe a little too freely, forcing the other three to apoligize to the church, while I was not a member, went scott free. Now if you get a little whiskey you have to sneak around like a cur, which I have never done, taking the risk of drinking poison and ending in your death.

I implore all my friends and other good citizens to consider the above and ponder them well and go out next Tuesday and help put Alabama on the right track.

I am for Judge Miller, now Governor Miller, stronger every day, for he has fought the fight and kept the faith, and on next Tuesday we are going to crown him with success.

Please bear in mind that the income only rests on those able to pay it. It will cost the ordinary man nothing. Besides that it is a just, equitable tax and will redound to the uplift and advancement of our state.

Yours truly,
F. A. GULLEDE.

WRECK NEAR WILLIS CAMP

Mr. Lonnie Baker and Mr. Howard Robinson, son of W. G. Robinson of near Clanton, were both painfully injured in an accident Saturday morning near the cotton mill at Clanton. Mr. Baker and Howard had started from their home to Clanton when they stopped on the right side of the road between the cotton mill and Willis Camp Ground to wait for someone. While the car was standing parked, a M. Hohenbergh Co., truck came from the direction of the cotton mill at a high rate of speed and hit the left rear wheel of the Baker car. The truck turned the Chevrolet coupe completely around, and Howard was thrown out of the car. The Robinson boy was caught under the truck and was dragged several feet. Howard received bad cuts on the right leg, over the left eye, and on one hand. Further he received several minor cuts about the face and general bruises over the body.

Mr. Baker received a wrenched shoulder and general bruises about the body due to being thrown against the steering wheel of the car in the accident. Also Mr. Baker reports that the jar bursted three of his jaw teeth and shook loose some of his front teeth.

Both Mr. Baker and Howard were brought to the hospital in Clanton by the Rev. Jim DuBose. After their wounds were dressed the pair returned to their homes near the cotton mill.

The Chevrolet in which Mr. Baker and Howard were parked was almost completely demolished while the truck suffered practically no damage except a bursted tire. The man who was driving the truck was J. E. Jackson, 745 North Decatur St., Montgomery, and the company whose truck he was driving is also located at Montgomery. Jackson left the scene, it is reported, as soon as he could get a tire changed. It is further reported that Jackson offered no assistance to the injured parties after the accident.

POPLAR SPRINGS

We were very glad to see so many out at B. Y. P. U. Sunday night. We had several visitors which have not been coming. We give you a hearty welcome back and ask all who will to come and join our union and help us out for we need you.

The singing was good Sunday night. Our chairman, Prof. Devaughn said it was better than what he heard at the convention at Wetumpka Sunday. That makes us feel good. So come out and bring your books and let's keep improving our singing class for there is no better way to praise our savior than singing.

Though we were not so large in number at Sunday school Sunday, we had a good lesson. The Sunday school study course will be held at Mr. Hardie Jones's Thursday night and at Mr. Ben Jones's Saturday night. Tuesday night of next week it will be held at Mr. Walter Moore's; so everybody come and let's learn more about the Bible and learn to explain the lesson more fully. Everybody has an invitation. We would be glad to have people from other communities to come and help us.

A wedding which was of much interest of the people of this community was that of Mr. Newbern Jones and Miss Gertie Wilson, which took place at the home of the bride's parents Sunday morning at 8:30. We wish them much happiness in life.

We are planning a singing school at this place and we would be glad to have everyone enroll that really wishes to know something about music. Especially would we be glad for everyone of the Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. members to come and let's improve our singing class.

W. A. GULLEDGE WRITES

To The Voters of Chilton County:

Every administration since 1907 is responsible for Alabama's debt. This debt is mostly for our school buildings and furniture and for services rendered by our teachers. It is not a question of who made the debt or what it is for. It is Alabama's just debt and must be paid.

The State's warrants should be validated by voting for the warrant amendments, thereby making these warrants negotiable. Vote YES and preserve Alabama's good name.

This debt must be paid and it rests with the voters as to whether they will let those drawing large salaries, professional men, charging big fees and holders of tax-free securities pay it or vote down the income tax and let the poor wage earners and farmers pay it in the form of sales tax on every article we buy.

The sales tax will make poor people poorer, while it will not effect the wealthy. When the income tax has paid Alabama's debt it will be used to reduce our property taxes. It is absurd to even think that an income tax is a forerunner of a sales tax, but the defeat of it makes the sales tax a certanity.

Vote yes on the income tax and place the tax where it belongs.

The income tax in not an increase in taxes, but puts a tax on many who are going scott free at present.

W. A. GULLEDGE,
Chilton County Chairman Campaign Committee.

BEES AND OTHER THINGS

There are many people who are afraid of bees and will not even entertain a thought of working with them. One man said to me, "I like what they make, but I don't like them." There is a reason for this attitude. It is the lack of the proper knowledge and appreciation of the honey bee. Even the Black or German bee is not so bad when properly understood and managed. Let us consider then, the proper management of bees.

First, read all you can get from government bee bulletins, and the book on bee culture entitled, "ABC and XYZ, Medina, Ohio." Also some magazine as Gleanings in Bee Culture. Second, get first-hand information by studying the bees themselves. Make up your mind to exercise less temper than the bees do in case they should get mad. By all means, avoid quick and careless movements. About three or four minutes before you open the top, gently blow a few puffs of smoke in the entrance. This gives the bees warning and they fill themselves with honey so they will be prepared for the emergency (not by stinging you), but they are in a much better attitude when they are filled.

People are just a little that way. It is said that the best way to a man's heart is by way of his stomach. Well, I do not know about that.

Going on—by proper use of smoke one will be able to control bees to the best advantage. It is said that "too much smoke is worse than none at all." This is certainly true. A little or the proper amount tends to quieten and get the bluff on her, but too much infuriates and forces them into confusion.

Let us take proper precaution to keep our colonies as strong as we can for the fall honey flow, if there is one. The bees will need the greater part of the fall crop for winter stores.—G. G. Williams, chairman of Chilton County Bee Association.

MT. PLEASANT—BEAT 2

There will be an all day singing at this place next Sunday, 3rd Sunday in July. We will have the Gorgas quartet with us, and are looking for some singers from Shelby County. WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama at its last extrordinary session ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which proposed amendment is herein set out, and ordered that the election be held on the first Tuesday after the expiration of three months from and after the final adjournment of the said session of the Legislature at which the amendment was proposed, and

"ARTICLE XXIV. All provisions of the Constitution which prohibit or restrict the Legislature from decreasing or diminishing the salary, fees or compensation of any executive, legislative or judicial officer or of any public officer or of any officer holding any civil office of profit under this State or any County or Municipality thereof, whether elected or appointed, during the term for which he shall have been elected or appointed are hereby suspended until October 1, 1935. Provided that from and after the first day of the month next succeeding the date of the ratification and adoption of this amendment no salary, compensation, fees or commissions paid to any officer under this State or any County or Municipality thereof, shall exceed the sum of Six Thousand Dollars per annum. Said limitation of $6000.00 to be inoperative after October 1, 1935. Any Act of the Legislature heretofore adopted decreasing or diminishing the salary, fees or compensation of any such officer or officers, and which by its terms is to become effective after the expiration of the present term of any such officer or officers, shall, by virtue hereof, become effective from and after the first day of the month next succeeding the date of the ratification and adoption of this amendment; provided, however, that should the Legislature adopt any other Act or Acts decreasing or diminishing the salary, fees or compensation of any such officer or officers during the term for which such officer or officers may have been elected or appointed in a larger amount, such subsequent Act or Acts shall control. Any other Act of the Legislature adopted prior to October 1, 1935, decreasing or diminishing the salary, fees or compensation of any such officer or officers, during the term for which such officer or officers may have been elected or appointed, shall be effective from and after the first day of the month next succeeding the date of the ratification and adoption of this amendment, or from and after the adoption by the Legislature of any such Act decreasing or diminishing the salary, fees or compensation of such officer or officers."

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks next preceding the 18th day of July, 1933, in each county of the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said County.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this the 3rd day of May, 1933.

B. M. MILLER, Governor.

Attest: PETE B. JARMAN, JR., Secretary of State.

COUNTY AGENT EXPRESSES APPRECIATION TO HELPERS

Mr. Stapp states that the resolutions presented at the meeting at the courthouse last Monday afternoon came as a surprise to him, and he wants it understood that the success of the program in Chilton County does not lie with him altogether, but that it is due to the cooperation and counsel on the part of more than 3,500 citizens of Chilton County. Mr. Stapp states that he wanted to make special mention of the splendid cooperation and counsel of the two vocational teachers—Mr. J. P. Montgomery of Jemison and Mr. Earle Thomas of Isabella, and all of the field workers office force, all of whom have labored untiringly in the program.

Mr. Stapp states that the program is only partially completed in that inspection has been made on only about half of the contracts. He points out the fact that very likely some offers are high, but that he trusts when inspection is made all farmers who have signed contracts will continue their cooperation to the extent of making agreement with the government on the basis of estimated yield not exceeding their past five-year average.

Mr. Stapp further points out that if the total contracts of the county show an average estimated yield above our past five-year average, that someone might be quick to say that farmers of Chilton County are trying to get more out of the government than they are entitled to.

Mr. Stapp is very appreciative of the fact that Chilton County was the sixth in the state to reach its quota of 12,000 acres set by the government and has asked our paper to express his appreciation to everyone in the county who made this success possible.

WHAT NEGROES ARE DOING

Picnic A Success

Success spelled the outcome of our Fourth Day celebration. People from all over the county came to help put over the program. It was the largest crowd to come to the Training School in many years, in spite of the fall-like weather.

This day was set aside as school debt day and it was marvelous to see how the patrons of the school worked to make it a success. Had the sun shown itself, our receipts would have been doubled. It is gratifying to me to think how willingly everybody worked. I shall not call any names, because it would take too much space.

Again, it was an opprotunity for our people to manifest their ability to be orderly, law-abiding citizens. Not one minute of trouble was given on that day. It is this type of behavior that will bring us closer, a development of real citizenship.

A Real Loss

As many of you know, Russell C. Atkins, assistant principal and director of the department of agriculture was shot and killed last Saturday morning by a crazy enemy. Prof. Atkins was my teacher and director the greater portion of the time I was at Tuskegee. The student body and faculty looked upon him more or less as a big brother, rather than a big boss. Day after day, he was seen covering the entire campus, wearing khaki shirt and pants and a big teras sunhat, somewhat a rare costume for a vice principal.

To my mind, Atkins was more like Booker T. Washington, in aggressiveness, procedure, and ideals than any other man, since the death of the world's greatest negro educator. He is a real loss, not only to Tuskegee but to the negro race.

Do You Know Lonza Burns?

Well, Lonza Burns is one of those farmers in our community who believes in living at home. He is that type of a fellow who keeps little noise yet hard at work all the time. I was over to see him the other day and was impressed with his crop. He has everything growing a fellow needs and plenty of it. Is it not possible for all of us to plant sufficient acreage of the various crops necessary? If we had done that, things would not have been so tight with us. Don't guess at your needs, but figure them out in detail and likewise figure your acreage needed to produce this amount. That's the only way, folks.

Folks We Can Get Along Without

Those wro drift along from day to day without ambition or zeal, contenting themselves with minor parts as only cogs in wheels.—Benjamin Anderson, teacher of vocational agriculture.

REV J. ROBERT BEAN REPORTS CONDITIONS OF MARKETS, ETC.

Rev. J. Robert Bean, who spent most of last week in the Union Grove settlement, returned to Clanton Monday, reporting that with the recent maneuvers in the cotton production business, markets generally have taken on active rushes upward; but according to Rev. Bean, the greatest rush for the past few days has been in the marriage market. While he was in the Union Grove vicinity he was called upon to tie the nuptial knot between two happy and promising young couples.

At the home of William J. Miner, in the Collins Chapel community on Clanton Route 4, Carl Hamilton was married to Miss Lelia Burnett on Saturday, July 8th at high noon. Then at 4 o'clock in the afternoon of the same day, at the home of John L. Gore, on Jemison Route 2, near Union Grove, Howard (Bud) Robinson was married to Miss Pearline Cleckler.

Carl Hamilton is the son of Bud Hamilton of Union Grove, and his bride is the daughter of Rassie Burnett and grand daughter of William Miner. Howard Robinson is the son of Perry Robinson of Union Grove, and his pretty young bride is the daughter of Posey Cleckler of the Mineral Springs community.

The Union-Banner extends congratulations and best wishes to these four happy young people. May their days together be many and filled with happiness and contentment.

Dr. Gragg Says No

No Sir! Not now, am I ready to vote an income or any other kind of tax. When you get men in charge of state affairs that will support the schools and will give the teachers their hard-earned money that has already been paid in for them instead of diverting—yes, diverting — it to high and un-used salaries for themselves and such other illegal things, I say then, and not until then, am I ready to vote income taxes or any other raise in taxes. And I want to again say that when you vote the income tax you will also get a sales tax as soon as they have time to levy it. Probably they will give us the sales tax anyway, but not by my vote.

Well, Mr. Pattillo, I believe you said I would have the voters believe "our governor, our legislators and our other state officials are thieves or crooks at least," and then you add "will he say they stole the money they owe the teachers."

No, Mr. Pattillo, I don't say they stole the teachers' money. I say that you and the other tax payers paid it in for the teachers and the officials took it. I believe when they talk about it, themselves, they say they diverted it. It's like this, Mr. Pattillo, let's say you are working for a big mercantile company and I buy from this company on a credit and get them to finance my hired help on the farm. After a while it is fall of the year (tax paying time) and I come and pay the money to you to be applied on my account and to pay off all my hired help which has also been charged on your company's books; but instead of crediting my account and paying my help you divert it; that it, you pay yourself and all your friends a fat salary—you buy some fine automobiles in the name of the company for your own use, you hire and pay for a lot of unnecessary and unused help just in order to pay off all your obligations; then you come back and tell me that you want to pay it all over again because you have diverted it instead of paying my hired help or giving credit for it.

No, I didn't say the teachers' money was stolen, it was just diverted. However, Mr. Pattillo, in my feeble way of thinking, it seems to me, since you have mentioned stealing, that it and this diversion are so close akin that I cannot figure much difference, and so I am going to ask you, in your wisdom, are they double first cousins or twin brothers?

And now before we get too far from it, I want to say that I do not criticize all our state officials. I think our representatives in this county and senatorial district are far above the average. I gave special attention to the vote of our senator and I believe his vote, almost without exception, showed mature deliberation and wise consideration of the matter under discussion.

No sir, I do not stand for the teachers losing one penny of their hard earned salary. They should be paid it with interest and then a bonus should be added for the extra inconvenience caused by the delay in payment of their money. However, the teachers know that this bunch as a whole have not tried to pay them. They have applied the money to their own use. Time and again they have found no trouble to borrow money to pay themselves, their families, political friends and others; while it was utterly impossible for them to borrow a penny for the long overdue salary of the teachers.

I want to thank Mr. Pattillo for his favorable expression against repeal and I want to say to the voter, if you are against repeal come out and vote without fail. If you are not sure that you are against it, ask yourself if liquor will make you or your wife or husband or son or daughter, as the case may be, a better individual. Will it make your town, county or state a better one to live in? Will it make your churches or schools better? Will it make travel on the highways safer? Will it better mankind in any way? If so, vote for it. Otherwise, it is your duty to yourself, your family, your neighbor, and your country to vote against it.

But listen, Mr. Voter, no matter how you stand on this question come to hear Hon. Horace Wilkinson at the courthouse at 11 o'clock Saturday, July 15th.—Yours very truly, Dr. V. J. Gragg.

MRS. J. T. COOK DIED

Mrs. John T. Cook, who formerly lived in Chilton County, died Monday, July 10, at 6 a.m., at her home in Brooksville, Miss., as a result of an electric shock on Sunday evening. There was a little storm at Brooksville Sunday evening which tore down some electric wires. By some mishap, Mrs. Cook stepped on one of the wires and received the shock which proved fatal. Funeral services were held at Brooksville Tuesday afternoon for Mrs. Cook. She is survived by six children.

Mrs. Cook was the sister of Mrs. W. I. Mullins of Clanton and the aunt of Mr. Renfroe Mullins of Clanton. Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Mullins and Mr. and Mrs. Renfroe Mullins went to Brooksville Monday.

Mrs. Cook was born and reared near Verbena in Chilton County but has been in Brooksville for the past forty years. She was the daughter of Mr. J. Wells of Verbena.

Mass Meeting

give the people as much chance as possible to raise the necessary money; and

"Whereas, it has been a custom in this county for many years for the Commissioners Court to furnish as far as possible, employment for the people by spending the public money with the people of the county; and

"Whereas the Commissioners Court of Chilton County has seen fit to buy a number of trucks to haul gravel on the public roads, when there are many idle private trucks in the county, and hundreds of people have teams and wagons with which they would be glad to work for the county at a cheap price, which would enable many taxpayers to pay their taxes, if they were given this opportunity to haul for the county; and

"Whereas, such employment of people of the county would mean an opporunity for many to pay their taxes, and the money so expended would thereby come back into the county treasury; therefore, be it

"Resolved by the people in mass meeting assembled, that we urge the Commissioners Court to give due consideration to the distressed financial situation of the people of the county, and the possibility of helping the people in every way possible; that we request the Commisisoners Court to dispose of the trucks that the county owns; that the county cease to haul gravel and return to the former custom of employing teams and trucks owned by people of the county to do the county work, thereby helping many taxpayers to save their homes from being sold for taxes; that the county help feed the hungry people of our county by spending every dollar of tax money possible with the citizens of our county; and be it further

"Resolved that we ask the Commissioners Court to quit spending so much of our tax money outside of the county in buying road machinery, as we believe, under present conditions, it would be better to stop all road machines and give employment to more people, rather than let their homes be sold for taxes, and the women and children suffer for food and clothing."

Judge Reynolds, chairman of the meeting, expressed himself as heartily in favor of these measures, and he made a great plea in their favor before the vote was taken. Various ones of the meeting, including W. L. Sanders, F. H. Headley and Tom McKee made speeches in favor of securing the money.

Commissioner J. F. Cobb was the chief spokesman of the commissioners. He made his chief plea in opposition to securing the proposed R. F. C. money on the grounds that the county would have to borrow the $6,000 to carry out the proposed plan, and that he didn't consider this practical economy.

Judge Reynolds, however, suggested at this time that the county had $28,000 in the treasury and, too, that the county was receiving about $4,600 per month gasoline tax, from which it could take $2,000 per month and not have to borrow the money. It was cited that the county was now receiving 3 cents whereas it formerly received only 2 cents.

Commissioners J. C. Atchison and C. D. Duke were also present at the meeting.

Mr. W. G. Shaw was secretary of the meeting.

paying her teachers every cent of the meager salary owed them, then this once pure state is rapidly beginning to rot and should be ousted from a decent, progressive Union of States.

No child on earth can possibly become truly honorable, truly Godly or truly worthwhile as a citizen and a preserver of the race, unless that child is taught to think when he is very young, and are we willing to have this foundation built for us by hard-working, conscientious school teachers and then be so beastly as to fail to pay them and pay them well and prmoptly.

The school teacher is vastly more important to the life and well-being of a nation than is the preacher of any gospel. Teach a child to think and use his own mind and he can see God everywhere without the aid of church or preacher.

The qualified school teacher is a builder of minds, human minds. Can anyone name a higher or more responsible calling. There is no higher calling in the Universe, and every man and woman is America should be taxed enough to pay our teachers a salary comparable to their important service.

The man or woman in Alabama who fails to support every issue in the coming election is exactly in line with the deluded farmer who refused to plow up a certain percent of his cotton, thereby cutting his own throat and starving his wife and children.

Governor Miller may have made some mistakes (who has not?) but how can he accomplish anything in Alabama unless the people who elected him stand by him and hold up his hands?

There are very few greater sins than selfishness. Therefore, I would implore every voter in Chilton County and the state to vote a very large Yea on July eighteenth.—S. L. Gibson.

PROMINENT MAN RETURNS TO CHILTON COUNTY

A man of whom Chilton County has a right to feel proud is Dr. J. Alex Moore, who as been away from this county for many years but has now returned for a time. Dr. Moore has led a very remarkable career in the teaching profession since he left Chilton County some years ago.

He was born and reared up in the northwestern part of this county. He received his degree from Southern University, which is now Birmingham-Southern College. His first teaching was at Collins Chapel, where he taught during the summer vacations of his college career.

After having graduated from Southern University, he established the Concord high school in the northwestern part of the county, and conducted it for four years. From the principalship of this school he was called to a professorship at Montevallo Girls school which is now Alabama College. He was connected with this school for nine years. While there, he served as chairman of the faculty and also acted as secretary of the Board of Trustees. For one year he was acting president of the college, on the absence of the regular president.

From Montevallo Dr. Moore went to Chicasha, Oklahoma, where he served as president of the Oklahoma Women's College for two years.

In 1912 he returned to Alabama and was for six years principal of the Walker County High School, and then for twelve years County Superintendent of Education of Walker County.

Dr. Moore was a member of the first state board of Education in Alabama, which inaugurated and put in operation vocational education in Alabama. The first vocational school in the State of Alabama was established in Walker County in 1918 or 1919 while he was County Superintendent of Eudcation of that County.

In 1924 the University of Alabama conferred upon Mr. Moore the degree of L. L. D. in recognition of the excellent type of work he had done for county administration in Walker County, following his long experience in high school and college work.

Dr. Moore has been back in Chilton county since the first of the year, looking after the business of his invalid brother, John B. Moore, who lives in the northwestern part of the county. Our guest relates that he does not know how long he will be in the county, but it is hoped by his many friends that he will see fit to remain here permanently.

Now I think that every honest man ought to be willing to pay his share of expenses of government. But what is the poor man's share? The overwhelming majority of the real students of government today (by that I do not refer to the politicians or the office holders, but the men who are real students of economics) agree that the trouble with America is that the men of wealth, of big business are shoving off on the shoulders of the little fellow the burdens which they themselves should bear.

Two days ago the Birmingham News quoted the statement of one of America's great economists, "that we now have abundant machinery to manufacture raw resources into 30 billion dollars of real wealth every year, enough to abolish personal poverty and pay off the national debt in 12 months. Why then, don't we do it?"

It will be done some day. It might be done in our day if we had character and intelligence enough to determine that the nation's resources should be used for the welfare of the whole people, rather than to add to the wealth of the one per cent of the people, already too rich for their own good or for that of the nation. We ought to be ashamed of a state of poverty in the midst of plenty.

But we, the common folk of Alabama, will never reach the land of plenty until we quit "voting agin everything."

BOY SCOUT CAMP A HUGE SUCCESS

Twenty-Five Scouts Enjoyed Week of Romance At Treasure Island

The recent camp of the Central Alabama Area Council of the Boy Scouts at Camp Treasure Island was a great success according to John J. Sigwald, Opelika, scout executive, in a statement to Sam Powers, chairman of the Clanton District of the Boy Scouts, last Thursday.

The success of this camp was due to the cooperation of the Clanton Kiwanis club and the Alabama Power Company with the merchants of Clanton. Practically every cent spent for food was paid to Clanton merchants.

At the Court of Honor last Wednesday three Clanton men served as a committee to advance the boys. The chairman of the court was Prof. L. C. Warr, and the other members were county agent C. E. Stapp and Mr. Louie Smith.

All of the campers made progress. Wade Alford, Callen Alred and Bill Hodges all advanced into higher rank. Two of the above named three were awarded the life saving badge of the Red Cross.

Camp Treasure Island is located a short distance above Lock 12. This camp has been approved as an ideal location for next year's outing. This site is to be posted and is to be used exclusively for boy scout activities. It is contemplated building several cabins at this place.

Among the last acts of the campers this year was to plant two large totem poles decorated with painted designs in the nightly campfire grounds just back of the mess hall. The visitors and the campers both again and again expressed their compliments on the success of this year's camp. Many of the scouts are already looking forward to the camp next year.

MISS EULA FOSHEE MARRIED TO S. J. M. WEBB WEDNESDAY

At the home of Rev. B. Lawrence, one mile west of Clanton, occurred the marriage last Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock of Miss Eula Foshee of Liberty Hill to Mr. S. J. M. Webb of Mulberry, Rev. Lawrence officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. S. E. Foshee and only sister of Howard L. Foshee, former county superintendent of education here. They will make their home on the Mrs. Foshee place, one and one-half miles northeast of Liberty Hill.

S. J. M. Webb is a respected and leading citizen of his community, and is now serving his second term as member of county board of education. He has always been closely identified with all public and civic matters leading to the development of his church, community and county. He is at present clerk of the Chilton County Missionary Baptist Association.

Miss Foshee, who becomes Mrs. Webb, enjoys the highest regard and friendship of everybody in her community as well as the many people in other parts of the county who know her.

The Union-Banner extends congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Webb, and wish them many years of happiness and contentment.

Grant Will Teach At Liberty Hill

Singing School Will Begin On Monday, July 31st, For Eighteen Days

The Union-Banner has been authorized to announce that Prof L. T. Grant will begin a singing school at Liberty Hill, three miles west of Clanton, on Monday July 31st. Quite a number have signed up to attend and it is expected that during the next two weeks several more will be enrolled.

Prof. Grant has been teaching music in the county for a number of years—probably longer than anyone who is now active in the profession. His knowledge of music and his ripe experience qualify him to render the best of work in the singing school. He goes at it strictly on a business basis the first day, and the same system prevails throughout the school. Mr. Grant is now engaged in a school at Liberty church in Autauga county.

Anyone interested in learning more of the school at Liberty Hill may see either Mr. Grant, Mr. D. T. Martin or Mr. Kermit Lowery, both the latter of Liberty Hill community.

FINE PEACHES COME TO TOWN

Some mighty fine peaches were brought to The Union-Banner office Monday. Mr. Ollie McDowell of the Concord community had some peaches in town that weighed as high as 13½ ounces. Someone brought some peaches to the office from Mr. Harmond Headley's place, about six miles west of Clanton, which beat this a little, however. Mr. Headley's peaches weighed as high as 14 ounces. Mr. McDowell has about 12 trees of these large Hale peaches ripe now, and Mr. Headley has about a 4-acre orchard ready for the market.

There seems to be a large production of peaches in this section of the country this year. However, for the entire south the peach crop is a little smaller than usual. It seems that as a whole the quality of the peaches this year is excellent. A few growers however, relate that the brown rot is beginning to damage the peaches in some place. Mr. Stapp suggests that this can be remedied by spraying with a lime-sulphur solution.

A few buyers have been complaining about peaches that appeared to be sound, but which were full of worms. This is due to the fact that many have not sprayed their peaches as they should have. These wormy peaches are going to effect the market for all peaches. Those who have good fruit that has been sprayed are urged to let buyers know of this fact, so that people who want good fruit can get it.

Leonard Eubanks brought in the prize-winners from the orchard of Willie Hamilton. He had three peaches that weighed a total of three pounds and 5 ounces. The largest peach of the three weighed 21 ounces.

COTTON PROGRAM WAS SUCCESSFUL

Farmers Will Begin To Plow up Acreage In the Next Few Days

The immense cotton reduction plan has been declared in effect by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. This week Mr. Stapp and his corps of assistants are revising and making all contracts final. As fast as individual contracts are being made final they are being forwarded to Washington, from where the secretary of agriculture is sending out individual notices to farmers to retire the acreage under contract. It is hoped by Mr. Stapp that this revising of contracts will be made complete by the end of this week.

Monday morning, July 17, at 8:00 a.m., County Agent Stapp had a meeting with the field inspectors to give them instructions as to how to go about reviving the contracts. It was related at the meeting that it was possible for the farmers to sign up additional acreage by the making of new contracts. However, it was announced that no farmer could reduce the acreage that he has already signed up. It is still possible to make contracts with farmers who have hitherto signed no contract at all.

As fast as notice is given out to the farmers to begin taking their cotton out of production, the various assistants of Mr. Stapp are to inspect fields and see to it that the amount of acreage contracted for is retired. At the final inspection, after the cotton has been retired, it is suggested that it may be necessary to use a tape in order to make sure that the exact amount of acreage contracted for is retired.

In regard to the acreage that is retired by each individual farmer, it is rehearsed by Mr. Stapp that the acreage retired must be an average of that man's crop.

Several different ways have been suggested for taking the cotton out of production. Of course the most prevalent is to plow it under with a steel beam, but many are going to cut their cotton for hay. This latter policy is being advocated in Mississippi. Some intend to make their cotton patch into a pasture. This method, however, is not highly approved by officials. It has been suggested that a sharp stalk cutter might do the work. Officials so far have not objected seriously to any method, whatsoever, which would take the cotton out of production.

Mr. Stapp cites that the cotton plant possesses very valuable food for cattle, and thus it seems that it would be wise for the farmers to cut their cotton for hay.

YOUTH COOPERATIVE CONQUEST PROGRAM TO BE AT REFUGE

The Baptist Youth Cooperative Program will be rendered at Refuge Baptist church, July 23, at 11 o'clock. Inspirational and devotional parts have been planned. Eloyse Jones will be in charge of the program. Everyone is invited to attend.

SENATOR J. H. BANKHEAD AND CONGRESSMAN OLIVER SPEAK

Everybody In County Urged To Come and Bring Your Family. Program of Interest From 9:30 in the Morning To 3:30 in the Afternoon

Tomorrow is the day for the big county wide picnic to be held at Boswell's Tourist Camp, about three miles south of Clanton on the Montgomery highway. The program for Friday will begin promptly at 9:30 a.m., with the singing of "America." The crowd is to be welcomed by L. H. Reynolds, Chilton County Judge of Probate, Lee Smith, Mayor of Clanton, and W. M. Wyatt, President of the Clanton Kiwanis Club. Each of the above named speakers will make a two minutes address.

The principal speakers on the morning program are: U. S. Senator, John H. Bankhead of Jasper, Ala., and Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of extension service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn. The chief speaker of the afternoon is to be Congressman W. B. Oliver of the sixth district.

A fiddlers convention is to be held immediately after lunch and prizes are to be given to the best fiddlers. Throughout the program of the day vocal and instrumental numbers will be mixed in to keep things lively and cheerful. The Clanton-Verbena orchestra is to furnish several numbers throughout the day.

A fashion show is to be given during the course of the day which should prove of interest. Contest for the biggest family and newest "newly weds" are to be given, and prizes are to be offered.

F. S. (Preacher) Salser, a comedian from Birmingham, who was here last year, will be at the picnic again this year to add to the interest of the program.

The 4-H Club boys and the Future Farmers of America organizations will have a prominent place on the program of the occasion. Also, the home demonstration agent, Miss Pardue, and the women of the various clubs are to have charge of a part of the program, and, among other things, are to have on display an attractive exhibit, which should prove of interest to all women who attend.

Barbecue, cold drinks and pop corn are to be available to those who wish to buy, and the proceeds are to go to help defray the expenses of the picnic.

Mr. Stapp, Miss Pardue and various clubs and organizations of the county have worked hard to make this a real occasion. It is hoped that everyone will attend and take advantage of this excellent opportunity of entertainment.

Scout Executive Spoke To Kiwanis

Outlined Program of Successful Camp Week Held At Treasure Island

The regular meeting of the Kiwanis Club was held Thursday night, July 13, at the Exchange Hotel in Clanton. The program was in charge of Mr. John Hollis, who used the program to discuss the Boy Scout work in this Central Alabama area, of which he is chairman of camping activities. For the speaker on this occasion to present this subject, he had John J. Sigwald of Opelika, who is scout executive of the Central Alabama Area.

In his speech Mr. Sigwald gave a detail description of the activities at Treasure Island Camp, which were concluded last Thursday. In this camp there were 25 boy scouts representing different troops in the Central Alabama Area. This was the first camp held at this place and according to Mr. Sigwald the interest which the boys took in this picturesque location on Paint Creek above Lay Dam, indicates that Treasure Island is destined to become one of the most popular camping locations in Alabama. This will be a permanent camp where the scout boys will gather for several weeks outing each summer hereafter.

It was brought out in Mr. Sigwald's talk that the question of financing the Boy Scout movement in this territory has been neglected by the public. The Kiwanis Club has taken over as one of its objectives, the task of raising by public subscription, the amount of finances necessary to pay off the full quota due from the Chilton County division of the Central Alabama Area.

Mr. Sigwald expressed the appreciation of himself and the Boy Scouts for the splendid cooperation that has been accorded them by the people of Clanton, The Kiwanis Club and the officials of the Alabama Power Company in carrying out their camping program at Treasure Island this year.

Judge F. Lloyd Tate of Wetumpka was here Monday and Tuesday holding the non-jury term of Circuit Court.

REPEAL AND AMENDMENTS CARRIED IN STATE ELECTION

Alabama on Tuesday joined with Arkansas in ratifying repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, bringing to 18, or exactly half, the states necessary to remove prohibition from the Nation's Constitution.

Considerably more than half the boxes in the State, as compiled by the Associated Press Tuesday night, placed Alabama safely in the repeal column and indicated a wet victory of between 30,000 and 40,000 majority.

All of the amendments to Alabama's Constitution appear to have been carried to victory by a great wave of approval from one end of the state to the other.

Chilton County voters approved each and every one of the four state amendments by majorities which appear to range from 300 to 800.

B. H. ROBINSON MOVED FAMILY TO MISSISSIPPI

Bolden H. Robinson of Providence community left for his new home in Laurel, Mississippi, Tuesday of last week. He went to join his wife, formerly Mrs. Charlotte Patterson, who has been in Laurel for a few weeks.

Mr. Robinson carried his two youngest children—one boy and one girl with him. Three older boys remain in Providence community. S. V. Miller and wife carried Mr. Robinson and his children over to their new home. Mrs. Robinson owns a home in Laurel. Bolden has a job with an ice company, where he will work with Tom Jones, another former Chilton County man.

Mr. Miller reported an enjoyable trip out there and back. He went by way of Selma and Meridian. He said that most of the farms were corn fields, some of them containing hundreds of acres. The corn crop in that section, he says, is mighty promising. He said that they passed through very little cotton, but what they saw was very good. Mr. and Mrs. Miller got back home Wednesday night.

EX-CONVICT GOES BACK TO TEXAS

Launy Blackmon Was Arrested Here Last Week On A Number of Charges

Officers came to Clanton Sunday night from Waco, Texas to take Mr. Launy Blackmon, a double ex-convict back to Texas on seven charges from three different counties.

Blackman had against him five charges of forgery, one of embezzlement, and one for violating the federal anti-theft law. These seven charges were in Dallas, Fort Worth and McLennan Counties.

Blackmon came to this county about a year ago from Waco, in McLennan County, in a car that was under mortgage at that place. When he reached Alabama he sold the car—thus bringing upon himself the latter of the seven charges. During his stay in Chilton County, Blackmon lived with various relatives over the county.

Prior to these seven charges Blackman had served two terms in the penitentiary. Blackmon stated that the latter of these terms was for 26 years, but that he was paroled after having served four years. Blackmon was placed under arrest on July 13.

Those who came from Waco after Blackmon were: Deputy Sheriff H. L. O'Neal and son, and Assistant District attorney, F. H. Barley.

County Farm Agent's Notes

STORRS WANTS FARMERS GIVEN A FAIR DEAL IN GINNERS' CODE

Seth P. Storrs, Commissioner of Agriculture, has asked that all commissioners of agriculture of the cotton producing states join him in fighting the national cotton ginners code "which seeks to establish a price on ginning and wrapping of about $7.50 per bale."

Commissioner Storrs declares the price "absolutely unreasonable and makes the following statement:

"I am squarely behind President Roosevelt's program, a part of which is forming codes of fair practice. I have taken an active part in assisting Alabama dairymen in writing their code because its prices and practices are fair to all parties. For the same reason I am assisting the bee keepers in writing a code covering the bee producing states.

"On Wednesday I attended the meeting of the Alabama ginners association at Montgomery and when I found that they endorsed the national ginners code which seeks to establish a price on ginning and wrapping of about $7.50 per bale I withdrew from the meeting and gave notice that I would file objections to the adoption of the code.

"I have written Harry D. Wilson, commissioner of agriculture of Louisiana, who is president of the southern commissioners association, requesting him to bring the code to the attention of the commissioners of the cotton states and ask them to meet me in Washington and join in the protest.

The Alabama ginners adopted the tentative code written by the national conference of ginners and ginners association executives in Memphis, Tennessee July 7th covering all the cotton states. The code seeks to establish a cost of $5.63 for ginning. To this is to be added the cost of bagging and ties and about 10 per cent profit making the total cost from $7.13 to $7.83 per bale depending on the price of bagging and ties. The code has already been adopted by several other states and will be submitted to General Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of the national recovery act in Washington within a few days with a request for early consideration.

"Later in the Alabama ginners meeting they passed a motion fixing $5.00 as the price to be charged until such time as the code is approved and the prices fixed.

"The price sought in the code is absolutely unreasonable and the temporary price fixed by Alabama ginners at $5.00 is too high a price with 12c cotton. When cotton was 40c and all other commodities at highest prices ever known $5.00 was the price of ginning and wrapping and everybody made money including ginners.

Everybody in the cotton belt interested in the price of ginning should write to General Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of the national recovery act in Washington."

GOVERNMENT FORESTRY WORK FOR THE PRIVATE LANDS

Montgomery, Ala., July 18. — The government is prepared to do certain work upon private lands to put them in condition for increased and continuous production of timber, says Colonel Page S. Bunker, Alabama state forester. This work will be done by crews from the various forestry camps established in the state pursuant to President Roosevelt's reforestation program.

Many inquiries are received from landowners as to the kinds of work that can be done on private lands, according to Colonel Bunker. The principal activities authorized by the government in these connections embrace the construction of firebreaks, wood observation towers, truck rails, telephone lines, emergency landing fields and protective structures such as cabins and tool sheds. Other work permits the reduction of fire hazard, control of insect epidemics, prevention and suppression of forest fires and the control of erosion of soils and floods. Planting on private lands is not authorized.

The superintendents of the camps have blank application forms which interested landowners may obtain and fill out. In all cases it is understood that the owner will use every effort to maintain and continue the work started by the forestry crews upon his land.

FARMERS' WEEK IS SET FOR AUGUST 29, 30, AND 31

Auburn, Ala., July 18. — Farmers' Week, annual outing and short course for farm people of Alabama held annually at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, has been postponed from July 25, 25, 27, to August 29, 30 and 31, according to announcement by Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the extension service.

The postponement became necessary because of the intensive work now being done by county agents and leading farmers in the cotton acreage reduction campaign. "We feel that we can have a much better meeting of farm people if it is postponed until some time after the acreage reduction program has been completed," Dr. Duncan said.

At the same time, Colonel J. Litt Edwards of Selma, president of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation, announced that the annual meeting of the Farm Bureau will also be postponed and held during the farmers' meeting. Likewise, the meeting of the Alabama Council of Home Demonstration clubs will be postponed, it is announced by Mrs. M. L. Batson, of Homewood, Ala., president.

FEED NEEDED ON THE SOUTHERN FARMS

Auburn, Ala., July 18.—Considerable progress has been made during the past few years in producing the feedstuffs needed on southern farms, but many farms yet fail to produce adequate amounts, said Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the extension service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Livestock owners have found by experience that during the latter part of the summer and early fall, it pays to have supplementary grazing crops on which to place both the work animals and other stock as the permanent pasture becomes dry and parched. Those who have planted such crops as sorghum, soybeans, or cowpeas to be used as supplementary feed and grazing crops have felt that they were amply repaid for their foresight. Others plant such crops for hay thus adding to the winter feed supply.

Those in charge of the present campaign to reduce the acreage of cotton in the south, feel that where cotton is removed from production this season, the land thus released could be put to no better use than to supplement feed supply, Dr. Duncan said. Where temporary grazing crops are not needed, the land might be kept fallow and planted to small grain, Austrian winter peas, vetch, or other adapted winter-growing crops.

"In no instance will the land removed from cotton production be a loss to the owner," says Cully A. Cobb, in charge of the cotton reduction movement. "Some will use a part of the acreage for late vegetables. Others will seek to control soil washing or erosion; many will improve their soil by planting legumes for turning under, and still others will need the land to produce food and feed crops for man and beast. Therefore, we are asking every cotton farmer to cooperate in the reduction movement and to utilize the land as his common sense dictates to be best."

FARM AND GARDEN QUERY BOX

Q.—Should the long shoots of grape vines be pruned off during the summertime?

A.—Fruit is formed at the base of the new shoots. Therefore the long shoots, growing far beyond the fruit and reaching out into the air, my be pruned, if desired, by using a grass blade or grass hook. This will prevent much typing and also prevent growing out between the rows. Too much pruning, of course, would weaken the vine somewhat.

Q. — Should runners of strawberries be pruned off between the rows if we are growing them in what is called a hedge-row system?

A.—The more you cut off the runners between the rows, the better the plants will form, ripen, and bud and the better the fruit will be next year. The few runners may be allowed to form and run along the row to complete the hedge-row; but the runners between the rows should all be pruned off. This can be done easily by placing a blade on the side of the cultivator. As the cultivator passes along, the runners will be cut. A rolling courter is good for this purpose.

Q.—When do you recommend the sowing of rape seed for the use of pig pastures and for chickens and cattle this fall?

A.—Sow rape seed at the rate of five pounds to the acre about the middle of July or the first of August if the soil is moist and in good condition. This should make good pasture in about five or six weeks for poultry, swine dairy cows, and other animals.

BIG ACREAGE WINTER LEGUMES

Auburn, Ala., July 18. — Alabama farmers are making plans to break all former records in soil building by the winter legume route this fall, according to J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

This state is a leader to the nation in the growing of hairy vetch and Austrian peas which gather nitrogen from the air and store it in the soil, thereby increasing the yields of crops of corn and cotton that follow. This makes farming more profitable because it increases the returns per acre, Mr. Lowery said.

MILK STOOL MUSINGS

By W. H. Eaton, Auburn

Buddah was a milk addict and was reported as having lived chiefly upon dairy products.

In the founding of Rome a temple was built by Jupiter, a furrow was plowed around the temple with two milk-white cattle, and a libation of milk was poured out to the gods.

The physicians of ancient Greece were advocates of milk and prescribed it for many diseases. One ancient doctor said: "To take milk is pleasant, to drink it is easy; it is also pleasing to the eye on account of its whiteness."

Uncle Walt says, "So let us boost the Jersey cow, which beats the old breech-loaded plow. Let's boost the Holstein and Guernsey too, as smooth as any cows in view."

BRIEF RURAL NOTES

"Farmers should begin planning now to enrich their soils this winter with a planting of hairy vetch or Austrian winter peas," said J. C. Lowery, Auburn extension agronomist.

The federal mortgage bill passed by the last congress is giving needed relief to many farmers who are carrying a heavy debt load. It answers many of the demands made for many years by the Farm Bureau and other farm organizations for a better system of credit for farmers.

"The cotton acreage reduction program must be carried through successfully in order that we may reach and maintain fair prices for our great money crop," said Dr. L. N. Duncan of Auburn, who is directing the campaign in Alabama.

GAME AND FISH NEWS

Auburn, Ala., July 18.—The Prattville gold fish murder mystery has been solved.

The Sherlock Holmes in the case was Prof. J. M. Robinson of the department of zoology and entomology at Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Until two weeks ago H. P. Bell of Prattville, took great delight in showing visitors his pond of 200 gold fish. Then suddenly the gold fish disappeared and in their stead was a wiggly little object resembling a salt water jelly-fish.

Deeply perplexed he went to the state department of game and fisheries and it in turn forwarded the funny looking little fish to the bureau of fisheries at Washington, but it arrived in such a decomposed state indentification was impossible.

On reading of the mystery, Prof. Robinson dispatched two of his sleuths to Prattville to obtain specimen. The professor saw through his microscope a strange little creature about the size of a dime with a greenish hue. It seemed to be composed of a transparent jelly-like mass and propelled itself by expanding and contracting a circle of tiny feelers, achieving a parachute effect in the water.

Prof. Robinson promptly pronounced them a species of the Medusa form of fresh water jelly-fish. He called them animals instead of fish and said they belonged to the Phylum Coelenterata, family Petasidae, and their scientific name is Craspedacusta sowberi lank.

He was puzzled because they were supposed to be tropical in their distribution. To determine their killer instinct he placed them in a jar with some gold fish and the latter immediately were swallowed in whole and lodged in the digestive sacs of the medusae.

In another jar containing minnows and the medusae an interesting battle was going on. The medusae would maneuver airplane fashion to a position above the minnow, then dive. It was interesting to note that as the medusae came down on top of the minnows, the minnows would make a quick getaway, Prof. Robinson said.

The mystery was solved but the origin of the murderous little predators is still unexplained and Prof. Robinson, through northern distributors of lily stock planted in the pond, is attempting to make a further check on identification and find the known points of distribution in the United States.

Mrs. Jean Wyatt went last Friday to Lock 18 to bring back to Clanton her daughter, Eugenia Inez, and her sister, Miss Ethel Cagle, both of whom had been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Dan Parrish of that place for about a week.

ALABAMA ACREAGE IN CROPS REDUCED

Alabama farmers this year reduced their acreage to all crops except cotton, soybeans, sorghum for forage and sugar cane, according to the July 1 crop report by F. W. Gist, state and federal statistician. The total crop acreage in the state is 7,722,000 a one per cent decrease from last year when 7,816,000 acres were harvested.

The report shows 3,0995,000 acres in corn, a 4 per cent decrease from last year; 3,245,000 acres in cotton, a 7 per cent increase; 618,000 acres in hay, a 9 per cent decrease; 253,000 in peanuts, a 23 per cent decrease; 100,000 in cowpease, a 15 per cent decrease; 83,000 in sweet potatoes, an 18 per cent decrease; 79,000 in oats, a 20 per cent dcrease; 75,000 in soybeans, same as last year; 60,000 in sorghum forage, a 20 per cent increase; 49,000 in sorghum syrup, a 14 per cent decrease; 35,000 in Irish potatoes, a 2 per cent decrease; 27,000 in sugar cane, a 25 per cent increase, and 3,000 in wheat, a 50 per cent decrease.

Am I good enough for you? sighed the fond lover.

"No, said the girl candidly, you're not, but you're too good for any other girl.

TIRE ENGINEER TELLS MOTORIST HOW TO MAKE THEIR TIRES LAST

Because the heavy summer driving season is well under way, careful motorists will be interested in knowing how to make their tires last longer.

More powerful motors, providing quicker pickup and increased speed cause tires to wear out faster on the present modern automobiles. At 50 miles per hour for instance the rate of wear is twice as fast as at 35 miles per hour. Furthermore the demand for low, speedy cars has required manufacturers to use wheels with smaller diameters—and, natorally, the smaller the wheel diameter, the more times it must revolve to the mile, according to Goodyear tire engineers.

In addition, they point out, hot dry roads cause tires to wear faster than cool damp highways. For example, driving on a dry rad at temperatures around 90 degrees the rate as fast as wear is more than twice as fast as at 50 degrees.

Engineers of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company point out five things to watch to insure getting the full mileage from tires.

First—Avoid overinflation, getting too much air in tires, which makes the driving wheels bounce and spin on the road, creating fast tread wear. Avoid underinflation, not keeping enough air in tires, because this will cause scuffed treads and uneven wear. Check inflations in tires each week, because at comparatively low pressures at which tires are inflated now, a pound or two makes a great deal of difference in results.

Second—Have car wheels checked at least twice each year for misalignment and other mechanical irregularities, so tires ride the road properly.

Third—Keep brakes in proper adjustment; avoid sudden stops, slow gradually when possible.

Fourth—Avoid starting the car up too rapidly and drive at a moderate rate of speed around turns.

Fifth—When you replace your tires with new ones always put in new tubes too, because the old one, worn, stretched and wrinkled, will cause pinching and chaffing, resulting in leaks and blowouts.

BEES AND OTHER THINGS

Since our organization of the Chilton County Bee Association I find a growing interest in Bee Culture. All with whom I have talked have expressed a desire to cooperate and get the best results.

Let us think this week about the marketing of honey. There is a great demand for comb honey, i. e., section honey. The chemical honey and other artificial honey that it sold on the market for extracted honey has lessened the demand for extracted honey. When the bee keeper understands the difference in the expense of producing comb honey as compared with that of extracted honey, he will not be willing to give all of his time and colonies to the production of comb honey. In the first place, it requires about eight to ten and sometimes as high as fifteen pounds of honey for the bees to eat while they are making one pound of wax or comb. We see at once that we cannot afford to give all the apiary to comb honey production. Then I think it would mean much to our advantage to produce extracted honey, (not strained honey, for this term is incorrect). It is true that a man having four or five colonies cannot afford to buy an extractor, but several can go buy one together.

Since the market demands a good bit of comb honey we should produce some, but when people find out our problem and know that we are producing good extracted honey, they will buy some of each. They must be educated as to our situation.

Among other things it is my privilege to enjoy some very good revivals this season. God's word will have its effect when preached in its purity and power.

When I have more time I will try to give my subject justice.—G. G. Williams.

Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Duffee from Birmingham were recent visitors of the latter's mother, Mrs. J. R. Johnson, of Jemison. Mr. Duffee is chief clerk in the Dispatcher's Office of the L. & N. R. R. Co., Birmingham. He is off for a few days rest after having his tonsils removed last week.

DISSOLUTION NOTICE

Notice is hereby given the public that I have severed all connections with the firm in Clanton, Alabama, known as Chicago Sales Company, of which firm I was formerly manager and half owner.

This, July 10th, 1933.

7-13-2tch REEDIE TAYLOR.

IN MEMORY

On Saturday, June 17, 1933, the death angel swept through our midst and bore the spirit of our precious wife, mother and friend, Mrs. Anna Patterson, to realms of eternal glory.

She was born near Natchez, Miss., March 5, 1877, the daughter of George Williams and Mary (Martin) Blackburn. While yet a child, she lost her mother and later her father. She was then brought to Chambers County, Alabama, where she was reared by relatives.

August 1, 1895 she was married to Thomas Franklin Patterson and to this union were born eight children, six boys and two girls. One girl died at the age of five.

Mrs. Patterson received a hope in Christ early in life and joined the Christian church in 1895. In the year of 1900 she with her husband and children moved to Chilton County, Alabama, where they made their home. On February 9, 1913, she united with the Primitive Baptist church at Bethel, later moving her membership to Zion's Rest church of the same faith and order, to which she remained a staunch and faithful member until death called her home.

Mrs. Patterson had been in declining health for several years, and on April 13, 1933, at Hubbard's hospital, Montogemry, Alabama, she underwent an operation which later proved to be cancer. After treatment of four weeks, she was brought home and nursed by kind and loving hands of the family, relatives and friends. During her illness, her wonderful faith in God, her patience and kindness never wavered. We feel that everything in the power of faithful doctors, nurses, relatives and friends, was done to stay the hand of death, but God in His tender mercy called "come home," and she sweetly obeyed the call.

Her life was a cheerful one of good works with a strong faith in God, which will ever live in the memory of those who knew her. Her husband has lost his dearest earthly friend and companion, the children all that is embraced in the word "mother." We cannot weep as for one who had no hope, for we have the sweet assurance that with mother, who was unafraid and ready to go, that "all is well." She sleeps in sweet peaceful rest to suffer no more.

She was laid to rest June 19, at Bethel church amid a large gathering, who mourned with the bereaved family. Funeral services were conducted by Elder J. W. Howell, ably assisted by Elders B. F. House and E. B. Tucker of Pheonix City and Clanton respectively. Martin was in charge.

Surviving Mrs. Patterson are her husband, J. F. Patterson; six sons, Byron of Jacksonville, Fla.; Jesse, Charlie, Franklin, Horace and Dewey, of Verbena; and one daughter, Velma also of Verbena; and six grandchildren.

WHAT NEGROES ARE DOING

Observations

Crops are beginning to make the farmers feel better since the falling weather started in. Many could be heard murmuring about the dry weather a few weeks ago. Now it is just opposite. Well, it's hard to satisfy everybody; so nature has long since learned to take its course.

The 10 or 12 farmers in the sweet potato and corn contests are making a good showing. I hope they will continue until the harvest.

Here It Is Again

Some twelve or fifteen months ago I wrote an article in the local papers on the care of work stock. Due to the fact that farmers are plowing under their cotton and so little has been done toward the production of ample feed stuffs, I am a bit inclined to remind them again.

The Work Stock's Plea to Its Master

I am fat and fine at this time and I am wondering if you are planning on producing 30 bushels of corn for me this year. You know, I am very fond of corn, but I like a change in my grain feed some time. As a little extra, what about a little plot of oats, rye, soybeans, kaffir corn or some other small grain? I can hardly get along without at least 2 tons of hay. Most any kind of hay will be pleasingly accepted. Johnson grass, alfalfa, sudan grass, peanut hay, pea vine hay, vetch or Austrian peas make a fine feed for me. I am sure you can grow some of these crops because I have seen them grow in Chilton County. Then, too, I am an Alabama guy and I want you to stand by me. I'll make a good crop for you.

Things didn't go so well with me last year. I was a little bit puny almost all the year. My master brought a box of stock powder for me. Now you know I can't make a whole year on stock powder, but I did notice some mighty good directions on the box. Here is what I saw. Feed in clean trough free from manure; give ample grain and hay; give clean fresh water and keep salt in trough at all times; examine teeth once each year; keep feed in good condition, curry and brush animal daily; keep stock in a roomy stall; let stock have access to lot in favorable weather; and give two tablespoons of stock powder a day. Would you be surprised if I told you that my master followed all of these directions. Well, here is what he did: He overlooked all except the last one. Now, I have only horse sense, but I know you can and are going to do more for me this year.

Next to my eating and health comes my pleasure. Please give me a nice place to roll after my day's work is done. If I could spend Sundays and rainy days grazing in a good pasture, I'd feel much better. I really get tired in a dry lot with my head over the fence. Just before I close I must offer my prayer.

To thee, my master, I offer my prayer. Feed me, water and care for me and when the day's work is done, provide me with shelter, a clean, dry bed and stall wide enough to lie down in comfort. Talk to me, your voice often means as much to me as the reins. Pet me sometimes, that I may serve you more gladly and learn to love you. Do not jerk the reins and do not whip me when going up hill. Never strike, beat or kick me when I do not understand what you mean, but give me a chance to understand you. Watch me. If I fail to do your biddings, see if something is not wrong with my harness or feet.

Examine my teeth when I do not eat. I may have an ulcerated tooth and that, you know, is very painful. Do not tie my head in an unnatural position or take away my best defense against flies and mosquitoes by cutting off my tail.

And finally, oh my master, when my useful strength is gone, do not turn me out to starve or freeze or sell me to some cruel owner to be tortured and starved to death, but do thou, my master, take my life in the kindest way, and your God will reward you here and hereafter. You will not consider me irreverent if I ask this in the name of Him who was born in a stable. Amen.—Benjamin Anderson, teacher of vocational agriculture.

THORSBY SECTION

The Reading Habit

The officials of Thorsby Institute are very much gratified to note the increasing use by the public of the books and periodicals from Thorsby Institute library. Several years ago the writer was assisting in putting up new shelves in the library, and had one of the boy students help him. He looked around at the books on the shelves and said, "My, my, what a lot of books!" "Yes," Miss Jenkins said, "there are a good many. What would you like to read?" He replied, "I reckon I don't want none of them. My folks didn't have no books or papers. I never learned to care much about reading." Since that time, the students in the school and the public at large have become accustomed to make liberal use of the facilities offered by the library. Records for the year from July 1, 1932 to July 1, 1933, show that 7,630 books and periodicals were taken out. Best month's business was in January when the circulation reached nearly a thousand. The library is open to the public on Tuesdays and Fridays from 8 to 11 a.m. and from 3 to 6 p.m.

Officials of the Institute are pleased to note the increasing use of their athletic fields by the public, and are glad to furnish these facilities if properly used. We noted on a recent day when a ball game was in progress, several automobiles parked on the tennis court. We desire to call attention to the fact that well-regulated tennis courts prohibit the use of them by people who do not wear tennis shoes. One can imagine that it is not a suitable place to park automobiles. Please remember that.

The out-of-town guests were Misses Agnes and Mary Ella Gerald of Thorsby, and Mrs. Monroe Holley of Wetumpka. Others who were present were Mesdames Hugh Jones, Dubb Huddleston, John Page, John Durwood Mullins, Joe Venable, John Deramus, Hance Alred, John Armstrong, J. P. Hayes, Otto Jones, Lee Smith and Mrs. Barnett.

BLOWOUTS are caused by frictional heat generated in the fibers of the cotton cords in a tire. Firestone is the only tire built with every cotton fiber saturated and coated with pure rubber—to prevent destructive heat. This is one of the reasons why Firestone Tires have been on the winning cars in the 500 mile Indianapolis Race for 14 consecutive years—the world's most severe blowout test.

Rubber has gone up 242%, cotton 115%—substantial tire price increases must follow. We will give you an attractive allowance for your old tires on new Firestone High Speed Tires.

CLANTON VS. NEW CEDRON

The word baseball and picnic are almost synonomous. A picnic would hardly be complete without a scrapping good ball game and all those who attend the county-wide picnic tomorrow are promised a real baseball trial. After the doings are over down at Popwell Woods, Clanton and New Cedron will meet at the Ball park in Clanton in a good game. Clanton has already defeated New Cedron once and the boys from out west are up on their toes for revenge. Don't fail to go from the picnic up to the game. The time is 3:30—admission 10c. Everyone come, before you go home from the picnic.

The Clanton team has been revamped in the past few days. Victor J. Heard, prominent attorney of Clanton, has taken over the managerial reins and will direct the team from now on. New talent has been secured and all you who love baseball can be assured of a good team to support.

INDEPENDENCE 6—CLANTON 2

Clanton lost to Independence here Thursday afternoon, six to two. The visitors collected only six hits, but three of these came in the eighth inning, when Nivens weakened, and then blew up completely, giving two bases on balls and hitting a batter. In this inning five runs were scored. Clanton bobbled eight times, also.

Of the visitors' six safeties, three were triples and one a double. Clanton got to Longcrier for nine hits, all singles, but they were too scattered to do much harm.

For the locals, Littlejohn connected for three hits out of four trials, and Hayes got two out of two, to bring his string of consecutive hits to five.

Clanton went to Elmore Friday afternoon, and were beaten 10 to 2. Wyatt started on the mound for Clanton, but retired in favor of Watkins after allowing a base on balls and four straight hits.

The Clanton team continued its slow, careless style of play, such as was started in Thursday's game, and the affair was a set-up for Elmore.

Mullins led with the willow for Clanton with a double and single. In this game, Hayes got his seventh straight hit.

A. McAdams hit a home run for Elmore.

THURMOND CONDUCTING A REVIVAL AT THE TEMPLE

Evangelist W. E. Thurmond began a series of revival meetings last Sunday evening at the Temple church, where Bro. Perry Mims is pastor. It is said that these meetings have been launched that the general public might be benefitted thereby, and every effort is being put forth to make this a successful campaign. Rev. Thurmond has conducted similar meetings here before. He is accompanied by his wife, who plays and sings and adds a great feature to these meetings. It is being said further that Evangelist Thurmond is bringing forth some fine messages each evening at 7:45. He has promised to speak next Sunday evening on the "Devil's Incubators Are Taking a Quick Route to Hell." The entire church asks that the general public give this man of God a hearing. The meeting will continue throughout all next week. Come with us and we will do thee good.

FISHING ON THE GULF—

Before I begin to tell you this little yarn about our fishing trip to the Gulf of Mexico, let me say it proved to us again that the best friend you can have is a mail carrier. Before we left, everything was arranged for us through the kindness of Mr. E. L. Carson, rural (water route) mail carrier at Magnolia Springs. He is a friend of Dr. Lawrence. To be more exact, I might say he was a friend of Dr. Lawrence before we went fishing. Now he is a friend of all of us.

After a journey of 300 miles by car, we were comfortably located in the cabin assigned to us at Camp Bear Point, Caswell, Ala. The place is situated on Perdido Bay, in a few minutes run of the open Gulf of Mexico.

As soon as we could wash up, supper was ready. Gathered around the table we were discussing with much anticipation the prospects for fishing on the morrow. We had already seen enough of the general lay of the land to make our fever run high. We had just walked under a large mounted tarpon over the dining room door as we came in. We were in the home of "Bill" Morrill, who was to be our guide and mentor. After introductions, Bill sets in to help us with the fishing tackle in order that everything might be ready for an early morning departure to the Gulf.

The manner in which Bill helped us get our tackle ready was proof to begin with that our friend, Mr. Carson, had sent us to the right man for a fishing guide.

Our keen anticipation of the coming adventure caused us to ask all kinds of questions, pertaining to fishing and otherwise. After answering all of them in a very tantalizing manner, Bill said, "Well, boys, if the wind holds tonight as she is, the fishing will be good tomorrow. I'll give you a call at four in the morning. Breakfast will be on the table. So hurry out and we will try and leave the wharf at five-thirty." With a friendly good-night he was off to bed.

The four of us in the party, Dr. Lawrence, Dr. Upchurch, Mell Martin and the writer, went to our rooms upstairs. Upchurch had been deep sea fishing before. He did not have such a keen wire edge. He declared if he hooked a big shark or cavalla, he would cut the line and let him go. The others of us vowed we would hold on even at the risk of getting pulled overboard into the Gulf. Finally we were off to bed for a comfortable sleep after our long journey of the day.

As quiet came I could hear the roar of the waves of the Gulf breaking across the bar. Out there in the morning we would be with a new experience at the most thrilling sport in all the world. What does the morrow's adventure out beyond the roar of those breakers hold for us? With that question I fell asleep and the next thing I heard was Bill's coffee grinder down in the kitchen. Or was it Mell Martin snoring? I got up to verify and found my first impression was correct. Mell assured me he did not snore.

The call of breakfast from Bill downstairs brought us into hurried scuffle. The meal was tempting, but the thrill to rdie out into the Gulf among the fish was more alluring. Soon we were gathering the tackle and climbing aboard our boat. Bill was ready to crank up. Soon we were settled in our places and away we go.

It was a large boat, about 25 feet long, with cabin, deck, and comfortable seat on the rear. On this seat we sat and trolled our lines far behind.

Soon after leaving the wharf Bill told us to put our lines out so they would get wet and properly thumbed down by the time we reached the pass into the Gulf. We put on spoons and squids and paid out our lines several yards behind. Bill gave us the necessary instructions as to how to handle everything and keep from getting tangled. Bill called us all "boys" even though there isn't a one of us under forty. This, however, did not offend but rather makes for friendliness and good feeling. For who would not be a boy again on such a thrilling adventure, even if he were much more than forty?

Down Perdido Bay our boat chugged along at about five miles per hour. Out through the pass she began to mount the big waves as they piled up in the narrow space between Alabama Point and Florida point. Bill was standing on top deck carefully observing all marks and signs.

As we went out through the pass, Bill cautioned all hands to get ready for something to happen. "You will begin to pick up something along here," he said. He had not more than finished the words until I felt a tug on my line. The reel sang as the fish took off my line. Soon I had him stopped and headed toward the boat. By this time Mell had one hooked and was playing him for a hot game.

One after the other we brought them in. Every member of our party had caught a Spanish mackerel before we had fairly gotten out into the Gulf. It was hot times for about three hours as we hauled in mackerel, bonita, skip jacks, hard tails and what not.

All the while Bill was having a merry chase to keep his green-horn crew from getting all messed up and at the same time keep the boat headed right and locating the fish.

Mell took sea-sick, when he stopped trying to catch the fish and began to feed them. That was soon over, however, and he took his place in the game which was waxing hotter all the time.

About ten o'clock a rain came up and drove us back inside the pass. We returned to camp for dinner. Our catch had included several mackerel, bonita, and other small fish. We did not get hooked up with any big fish, for which Dr. Upchurch was thankful. He did not have to cut his line.

After dinner the rain had cleared and we were again ready to go to the Gulf. As in the morning, just as we cleared the pass, the fish began to strike. We had a hard streak of pulling, tugging and working all afternoon. Scarcely a minute during the whole time but what someone in the party was in a fight with a big bonita. By six o'clock we had the wire edge off and were ready for camp and rest.

At supper we caught all our fish over again and we thoroughly enjoyed the tutoring which Bill gave us in his most interesting style. We could now understand his suggestions and admonitions so much better than before we had the experience of the day.

Our hopes were high for another adventure Tuesday when we went to sleep Monday night. But it was raining torrents Tuesday and we could not go out. We had to stay inside the pass and play around the bay shore between showers. Dr. Lawrence and I secured a crab net and had some fun catching those ugly looking little animals. This experience led Dr. Lawrence to conclude why the sea was so restless.

Tuesday night we packed up ready to move early Wednesday. Mr. Carson had arrangments ready for us to fish in Magnolia River Wednesday. When we arrived at his place about seven o'clock, all was ready. Magnolia River is a fresh water stream which may very properly be called fisherman's heaven.

Into our boats we were away down the river thrilled with prospects of a good day's fishing. Soon after we had put out our lines, Mr. Carson came by in his mail boat and waved us good luck. We started catching fish so fast our boatmen could not string them ahead of us. In about three hours we had more fish than the law would allow and had to quit. That was awful, but we were determined to be good sportsmen and quit when the limit was reached. We threw back enough to bring us down to our bag limit and took out our lines.

By arrangements of Mr. Carson dinner was awaiting us at the Governor's Club. We cleaned up a bit, thoroughly enjoyed this excellent dinner, and started toward home. Our fish were dressed and packed in ice by the time we were ready to start.

From Magnolia Springs, we went to Fairhope, where Dr. Lawrence spent a few minutes with his father, Rev. J. O. Lawrence, who is pastor of the Methodist church there.

After packing our fish securely in a box of ice and making everything ready, we started our long journey home, arriving here at midnight.

Thanks to Mr. Carson and Bill Morrill, we can say we had the most wonderful time of our lives. Like all fishing trips this one had one bad feature—the fact that it had to come to an end. We look forward with longing to the time when we can once more hang up our hats at Bill Morrill's for a trip to the Gulf, and taper off with another session with friend Carson at Magnolia River.

I believe old St. Peter has got a place just like Magnolia River, where he is going to turn loose all good fishermen to enjoy the ages of eternity after this life. And believe me, I don't want to miss it.

ECONOMIC NATIONALISM

Through a mixup in thought, visionaries in all countries tend to confuse reduced tariffs with conditions making for the world peace.

The theme runs through lofty sentiments expressed at the World Monetary and Economic Conference now in session in London.

Cordell Hull, Secertary of State and head of the American Delegation in London, in his keynote speech before the World Economic Conference said:

"Economic conflicts, with some exceptions, are the most serious and the most permanent of all the dangers which are likely to threaten the peace of the world. Let this great Conference, therefore, proceed to the Herculean task of promoting and establishing economic peace which is the fundamental basis of all peace."

Speaking of Parliament, just before the Conference opened, Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer and head of the British Delegation to the Economic Conference, referring to tariff policies, declared:

"Much as all of us regretted the economic warfare which had arisen between us and other countries, we must maintain that warfare as long as it was the other countries which had taken the aggressive and were unwilling to make any sort of reparation to us or restitution for the wrong they had done us."

It is high time that the politicians stopped perverting economic truths and began to discuss tariff policies in the light of actual history.

As a matter of fact, free and unbridled trade makes—and has made in the past—for international strife, not for world peace.

Behind the complex causes of the World War was the growing trade rivalry between ascending Germany and the British Empire.

Since the war various other nations have made great progress toward developing full-balanced national economic systems, especially the United States, Japan, Italy and Russia.

With the leading countries thoroughly industralized and to a growing extent self-sufficient it is impractical to assume that they can resume natural trading on the pre-war basis.

To the extent that nations, through conscious policy, concentrate on the more intensive developments of home markets, dangerous rivalries will be restrained.

National economic self-sufficiency should be reinterpreted to world public opinion as a policy contributing strongly to world peace.

If the realities of business are examined it will become apparent that scrambles for ever widening foreign markets constitute latent economic warfare.

In such unrestrained international competition numerous foreign branches are in reality only outside sentinels in a trade battle more useful for retailiatory price cutting than for normal merchandising.

All scientific students of history recognize that economic imperialism—and the lust for ever expanding foreign markets—made a mockery of formal covenants of peace.

The desire of Americans to stress the raising of living standards in the home markets as the road to stable prosperity should be explained to the outside world as a peace building policy. Other friendly nations should be encouraged to do likewise.

On the other hand, through the centuries international trade rivalries have led directly to periodical wars.—Washington, D. C., Herald.

Alfred Smith has received an honorary degree from Harvard. Nevertheless and notwithstanding, he will be expected to go ahead and say "raddio" whenever he feels like it. —Washington, D. C., Star.

We understand that the official song of the delegates at the London Economic Conference is "You're an Old Smoothie."

They still sing the song "Here it is Monday, and I still got a dollar" on the radio. But the trouble now is you don't know just how much is a dollar.

MAN IN THE MOON

Looks Over All—Overlooks None

Harmon Headley's Peaches

I passed by the farm of Mr. Harmon Headley, out on Route 7, last Saturday afternoon, and was very much impressed with his fine peach orchard. Judging by this orchard, one may see the possibilities of this section as a fruit growing region. From time to time I have heard people say: "Yes, we can grow nearly anything that can be grown anywhere, if we can keep down pests and tree diseases." Mr. Headley's place is an example of what may be accomplished. I am quite sure that he has done much work in keeping down these pests and diseases, but his efforts have been highly successful. He has row on row of fine trees, heavily loaded with some of the finest fruit imaginable. And it has been only a short time since I passed there and his trees were just young sprouts. He has made a study of this work. He has applied the expert advice of horticulturists, and has labored tirelessly; he has sprayed, pruned, and cared for his trees according to the most approved methods. And he has plenty to show for it. Visit Mr. Headley's farm and see what can be done. He is proud of his orchard—it is something to be proud of.

Mr. Gulledge's Letter

I admire Mr. F. A. Gulledge's candid admissions in his letter, which appeared in the county papers last week, even if I can't agree with his ideas. But I think Mr. Gulledge's letter is more in support of the 18th Amendment than against it. I hear many people say they do not want to see the open saloon come back, but that the prohibition law is a failure. But not Mr. Gulledge—he openly states that he had rather see the saloon back, so that he can "get a drink when he wants it." That leaves the impression that prohibition makes it a little difficult to get a drink "when he wants it." If so, then the law is not a failure, for it serves its purpose of cutting down the use of liquors. Too, he states that the last time he was drunk, "perceptibly," was during the saloon days, and that he has not been drunk since the law went into effect. Isn't that proof that prohibition does prohibit? And if the prohibition law makes it hard for Mr. Gulledge to get a drink, and, therefore has cut down his use of liquor, is it not reasonable to believe that it has had a like effect on other people? If so, then prohibition is not a failure. It may not have been a grand success, but neither is it a total failure. It has done some good—and if it has done good, then it should be kept. Another thing—Mr. Gulledge puts his stamp of approval on Gov. Miller and his administration. Horsefeathers! Not even Gov. Miller's campaign managers will do that. In fact, I believe his strongest supporters during campaign days are now his dissatisfied subjects. In fact I think "old Grandma" is Gov. Miller's only true supporter, and they have reasons of their own, known only to themselves, for this.

Automatic Automobiles

Not so long ago I saw an advertisement of an "automatic automobile". And just a few days later, I had the chance to observe one automobile that was automatic, in a way. However, this one was not of the same make as the one advertised. I was standing near a filling station here in town when a car started turning into the station. Although there was nothing in the way, as the driver, a lady, turned in, her car's horn cut loose with a loud and raucous warning. As the wheels straightened out, the blowing stopped, and then started again, as she turned to the left again. She blushed from the good-natured jokes of bystanders, and showed us how it worked. So long as her car was going straight or turning to the right everything went smooth, but the instant she turned to the left that old horn began blowing. Not so bad at that, as lots of drivers give no warning that they are about to turn into the traffic lane. Maybe it would be better if more horns went "haywire" and turned into automatic safety devices.

"Gee, but Ain't It Hot"

Maybe you thought it was pretty hot for a few days last week. Well, so did all the rest of us, what with the mercury up around the century mark. According to reports in the papers, though, we don't know what hot weather is. We should take a trip to Texas. At Tyler, Texas, last Wednesday was the 24th consecutive day on which the temperature had been 115 or above. Instead of playing golf, baseball, etc., they get their sport from egg-frying contests, using the sidewalks for frying pans. How's that? In fact, the people out there have about decided that old Nick may still use Hades for his headquarters, but that he has set up a few branch offices around out there, and that Tyler is one of them. Just imagine how hot it must be where it is 115 in the shade—and no shade to be found.

Coming In For Air

Saw a funny thing happen a few days ago. One of the so-called "Hoover wagons" came driving into the Woco Pep Service Station. I suppose everyone knows what a "Hoover wagon" is—where an old auto chassis has shafts or a tongue fixed up in front, after the motor has been removed, and then the newly made wagon is pulled by horses or mules. I couldn't imagine what the queer-looking thing could be coming into a filling station for, but didn't have long to wait. The driver dropped his lines, and after setting the air gauge, proceeded to "air up" his tires. It was funny to watch the look of blank disappointment on the face of the station operator. He allowed that if many of those things were rigged up, he would have to stock up on oats, hay, salt bricks, etc., in addition to his usual line of gas, oil, and the like. Then he can service anything that comes along, be it automobile or "mulemobile," as the free air and water can be used by either or both.

A Spelling Lesson

Remember the good old days when we had "spelling bees," and everybody attended to see who was the best? A guy was "some punkins" when he could reel off Constantinople, heterogeneous, incompatibility, disillusionment, constitutionality, and a few other like word mountains. In those days the speller would spell a syllable, pronounce it, spell another syllable, pronounce that, and so on down the line until he had finished the whole word. A fellow was the pride of the community when he could spell a word as long as your finger. I got a good laugh a few days ago listening to an old negro spell "Mississippi." See if you can figure it out. Here is how he spells it: "Mi2si2si2pi." —Man in the Moon.

ANOTHER NEW DRIVE

There is a new campaign on for recognition of Russia. It was started some time ago by the United States Board of Trade of which former Senator Smith W. Brookhart is pilot. Statesmen who have renewed their pleas for action are Senotar Borah, of Idaho; Thomas, of Oklahoma, and Norris of Nebraska. One of the prominent leaders to give it impetus was Speaker Henry T. Rainey, of the House of Representatives, who declared when he visited Russia that he found a "happy, contented and hard working people who like us and would be happy if we liked them." Continuing Mr. Rainey added:

It is just the same today. It is no exaggeration to say the United States is losing pretty close to $500,000,000 a year in trade which is going to other countries.

"I have personally seen manufactured products coming in from other countries which ran into the millions. In Odessa I saw $200,000,000 worth of steel from Germany shipped in. We might as well have had that business.

"But above everything else we should have their friendship. It is waiting for us."

Just how much we are losing in trade with Russia because of our failure to recognize the Soviet government is a matter for debate. It is a good bet, however, that it is nothing like a half billion dollars. The chances are that it is less than nothing.

Mr. Rainey fails to state just how this trade would be financed. Russia has nothing to send us in return for any manufactured goods which we might deliver to her. The principal commodities which she could send to the United States would be lumber, oil, coal and other raw materials, of which the United States now has enough, and to spare. Of course it might be possible for Uncle Sam to lend Russia the money with which to buy from us, but our experience with European loans up to this time have not been exactly happy, and there is no assurance that we would fare any better with a government whose basic purpose is to destroy individualistic society, and turn the peoples of the world into robots.

It is true that millions of dollars worth of commodities have been shipped into Russia from Germany. And just now the German government and the German bankers are frightened to death lest they will be unable to collect and that repudiation will bring on another financial debacle in Germany. And peculiarly enough, a great deal of the money with which Germany financed her Russian trade adventure came from the United States. As bag-holders we are the greatest in the world's history. Let us not add another bag to the collection, and one made of Russian bearskin at that.

If the people of Russia are happy and contented, then ninety-eight per cent of the correspondents from America and Western Europe who have visited the country during the past year or so are "cockeyed." Concentration camps, short rations, mud and hovels do not go far to make a happy and contented working class.

It may be that they like us. But we doubt that, too. Ninety per cent of them probably know little or nothing about America except what they learn from distorted communist propaganda. And certainly the other ten per cent, which constitute the slave drivers, have no love for the country they regard as the last outpost of capitalism. No doubt they would be happy if we liked them—that is if we liked them well enough to sell them all they wanted on credit and then furnish them with the money to pay the bill.

ANTI-MERCHANT MARINE DRIVE UNDER WAY

William Allen, chairman of the Foreign Trade Committee of the Mississippi Valley Association, recently called attention to three articles appearing in the same issue of a London publication devoted to the interests of British shipping. The articles, which are of interest to Americans who believe in our merchant marine, were summed up by Mr. Allen as follows:

(1) A story from Paris advising of the adoption by the International Chamber of Commerce of the report of the shipowners of ten of the leading maritime nations calling upon the Economic Conference to include in its objectives the removel of "uneconomic subsidies in shipping."

(2) An article from Liverpool stating that the Liverpool Association of Shipowners, after discussion of Government aids to shipping, had passed a resolution urging that pending the Economic Conference "Great Britain should take all possible steps to secure the cooperation of as many nations as possible in an endeavor to procure the removal of all such barriers and acts of discrimination."

(3) On the same day the council of the Chamber of Shipping was reported to have met in London. After referring to Great Britain's position as the greatest sea carrier of world trade, the council recommended that "both pending the (World Economic) Conference, and at the Conference itself, Great Britain should endeavor to secure the cooperation of as many nations as possible * * * pledged to work for the removal all forms of discriminations, including subsidies in favor of ships under the national flag by which goods are carried."

As Mr. Allen points out, the fact that the uniform action of all of these meetings, held in Paris, London and Liverpool were reported on the same day indicates that a carefully planned campaign against government aid to shipping, has been commenced, a campaign which is undoubtedly aimed at the American merchant marine.

Many American statesmen have recently called attention to the "drives" against American shipping which have been started in Europe, and there is little doubt that an effort will be made in the London Economic Conference, now in session, to get some action or agreement directed against government aid to shipping.

So long as the United States was without a merchant marine, and shipping was being developed by England, Germany and other European nations, with various forms of subsidies there was no complaint in Europe about government aid to shipping. Then the United States became "ship conscious" and Congress realizing the vital necessity of a merchant marine to our naval and economic safety, passed legislation wisely designed to encourage ship building and shipping lines under the American flag.

Now that we are getting a share of the world's carrying trade, although by no means any more than to which we are entitled, a series of yelps has been raised abroad that can be heard clear across the Atlantic. Foreign shipping interests, who have never been adverse to aid from their own governments, have suddenly discovered that such aid is wrong. The only reason it is wrong, of course, is that Uncle Sam has found out how to do it. Isn't it remarkable how things practiced in Europe to help Europe, become unjust and unfair when practiced in America to help the United States?

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

Events have moved so swiftly during the past few weeks that even yet a great many people do not realize the importance and the sweeping effect of much of the legislation passed during the recent congress. In effect, the national legislators attempted to make over the economic structure of the country, with a measure of government control never before contemplated in peace time. Just how it will work out nobody of course can tell. The ease with which the president's program was put through congress, was due in no small measure to the nation-wide personal popularity of the president. From now on the system will have to prove itself. If it does not, it will speedily become unpopular and the administration's political fortunes will wane with it. Every American, of course, regardless of politics, is wishing for the success of the president's efforts to guide us out of the depression. That some progress has been made is undeniable. How much of it is due to the healthy recovery and how much to speculation in anticipation of inflation remains to be seen.

One of the most sweeping accomplishments of congress was the industrial control act. It went through so speedily that few people yet understand it, outside of some of the industries vitally affected. It is the complaint of Republican leaders that sufficient time was not given for discussion, and they say that if it fails, the fault will lie in a large measure with the haste with which it passed. Every now and then a conservative statesman is pointing out what he regards as fundamental defects in the program. One of the latest is no less a person than Alfred E. Smith, former Governor of New York and one of the leaders in the President's own party. In a recent editorail in the New Outlook, Mr. Smith expresses grave doubt as to the workability of the recovery act. While admitting that individual initiative and unhampered freedom of action in the field of the public utility is a thing of the past the Governor declares:

"It is quite another matter to set up government control of all business. I have never hesitated to recommend the extension of government activities to meet the needs of a growing population in an age of industrial invention, but this plan goes beyond anything my imagination can follow."

Later in the same editorial Governor Smith recognizes the sweeping effect of the new law by adding:

"If we could give the planners a corner of Alaska or a chunk of the bad lands for their experiment, it would not be so serious. Then if the laboratory blew up the whole nation would not suffer." Governor Smith adds that in his opinion the Recovery Act will tend to "cripple initiative, legalize and even encourage monoply, raise prices and require higher tariffs to maintain the new structure. * * * In such a triumph of bureaucracy the little man would be lost in the shuffle."

In summary Governor Smith says: "It may be that we have reached a new era in which the government must run everything, but I hope not, because I do not want to see this land of opportunity sink to a dead level in which we shall all be civil servants working under political control. If that happens we shall have sold our American birthright for a mess of communistic pottage."

While all are hoping that from now on the traveling will be smoother it is not a bad idea occasionally to stop and visualize the direction in which we are going. In this new national experimentation it is true that the laboratory is not one corner of Alaska but the entire United States. It will pay us well, therefore, to go slowly and carefully. What we want is not more bureaucracy but less of it. We want to preserve individual initiative and personal enterprise so far as possible. If we do not do this, we will have moved a great deal closer to some of the systems now in vogue in various parts of Europe. Let us move forward, but let us at the same time watch our step and be sure where we are going.

Giving the farmer a bonus for not raising wheat is like paying a man for something he doesn't do. But come to think of it, that's what happens in the case of a lot of first, second and third vice-presidents.

The Lightest way round is the Safest way home

YOU CAN name your city's busiest streets by naming its best lighted streets. Fear of the unseen dangers that may lurk in the shadows on poorly lighted streets sends night traffic of both autos and pedestrians to brighter thoroughfares.

It is universally conceded that good lighting promptly pays its own cost in prevention of crime and street accidents, in enhanced real estate values, in accelerated business.

Ally yourself with a movement for "white way" lighting in your city. It will prove a valuable safeguard and a real business builder.

PLANT DISEASE CONTROL

Many fungi and other organisms which are the cause of plant diseases attack only certain plants and soon die out in the soil if other crops are planted on the land or rotation of crops is practiced.

The length of time the disease organisms will live over in the soil in the absence of the crop it attacks has not been determined for many diseases. Soil infection for most diseases is a minor factor after a two-year period in which crops not susceptible to the disease organism are grown. The scab potatoes and wilt of cotton and of other plants are known to live more than two years in the soil.

Reynolds and Killough determined the percentage of cotton killed by root rot under different cropping systems. They found as an eight-year average that cotton grown continuously had 33.7 per cent of the plants killed, while a three-year rotation of cotton, corn and oats reduced this loss to 6.7 per cent.

The complete removal and destruction of diseased plants from fields, particularly in the case of those diseases where the trouble is commonly carried from one plant to another, is sometimes necessary in disease control. Many diseases of crop plants have alternate wild hosts on which the disease may carry over during a portion of its life cycle.

The use of clean seed free of disease is also a very important control measure. The use of disease-free seed is in many cases the most feasible method of controling disease. It is advocated particularly in the control of the rots of corn in which germination tests and observation of the ear and stalk are advocated; also the treatment of seed corn before planting and the treatment of small grain for smut and other seed-borne diseases.

Treating seed corn for the control of seed-borne diseases has been tried extensively, various mercuric and copper compounds being used in liquid and dust forms. Considerable improvement in the compounds sold has been made and no doubt these will continue to be modified as our knowledge of their effect increases.

There are a number of other kinds of smut that attack small grains but space will not permit me to give thme and their control in full details.

Next week's topic will be "Rotation of Crops."

Lesson for July 23

ISAIAH DENOUNCES DRUNKENNESS AND OTHER SINS

LESSON TEXT—Isaiah 5:1-30.

GOLDEN TEXT—Righteousness exalteth a nation: but sin is a reproach to any people. Prov. 14:34.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Good Gifts.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Wrong Road.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Attacking Wrongs Without Gloves.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Evils Which Must Be Overcome.

I. Israel, the Unique and Beloved Nation (vv. 1-7).

The unique relation of this nation to God is presented under the figure of a vineyard (v. 1).

1. God's peculiar favor shown (v. 2). God did for this nation what he did for no other nation in the history of the world.

a. He "fenced it" when he assigned the boundaries of Israel's inheritance (see Num. 34:1-13).

b. He "gathered out the stones thereof" when the Canaanites were exterminated.

c. He "planted it with the choicest vine" when the Israelitish nation, which had gone through the disciplinary process in Egyptian bondage, was placed therein.

d. He "built a tower in the midst of it" when under David Jerusalem was made the capital city.

e. He "made a winepress therein" when the temple built by Solomon became the fixed place of worship for the nation.

2. The obligation of the nation (v. 2). "He looked that it should bring forth grapes." The word looked expresses the idea, not only of desire, but of expectation.

3. The divine disappointment (vv. 3, 4). "It brought forth wild grapes." Instead of sweet, luscious grapes, they bore grapes of a sour and unwholesome kind.

4. The desolation of the vineyard (vv. 5-7). Since all efforts had been wasted, the owner of the vineyard purposes to take away the fences and leave it to be exposed to the wild beasts to waste and devour.

II. The Sins Which Brought Ruin to Israel (vv. 8-23).

1. Monopoly and oppression (vv. 8-10). The crime against which the first woe was denounced was that of the avaricious grasping after property which leads to the accumulation of wealth in the hands of the few. This state of affairs met God's judgment in Judea (vv. 9, 10), as one day it shall likewise do in America.

2. Dissipation (vv. 11-17). The particular sin denounced here is that of drunkenness. How we shudder to contemplate what God may do to America as she brings back liquor! This sin is never alone.

a. Drinking made the life-business of some (v. 11). They get up early in the morning and continue until late at night. A duplication of this will soon be seen in all of our American cities.

b. A show of refinement (v. 12). The saloon and brothel always have music. Pleasing music was always heard pouring forth from the infamous saloon. The prostitution of music has led many an unsuspecting youth into the way of sin.

c. Blindness to God's warnings and judgments (v. 12). Drinking and dissipation render men insensible to God's dealings.

d. God's judgments for such sin (vv. 13-17). The people were carried into captivity. Not only would they go into captivity, but there was great mortality among the drunkards (v. 14). The records everywhere show a much higher death rate among drinking men than among abstainers. Drinking degrades all classes (v. 15). The rich and mighty men are brought down with the poor and humble. Even the country itself was made desolate (v. 17).

3. Unbelief (vv. 18, 19). This woe is denounced against the sinner who presumptuously plunges into vice. He is not overtaken with sin, but deliberately goes after it and works at it. He becomes so daring as to defy the judgments of the Almighty (v. 19).

4. Moral confusion (v. 20). This woe is pronounced against those who try to adjust moral conditions to suit their sensual appetites.

5. Conceit (v. 21). The fifth woe is pronounced against the sin of self-conceit.

6. Perversion of justice (vv. 22, 23). The sixth woe is pronounced against judges who, because of a lack of moral discrimination, and the desire for temporal gain, cause justice to miscarry.

III. Predicted Judgment (vv. 24-30). The historic fulfillment of these predictions are but types of the severe ones which are to follow.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Seay entertained the members of the Intermediate B. Y. P. U. at their home Thursday night.

Friends of Mrs. Grady Lewis were grieved to hear of her death Monday afternoon. We deeply sympathize with the bereaved ones in their sorrow. Mrs. Lewis was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Lesley.

Our singing school is progressing very nicely under the management of Mr. Sam Collins.

Everybody remember our revival begins the fifth Sunday. Bro. Nabors will be assisted by Bro. Green.

Quite a number of people from Oak Grove attended the singing at Mt. Pleasant, and report a very enjoyable time.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

We are not our own. We are bought with a price. So states the Bible.

My hands, my feet, my eyes, my tongue do not belong to me. All I have comes from God. I have no right to use selfishly any thing that God gave me. I ought to give back to God in Christian service the things He has given me.

A few years ago I was in the wilderness of Judea. I remembered that it was in that section that Jesus was tempted. I saw many rocks. They looked like biscuits or loaves of bread. Jesus was hungry. Satan pointed to a rock and said in substance, "You have all power. You are hungry. Change that stone to a loaf of bread and satisfy your appetite. Jesus refused. He never used His power selfishly. He used His power to make the blind see, the deaf hear, the dumb speak, to cure the palsy, to cleanse the leper, and to raise the dead. He used His power to multiply the loaves and fishes and feed hungry people in the desert. He used His power to calm the troubled sea and save the little group from shipwreck. He did not use His power to gratify His own appetites. If we are Christ-like we will not use any gifts of God selfishly. All our talents came from God. All of our talents should be used for God's glory.

The trouble with most people is they want to know, "Where do I come in?" "What do I get out of it?" They should be asking, "What can I do?" "What can I give?" In God's plan we get by giving. We gain by losing. We live by dying.

D. Bates of Providence, Beat 16, was carried to Tuscaloosa last week for treatment. He was in a serious condition, but late reports say he is much improved.

Joe Parrish of Nitrate Plant (Muscle Shoals) is spending his vacation with relatives and friends in Clanton.

Dr. C. S. Strock of Verbena was a visitor in Clanton Monday.

Now children, can enyone tell me what the sins of omission are?

Yessum, they're the sins we might have committed and didn't.

Professor—Young man, I believe I heard you talking in class just a few minutes ago.

Student—Oh no, I never talk in my sleep.

"I shall now illustrate what I have in mind," said the professor, as he proceeded to erase the blackboard.

Parson—Does your daughter trust God, Brother Jones?"

Jones—She must, judging from the company she keeps.

He—Babe, you're a bouble dating, gin - drinking, gold - digging college widow.

She—Please don't call me Babe. It sounds so unrefined.

Mr. and Mrs. Rip Burnett and Mr. and Mrs. Omar Reynolds are planning a trip to Detroit in a few days. Mr. Burnett will get a new Ford at Detroit in which the party will drive to Chicago and take in the World's Fair before returning home.

REVIVAL CAMP MEETING

There will be a revival in the Collins Chapel community beginnig on Thursday, July 20, at 7:30 p.m. Services will be held each night throughout the week, and will continue as long as the Lord leads. The meeting place will be at the old home place of Uncle John Gore, about 1½ miles north of the double bridges on Yellow Leaf Creek. Everybody is welcome to come. The saints of God should pray for a county wide revival and that many souls may be born into the kingdom of God.—Rev. C. J. Moates.

WORLD'S FAIR TRIP IS FINE VACATION SAYS R. W. LOWE

"There is one opportunity that I hope that none of the motorists of this city will miss—a vacation visit to the World's Fair—because it is the chance of a lifetime," says R. W. Lowe, Firestone dealer. "It will be a most enjoyable trip for you and your family and you will see things that you may never have the chance to see again. Remember it has been 40 years since the last World's fair at Chicago.

"The Firestone factory and exhibition building—one of the greatest attractions of the fair, is both fascinating and educational," Mr. Lowe continued. "Everybody wants to know how tires are made, yet few have been able to go through the Firestone factory at Akron or Los Angeles. Now that Firestone has built this factory at the World's fair, every visitor can see Gum-Dipped tires made.

"You will see the crude rubber being prepared in the huge 35-ton mixing machine, the Firestone High-Stretch Cords being gum-dipped in the spectacular Firestone gum-dipping machine, the component parts of the tire being assembled, the tire being formed and then being cured in the automatic vulcanizing molds. You will see the tread design formed and other processes on through to the finished product.

"You will be delighted with the dynamic displays of all Firestone products, and the scientific rubber displays in the great hall of science, where Firestone has been chosen to represent the rubber industry.

"Upon arrival at the Firestone factory and exhibition building, conveniently situated at the 23rd street entrance, you will receive a 36-page book showing with pictures the story of tire manufacture, together with many other interesting facts about rubber and our exhibits there. Those in charge will also be glad to assist you with any general information about the fair.

"As for your car, let me suggest that you let us help you by inspecting your tires, battery, spark plugs, brake lining, etc. All this inspection service is free and we will be glad to assist you in any way to make your trip to A Century of Progress enjoyable."

Central Singing Society

MEETS AT FRIENDSHIP SUNDAY

The Central Singing Society will resume operations next Sunday afternoon, after a vacation of three months. The meeting will be held at Friendship, the chairman, Prof. O. L. Devaughn, in charge, beginning at 2 o'clock.

It has been a long time since the society met, so we are sure everyone is eager to hear our bunch together again and do some good singing; this being the case, let's all lend our efforts toward advertising the meeting at Friendship and get a good representative crowd out. Let every church in the society send along a bunch of singers and directors.

There will be a bunch of the Morris-Henson 1934 books on hand to be used and sold to those who want one. Probably there will be some of the Stamps-Baxter books there too.

Then the next Sunday will be the fifth Sunday and time for the quarterly singing at the courthouse. Let everybody in the county bear this in mind and let's make this one of the best afternoon singings of the year.

SINGING IS TO BE HELD AT PLEASANT HILL IN BEAT 12

There will be an all day singing at Pleasant Hill, in Beat 12, on the fourth Sunday in July. All singers and lovers of music are invited to come and bring their song books and dinner, as there will be no public dinner. Everybody is invited to attend.—Secretary.

CANNING CENTERS OPERATING

Canning centers for the R. F. C. are operating this week. Three other centers will be opened next week.

Families of all certified R. F. C. workers are supposed to bring their vegetables to these centers where cans and equipment will be furnished. The canning program has been worked out by the Alabama Relief Administration as a means of helping people to become self-sustaining. Unless the workers come to these canning centers on the dates notified and make some effort to help themselves they need expect no further assistance for the R. F. C.

All the people who attend canning centers are expected to furnish a part of the wood since there are no funds available for fuel.

The products to be canned are tomatoes, beans and soup mixture. However, if workers have no vegetables at this time fruits may be used.

Mrs. Billingsley (Gladys Culp) and three children from Birmingham are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Culp, at West End.

Singing School At Concord July 24

Prof. A. O. Boswell Will Begin Teaching There On Next Monday Morning

Concord has always been a pioneer in the business of singing schools. For the past quarter of a century or more that has been the leading community of Chilton County in this respect. Schools have been taught there by some of the leading composers and teachers of the south—such as Eagle, Dye, Henson, J. L. Gore, Frank Stamps; and later schools were taught by W. M. Devaughn, O. L. Devaughn and L. T. Grant.

This year Concord is to have another school. A. O. Boswell will teach at the school house beginning next Monday morning, July 24th. The school was first made up for Temple church but was changed to the school house on account of a revival being on at the Temple.

In making the announcement Prof. Boswell says: "The school house is more centrally located, and we hope the change will be better for the school. Everyone is urged and invited to come and take part. Tuition is very reasonable—only 10 cents per day per pupil. All patrons are invited to attend the opening day—next Monday morning, July 24th, at 8:30 o'clock."

MT. PLEASANT—BEAT 12

Editor Union-Banner:

Will you please allow me space in your paper for a report of the singing at this place last Sunday. I will say in the beginning it was one among the best the writer has attended this season. Mr. W. J. Northcutt acted as chairman. We had a number of good singers from other places whom we were glad to have with us.

Mr. Brasher Northcutt sang the opening song and were then led in prayer by the pastor, Rev. J. N. Green. The following directors were called to sing one song each:

Mrs. Wilma Scott. Mr. Russell Scott. At this time the Gorgas Quartet sang one song. Next called was Mr. B. L. Cobb, and W. L. Sanders. The Oak Grove Quartet sang a number. Next A. V. Northcutt. Mr. Cleckler, Prof. Scott, Mrs. H. V. Shaw and Mr. Jents of Gorgas, Mr. Little. A duet was sung by Mr. A. V. Northcutt and Miss Jents of Gorgas. Next called was Prof. Sam Collins, Loyd Edwards, Mr. Cofer, Mrs. Collum and Mrs. Weldon. The Oak Grove Quartet sang another song, after which we adjourned for the noon hour. The ladies spread a bountiful dinner, which was enjoyed by all.

About one o'clock the house was called to order by the chairman and the following directors were called to sing two songs each: Mr. P. M. Cleckler, Mr. Andrew Blow, Miss Cleckler, Mr. A. V. Northcutt. A solo was beautifully rendered by Prof. Ralph Grant. Next called was Prof. Lum Scott, Mr. Russell Scott, W. L. Sanders, Mr. Cleckler, Prof. Grant and Mr. Collins. Pianists for the day were Miss Jessie Dorminey, Mrs. Roper, Miss Thornbrough, Mrs. B. L. Cobb, Mrs. Webb, Miss Jents, Mrs. Shaw, Mrs. Weldon and Prof. Grant. We feel grateful to all who assisted in any way in making the singing the success it was.

We especially thank Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Martin for the use of their piano. All were glad when the announcement was made that this should be an annual occasion at this place. So we are looking forward to the 3rd Sunday in July, 1934, when we shall have another day like this.—Reporter.

Prof. J. Alex Moore, of Dry Valley, was a visitor to Clanton Tuesday afternoon.

E. L. Glasscock, rural mail carrier at Jemison, was a visitor to Clanton Tuesday afternoon.

FIREMEN VS. LAY DAM THURSDAY, JULY 20TH

A team made up of the members of the Clanton Fire Department will play a game with a team from Lay Dam on the local field on Thursday, July 20.

The regular Clanton baseball team has consented to allow the firemen to use their uniforms. Mayor Smith has agreed to try to get all the business houses to close for the game. The proceeds of the game will go to the special firemen's fund, which is reported to be very low at present.

Remember the date and hour—the Clanton baseball park, Thursday, July 20, at 3:30 p.m.

SEWING MACHINE STOLEN

A portable electric sewing machine was stolen from the home of Mr. Curtis Billingsley, about one mile north of Clanton, between Sunday morning, July 9, and the Friday evening following. Mr. and Mrs. Billingsley left for a vacation Sunday morning, July 9, and when they returned the following Friday they found that their electric sewing machine had been stolen.

It is believed that the thief entered the house by the use of a skeleton key. When the Billingsleys returned to their home Friday evening they found one of the doors to the house unlocked.

At this writing no arrests had been made.

DIEF'S CAFE SOLD OUT

Leonard and DeWitt Easterling have bought out Dief's Cafe, and will continue to operate the business at the same location. Both the new owners are experienced in the conduct of the cafe business. It was under their management that the Dixie Cafe became one of the most popular eating places in Alabama.

In assuming the management of Dief's Cafe Tuesday morning Leonard Easterling said: "We expect to make every effort to serve the public according to the highest standards of the cafe business. We will keep our place open day and night, catering to local as well as transient customers. We extend a cordial invitation to our friends to visit us."

People of Alabama Willing To Pay Debts, Says Secretary of A. E. A.

Montgomery, Ala., July 25.—"The passage of the warrant and income amendment is a great victory for the cause of education in Alabama," said Frank L. Grove, secretary of the Alabama Education Association, Wednesday when discussing the final returns of Tuesday's election. Continuing Mr. Grove said, "The results of the election show that the people of the state are willing to pay the debts for certain other services and that they are willing to levy additional taxes where these taxes can best be paid."

Mr. Grove further said, "The teachers of Alabama understand, of course, that the ratification of the debts and the levying of the income tax will not add new money for the operation of the schools next year. The proceeds of the income tax will be used specifically to fund the debts and after this is done to decrease ad valorem taxes. The passage of the two amendments Tuesday, however, means that the warrants held for months by thousands of teachers will be made liquid and that a beginning towards funding the debt will be made immediately. Thus, while no new money will be forthcoming for education, the educational situation has been vastly improved by the Tuesday election."

POPWELL SUCCEEDS TAYLOR AS NEW TOWN COUNCILMAN

At the meeting of the Clanton town council, Tuesday night, July 18, Mr. W. L. (Fate) Popwell was elected as councilman to fill the vacancy created by Mr. Reedie Taylor's resignation upon moving to La Fayette, Alabama. The reason that the town council elected Mr. Popwell was because in the last election of town councilmen he received the 6th or the next highest vote of the candidates in the race.

CASH GROCERY STORES ARE OFFERING REAL BARGAINS

For the past several weeks the Cash grocery stores, two located at Clanton and one at Thorsby, have been carrying a large adv., in the Union-Banner. These wide awake stores have items and prices that are outstanding and our readers will do well to watch these advs. every week and be guided by them in making your grocery purchases.

Turn to their adv., in this paper this week and scan over the list of bargains. They especially would like to call your attention to what they have to say about flour. It will be to your interest to look up the adv., and read it. The two stores in Clanton are managed by Obe Deloach and W. J. Billingsley, and the one in Thorsby by A. E. Reagan. All three are home owned.

CROWN ETHYL GAS GOES DOWN CENT A GALLON

Standard Oil dealers in Alabama have today received instructions from the company's offices in Birmingham to reduce the differential in cost between Crown Ethyl Gasoline and regular gasolines from 3c to 2c.

This price change become effective on July 28th and the company gives as the reasons therefor, improved manufacturing facilities, and desires to pass along to the motoring public this saving in their highest priced product.

Both communities where he has taught were well pleased with the outcome of the schools.

Prof. Wilson is a worthy young man as well as a good teacher, and deserves the hearty support of the people where he teaches. He will no doubt get that support at Highland.

SHERIFF'S REPORT

For the past week Deputy Sheriff Gillespie reports three arrests—one for possessing a still; one for petit larceny; and one for assault and battery.

1933 MODEL WHISKEY STILL

A 1933 special whiskey still was captured Sunday morning by the sheriff's force here. The still consisted of a 50 pound lard can with iron pipes for connections. It was owned by a negro and was located between Clanton and Maplesville.

CLANTON TO HAVE AVIATION FIELD SOON IS PROBABLE

Everything is looking mighty favorable for Clanton to have a flying field in the near future. The Clanton Kiwanis Club and the American Legion are both pushing this proposition. The committee of the Kiwanis Club includes Dr. V. J. Gragg, W. M. Wyatt and Sam Powers, and the representative for the American Legion is R. D. Woodson. This committee looked over the territory last Saturday and it is related that three prospective places have been selected. The committee has taken this matter up with the Federal Department of Commerce, and it is probable that a representative will be sent from this department in a few days to investigate this proposition.

HAYS-ROBERTS MARRIAGE

Miss Dulcie Ruby Hays, of Jemison, and Mr. Wyatt Vernon Roberts, of Birmingham, were married at the home of the bride in Jemison Saturday, July 22. The marriage was solemnized at 8 p.m., by Rev. J. W. Jones, pastor of the Baptist church at Thorsby, in the presence of a large host of friends and relatives.

The Hays home was decorated with ferns, cut-flowers, roses and dahlias. An altar was formed from ferns and flowers. The bride's only attendant was her sister, Mrs. Fred Sims, who wore a gown of ashes of roses with a bouquet of dahlias. The groom had as his best man, Tobbie Brown, of Birmingham.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, H. H. Hays. The bride was dressed in a gown of blue with beige accessories, and she carried a bouquet of gladiolas.

An informal reception followed the ceremony and the guests were served ice cream and cake. The newly weds left Sunday morning for Birmingham where they expect to make their home.

A BOY AND A GIRL

There's a motion picture, or maybe it's a song, by the above name; but this story is not dealing with that. This is merely a news story the purpose of which is to state that twins—a boy and a girl—were born to Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Baker at their home two miles east of Clanton Saturday afternoon, July 22nd.

But that is not all of this story. The boy arrived about 4:30 o'clock and Mr. Baker tore out to break the glad news to his father and other neighbors. When the proud parent got back to the house a few minutes later, lo and behold, there were two pink little whining objects where he had left only one. This last one was the girl. The boy weighed 7 pounds and the girl 7¼. They have been named John and Jane—for their grandfather and great grandmother.

A card from Mrs. Jean Wyatt and Miss Ethel Cagle says that they arrived in Chicago Monday afternoon at 6:00 o'clock. While in the Windy City they are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Crout, former residents of Mitchell Dam. These people live only a few blocks from the Century of Progress.

County-Wide Picnic Last Friday Was Interesting Instructive Event

4,000 Citizens of County Hear Addresses of Prominent Men and Enjoy Festivities Offered by County Agent and Other County Officers

An estimated attendance of 4,000 to 5,000 was had at the big county wide picnic last Friday near Clanton. A complete program for the entire day was afforded free of charge to those in attenance. Speaking fiddling, singing, contests, and comedy characterized the program of this history making occasion.

At the opening of the program welcome addresses were given by L. H. Reynolds, Judge of Probate; W. M. Wyatt, president of Clanton Kiwanis Club; and Howard Roper, a prominent farmer and teacher of north Chilton County.

Following these addresses the contest for the longest wedded couple was held and two prizes of $1.00 each were given. Mr. and Mrs. Jim Chambers, who live southwest of Clanton and who were married in September, 1868 were given first recognition. Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Dennis who were married in October 1868, were also given a prize.

After a selection by the Clanton-Verbena orchestra and some stunts by F. S. (Preacher) Salser, comedian and policeman, from Birmingham, Miss Pardue County Home Demonstration Agent, briefly outlined her program for the coming year. Announcements were made by Miss Pardue relative to the exhibit on display at the picnic and also in regard to the canning centers that are now in operation in various parts of the county. The home demonstration agent announced that a 4-H club for girls will be purposed to study and exercise methods of improving homes, so that the homes of Chilton County may become more convenient, attractive and sanitary. A program was announced for the women of the county in which the study of clothing will be one of the specialities Miss Dean, clothing specialists from Auburn was present and was introduced at this time. A program was outlined by Miss Pardue in which more use of cotton as a clothing material is to be emphasized.

After a vocal selection by Percy M. Pitts, county agent Stapp spoke on "Building the Community." Mr. Stapp expressed himself as a strong advocate of taking the community unit as the basis for putting over the projects of various kinds, and he justified his opinion by showing what a great success that had been accorded the government's cotton reduction plan in Chilton County, through community work. In his speech the county agent analyzed community life into three parts—economic, civic and recreational. Successful agriculture was declared the basis of the South's economic life, and emphasis was placed upon conservation of the soil, and the planting of legume plants to improve the soil of individual farms. The increase in planting of legume seed in Chilton County, it was cited, has increased from 10,000 pounds in 1927 to 150,000 pounds in 1932. Under the civic division of community life the speaker declared that the health standards of Chilton County should be improved and that homes, schools and churches should be beautified. Mr. stapp emphasized that communities could not be built upon economic values, but human interest had to be taken into account. Home training for citizenship was emphasized. The climax of Mr. Stapp's speech, which considered recreation, laid upon the present generation the responsibility of seeing to it that the recreation of the young people is properly sponsor-

County Commissioners Accept New Proposal For R.F.C. Aid

Relief Funds For August and September Will Amount to $25,600, Under New Plan Submitted by Mr. Thad Holt, State Director

The Commissioners Court of Chilton County on Saturday, July 22nd, voted to accept a relief plan of the Federal Government whereby $25,600 will be spent in Chilton County for relief measures during the months of August and September. The following is the authorized statement of the commissioners court, through their attorney, Percy M. Pitts, in regard to the acceptance of this relief proposal:

"The Court of County Commissioners of Chilton County met with other county courts of commisisoners at Montgomery on Friday afternoon at the Jefferson Davis Hotel, and there was submitted by Thad Holt, head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, a separate and different proposition regarding the counties matching or putting up local funds and in lieu thereof getting R. F. C. funds. This county did as many other counties—turned down the first proposition of the county matching R. F. C funds of few weeks ago. The counties in the State, however, by reason of the more liberal offer which was made by the R. F. C. at this meeting, accepted this proposition and passed a resolution at a special meeting on Saturday, July 22, 1933, in which the county for the next two months agress to furnish out of the gasoline fund $5,000.00 during the months of August and September and in lieu thereof, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation matches this with an additional amount of $15,000.00 to which the county is now drawing from the R. F. C.

It is now understood that this $5,000.00 to be furnished by the county out of the gasoline tax fund is to be paid as other claims are to be paid through the County Treasurer instead of the R. F. C. disbursing officer. The former proposition that this court turned down had to be spent directly through the R. F. C. organization."

The following is a copy of the resolution passed by the Commissioners Court last Saturday in adopting this relief plan:

"WHEEAS, the county of Chilton recognizes the unusual and widespread amount of suffering which exists among the people of Chilton County due to unemployment of said people and to general economic condition of the country, and,

WHEREAS, the county of Chilton recognizes the necessity of all local governmental departments, agencies, churches, fraternities, and all other organizations, and all citizens of this county in cooperationg with the official Public Relief Organization of this county, in order that necessary relief might be brought to the distressed people of our county:

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED: that the Commissioners Court of Chilton County make available the sum of Twenty-Five Hundred Dollars ($2,500.00) for each of the months of August and September, 1933, of said county's part of the gasoline tax to be received by said county for said months, said amount to be used exclusively for work relief in strict compliance with the authority authorizing the expenditures of the gasoline tax fund; namely, for the construction and maintenance of public roads and bridges in the county, or other legal expenditures of said gasoline tax fund to be used in conjunction with the work which is being done by the official Chilton County Relief Organization in providing the necessities of life for the destitute people of Chilton County.

Thereupon, Mr. J. E. Cobb moved the adoption of the foregoing resolution, and Mr. J. C. Atchison seconded that motion.

After a full and free discussion of this Resolution the same was adopted by the following vote:

Ayes: Messrs. J. E. Cobb, J. C. Atchison, J. M. Mims, and C. D. Duke.

State of Alabama, Chilton County:

I, L. H. Reynolds, as Clerk of the Commissioners Court of said County, hereby certify that the foregoing is a true and correct extract from the minutes of said court or board on the 22 day of July, 1933.

L. H. REYNOULDS,
Judge of Probate,
Clerk of Commissioners Court.

In addition to the sum of $20,000 mentioned in the above documents to come from the acceptance of this proposition, the county has already received $5,600 from the Federal government to be expended on relief measures for the months of August and September This all totals up to $25,600 which will be spent by the relief administration of Chilton County under the direction of the local commissioners court during the months of August and September. As will be easily seen this plan that has been adopted recently will bring into the county about $2,100 more money than would have been the case if the first plan laid before the commissioners had been adopted.

ARTHUR CHANDLER INJURED

Mr. Arthur (Dock) Chandler was seriously injured last Saturday afternoon when Hewman Smith stabbed him twice with a knife. It is related that several boys who were drinking were attending a ball game at Union Grove when two or three of the party got to fighting. Arthur, who was standing by, and who was not drinking, attempted to stop the fight. When Arhur made this attempt he was badly stabbed by Hewman Smith, his cousin. Chandler was brought to the hospital in Clanton by Martin's ambulance.

It was believed for a day or so that the stab in his left lung might prove fatal, but Tuesday Chandler's condition was considered good.

It is reported that a Robinson boy, who was in the fighting Saturday, was painfully but not seriously injured when he was knocked down with a ball bat.

As yet no arrests have been made.

SINGING AT COURTHOUSE NEXT SUNDAY AFTERNOON

There will be a union singing at the courthouse in Clanton next Sunday afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock. This will be the usual fifth Sunday singing and all societies of the county will take part, or at least they are invited and expected to do so. The new books will be used and the singing will continue for about two hours. Everybody who sings or likes singing is invited to be present.

WATERMELON TRADE IN FULL SWING IN COUNTY

Hundreds of trucks of watermelons have passed through Clanton during the past few days on their way to Birmingham. The Enterprise community and the vicinity of Cooper and Verbena seem to be producing a large crop of melons this year. From reports received here it seems that the prices on melons are good. It is related that melons on the Birmingham market are bringing from 15c to 40c each.

Also large numbers of peaches are being trucked away from Chilton County. It is related that in two days last week 150 trucks of peaches were counted to have passed one certain point above Thorsby on the Birmingham highway. Further in regard to the peaches it is reported that Mr. Charley Stroud, of the Enterprise community gave a basket of peaches to the Birmingham Post Tuesday morning all of which weighed about one pound each.

MULES GIVE PRESIDENT RELUCTANT COOPERATION

News comes from Jonesboro, Georgia, where the farmers are already retiring their cotton, that they are having trouble getting their mules to walk on the row. For self-respecing mules, cotton stalks might as well bear a sign; "Don't tread on me." No mule of any standing at all will deliberately "stomp" down a stalk of cotton. They have been trained for generations to walk in the middles and that a step in the wrong direction means a slap with the end of the lines. Farmers who are plowing up their cotton find that their mules want to follow their early training. The longer legged ones, it is related, have solved the problem by walking spraddle-legged. Somehow the mules can't understand why they should break all training precedents in order to please a man in far off Washington.

LARGE NUMBER OF MEN TO BE REEMPLOYED IN COUNTY

A large number of men are to be put to work by the R.F.C. during the first week in August is the announcement of the Relief Administration of Chilton County. About 800 R.F.C. men, most of whom were in destitute circumstances, have been cut out of work, due to the lack of funds, and these are to be reemployed in a short time.

Last week the R.F.C. operated 17 canning centers throughout the county, and about 4,000 cans were filled. Nine canning centers operated every day through the assistance of two field workers, Mrs. Barney Burnett and Miss Ruth Jones. Miss Pardue, county home demonstration agent is general supervisor over all canning centers.

It is related that the R.F.C. people are giving hearty response to this canning program. Most of these people have large quantities of vegetables to be preserved. Just in this connection, Miss Austin rehearses that nothing except beans, tomatoes and soup mixture is to be put up in R.F.C. cans.

The Hon. J. Lee Smith, mayor of Clanton, left Thusday morning for Mayo Brohters' Hospital at Rochester, Minnesota, where he expects to undergo treatment for rheumatism. It is believed that the mayor will be gone from two weeks to a month. While in that section of the country Mr. Smith expects to attend the World's Fair at Chicago.

Schools May Run Full Term Is Said

Supt. Little Sees Favorable Outlook For The County Schools Next Year

County Superintendent of Education Luther E. Little announces that indications are favorable for a full term school next year. Mr. Little, in this connection, relates that a half term program has already been set up for all Chilton schools, the financing of which will be altogether from local funds. This half of the program that has been set up is certain, and, due to the outcome of the recent election, state aid for the other half term is probable.

A conference of all county and city superintendents of education is to be held in Montgomery August 22 and 23 for the purpose of mapping out the school program for next year. By then it will be known definitely what disposal is to be made of the outstanding warrants and what state appropriations may be anticipated for next year. After this meeting is held it can probably be definitely announced just how much school can be expected next year.

BEGIN DELIVERING PERMITS

Mr. Stapp announces that field inspection of cotton is to be completed this week. Further it is announced that the field inspectors will begin delivering permits to retire cotton today. All old contracts are to be made final this week. The time for the making of new contracts has already expired.

HAD GOOD SCHOOL AT NOTASULGA

Herbert W. Lowery returned Tuesday morning from Notasulga, where he had been for 20 days teaching a singing school at Antioch church, two miles from that town. Mr. Lowery stated that it was one of the most successful schools he had ever engaged in. Monday of this week was the closing day, when an all-day rally was enjoyed by the students, patrons and friends of the school. Mr. Lowery stated that the day went off fine.

Prof. Lowery left Wednesday morning for Shelby County, where he will engage in a 20 days school at Mt. Era, near Columbiana. At the close of this school he takes up another at Camp Branch in that vicinity. The latter will run 20 days also.

LOST MONEY RETURNED

An adv., was carried in this paper two weeks ago by Miss Pearl Vinson stating that she had lost a $5 bill in Clanton on Saturday, July 8. Many laughed at the idea of anyone returning money, but the money was found and returned. Mrs. Fate Elison, who lives about a mile north of Clanton, on the Birmingham highway, found the money and showed her honesty by notifying Miss Vinson as soon as she learned that she was the rightful owner. It pays to advertise for all lost articles.

WENDELL HAYES INJURED BY FALLING TREE

Wendell Hayes, son of Bill Hayes of Thorsby, was injured by a falling tree Friday about 4 p.m., near Thorsby. Wendell was brought to the hospital in Clanton by Spigener's ambulance. At the hospital his condition was not considered serious, and he was carried home Saturday.

At the time of the accident Wendell was helping cut wood down on the bank of Yellow Leaf Creek about two miles east of Thorsby. He helped saw down a tree which lodged and while he was attempting to dislodge it the tree fell across his back and shoulder. No bones were broken.

JUST HAD TO SEE A NEW PYLMOUTH CAR

W. M. Polk, of Polk Brothers Motor Co., local distributors for Chrysler and Plymouth cars, relates an interesting bit of news regarding their showing last Saturday.

Mr. Polk says that someone came to their place of business, evidently after they had closed Saturday night some time, to get a squint of the new Plymouth on display. Finding the place closed and being determined to see the new car, the anxious would-be spectator carefully took a pane out of a side window, stood it down on the floor, unlocked and raised the window. After he had entered and, supposedly, given the new car the once-over, he went back out the same way and pulled down the window behind him. But he did not put the pane back. It was left leaning against the wall. That was the only sign left.

MASK BALL AT BILLINGSLEY

There will be a mask ball at Billingsley Saturday, July 29th. Everybody invited. Admission 20c.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

FARM WEEK AT WORLD'S FAIR

Henry a Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, will speak to the farmers of America at A Century of Progress Exposition on Friday, August 18, when they are assembled here for Farm Week at the World's Fair, it was announced today. Mr. Wallace will arrive on Thursday, August 17th and spend some time in consultation with their leaders before the scheduled address.

He accepted the invitation yesterday of Mr. Clifford Gergory, editor and publisher of the Prarie Farmer, and Mr. Edward O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, who arranged for Farm Week with officials of the Exposition. The week opens Sunday, August 13, and ends August 19.

Mr. Wallace did not announce what his subject for the day would be but it is expected that he will discuss the recently passed legislation at Washington which made him veritable dictator of the destinies of the American farmer.

An invitation has also been extended to Henry Morganthau, Jr., to speak on farm credits, and a delegation will leave Chicago shortly for Washington to ask Mrs. F. D. Roosevelt to come to Chicago and speak on Tuesday, August 15, Farm Women's Day.

A special meeting of railroad passenger agents of all the lines into Chicago was called for noon at the Hotel La Salle today for the purpose of making plans for the heavy influx of railroad traffic during this week. Special low rate and all expense tours will be announced.

For the six days of this week, which has been set aside to honor the progress of the farmer in the past hundred years every facility of the Fair will be directed to the special purpose of informing and entertaining the farm people. Plans are now being made for educational tours with those features of the Fair of primary interest to those engaged in the advancement of agricultural life.

Eeach of the great buildings on the Fair grounds, including the Agricultural, Dairy, Electrical, Science, Religious, Horticultural, Social Science, etc., are developing programs for Farm Week at the Fair which will prove of great value to rural visitors.

The Exposition is now making arrangements through its housing bureau to prepare approved lists of inexpensive eating and living quarters so that farmers can make the trip to Chicago with economy.

THE HONEYBEE

Since the recent meeting of the beekeepers of Chilton County in the apiary of Mr. G. G. Williams, I find here and there an increased interest in beekeeping. I have met with several inquiries as to the best methods for the beginner in beekeeping, who desires to combine this phase of agriculture with his or her occupation, that is, beekeeping for pleasure and profit.

Now that I may reach more of my friends contemplating an adventure into beekeeping that I would be able to reach by personal conversation, I beg leave of our county papers for space through which I may speak to all interested in the subject. Having engaged in beekeeping for over twenty-five years, perhaps I may be able to offer a bit of safe counsel in this respect.

For a beginner, usualy his first problem is deciding upon the particular kind of honeybee best adapted to his demands. There are several races of the honeybee with varying characteristics of habit as well as physical appearance. Both of these are of importance to any beekeeper. Some of the races are, namely, the "Black" or German bee, the Carolinan, the Caucasian, the Cyprian and the Italian. These are the races commonly found in the different sections of the United States, yet there are other races to be found in European and Asiatic countries. Main distinction in all lying chiefly in their habits rather than appearance.

Let us now discuss the principal habits of those named. The German or the "little black bee" found only among few beekeepers. This bee is smaller than the other races, less vigirous and certainly more vicious than all except the Cyprian. Though they are good honeygatherers, they have proved unsatisfactory for the above reasons. Instead of retreating to the innermost parts of the hive like the Italian, Caucisians and Carolians, when the hive is opened, they at once become confused and offer fight.

The Caucasian bee is less dark than the Carolian although about the same size. The outstanding quality of this bee is that of gentleness—surpassing all in this respect. They have not equaled the other for honeygathering, yet proving themselves worse for propolizing or gumming up the frames of the hives.

The Cyprian is practicaly discarded by beemen in this country because of their extreme viciousness.

Now for the Italian. This is no doubt the most popular race of bees on the market. There are two distinct classes of this bee, though the distinction is only in appearance. There is a "three banded" and a "golden" Italian bee. This bee has the combined better qualities of all other race of bees, can better adapt themselves to any climate or honey plants. This race of bee is exceeded in gentleness only by the Caucasian; is more prolific and far less propolizers. I have personally experimented with each of the races of bees named, therefore, I heartily commend the Italian to all beekeepers and would-be beemen.—Walter W. Johnson, Jemison, Ala.

Give the cows the run of the pasture at night and see that the salt and water supply is amply provided.

Sending the poor cows to the butcher this month will reduce the feed cost per 100 pounds of milk produced by the better cows in the herd.

It is false economy not to feed grain to good cows on pasture; also to keep poor cows on grass that should be available for good cows.

Many pastures are going to need opportunity to recuperate this month. If possible divide the pasture so as to rotate the grazing.

COWPEAS BEST CROP TO REPLACE COTTON

Auburn, Ala., July 25.—In naming feed crops to plant where cotton is removed from production, director M. J. Funchess of the experiment station of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, placed cowpeas at the top of the list. His experimental work reveals that cowpeas at this season bring better results than other crops planted this late.

Corn, he said is very uncertain, if planted in the middle of July. It will be silking and tasseling about in September when dry weather usually prevails over Alabama. Insect damage, too, must be considered. However, many farmers should plant corn and take a chance, Prof. Funchess added.

Sudan grass may be planted on good land. It should not be planted this late on poor land.

Dr. L. N. Duncan, extension director, said that no cotton should be plowed up until the farmer's contract with the government is approved. It is being suggested that farmers who have not done so, plant feed crops between rows of cotton which they intend to remove from cultivation.

The cotton acreage reduction program was a success in Alabama and plows are now active removing cotton from production on about 850,000 acres. This will reduce state production by about 300,000 bales. Other southern states did as well and the total slash in production is expected to reach 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 bales.

4-H CLUB NEWS

At the county-wide picnic the other day I said the 4-H club camp would be held July 27, 28 and 29, but Mr. Stapp being busy with the cotton acreage reduction, we cannot have the camp until some time in August, and we leave for Chicago, August 7, so it will probably be the last of August before we can have the camp. All the boys who read this, tell the others about it, because we want as many as possible to go with us to the World's Fair. Either F. F. A. or 4-H Club boys can go. If you think you can go, write to me, Maplesville, Ala., or see Mr. Stapp within the next week.—Clifford M. Manning, 4-H Club President.

EXPLAINS ABOUT PLOWING UP COTTON

Due to the rumor that Mr. W. Z. Hodges refused to plow up his cotton, I, the undersigned, being a tenant on his land, do hereby announce that I and not he was the one to refuse to plow up the cotton, and hereby take full responsibility.

REUBIN S. EASTERLING.

BRIEF RURAL NOTES

Cowpeas is said to be the best feed to plant on land taken out of production. Auburn experimental work reveals that cowpeas planted during this season bring better results than other crops planted this late.

"It is better to get nitrogen from the air by planting in the fall seeds of winter legumes than to buy it in bags in the spring," said Joe Webster, leading farmer of Lee County.

Farmer's Week is to be held this year at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, August 29, 30, 31. A program of instruction, recreation and inspiration is being arranged.

UPAS TREE EXONERATED

Montgomery, Ala., July 25. — The weird stories of the deadly influence of the upas tree of the Indo-Maylayan region are greatly exaggerated, according to Colonel Page S. Bunker, state forester. Local traditions and the tales of travelers credit this tree with exercising baleful effects in extraordinary ways. It was claimed that travelers resting beneath its shade were killed by poisonous emanations from the branches and leaves. The surroundings were said to be reduced to a desert character on account of sinister exhalations from the tree.

All of these stories have been found by scientists to possess but very slight foundation. The latex of the trees possesses poisonous properties as does that of many other plants, but nothing like the lethal characteristics ascribed to the tree by popular fancits really exists in fact. The upas tree belongs to the Mulberry family and is one of the six species belonging to the genus antitris.

HE GROWS LEGUMES BUYS NO NITROGEN

Auburn, Ala., July 25.—"I don't expect to buy any nitrogen fertilizer next spring except a little for my garden and truck crops." This statement was made by Joe Webster a strong advocate of winter legumes who lives three miles from here and who during the past 11 years has transferred a gullied, washed, run-down, delapidated farm into one of the best farms in Lee County.

Mr. Webster has become known as "the best farmer in Lee County." He makes no such claim for himself but attributes much of his success to hairy vetch and Austrian peas. He said, however, that a complete system of good terraces is the foundation of his improvement. Prior to terracing he did lots of plowing, scooping and dragging to fill gullies, some of which were deep enough to hide an automobile.

"I shall buy phosphate and potash," he said, "but no nitrogen. Legumes will supply all the nitrogen needed for field crops, plus humus for extra measure."

Mr. Webster moved to his present location from Tallapoosa County. He planted hairy vetch the next year. He increased his planting until the fall of 1932 when he planted 45 to 55 acres in cultivation. This fall he hopes to plant all of the 55 acres. This is the reason he expects to buy no nitrogen next spring.

His corn yield last year after legumes averaged 35 bushels an acre plus a ton of velvet beans in the hull. His four-year average cotton yield was a bale per acre.

"It is better to get nitrogen from the air by planting in the fall, seeds of winter legumes than to buy it in bags in the spring," he said.

ODA WILKINS DIED

Oda Wilkins, age 16, died at her home near Billingsley July 11, 1933, at 10 o'clcok, following a brief illness. Her death came as a great shock to her many friends throughout the community. She had been in declining health all the summer, but her condition was not known to be so serious until Monday night before she died. She was taken worse and lived only a short while.

Oda has a host of friends and loved ones to share their sympathey with the bereaved family, because she was loved and admired by all who knew her. She has been a faithful member of the Indian Grave B. Y. P. U. for several years and will be greatly missed in her community. She was always willing and ready to do what she could for the Lord.

The remains of this lovely girl were laid to rest in the Indian Grave cemetery Wednesday afternoon with Rev. A. S. Bentley officiating and Martin & Sons in charge, leaving a host of friends and relatives to mourn her demise.

Mrs. L. E. Diefenderfer and Mrs. A. S. Prince made a recent visit to friends in Alexander City. Miss Helen Diefenderfer returned with them after a short stay with Miss Ruth Prince of that place.

ROTATION OF CROPS

In any section newly brought under cultivation there is a tendency for farmers to grow one crop largely to the exclusion of all others. This crop is the one which is adapted to transportation facilities, climatic condition, or other pecularities of the section. It is usually the highest value crop that can be grown extensively and its growth continues until the profitableness of the crop is less pronounced, perhaps because of low yields. In some sections fertility depletion or the disturbed balance of plant nutrients is the factor influencing the change; diseases and insects also are common factors. Weeds, soil erosion and physical conditions may also make a change of crop desirable.

An example of this change is the cycle of flax, wheat and corn, and their general cropping in sections of the corn belt in which each crop has had its turn as the major crop grown.

Meitz reports that both on soils used for centuries and on relatively new soils, the annual average yields of the different crops does not show a gradual decline as many would suppose, but rather a gradual increase. He also states that while virgin soils rapidly decline in yielding ability for a time they soon reach a stationary state at a rather low yield level and that then with the use of better cultural methods, the rotation of crops, the use of crop master, manures and commercial fertilizers, the average yields are gradually increased. The need of a change from the one-crop system was formerly supposed to be due to waste products thrown off into the soil by the roots of growing plants. These waste products were supposedly injurious only to the crops by which they were produced, so that a change of crops was necessary in order to avoid the harmful effects of this "sewage," while the benefits which result from a rotation of crops have been definitely shown by many experiments continued through a series of years, the theory of crop wastes is no longer generally held.

Next week's topic will be, "Birds as an aid to agriculture."

GAME AND FISH NEWS

Montgomery, Ala., July 25. — Alabama's success in buliding up turkey hunting through the "gobbler law" has drawn the commendation of conservationists throughout the nation and other states are being urged to adopt similar laws.

This state was one of the first to enact a gobbler law, which prohibits the killing of turkey hens and limits the hunting of gobblers to the month of December and from March 1 to April 10. The statute is as old as the game and fisheries department itself and was enacted in 1907 at a time when the wild turkey was threatened with extinction in the state.

Alabama has a companion law prohibiting the shooting of doe deer and limiting the hunting of bucks to the months of November and December. Its experiment with both deer and turkeys in the Alabama national forest has demonstrated the value of the statutes. In 1926 the state planted 105 deer, including 63 does, and 24 turkeys in the forest and it is estimated there are at least 1,200 deer and 2,500 turkeys in that area now.

The American Game Association is one of the strongest advocates of Alabama's gobbler law and Robert B. Vale, Philadelphia author, is devoting a chapter in his new book on "Small Game Hunting" to the successful enforcement of the law in this state. He is using Alabama wild turkeys to illustrate his work and has requested Commissioner I. T. Quinn to review it before sending it to the publisher.

IN ANSWER TO A LADY'S LETTER

A lady writes to say that she does not understand why an 8-cylinder car does not cost more to run than a car with fewer cylinders. She refers to my statement that our Ford V-8 develops more power on a gallon of gas than any car we have made.

The use of 8-cylinders does not mean the addition of two or four extra fuel consumers. It is not, for example, a 4-cylinder engine multiplied by two. Our 8-cylinder engine takes the fuel supply of an ordinary 4-cylinder engine and divides it eight ways. And why?

By reducing four larger explosions into eight smaller ones, we get engine smoothness and quietness. Eight-cylinders indicate the way the gas is used, not the amount. It is just the difference between going upstairs in four long jumps or in eight ordinary steps.

Two things use up gas—bad engine design and useless car weight. Besides having an engine that gets a high percentage of power out of the fuel, the Ford V-8 has a light, strong body and chassis so that no power is wasted in moving excess weight.

The only extravagance about the new Ford V-8 engine is in the building of it. The extravagance is ours—the economy is yours.

The whole question of car economy needs clearing up. An economical car gives economy all round. Price, operation, upkeep, all play their part. If what you save on gas you lose elsewhere, that is not economy.

As to upkeep, our dealers say that in recent years the improved quality of Ford cars has cut down their repair business 50 per cent.

As to price with quality,—judge for yourself.

As to economy, here is the record of a stock car three weeks out of shop in Oklahoma:

On a run of 10,054 miles at the rate of 1,000 miles a day—the Ford V-8 gave 18.8 miles per gallon of gas. Not a drop of water was added to the radiator. The oil was changed once in 1,000 miles.

That should answer a lot of questions.

SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Lesson for July 30

GIDEON

LESSON TEXT—Judges 7:1-23.
GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? the Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid? Psalm 27:1.
PRIMARY TOPIC — God Helping Gideon.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Winning Without Swords.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Gideon and the Three Hundred.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Winning With a Few.

After forty years of freedom, Israel again passes under the cruel yoke of bondage at the hand of the Midianites. So grievous was their affliction that they hid in dens, caves, and strongholds (Judges 6:2). In their distress they cried unto the Lord and He sent deliverance. This deliverance was effected through Gideon. The angel of the Lord appeared to him while at the post of duty. Gideon's hesitancy, when called, was due to modesty and caution, and not to unbelief. Before going forward he wished to be doubly sure (Judges 6:36-40). When once he was convinced of duty he was not only courageous, but enthusiastic.

I. The Opposing Army of the Midianites (v. 1).

On that eventful day, Gideon and his army arose early and encamped by the spring of Harod. Over against them was the Midianite host in battle array. Gideon's army was insignificant by comparison with the Midianites.

II. The Sifting of Gideon's Army (vv. 2-8).

At Gideon's call, 32,000 men responded ready for the struggle. This seemed a small army to go against the Midianite army of 135,000 strong (Judges 8:10), but God said this was too many lest they be led to self-confidence and boasting. All that were faint-hearted were allowed to go back, leaving only 10,000. There were 22,000 cowards in that group of men and, worst of all, they were not ashamed to confess it. This was still too many. When God was through with his sifting process only 300 remained. The 10,000 were brave men but not of the proper quality and fitness. Those who "lapped" the water showed alertness and caution. If a similar test were made today in our churches and Sunday Schools, would the percentage stand any higher?

III. Encouragements Given to Gideon (vv. 9-15).

God bade Gideon go down to the Midianite camp where he would hear something that would cheer his heart and strengthen his hands. When Gideon came near he heard a man telling a dream which was that of a barley cake tumbling into the camp and smiting it. He also heard the interpretation given to the dream which made Gideon to be the cake. This greatly cheered his heart and strengthened him for his work, and caused his heart to burst forth in worshipful praise to God. A barley cake is a very insignificant thing, a very cheap affair in itself, but with the hand of God upon it, it would be successful to spread consternation among the Midianites and even bring destruction upon their armies.

IV. Gideon's Victory (vv. 16-23).

His army was very insignificant and his weapons worthless. His attack was most unique. The whole matter was of faith (Heb. 11:32). The ground of his faith was God's Word and the token which he had given. God does not ask his servants to go forward without good ground upon which to rest their faith. Gideon formed his 300 men into three companies and provided each man with a trumpet and with a lamp concealed in a pitcher. Thus armed, they surrounded the camp of the Midianites. They were all instructed to keep their eyes on Gideon, their leader, and imitate him. Believers today are to keep their eyes on Christ, their Leader, and ever to do as he does. At the proper moment they blew their trumpets and broke their pitchers, giving an opportunity for their lights to shine out. This awful crash of breaking pitchers, following the sound of the trumpets accompanied by the shout, "The sword of the Lord, and of Gideon," threw the Midianites into a panic, causing them to fight among themselves. Thus 120,000 were slain, leaving but 15,000 of that mighty army (Judges 8:10).

In applying the teaching of this lesson to our age, we can think of the sounding of the trumpets as representing prayer or calling upon God; the torches as the light of the gospel; the pitchers, our human nature. Only as the pitchers were broken to allow the light to shine forth and as the trumpet of prayer sounds loud and long, can victory be expected.

Must Have First Place

God will put up with a great many things in the human heart, but there is one thing that he will not put up with in it—a second place. He who offers God a second place, offers him no place.—Ruskin.

Energizing Power

The world's advance is due only to the hopes, the plans, the progress, and the work of living men and women who have tasted of the waters of life for themselves.

Mr. Chester Wingard returned from C.M.T.C Camp Friday.

BUCK CREEK 13—CLANTON 0

The crack Buck Creek team from Siluria came to Clanton Wednesday afternoon and slaughtered the locals 13 to 0.

The Buck Creek outfit is one of the best amateur teams in Alabama. Clanton held them fairly well for six innings, with Logan on the mound, but in the seventh M. Dennis took up the pitching duties and gave up two bases and three hits, the last of which was Sheppard's first homer. He hit another off Nivens in the ninth.

Clanton got only four singles, one of these a scratch affair.

SELMA AND CLANTON SPLIT

Clanton and Selma split a doube header at Selma Sunday afternoon. Clanton took the first game 6 to 3 behind the effective hurling of Watkins. The second game, which Logan hurled went to Selma. Logan was touched for 12 hits which was enough to overcome a five run lead Clanton piled up early in the game. Baker led his mates at bat with 5 out of 7 times up. One triple and one double. The committee composed of Mr. Sanders, Mr. Jesse Driver and Mr. Edgar Barnett arranged the program for the evening. One song was sung by the chairman and the directors were as follows: Jessie Driver, Andrew Blow, Fonzie Cleckler, A. H. Glasscock, W. G. Culp, Miss Lula Cleckler, Akins Collins, W. L. Sanders, Floyd Little, Marvin Campbell, E. L. Glasscock, Lillie Mae Weldon and Mr. Brasher Northcutt.

Everybody sure did enjoy the Oak Grove quartet in the morning. We were sorry they had to leave in the afternoon. We want to thank everybody that helped in anyway and ask you to come back to Pleasant Hill any time and help us out again.

Grant Will Teach At Liberty Hill

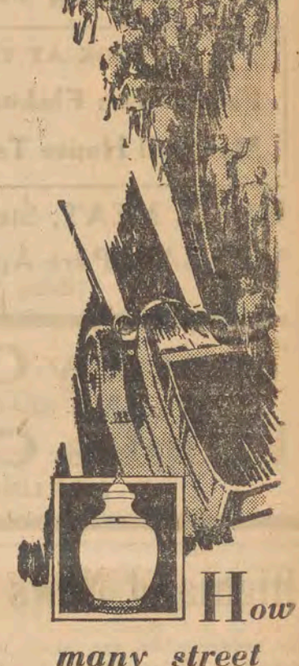
Singing School Will Begin On Monday, July 31st, For Eighteen Days

The Union-Banner has been authorized to announce that Prof L. T. Grant will begin a singing school at Liberty Hill, three miles west of Clanton, on Monday July 31st. Quite a number have signed up to attend and it is expected that during the next two weeks several more will be enrolled.

Prof. Grant has been teaching music in the county for a number of years—probably longer than anyone who is now active in the profession. His knowledge of music and his ripe experience qualify him to render the best of work in the singing school. He goes at it strictly on a business basis the first day, and the same system prevails throughout the school. Mr. Grant is now engaged in a school at Liberty church in Autauga county.

Anyone interested in learning more of the school at Liberty Hill may see either Mr. Grant, Mr. D. T. Martin or Mr. Kermit Lowery, both the latter of Liberty Hill community.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Fiquett, Miss Gertie Fiquett, Miss Ethel Cagle and Mrs. Jean Wyatt are in Chicago this week attending the Century of Progress World's Fair.



How many street lamps will one LIFE pay for?

NO MATTER how careful the motorist, how cautious the pedestrian, accidents are bound to happen on poorly lighted streets. For even the most careful motorist, night driving is a risk — made doubly dangerous when darkness takes the wheel down shadowy, improperly lighted streets. ¶ That is why well-lighted thoroughfares repay their cost many times over in prevention of many avoidable traffic accidents. One less accident, one less fatality alone, is surely worth the price of proper street lighting. ¶ White ways are safe ways. Ally yourself with the movement for more white way lighting in your city and thus ally yourself with a movement for SAFETY FIRST!

Alabama Press Association Met In Druid City Last Week End

University, Ala., July 25.—Jesse B. Adams of the Ozark Southern Star was elected president of the Alabama Press Association at the final session at University of Alabama Friday afternoon. He succeeds F. G. Stephens, editor of the Southern Democrat, Oneonta.

Other officers named were Bruce Shelton, publisher, Tuscaloosa News, vice president; E. Cody Hall, Alexander City Outlook, secretary-treasurer.

Rowe Greer, Sylacauga News, was named convention secretary; J. W. Norwood, Cullman Tribune, historian; Mrs. Scottie McKenzie Frazier, poetess; Howard C. Smith, Woman's College, reporter.

The association voted to postpone affiliation with any printers association until a later date. Action will be taken later.

Resolutions were passed by the association pledging this organization "to work with renewed zeal for the advancement of our schools and our citizens through our newspapers, realizing that education must be sold to the public."

Resolutions expressing appreciation to the president of the university and his faculty; the Tuscaloosa News; the Tuscaloosa Chamber of Commerce; the citizens of Tuscaloosa; and the Gulf States Paper Corporation, were also passed.

The following resolution was also given approval.

"Our president, Forney J. Stephens, has extended every energy to extend the influence and scope of the press of Alabama during his presidency to the extent of visiting 68 newspapers in Alabama and in his survey ascertaining how best to aid them in their problems and to advance the welfare of Alabama; also in promoting a sales day for merchants in order to hasten the return of prosperity in Alabama; and whereas, the beginning of president Stephens's work last fall was coincident with the beginning of and return of a gradual growth of prosperity to our state and country, be it resolved, that, we praise him for his far-sighted vision in timing his effort to begin at the same time as a slow gradual return to business began and to endeavor in so many ways to aid the press of Alabama, and lastly, that our congratulations and thanks be extended to him for his vision, energy, and zeal in working for the advancement of our newspapers."

The annual association banquet was held Friday evening. Speakers included W. B. Oliver, representative from Alabama, who reviewed legislation passed since the inauguration of president Roosevelt; Judge W. W. Brandon of Tuscaloosa; and Mrs. Scottie McKenzie Frazier of Dothan.

In an address Friday J. F. Rothermel of the Birmingham News stated that courses in journalism in colleges are designed to train intelligent readers of newspapers as well as good writers for newspapers. He said that these courses have not been demanded by newspapers but by students who desire to become journalists.

Mrs. Edith Langdale Stallings, national extension secretary of Alpha Xi Delta sorority has been appointchaperone for the chapter of that sorority at the University of Alabama, Dean Agnes Ellen Harries announces. Mrs. Stallings is now in England, and will come to the University in September.

Mrs. Stallings was employed by the United States Army as chief of the dietetic department, stationed at Fitzsimmons General Hospital at Denver. She is a graduate of Sanborn Seminary of Kingston, N. H. and the University of New Hampshire. She is a graduate dietitian of Johns Hopkins also.

She holds membership in the American Association of University Women; the D. A. R., Colonial Dames, Phi Kappa Phi. She is affiliated with the Episcopal church.

If we are to ever realize a wisely conceived and economically administered system of public education in Alabama, we must depend upon the press for its promotion and support, Dr. A. F. Harman, state superintendent of education, told members of the Alabama Press Association in session at University of Alabama Friday morning.

"I come to you to impress upon you as forcibly as I can your opportunity for presenting educational news of the day to your readers, for informing and molding public opinion with reference to education, and for furnishing that check upon government with refence to education which no constitution has been able to provide.

"In order that education at public expense as an essential of government may be wisely and economically administered and supervised, the electorate must be intelligently informed and the constituted authorities must act intelligently, honestly, and courageously for the common good of all the people of the state."

Dr. Harman stated that we should cease berating the politician and belittling the expert. "The politician and the expert may be evils; but like the automobile, telephone, etc., they are necessary evils."

Dr. Harman described recent economies effected by the state department of education, and told of its operation. "I have no ulterior motive in expressing the opinion that the state department of education is not overstaffed and that the people of he state can well afford to trust to the too much belittled experts of that department for friendly, advisory, professional assistance in the educational affairs of the state.

"Col. Ayres in his schorlary and eloquent address to the Alabama Education Association is skeptical that we are able to maintain free public education in Alabama. So accurate and brilliant a newspaper man should not have fallen into such an egregious error. Education at no level, elementary schools, high schools or institutions of higher learning, has ever been adequate or free in Alabama . . . Education free of tuition and incidental fees has on more than one occasion found a prominent place in the platforms of persons aspiring to public office, but the realization of such a dream, I fear, is afar off.

"I am not one of those who believes that there is any particular virtue or excellence of leadership in rural origin. Indeed, the best statistical information that I have been able to obtain proves quite the contrary . . . Urban America has produced more than its share of leaders in the various fields of human endeavor. However that may be, we stand here and count by the thousands the names of sons and daughters of the poor and humble of free America who have taken more than an honorable place in the life of the nation and who justify by their very existence the investment of every dollar ever placed in them by way of public education. God be praised for the country that opens the doors of opportunity by way of public education to the poor, humble and obscure."

Dr. Harman stated that he does not subscribe to the theory that admission to institutions of higher learning shall be by some tests. Tests, he said, are not an index to potential leadership.

Declaring that Alabamians spend a million dollars per year educating their children out of the state, Dr. Harman urged that Alabama provide institutions of learning in our state for the education of our own youth and keep our money as far as may be at home.

Turning to the legislature, Dr. Harman said that much of the advancement in public education has been destroyed by the local legislation route, by legislators "hell bent" on sharpening their own political axes or to destroy their political enemies. "I do not believe that any statute or local application should become law until submitted to the people affected, to be approved by them at the ballot box."

The speaker recommended a state superintendent of education selected by a state board of education to serve at the pleasure of the board on the basis of qualification and without regard to residence. He should occupy a position of rank in every way equal to the president of any institution of learning . . . I do not agree with Col. Ayres that we need a dictator or super-manager of education in Alabama. Intelligence, an informed public mind, supplemented by honesty and courage, is the way out of our present entanglement."

President George H. Denny of the University in his address of welcome to the visiting newspapermen compared the work of the college with that of the newspaper. He said that both are alike, in forming public opinion and ascertaining the facts.

"In evoking a huge conception of civic resopnsibilities to the state and nation, the newspaper informs the masses, the colleges train the leaders. The fundamental duty of the college is precisely the same as that of the newspaper except that the former approaches the problem in a different way.

"The newspapers are seeking to hasten economic development with publicity. We, of the colleges are furnishing the men in science, technology, etc., to direct and organize our industrial future. We invest the commercial spirit with a social philosophy which tempers it so it will not run away with us as it did in 1929."

Speaking on needed reforms in the government of Alabama, Earl M. McGowan of Butler County, member of the legislature, stated that the people of Alabama should effect basic changes in their state government as soon as possible. He said that our tax system needs to be overhauled on a scientific basis and that there is also a great need of a legislative reference bureau with the duties of codifying all existing laws and drafting new legislation.

Forney E. Stephens of Oneonta, president of the association presided. He introduced W. E. W. Yerby of the Greensboro Watchman who spoke in behalf of closer cooperation between the newspapers and education. General J. B. Stanley of Greenville, dean of Alabama newspapermen, spoke briefly to "his boys." General Stanley has the best record for continuous service in the United States, having been engaged in newspaper work for 68 years. President Stephens appointed a resolution committee composed of Jesse B. Adams of the Ozark; M. S. Hansborough of the Franklin Times; and T. R. Williams of the Talladega Daily Home.

Following the Thursday afternoon session, the members of the Fourth Estate were escorted to the Gulf States Paper Corporation's plant for an inspection, after which they made a boat trip up the Black Warrior river to Lock 14 where a chicken barbecue was served.

Friday morning J. F. Rothermel of the Birmingham News spoke on "The Teaching of Journalism in Colleges," and in the afternoon V. C. Garriott of Nashville, secretary of Southern Master Printers Federation, discussed the National Recovery Act and the Printer.

Congressman W. B. Oliver of the Sixth Alabama District and former Governor W. W. Brandon of Alabama spoke at the annual banquet Friday evening.

GRAGG THANKS VOTERS

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your paper to thank the voters of Chilton County for the pleasing vote cast for me in the recent election.

It is very gratifying to one to receive a respectable majority like this when one knows his opponent to be one of the best and most respected citizens of the county.

However, I am not egotistical over this, because I realize that, in a great measure, it was the priciple involved, and not the man, that resulted in the outcome of our recent electon in this county.

Again, I want to thank each and every voter who cast his ballot for me and say that, while we lost in the state, old Chilton stands out firmly for principle.—Yours truly, Dr. V. J. Gragg.

Miss Ruth Cobb is visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Cobb, of Longview.

Mrs. Mary Johnson, who is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Homer Webb, is on the sick list.

Central Singing Society

The Central Singing Society met at Friendship last Sunday afternoon and had an hour of good singing. Not many were present, supposedly because they were afraid their figure would be disfigured by the threatening summer showers. Baptists are not supposed to be afraid of water, but maybe they dislike to be sprinkled. It is hoped that our people will rally to our society and let's make it an interesting affair.

The next meeting of the society will be held at Chestnut Creek, Cooper, the first Sunday afternoon in August.

REVIVAL AT TEMPLE CHURCH

The revival campaign is growing by leaps and bounds at the Temple church, three miles east of Clanton. The evangelist spoke last Sunday evening to the largest congregation of the campaign on the subject of the "Devil's Incubator." It can be truthfully said that the speaker left nothing unsaid. The people leaned forward with eager ears to hear the word of God. Rev. Thurmond says he believes in America and the principle on which this great nation was founded, the word of God, and it is only by maintaining these principles and standards of righteousness that we can ever hope to keep from going to destruction as did Babylon and Greece and the Rome of old.

We have now within our own borders, incubators of society which are hatching out serpents which will sting us to death if we do not get rid of them. This is no time for cowardly compromise. This is no time for the preachers to stand in their pulpits and spiel off their steel ribbed metaphysical essays, sprinkled with rose water of theology, splitting theological hairs, while the very fires of hell are raging at us, but is the time to cry aloud and spare not. It is time for us to stop apologizing for the truth and take off our coats and fight. Rev. Thurmond attacked the modern theatre and said the movie playhouse of our day is one of the biggest agencies of the devil to undermine the work of the Lord, and the card tables and the modern dance is also wrecking and damning our nation.

These meetings will continue all this week and next Sunday evening at seven forty-five the evangelist has promised to preach a box sermon, and this promises to be one of the best sermons that will be delivered in this series of meetings.

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Wyatt attended the Alabama Press Association in Tuscaloosa last week end.

Miss Betty Peatrie of Russellville, Miss Frances Ordway of Birmingham and Miss Sarah Hollis of Mitchell Dam are guests of Miss Celia Gerald this week.

SOME PUZZLING QUESTIONS

On the one hand the administration is preparing to redistribute the income of the nation in ways that will, it is hoped, bring about a better adjustment of demand to supply and thus tend to increase productive activity. On the other hand, it is planning restrictions upon output as a method of effecting that redistribution. This novel experiment in nation wide price and production control suggests many puzzling questions. For instance, will the country benefit form introduction of an abnormally short working day designed to provide more jobs for the unemployed? Can we find a solution of our unemployment problem by "organizing for leisure," as some of our socialogists urge? Can we afford to withdraw millions of acres of land from cultivation for the sake of giving farmers a larger share of a physically diminished national income? If not, what disposition will ultimately be made of the lands which are leased by the government at public expense in order to cut down the amount of certain crops? Finally, can the country raise its living standards by redistributing the national income among producing groups, while simultaneously organizing to reduce the amount produced?

Higher prices can, perhaps, be secured and maintained by resort to such methods, and the glaring injustices of systems of uncontrolled inflation can at the same time be prevented; but the nation's permanent well-being can in the long run only be assured by combining equitable distribution of the income with adequate utilization of the land, labor and capital belonging to the people.—New York Journal of Commerce.

John Garner is quoted as saying that politically he is deaf, dumb and blind, which induces one of our mean Republican neighbors to reply: "Tell us something new."

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

An interesting theory of depression and recovery was presented recently at the University of Virginia by Edmund Platt, vice president of the Midland Marine Corporation of New York. Mr. Platt said that if "1932 had not been a presidential year, the recovery begun then might have continued without any serious interruption so that we might have been about where we are today."

Continuing, Mr. Platt said: "Personally I feel that the recovery beginning in 1932 would have continued, barring the election, if the Glass banking reform bill had been put upon the statue books before the adjournment of congress last summer, in the form in which it was reported from the senate banking currency committee in May."

Without going into the merits of the Glass bill it is interesting to speculate on whether or not the election did not halt the recovery which seemed to have set in about a year ago. It will be remembered that just before the Fourth of July the stock market hit its low for the depression. Business depression had been existent for three years. There was a slow recovery continuing until October when there was another relapse. Republican politicians like to recall the fact that the first sign of the relapse came with the Maine election in September, an election which plainly indicated that there was to be a change in the national administration, in November.

It is true that the stock market in New York halted its advance immediately after the Maine election and after some hesitation started falling again. This need not be taken to mean that there was any lack of confidence in Mr. Roosevelt. If it meant anything at all it indicated that with a change of administration in the offing, and a necessarily drifting policy from November to March, the recovery would have to be held in abeyance until the new administration was seated and its policies had developed. Whether or not there would have been continuous recovery after last July except for the intervention of the national campaign, is now purely a matter of speculation on the part of the politicians. Perhaps the time element in recovery from a depression is an important one. Nobody can tell when recovery comes, how much of it is due to governmental programs and how much to the healing agencies of father Time.

Certain it is that the recovery which was interrupted last September began again in March this year after the bank holiday. Whether it is sound and lasting remains to be seen. All Americans regardless of politics hope that it is. There is a general atmosphere of "going along with the president" in all parts of the country. The people are refraining from criticism to an extent unparalleled in the political history of the United States and are wishing the administration well. If there is failure and then harsh criticism it will not come until another campaign is upon us. The opposition party has pretty generally adopted a sportsmanlike attitude of giving Mr. Roosevelt his chance. There has been no setting up of a "poison gas squad" as was once done by Mr. Rascb and Mr. Michaelson early in the Hoover administration. The Republicans in congress during the special session just ended turned the tables on their Democrat colleagues in congress by giving the president at least 98 per cent support although practicaly the same Democrat members had knifed the Republican program in 1932 plenty.

FUTILITY OF CONFERENCES

Fourth of July was celebrated as usual this year. There is no news in that. There was the usual amount of Fourth of July oratory, but it can be said with great satisfaction that in many of the addresses made there was a note of nationalism which has been missing for several years. Before the World War, twisting the British Lion's tail, oratorially of course, was one of the favorite Fourth of July sports. The war brought an end to this, for the time being at least. But it did not bring an end to patriotism in spite of the efforts of many internationalists here and abroad. What we need now, however, is not twisting of the national emblem of any country, but a call for real fundamental Americanism.

This call could be heard this year in many of the Independence Day orations. One address worth mentioning was that of Bainbridge Colby, secretary of state in the cabinet of President Wilson, delivered at the Fourth of July conference in Chautauqua at New York. Mr. Colby took the opportunity to say something about the effectiveness of international conferences, of which he knows a great deal. He recalled the failure of these conferences in the post war years and added: "There is, I think, something fundamentally faulty in their conception. They do not guide events. They do not register the will even of individual nations, much less the current judgment of all nations.

"The question is taking form in many minds, not only in this country but elsewhere, whether mankind has not been too engrossed in the broad panorama of world events, to the sacrifice of obvious duties as well as opportunities that lie close at hand; whether, in other words, we have not been seeking too comprehensive a formula of recovery, ignoring the possibility that perhaps the best contribution a nation can make to world rehabilitation is to put its own house in order.

"Certainly the influences which emanate from a healthy, vigorous and self-sustaining people must be both curative and stimulating.

"A restored America would doubtless contribute more to revival of world trade than our sympathetic cooperation with other nations in the effort to standardize adversity and to distribute equally the burden of supporting a cosmopolitan economic system that gives many signs of tottering to its fall."

In pointing out the difference between the conference of allied nations during the World War and the conference held after the war, Mr. Colby said:

"The conferences between the allied nations which were held from time to time during the progress of the great war proved effective because there was agreement among all participants as to what was true.

"There was a complete realization of the common danger and a deep sense of united interest which made agreement easy as to what was expedient or necessary to do.

"The post war conferences between nations, bereft of the unison of policy and purpose which is a fundamental condition to successful action, have failed.

"Although the war-time impulse to seek agreement by conference has not exactly spent its force, the nations of the word have had a sorry experience in their succession of endeavors to forge a common program through this means."

Mr. Colby added interest to his address by citing an incident during the closing days of the Wilson administration when the armies of Soviet Russia were at the gates of Warsaw. Mr. Colby pointed out the situation to the president and suggested an international conference. But, he says, Mr. Wilson waved the proposal aside stating that he had had enough of conferences—that they spent their time in futile talk.

May we not yet learn from these experiences of Mr. Wilson.

A lesson in trade: "When you buy steel rails in England, England has the money and we have the rails; but when you buy steel rails in the United States, America has the money and America has the rails."

One reason the delegates to the Londan conference didn't adjourn is that they didn't want to leave that seventy-foot bar downstairs.

It is said that three-fourth of the world's surplus wheat is held in the United States. And it is doubtful whether raising the price of bread will help a great deal in reducing the surplus.

Reports from the gold bloc at the London economic conference remind us of the old line about "off again, on again, gone again Finnegan."

"I AM AN AMERICAN CITIZEN"

When Rome—the precuser of the Italy of today—was mistress of the world and her nation the mighteist of its time, it was the custom of every Roman citizen to carry upon his standard the three Latin words, Civis Romanus Sum, which means "I am a Roman Citizen," and woe indeed to the nation or race that would dare to desecrate the rights and privileges of Roman citizenship.

Ancient Rome has gone down into the night of time. Today the mightiest nation of the world is America. In the hearts of every one of us there pulsates the paraphrase of the Roman sentiment Civis Americanus Sum, "I am an American citizen"—which is the richest heritage that can be bequeathed to us and which we in turn can hand down to the generations that are to be. —Industry and Labor.

John and Jane

If you happen to be looking for Jesse Baker any time soon, and can't find him, more than apt he'll be at home. I went up by his place late Saturday afternoon, but he wasn't in; I kept on around Peckerwood Corner and there he was, all excited like, and, take it from me, he was teling the world. I made inquiry, and then he told me. John and Jane had arrived. John and Jane—these are the names Jess has bestowed upon his young twins, born Saturday. Yes, sir, twins—and Jess was tickled pink. He is the father of 10 children, now, and three of them are boys. But the first two boys died. When the new son arrived Saturday, Jess set sail immediately and made the round to tell all the neighbors, he was that proud. But when he returned, a daughter had arrived, too. After that, Jess stayed at home—he wasn't taking chances. Time was when we had a John Baker, and a John Baker, Jr. John (Grandpap) Baker died a few years ago, but now history repeats itself, and we have another John Baker and John Baker, Jr. You must know that the original John Baker (known all over Chilton County as "Grandpap" was at one time the one and only man in the county to cast a Republican vote. He became known as the "father of the Republican party in Chilton County," a title bestowed on him, in derision, by the Democrats, when he had the nerve to tell them he would live to see his party fill the offices of the county—but he lived to see it. Jess says if all Republicans will follow his lead we will be safe—he has done his part to make the County safe for the Republicans.

More Peaches

I think we started something, talking about Harmon Headley's peaches last week. Now everybody and his brother want to bring in one a little bigger than the last. And every now and then I hear of peaches weighing ever so much. But for the most part those big specimens were grown back in the dim and distant past—they never give a chance to SEE the big ones. However, Mr. Headley's fine ones are right there to show for themselves, and I have heard it said that the proof of the pudding is in the eating. We don't have to take anybody's word for Mr. Headley's peaches—they're proof within themselves. Another thing, where most growers have only one or two trees, which they can pamper, Mr. Headley has four acres—some 600 bushels or more. And if you ask me, that's some peaches. Monday morning bright and early, Mrs. Headley presented three nice specimens. Two of these weighed 17 ounces each, and the other 18 ounces—three pounds and five ounces for three peaches. Verily, "by their fruits ye shall know them."

Keeping In Line

And 'Bama went wet, just as we all expected it to do, but were hoping otherfise. No wonder though, with the weather man going wet too, and serving us a dripping wet day to do our voting in. But no joking, folks; Alabama was only following the popular trend. The hue and cry has gone out that the dry law is a failure; the opinion has fastened itself, when public opinion is once molded it takes time and an awful jolt to change it. Too, here in Alabama, we have a few "vote mills" which wait until the returns are in from all other parts of the state, and then they proceed to supply the needed punch to put their measures through, no matter what they may be. I suppose every state has that to contend with. These "mills" were in favor of repeal, and no matter what kind of vote the dry forces had polled, there would have been plenty to offset it. Just to prove that, wet leaders had forecast a victory by about 30,000 majority—it was just that. How could they guess so close? Maybe it was only a problem in addition, after all.

Saloons—or Dispensaries

While we're on this liquor question, let's get it over with, as we may have no occason to discuss it again soon. Of course, the Montgomery Advertiser had to be wet—we would all have cause to drop from heart failure if they ever happened to be on the right side of anything. But there is one thing the Advertiser says which is just a little hard to understand. According to an editorial, the Advertiser is "now and forever opposed to return of the open saloon." When I read that statement, I was a little surprised, and began to think that maybe "Grandma" had, for once, gone haywire, and happened to go right—just for one lonesome time. But no! In the very next line the editor says his paper favors government-controlled dispensaries. Now, I would like to have someone who knows, or even thinks he knows, tell us all what is the difference, so far as results are concerned, between a saloon and a dispensary. I can see no more difference than between "washing" and "bathing." The wets talk of a controled liquor traffic. That is the most absurd project imaginable, and the most impossible. Open liquor halls, with attempts to control the use of liquor, is much the same as touching fire to a powder house and then trying to control the explosion. It just can't be done with any degree of success. We have only to hark back to saloon days of old to prove that.

The White Sox Gallery

I drifted around by the show rooms of Hayes Chevrolet Company, the new Chevrolet dealers, a few days ago, and my attention was drawn to a big board hanging over in one corner of the room. That board carries a big bunch of pictures of different members of the Chicago White Sox of 1933. All the pictures are autographed, too. There are pictures of everybody from Lew Fonseca, the manager, down to the bat boy. And right spang in the center of the whole thing is a big picture of our own Jack Hayes. If you like baseball, and follow the different clubs pretty close, you will want to see that gallery. It's interesting. And if you drop around, Dick Hayes or Sie Foshee will more than apt have a few words to say about the new Chevrolet, before you get out. If you don't watch out you'll find yourself getting batting averages all mixed up with miles per gallon, or maybe it will be fast base running and stolen bases mixed up with free wheeling. But call around, any way. They'll make you feel welcome. And they'll explain everything to you, gallery, Chevrolet and all. —Man in the Moon.

$14 A WEEK MINIMUM WAGE MAY BECOME A MAXIMUM WAGE

A few days ago Professor Rexford Tugwell, one of the leading "collegiates" in the preparatitn and promotion of the "new deal", explained in a copyrighted article that the aim of fthe new administration is to "increase the buying power for all." The very next days news dispatches emanating from the national capital stated that the president would within a few days demand that a "minimum wage of $14 a week and a maximum of thirty-five hours" be put into effect in all industry.

Regarding the "buying power" which the chief advisor of Mr. Roosevelt referred to in his ballyhoo article of a few days ago, we wonder how he plans to increase it at a $14 a week wage, for while $14 a week is to be "minimum," it can also, with government approval as a fair "living wage," become the maximum." How many families in America can live on $14 a week and enjoy that much-herladed "increased buying power?" Even at the rate of 70 cents a day for food which Mrs. Roosevelt says a family can live on, it would require $21.70 a month and what about rent, clothes, etc?

Taking the printing trade as an example, in which industry printers now receive from $36 to $55 a week for forty-four hours labor, reduce this to thirty five hours at existing rates, and the printers will receive only $28.70 to 43.75. But put in a $14 a week minimum wage, and how many publishers will be able to continue to pay the wide difference between the government established (fair living wage) minimum and the present wage scale if the wages of all other industries are set up from the minimum wage scale figure of $14 per week? These are only a few of the many examples of what the new regimentators of labor and industry face.

With living costs advancing on one side because of the governments forced increase in the prices of wheat, cotton and other commodities, which react on food and clothing prices, how can the laborer live on a lower wage than he is receiving now? In most sections flour that was 59 cents for 24 pounds is 85 and 95 cents because of high wheat prices, and staple groceries have increased from 10 to 30 per cent, yet the consumer's wages are about to go down by government leadership in setting an arbitrary "minimum" wage.

A head-on collision appears to be inevitable between the "inflation" side and the "control" side of the administration. This was the fear that many had when congress jumped through at the crack of the whip to pass the extraordinary legislation asked.

Another angle that presents itself is that of the farmer. How can he work on a thirty-five hour week if he is to be part of the machinery, and we presume that he is? Most of the farmers work on a seventy-two to eighty hour week basis. Can they even care for their crops and livestock in five hours a day and then what about their field work? Arthur Brisbane, commenting on this angle, says that it requires a farmer about six hours a day to feed, harness and hitch his teams to get into the field and to unharness and put the teams up again.

On the railroad it requires all of one half hour for a freight crew to get out of a terminal yard and equally as long usually to check in at the other terminal. The running time from terminal to terminal averages possibly six to seven hours, barring delays. How then, without reducing the regular crews to irregular runs and loss of time, can that situation be solved and how many of those men will cherish a reduction to anywhere near the government proposed minimum? In fact, how many of them can begin to live on such a wage?

It appears that the "New Deal" is about to run into its most serious obstacles, that of putting wages and hours under government control. When that it attempted, Russia will squeal if she has her plan copyrighted. The plan has not worked without force in Soviet Russia. It has been practically enforced there at the point of the bayonet and it has reduced everyone in Russia to the lowest possible level, instead of raising the people to a higher level, as the chief members of the "Brain Trust", most of whom are pretty well acquainted with the Russian program promise it will in the United States. Russia is a "classless country" everyone having been reduced to the level of the lowest individual (except the dictators themselves) but the United States is a "class" government. There are varied types of skilled labor who demand more for their labor than the unskilled and that class will not not give up any more easily than the high financier.

Regimenting labor, farmers and industry in a land like Russia is one thing, but doing it in the United States is another. However, it may take experience to teach the present governmental theorists that fact.

RECOVERY BY COERCION

Discouraged by the slowness of many industries in submitting codes of competition the government has determined to use its weapon of last resort to compel one lagging industry to accept the new order of controled competition. Choosing carefully, the national recovery administration found the milk industry to be one that showed no sign of ability to agree upon a nation-wide code. Making that industry an example to the others, and doubtless hoping the phychological effect will be salutary, government will require all concerned handling milk to accept a code and will deny recalcitrant firms the right to continue in business.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

THE NEW CONTROL

The United States is soon to experience within its own borders the most far-reaching and sweeping political and industrial experiment in all the world, excepting Russia, IF all the powers being vested in President Roosevelt are to be exercised.

The word "if," of course, is the crux. The power to regulate or control all business, industry and agriculture, all production, employment hours, wages, distribution and prices may, it is true, never be exercised to a great degree. If and when it is the United States will have become a socialistic state.

Prediction as to what may or may not transpire, however, has come to be the most uncertain thing in the world. Nobody had an idea on March 4, last that any president of this country would ever presume or dare to ask congress for the dictatorial peace-time authority that Mr. Roosevelt has requested. Nobody had the slightest notion that any congress would ever consent to giving any president such unprecedented powers in so many fields (soon to cover nearly every field) as has been and is being vested in the present executive.

The new deal, so caled, or the Roosevelt plan, is known to be the brain child of the professional kitchen cabinet in Washington. The ranking members of the official cabinet are reported to have been little consulted and less heeded. The Democratic leaders of congress have pushed it through although they had no share in the authorship and although some of them are known to have their misgivings as to possible results.

The excuse for it all is the emergency occasioned by the economic depression. In principle it is the reverse of the traditional American government doctrine. The anti-trust laws of sacred memory are to be set aside and every industry, in effect, welded into a trust under the supervision of the government.

The scheme is so distinctly new and untried in the modern world that comparisons are not at hand. It is a step toward sovietism and distinctly revolutionary, but it is a peaceful revolution, voted by the existing order. Where it is headed and to what extent the authority machinery will be employed nobody knows, probably not president Roosevelt himself. So far it is legislative theory. The practical application is yet to come.

RUSSIAN TRADE FOR RECOGNITION?

The news is about again that the United States will recognize Russia. If such a thing happens it will be justified, naturally, upon business and economic grounds. And this, despite the fact that in almost every instance in the past in which one nation or another has succumbed to the lure of Russian trade it has soon regretted ever having been blinded by that consideration.

Russia still has some unsettled business with the United States—matters involving a repudiation of some debts, attempts at spreading political propaganda throughout this nation and threats to dump cheap products into the country. These things certainly ought to be cleared up before even an experimental recognition is made.

Assuming that Russian trade is desirable—and it possibly is—there is little or no reason to believe that it naturally follows official recognition. In Russia trade is a governmental function. It can be turned on or off as the government sees fit, and it can be directed here or there, and be used either as a means of bestowing a favor or inflicting punishment.

Some nations that have recognized Russia have found that immediately after recognition the trade was good, but within a few months, when Russian attention was turned to some other problem and her trade could be used with effect upon some other nation, it was withdrawn and concentrated in a quarter where it would be more effective.

If Russia is so anxious for American trade she will trade here, recognition or not.—Columbus Dispatch.

CARD OF THANKS

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow us a space in your paper to partly express our appreciation to the people during the sickness and death of our darling daughter, Oda.

Our home is so lonesome without Oda, but for the hope in the resurrection, we must say, "God's will be done," and for a short while, good bye to Oda, for we know that it won't be long until we meet again and we can hear Oda say "Daddy" again.

We are not able to put into words our heartfelt thanks to the people for all that they have done for us during sickness, death and after the funeral services. God saw fit to carry our precious child away, and he was gracious to us by giving the people sympathy and goodness to help us bear the load of grief, for without their help the load would have been heavier to bear.

God let us keep Oda for a little over sixteen years. She gave a world of sunshine in our home. We thank God for her Christian spirit. We grieve for her absence, but we feel that God carried her to a better home, where we can go to her when our race is run.

We want to thank all for the floral offering, and also Mr. J. Mell Martin & Sons, Dr. Downs and Dr. Hayes for their kindness. Our darling has gone on before us, and is beckoning us to follow to a land where we all can join in that great choir to sing God's praises throughout eternity.

Oda was laid to rest in Indian Grave cemetery July 12, 1933. May God bless each reader.—R. D. Wilkins and family.

BOB JONES

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

When family altars are down, when prayer meetings are deserted, when churches are filed with empty pews on Sunday, when there is no line of demarcation between the church and the world, there is nothing that will save us but a revival of the old time religion.

Years ago I was conducting an evangelistic campaign in El Paso, Texas. A minister friend of mine met a Jewish merchant on the train. The merchant said to the minister, "Why the revival? Why Bob Jones? Why the big tabernacle? We have our own preachers." The minister replied, "You are a merchant. Do you ever put on a sale?" The merchant smiled. "I see," said he, "Stimulate business, stimulate business."

It is necessary to stimulate business. Everybody in this country belives in a business revival. There are signs of such a revival now and nobody seems to oppose it. It is a strange thing that the intelligent men who claim to believe in God and the Bible sometimes oppose a revival of real religion.

A few years ago it looked like the Democratic party was dead. But the Democratic party put on a revival. The Republican party in America is trying to start a revival now. They know they need it. They realize their condition. You can't find a real Republican in America who is opposed to a revival in the Republican party, but you can find stewards and deacons and elders who look at the empty pews every Sunday who know that their churches are at a low ebb spiritually and yet when you talk to them about a revival, they say, "We don't believe in a revival."

"Too much excitement in religion." Have you ever heard that expression? I have held meetings in all parts of the United States and I have dealt with the people a great many years and I have decided that a man is entitled to about all the religious excitement he can stir up in this country. When a merchant's store is empty and nobody enters to patronize him, he usually gets excited. When nobody enters a lawyer's office and he hasn't any practice, the lawyer usually gets nervous. But we can have a large church roll and a magnificient house of wroship and not have ten per cent of our membership at church on Sunday morning and no strangers there either, and we can have the house practically empty on Sunday night, and then suggest that we need a revival and people say, "Oh, I don't believe in excitement."

The hour has struck when we need some real spiritiual concern. We need to get excited. According to the Bible the only thing between a sinner and hell is a heartbeat. That is a mighty little thing to be between a man and hell. What we need between us and hell is a cross and on that cross a bleeding lamb.

WHAT NEGROES ARE DOING

First Canning Demonstration Was A Success

The first canning demonstration for the training school community, last Saturday went over in a big way. It was early when the people started appearing with their vegetables from all directions. Nearly two hundred quarts of vegetables and fruits were canned.

It was marvelous to see how Miss Ruth Pardue, home demonstration agent, took the demonstration in hand and worked it to perfection. It was not long before she had acquainted the entire group of the task before them, and they were working with ease. I trust that this is the beginning of a new and perpetual movement. Surely, I shall do all I can to have these canning drives each year.

I take this opportunity in thanking Miss Kitty Clyde Austin, Miss Pardue and others who have made this blessing a reality. We have long since needed such an enterprise in our community.

Ball Ground Scraped

To make it possible for us to have a good play ground for our picnic next Saturday, Mr. Ward scraped our ball diamond the other day. We haven't been able to sod our grounds, as yet, and for that reason enumerable rocks soon emerge to the surface, making it unfit for activities. It is through the hospitality of Mr. Ward and Commissioner Duke that the scraping of our ground is made possible. If we would have the favor and best wishes of our white friends it is our purpose to show our appreciation for what we get and ask for what we want. Here is hoping that the people presiding in Commissioner Duke's district will feel proud of him at the end of his term in office.

Corn Crops Improving

I was out in the Morning Star community the other day and was very pleased to note the progress those folks are making out there with their corn crops. I want to commend Bud Barbour, Julian Wilson and Lee Clerkley for their good crops in general. Many of those folks over there are in the contest, and if they don't win somebody is going to make lots of corn.

Vetch and Peas This Fall

A number of farmers have told me that they would like very much to plant winter legumes, but they don't have the money in time. Now, the fact that you are getting a little cash for plowing under your cotton, it offers a splendid opportunity for you to put in your order for peas or vetch now. I know you are going to say, "I need this and that." This is a business proposition that is for your welfare and requires a sacrifice. Those farmers who have started this practice, there is no stopping them.

There is Anthony Holifield who saved only a few acres last year. The results are so amazing this year until he states that around forty or fifty acres will be sown in legumes this fall. Now folks, we need more folks like Holifield, who will come up, give their hands and not "back-slide." What about taking advantage of this opportunity folks? I'll see.—Benjaman Anderson.

THE WORLD'S PRIZE GAMBLER

By Sam R. McKelvie

Who has not been thrilled by the stories of the old frontier and gold discovery days? Always there was in them the current of gambling for high stakes. Without that I think those stories would have been rather flat, for there must be a reasonable motive when some bloke turns his cannon on a contemptuous contemporary and whisks him off into the sweet by and by.

The names of gamblers that took their places in history are legion, from the 49'ers to the Gold Days in the Black Hills on to Klondike. Imagination runs rife when one tries to visualize the chances that were taken by those favorite heroes of fact and fiction. We wonder what we would have done under similar circumstances. And we mourn the passing of the day when men took chances and won or lost great stakes. Just as though those days had passed?

Why, the greatest gamblers of all time are with us now, carrying on as usual. I do not mean the boys in the grain pits, or stock exchanges. True, they deal in more grain in a month than is grown in a year, and more stocks in a year than ever existed; but they are mere pikers compared with six million real gamblers I am thinking about—the farmers.

Yes sir, the American farmer is the world's prize gambler. He sits in the game day in and day out, yet he never deals the cards or has anything much to do with the results. He sows and cultivates and hopes. In a measure he can combat the elements of time and weather, but in the larger sense these are beyond his control. Always his fields are subject to the ravages of drouth, wind and hail. Same with his buildings. And when a crop is at maturity there is still the hazard of a too early frost.

The scientists and pathologists have aided him in combating the onrush of pests and disease, but in all too many cases the remedy cannot be applied soon enough, or costs too much. Vigilance, though helpful, is not a guarantee against loss, even among the most careful and painstaking farmers.

So from spring to fall and fall until spring the farmer is at the constant mercy of forces beyond his control. He can lose his crop and his months of labor in a whip stitch. His finest animals can lie down and die before he can summan relief. But worse still: He may go to market with his produce only to find that the price has declined far beyond the latest quotations when he started. Probably it as often advances, but it never seems so. And never has he anything to say about what the price shall be. He takes what the other fellow offers.

Imagine it! Every other producer knows what a given amount of material, labor and investment will yield, and every other producer makes his own price—in competition, to be sure, but nevertheless, it is a price determined upon before the commodity is offered. Not so with the farmer. He must gamble.

Is this a wail? Nothing of the kind. If it were it would not be the language of the farmer. He has lived and worked so many generations under this scheme that he would think he had been hoisted right into heaven if it were changed. Do not misconstrue. He has no intention of accepting injustices meekly, and that is why he insists on taking every possible gamble out of his marketing; but for the weather—that is a force that he is accustomed to abide by. He goes forth with the confidence of an honest sower, and more often than otherwise his efforts are well rewarded. If they are not, he still is sure that God is good and he sows again and again in the natural course of things.

The farmer is the world's prize gambler, without intending to be.—The Nebraska Farmer.

ed, so that the coming generation may become better citizens and may show all respect and reverence toward God.

Congressman W. B. Oliver was the next speaker on the morning program. In his introduction Congressman Oliver made several compliments upon Mr. Stapp. He then proceeded to make a speech of tribute to President Roosevelt and his administration. Roosevelt, was accorded by Oliver among other things an admirable character, a master mind, and a good conscience. He praised the president for his part in the great cotton reduction program and his foresight in launching the vast Tennessee Valley program. Also, just in this connection, Mr. Oliver praised Senator Bankhead for being the originator of the recent cotton reduction plan. Moreover the Congressman mentioned the $12,000,000 that has been donated by the federal government to the state for the building of roads. The speaker announced during his speech that a trip to Washington was to be given next summer to a Chilton 4-H club girl.

After Congressman Oliver finished speaking, a vocal number was rendered by Misses Hilda Hart and Marylyn Hardy, which was followed by a speech by Senator John H. Bankhead of Jasper on a phase of the economic status of the south. He stated that the most of the south's prosperity came from cotton. After showing this assertion, the senator proceeded to show that the farmer was the only producer that didn't have the power to determine what he would get for his own property. This point was declared the fundamental difference between the farmer and the manufacturer, and he declared this cotton reduction act the first step toward making the farmer the master of his own products.

Bankhead cited that since the World War the production of cotton has increased 15,000,000 acres and consumption has decreased. Increase in carryover each year has been had until in 1932 there was a 13,000,000 bale carryover. Senator Bankhead showed that at the end of the next 12 months the farmer is going to be confronted with a large surplus of cotton on the market as is now the case. The Senator was unable to complete his speech due to a message which called him away.

The afternoon program was begun by a fiddler's contest in which the following played: Ine Howell and A. A. Vance, both of Mt. Creek; Buck Culp, Dalton Cooper, Lexy Mims, Dewey Blalock, Herman Lowery, Archie Deloach, Arthur Coker, Joe Terrell, Steely Jones and the Melody Pals. The first prize was won by Ine Howell and the second prize of $1.00 was awarded to Dewey Blalock. Each one that played was given 50c. The judges were: George Guy, Fonza Vinson, and Rev. W. S. Cox.

One of the most enjoyable numbers of the entire program was the singing of little five year old Mary Elizabeth Wiggins from Birmingham. It was related in regard to little Mary Elizabeth that she raised $175 for the storm relief last year through her programs over the radio.

The first spokesman of the evening program was Marvin Durbin, who was representing the Future Farmers of America organization in Chilton County. Marvin was one of the three boys out of 3,000 in the State of Alabama that was given the national degree in this organization last year. In his short speech he gave a brief history of this organization and outlined the type of service it renders. Among other things he stated that this organization promotes thrift, cooperation, leadership and recreaion. It was related that there are only two chapters of this organization in the county, one at Isabella and one at Jemison.

After a vocal and instrumental number by Ine Howell, Clifford Manning, county-wide president of the 4-H club, spoke a few minutes on the plans and doings of the 4-H club boys in the county. Besides giving a general outline of 4-H club activities he made announcements in regard to the 4-H club picnic that is to be held at some future date, and in regard to the 4-H trip to Chicago in the early part of August. He also made announcements in regard to the county-wide 4-H exhibit to be held in Clanton beginning October 23.

At the conclusion of Clifford's address, all the 4-H Club presidents in the county that were present came to the microphone and related something of the work of their individual clubs. This was followed by a speech by Oliver Manning, state secretary of the Future Farmers of America.

Rev. J. T. Nelson, who is the oldest man in Chilton County, spoke a short time on some interesting reminiscences.

Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the extension service of Alabama, spoke a very few minutes in the latter part of the afternoon. He said that he wanted Chilton County to remember him for one thing and that was that he had helped this county to have a real farm demonstration agent. He called back to the time when a delegation from Clanton, headed by Dr. Ezell, went to Auburn to secure for Chilton a demonstration agent. Dr. Duncan spoke highly commendary of Bankhead and especially in regard to his being the originator of the vast cotton reduction plan. In the climax of his speech the extension director cited that the farmers of the South are going to get $12,000,000 more for their cotton then they would have if they had not taken advantage of this reduction plan. Dr. Duncan declares that there is a day coming when the farmer is going to be the master of cotton rather than coton being the master of him.

After the conclusion of Dr. Duncan's speech the Hon. C. W. Ashcraft, vice president of Alabama Farm Bureau, who has his headquarters in Montgomery, spoke for a short time. He declared that the farmers of the South have builded agriculture by organization until now the farmer is going to have his day. Mr. Ashcraft in his speech related that the Alabama Farm Bureau has now in its possession 60 per cent of the world's supply of legume seed. He states that there is a great scarcity of these seed this year and that Alabama has been fortunate in getting her supply contracted for before this fact was foreseen. The Farm Bureau head pleaded with the farmers to stick to the farm because it is a desirable mode of life. He showed how the heads of practically all the great enterprises in America came from the farm.

Two distinguished out of county visitors at this occasion other than those that have already been mentioned were: Hon. Will Gunter, mayor of Montgomery, and Prof. Emmett Lige Moore, district agent from Auburn.

STORES ADOPTED NRA PROVISIONS

Hours of Opening And Closing Set For Entire County at Meeting

A representative meeting of the merchants and business men of Chilton County was held at the courthouse in Clanton Monday night for the purpose of adopting a uniform code of store operations conforming to the provisions of the National Industrial Recovery Act.

V. J. Elmore acted as chairman of the meeting and C. H. Pipes, secretary.

Committees representing the different lines of business had been appointed at a previous meeting to recommend stated hours for opening and closing each class of store. This committee made a report of its recommendations.

Discussion of this report brought out a wide variance of opinions and it became evident that no agreement could be reached upon a basis of the report.

A motion was made and carried to table further consideration of the committee report. Whereupon a move was instituted to arrive at a uniform agreement of opening and closing for all places of business. Under this motion the following schedule was adopted for all stores in Chilton County:

All grocery, hardware, general merchandise, furniture stores, shoe shops and garages to open each weekday at 7:30 a.m., and close at 6 p.m., except Saturday, on which they will open at 7:30 a.m., and close at 8 p.m.

All barber shops will open at 7:30 each day and close at 6 p.m., except on Saturday, they will close at 9 p.m.

Representatives of the stores at Verbena, Coopers, Thorsby, Maplesville and Jemison agreed to abide by this schedule provided a majority of the stores at those places would agree to accept and abide by the regulations.

School Warrants Being Considered

Many teachers holding state warrants have been wondering just what disposition is to be made of them since the warrant refunding amendment passed in the recent election. Below is an excerpt of a letter from Dr. A. F. Harman, state superintendent of education, to county superintendent Little in regard to the matter:

"It is rumored that the Warrant Commission will endeavor to secure funds with which to refinance all indebtedness of the State, which is included in the Warrant Act Amendment, and that, in case this is impossible, new interest bearing warrants containing a definite maturity date will be issued in lieu of the warrants now held by the various city and county boards of education, institutions of higher learning and others.

"I have been informed that the Warant Commission will not meet until after an official count has been made of the election returns, which count will be made by the State Canvassing Board on August 2nd. This department will endeavor to keep in touch with the members of the Warrant Commission and will notify you as soon as definite information is available."

FIREMEN PLAY DAM TEAMS SOON

A negro minstrel was discussed, but no definite announcements are as yet available in regard to this.

The occasion will be repeated on some fifth Sunday near the same time next year, the Lord being willing.

Indications are good that a large number of Chilton men will be given employment in the near future by the Vizard Investment Co., of Mobile. This company owns more than 15,000 acres of timber in Chilton County, lying principally between the old Higgins Ferry and Lock 12 with three section above Lock 12. Plans are being made by the officials of this company to cut this woodland into pulp wood to be shipped to the paper mill at Tuscaloosa.

Mr. J. B. Powell, of Birmingham, representing this company, was in Clanton last Thursday to see about getting this timber estimated. He, together with Mr. E. J. Vinson, timber estimator of near Clanton, looked over a portion of this woodland. Government Loans Provided For The Owners Of Mortgaged Homes

The Home Owner's Loan Corporation, which has been formed by the Federal government to prevent mortgage foreclosures on homes, has appointed Lawrence Gerald as its lawyer in this county. W. M. Polk has been recommended as county appraiser, and he has already sent in his letter of acceptance, but as yet he has not been definitely appointed.

Conggress passed last April a Home Loan Owner's Act to amend the Federal Home Loan Bank Act. This act that was passed last spring provided for the formation of the Home Owner's Corporation, which is another of President Roosevelt's emergency measures to relieve the distressed in this time of deflation. This corporation is not only to prevent as many mortgage foreclosures as possible, but it is to aid in the redemption of mortgages that have been foreclosed in the past two years.

Any borrower who takes advantage of this plan may have an extension of three years of the principal, if he keeps the interest paid, and the board may extend the payment of both principal and interest in case of inability to pay owing to stress of circumstances. The debt to the corporation must however be paid up completely within 15 years. The maximum aid which the corporation may give to any home owner, through the exchange of bonds for mortgages will be equivalent of 80 per cent of the value of the mortgaged property, but not exceeding $14,000. This plan is to be used only on homes valued at $20,000 or less.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation is granting this corporation $200,000,000. The government then authorizes this corporation, which is to be administered by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board to issue $2,000,000,000 in bonds running 18 years at four per cent interest with the interest guaranteed by the government.

Alabama is divided into three districts by this corporation. The centers of these are at Birmingham, Mobile, and Montgomery. Chilton County is in the Montgomery district, which is under the direction of Mr. R. E. Seibles.

The detailed functionings of this organization are yet to be worked out but the general workings of it are fairly definite. All in this county who take advantage of this plan will make application first of all to Mr. Seibles at Montgomery. The application will then be referred to the county appraiser, who, after he has evaluated the property will refer the title of the property to the approval of the county lawyer, Mr. Gerald. After the title to the property has been approved, the application will be forwarded to the Federal headquarters for final approval. The loan will then be made and the mortgage on the property transferred to the corporation.

Jones Child Died In Auto Accident

Ruben, six year old child of Rastus Jones, who formerly lived in Chilton County, was kiled suddenly Saturday morning when a car struck him in Sylacauga. Funeral services were held Sunday at 3 p.m. at New Harmony Church about three miles north of Clanton. A Methodist preacher of Sylacauga conducted the services, and the burial was in charge of a Sylacauga Funeral Home.

The child met his death while walking across Tuscaloosa Street in Sylacauga. He was struck by the bumper of a car when he walked from behind a wagon into the middle of the street. The car knocked the child against the curbing of the street and crushed his skull. Also the child's neck and one arm were broken. It is reported that a man by the name of Brown was driving the car that killed the child.

Mr. Rastus Jones, the child's father, is a native of Chilton County, but he has been in Sylacauga for some time working in a cotton mill there. Mrs. Jones is a daughter of the late Coke Sharbutt.

WATERMELON WEIGHS 82 LBS.

Mr. Evan Parrish, at Southern Seed & Plant Co., is displaying the largest watermelon ever brought to Clanton, so far as we have been able to learn. It was said to weight 86 pounds when brought in, but Mr. Parrish says that it now weights 82 pounds.

The melon was raised by Harold Mims, son of G. C. Mims, of Thorsby Route 1. The variety is Louisiana Sweet. The young man said that it was the first one pulled from the patch, and that he expects to get some larger ones later on.

The largest one last year, and the champion up to that time, was a Schochler, weighing 76 pounds.

NOW DESTROYING COTTON ACREAGE

Pay Checks Will Be Coming to Chilton Farmers Before Long

It is announced by Mr. Stapp that he has completed the 31,044 contracts with farmers of Chilton county, and that out of this number the inspectors were unable to come to agreement with only 30 growers or lien holders. Notices of acceptance have been issued to all the farmers as fast as their contracts have been completed. However, there are yet a few permits to be delivered.

The retiring of cotton is expected to be completed this week. Inspectors are to begin next week their check up to see whether or not growers have destroyed the cotton on the correct acreage under contract. On this inspection trip each grower is to sign a statement that he has fulfilled his contract. The inspector will sign a similar statement and then will report to Mr. Stapp. These statements will be forwarded to Washington together with the recommendation of County Agent Stapp that the growers be paid immediately. Checks will mailed from Washington to the individual growers. In case of liens of any type both parties must endorse the check before it can be cashed. It is believed that all payments will be made in the next fifteen or twenty days, if the retiring of cotton is completed this week.

Mr. Stapp points out the importance of complete destruction of cotton in order that no one may be embarassed with reports that he has allowed his cotton to open and has picked it. If the cotton should be allowed to remain in the field half destroyed, or be taken to the barn and there open, someone might be able to give circumstantial evidence that would convict one of "attempting to defraud the government."

It is advised that a stalk cutter be run over the rows to cut the cotton down, and that a turning plow be run twice to the row or a middle buster once to the row. It is advised that by turning under this green crop one will be able not only to hide the cotton but at the same time be able to help the land several dollars' worth per acre and destroy the weevils.

Mr. Stapp is sending out a letter this week advising all farmers to destroy their cotton at the earliest possible date. It is suggested that while there is a good season in the ground is the best time to destroy the cotton.

Notice has been given Mr. Stapp from Auburn that cotton makes poor hay. To farmers who expect to graze their cotton, Dr. Cary, state veterinarian, at Auburn, advises that if their cattle have not been on grass to gradually introduce them to cotton, because over-eating of green leaves and bolls may cause indigestion. Dr. Cary warns "In no case turn cattle or other grazing animals into a cotton field where the cotton has been dusted, sprayed or treated with any boll weevil poisons."

Grazing, it is annouced by Mr. Stapp, may delay payment under contract beyond a reasonable date.

Mr. Stapp states that if any farmer has failed to give the names of all parties interested in the crops under contract, he should see him at once at his office and correct this error. Failure to correct such an error, it is cautioned, would put one in the position of selling mortgaged property.

In accordance with the purposes of the National Industrial Recovery Act announcement is made by Dr. E. E. Upchurch that the pay of all employees of Upchurch Drug Company has been increased 20 per cent.

In a statement concerning his action in this matter, Dr. Upchurch said:

"I have increased pay of all my employees 20 per cent in accordance with the National Recovery program. I have not agreed to the local program of opening and closing hours for stores in this territory, because I do not believe that such a program is authorized or contemplated in the Recovery Act.

"I do not believe the Recovery Act is intended to shorten the hours when any business may be open for operation. I am willing to conduct my business in conformity with the requirements of the Recovery program, and expect to do that to the best of my knowledge and ability to understand.

GOODYEAR WILL ADD TO POWER EQUIPMENT

Akron Tire Company to Spend Half Milion Dollars on New Construction

During the next few months, Goodyear will spend more than a half million dollars in purchase of new power plant equipment and in construction of a new power plant building, representing one of the largest major construction improvements in the Akron area since the depression.

A portion of the present power plant building, back of the general office buildings, is to be torn down and six boilers, some of which have been in service since 1910, will be dismantled.

The building itself, of conventional brick-steel construction, will cost approximately $20,000 and will provide employment for 100 men during the course of erection. Award of the building contract will not be made at least another month.

The new building will house a single large boiler, capable of generating 300,000 pounds of steam per hour at a pressure of 800 pounds per square inch and a temperature of 740 degress F. Contract for the boiler, which will cost $250,000, has been awarded to Babcox & Wilcox, Barberton.

Coal will be used as fuel after being pulverized in a ball-type mill. An interesting feature is the fact that all ashes remain in a liquid state in the bottom of the boiler and are drawn off at intervals in much the same manner as the molten metal from the blast furnace. The molten ashes are cooled, solidfied and then broken up by action of a water spray, after which they are taken by conveyor to cars to be hauled away. About $25,000 will be spent on the ash handling equipment.

Water softening equipment, to remove any scale forming ingredients from water for boiler use, will cost $25,000.

Approximately $30,000 is to be spent on control equipment for synchronizing the amount of water, fuel and air that is fed to the boiler. This synchronization is necessary to get the greatest efficiency from the boiler. Extremely heavy piping will be necessary for use with the boiler and the new turbine, and it is estimated the piping installation will amount to $30,000.

Steam generated by the boiler will be conveyed to a new turbo-generating unit, costing $140,000, contract for which was recently awarded. The unit has a capacity of 10,000 kilowatts, generating at 2,300 volts.

The unit is known as a "high back pressure extraction type turbine" and will exhaust steam into a 100-pound factory steam main, the exhaust steam being utilized for heating, curing etc. It will also extract steam at 200 pounds pressure to be used to generate electric current on low pressure turbo-generating units already in use.

Additional electrical equipment, including switches, panels, controls, etc., will cost approximately $250,000.

Many other small miscellaneous items will of necessity be purchased during construction. All of the work—construction of the building, erection of the turbine and boiler, and installation of electrical equipment, piping, etc.—is expected to progress simultaneously; and November 1 has been set as the date for the new plant to begin operation.

All of the engineering department work will be handled by Goodyear's own Engineering Department.

Central Singing Society

The Central Singing Society will meet at Chestnut Creek, Coopers, next Sunday afternoon, August 6th, at 2 o'clock. This will be a regular meeting of the society and all singers have an invitation to attend. The last meeting of the society, and the first one for the past three months, was held at Friendship the fourth Sunday in July. Not many were present then on account of the rain, but it is hoped that a large crowd will attend at Coopers next Sunday afternoon.

A fine singing was held at the court house last Sunday afternoon. A. H. Glasscock of Jemison presided, and a long list of directors were called upon. The new Morris-Henson books were used exclusively; but it is hoped that a supply of the Stamps books wil be provided some time in the near future.

MRS. ELLEN C. ROLLINSON

Mrs. Ellen C. Rollinson, age 81, died last Friday morning about 6:30 a.m., at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Burt Higgins at Thorsby. Funeral services were held Saturday at 3 p.m. at Ebenezer Church about four miles southeast of Speigner. The Rev. T. C. Cassady, pastor of a Methodist church in Montgomery, conducted the services. The pall-bearers, who were nephews of the deceased, were: Harvey Jackson, B. E. and Arthur Myrick, J. B. and J. G. Richardson and A. D. Curley. The burial was in charge of Spigener Funeral Home of Clanton. The deceased is survived by two daughters; Mrs. Burt Higgins of Thorsby, and Mrs. C. F. Fano of Mt. Vernon, Ohio.

Mrs. Rollinson was not a native of Chilton County. She has been staying with her daughter at Thorsby for some time, but she formerly lived in Birmingham.

THE FRIENDSHIP SEWING CIRCLE

The Friendship Sewing Circle Club will give away the quilt at their regular meeting Tuesday, August 8. The circle will meet with Mrs. Walter Jones and everyone is invited to attend.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

God never asked any man to do anything he can't do. A friend who has helped the Bob Jones College financially said not long ago, "Dr. Bob, I haven't any money I can give you now." "Then God doesn't want you to give me any," I replied. God nevholds a collection plate in front of a man who has no money. God is intelligent and He is reasonable. I have too much sense to ask people for money when I know they haven't got it. I have never taken a collection in a poor house.

Some time ago while sitting on the front porch of a country home talking to a good old farmer friend of mine, I noticed that the farmer's daughter was driving up and down the road. About every ten minutes she would pass. One time she would be going east and the next time she would be going west. "I'd like to send my daughter to your college, but I can't afford it," the old farmed said. "Your daughter is a good chauffeur. I noticed how well she drives the car. How many miles do you suppose she drives?" I asked him. The old man paused for just a moment. "I suppose she must drive that car fifty miles a day." I was disgusted. "Do you know how much you are spending for that girl to drive the car fifty miles a day? It is costing you practically sixty dollars a month. You could educate your daughter and equip her for life for much less than sixty dollars a month."

So few people are willing to pay the price of success. Any boy or girl with a normal mind and a healthy body can make good in this country even under the world conditions. It takes an unconquerable spirit. We have graduated from our college students who had nothing except will power and faith in God. Nothing could lick them. I remember one boy who said to me, "I don't know how I'm coming back to school next year, but I'll be there". He was there on time. He has been graduated from our college and he is making good. One boy came to me at the close of the year and said, "I can't come back next year without some help." I told him I would lend him a certain amount. "I'm afraid I can't get the balance I need," he said. "If you haven't enough ability to raise that amount in three months, then I don't think it would do you much good to come back anyway." I said. He raised the money and returned the next year. It is a good rule not to help young people too much.

Misses Betty Peatree and Francis Ordway left Clanton Saturday for their homes at Birmingham and Russelville after a weeks visit with friends in Clanton.

Lesson for August 6

RUTH

LESSON TEXT—Ruth 1:6-19.

GOLDEN TEXT—Beloved, let us love one another: for love is of God; and every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God. I John 4:7.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Gift of Friends.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Ruth the Loyal.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Ruth the Loyal.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Message of the Book of Ruth.

In order to grasp the material contained in the subject there must be swept into view the whole book of Ruth. The lesson committee recognized this and assigned the book as the lesson text. However, for convenience the lesson text which is to be printed has been confined to the first chapter, verses 6-19.

I. Ruth's Connection With the Jewish Nation (1:1-5).

1. The sojourn in Moab (vv. 1-3). On account of famine in Bethlehem of Judah, Elimelech with Naomi, his wife, and their two sons sojourned in the land. During this sojourn Elimelech died, leaving Naomi, the widow, to care for two fatherless sons.

2. The marriage of the two sons (v. 4). During the sojourn the two sons fell in love with and married Moabitish women named Orpah and Ruth. For God's chosen people even to sojourn in the world exposes them to the likelihood of intermarriage of the members of the family with the people of the world.

3. The death of the sons (v. 5). In a brief time, three widows were left in the one family relation. This family went to Moab to escape trouble, only to have their troubles greatly increased. When God's people go into the world to escape difficulties they are sure to suffer in consequence.

II. Naomi's Return to the Land of Judah (vv. 6-14).

Because of the chastisement that was sent upon Naomi, she resolved to return to her country. The purpose of God's chastisement is to cause his children to return unto him.

When the time came for Naomi to go, Ruth and Orpah accompanied her for a distance. This she permitted, but deetrmined to place before them frankly the difficulties that would confront them. Having laid the matters before them, she urged them to turn back. As much as Naomi loved her daughters-in-law, she would not have them go with her without knowing fully what their decision meant.

III. Ruth's Noble Choice (vv. 16-18).

This choice on her part meant:

1. No chance to marry again. In that day to be unmarried was the greatest disgrace. Furthermore, it was against God's law for the Jews to marry outside of their own people.

2. She must renounce her gods. Idolatrous worship could not be carried on in the land where God's people dwelt. This was delicately touched upon by Naomi when Orpah went back (v. 15). Orpah went back when it was plain that there was no chance to marry again. At this time Naomi put an additional test upon Ruth, that of giving up her religion. Ruth was equal to the occasion. Her mind was fully made up. Her very expressions have come down to us in words which "no poetry has outrivaled, and no pathos has exceeded, and which have gone through centuries with the music that will not let them be forgotten." She was determined to share Naomi's journey, her home, her God, her lot in life and her grave in death, whatever that would be. It meant that she would renounce her heathen gods, and worship Jehovah.

IV. Blessings Which Attended Ruth's Choice (chaps. 2-4).

1. She found the true God (1:16). Instead of her heathen gods who were unable to help her, she now had a living God—the God of Israel.

2. She found human friends (chap. 2). As she went to glean she was led to the field of Boaz, a man of wealth and grace. The servants treated her with consideration. Even Boaz gave instructions for special consideration to be given her.

3. A good husband and a happy home (chaps. 3, 4). She not only secured a husband, but a man of God who had an abundance of this world's goods.

4. An honored place in the Israelitish nation (4:13-17). Though she had to forsake her own people, she became one of a nobler people.

5. She became a link in the chain of Christ's ancestry (4:18-22, cf. Matt. 1:5). The one who fully decides for Christ and gives up all for him shall receive a hundredfold in this life, and in the world to come eternal life.

The Holy Spirit

There is only one inlet of power in the life; just one inlet—the Holy Spirit. He is power. To yield to his mastery, to cultivate his friendship, to give him full swing—that will result in what is called power. One inlet of power—the Holy Spirit in control.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

One of the reasons usually given by the nations which owe Uncle Sam for money advanced during the closing months of the World War, why we should not try to collect the sum is that Uncle Sam did not come into the war until late and consequently did not take his full share of the sacrifice necessary to defeat the Central Powers. The obvious answer of course is that the United States did not help start the war, which had a wholly European origin, and was not called to enter until our rights as a neutral had been repeatedly violated. The declaration of war itself, showed that we did not enter to "make the world safe for democracy" but to preserve American rights on the high seas.

But aside from all this, secret documents are now coming to light which show that it might not have been necessary to fight that last year of the war, which resulted in so many American loans to Europe had it not been for the territorial ambitions of some of the allied nations, who were anxious to absorb a great deal of the real estate and population which had previously belonged to Central Powers. For example, letters recently made public by the state department indicate that the war may have been dragged out longer by some allied squabbling over the spoils. This recently led Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to state:

"These letters show definitely that our European allies were fighting no war for the United States during that last year. They were fighting for their own aggrandizement, arguing among themselves as to a division of booty, and now they seek to make the United States pay the bill. There is not much question left that the United States was a catspaw, during the last year of the war at least."

It is well known, of course, that offers of peace emanated from Austria and Hungary before they came from Germany. Regarding these, commenting on the correspondence made public by our state department former Hungarian Foreign Minister Gustav Gratz said: "In June, 1918, former President Wilson received the first Austro-Hungarian offer of peace through the King of Spain. This offer was repeated in September. All offers were refused by the Italians and French for reasons of territorial aspirations." In addition, Dr. Karl Renner, only surviving member of the Austrian peace declaration, declared the imperial government made peace offers in September, 1918, but the allies rejected them. It was evident that neither France nor Italy desired peace." Just how many thousands of lives and how much destruction of property could have been spared had the European nations listened to the peace overtures, is of course a matter for speculation only. But when it comes to a matter of debt adjustment, the facts as to the prolongation of the war should be taken into consideration. Evidently some of our allies needed the money not "to save the world, including America, from imperialism and slavery," but to assure for the victors the territory which they had been coveting since long before the war.

Evidently European diplomacy, coupled as it always is with European national ambitions, is entirely too deep for Americans to comprehend. We may be all right in a diplomatic contest, when it comes to working on the surface and in the sunlight, but we are entirely too innocent to comprehend the second and third cellars of European diplomatic intrigue. We may be good at fighting but we are not so good at figuring. That is evidenced by the success Europe has had, up to this time, in getting us to pay the bigger part of the costs of the war—without any sort of compensation.

AN INTERNATIONAL NUISANCE

Hugh Gibson, who has been transferred, presumably in the esoteric procedure of the state department, from Belgium to Brazil, has contributed for public intelligence some remarks on unofficial ambassadors which are both characteristic and worthy the attention of his fellow Americans. They are characteristic, we think, because Mr. Gibson is one of our diplomats who seems to have remained American. His representation of American interests at the naval conference of 1927 is remembered by all Americans who favor the maintenance at least of our naval position. His remarks are worthy of our attention for they are a reminder from a man who has first hand experience of the possibilities of the apologetic American as a real nuisance.

Mr. Gibson says these individuals who constitute themselves unofficial ambassadors have given the impression abroad that American opinion is convinced we ought not to be paid and do not expect payment of the debts.

This has impressed the press and public abroad and obviously has made it more difficult for government to conform their action to the realities. The people abroad, convinced by these self-appointed representatives of American opinion that we do not expect any payment, naturally demand that their government shall make no payments whatever or enter into no commitment for any payment. This makes the task of our official representatives, the task of diplomatic negotiation and agreement, unnecessarily difficult.

We do not know any way to stop this misrepresentation by Americans save by exposing them to unpopularity and rebuke at home and by warning the European press and public that it is misrepresentation. The latter is difficult because Europe wishes to believe the apologetic Americans. As for the Americans who talk down their own country for the sake of a garden party invitation or a condescending nod from any titled nonenity, there is not much to be done with them. Many are expatriates who even when they are home associate with their like. Perhaps Ambassador Gibson's rebuke will help.—Chicago Tribune.

SAVING AND SPENDING

The end of the first week of the new fiscal year finds the government seeking to reduce one set of costs and to expand another. About 8,000 federal employes have been dismissed at a time when the government is preparing to spend upward of $3,000,000,000, necessary, in order to create employment. The navy is putting ships in the drydock to save operating expenses, and at the same time inviting bids for new construction. The army is trimming its activities in the field of public works, but the new administrator of public works has announced that $400,000,000 is ready for distribution to the states for enterprises approximately similar to those which the army is discontinuing. A system of furloughs was put into operation in the postoffice department on the same day that another federal agency predicted that at least 100,000 men will be at work within six weeks on road construction."

To many observers the situation is doubtless confusing. The administration seems to be pursuing two contradictory policies at the same time, spending with one hand what it saves with the other. Its spokesmen insist, however, that there is a consistent logic in its plans: that the government must spend heavily in order to spread employment and increase purchasing power, and that it cannot safely embark on such a course without first bringing the "ordinary" budget into balance it is the routine costs which are now being cut and the emergency outlays which are to be expended. With this in view, the treasury has introduced a "double budget system" of bookkeeping. The administration argues, with much force, that it is fair to draw a distinction between charges which constitute a lasting burden on the treasury and emergency expenditures which can be shut off when the need for them has passed.

Meantime, however, the government must continue to borrow. The president has been authorized to spend $3,700,000,000 during the current fiscal year, wholly outside the regular budget. This is more than eight times the combined deficits of Great Britain, France and Germany in 1933—an interesting fact in the light of recent American advice to European governments to live within their incomes.—New York Times.

CONFERENCE COLLAPSE DOOMS ALL FUTURE MEETINGS

As the great World Economic Conference, the most impressive international gathering since Versailles, staggers onward toward its final collapse, one is forced to ask whether the conference method can be continued at all or not. Far back in the bright dawn of the new peace conference method appeared by magic as the golden answer to the obstinate problems of international legislation. All the intractable questions of modern society were to be abolished by conferring upon them; the "meeting of minds" was to solve every difficulty produced by the divergence of interests, and it seemed impossible that other people's statesmen could be stupid enough not to agree with one's own point of view if only they could all be got together in the same public building, with a proper battery of newspaper publicity concentrated upon them. But it has not worked out that way. The international scenery of the last ten years is strewn with the wreckage of conferences. Even now the disarmament conference is seen permanently becalmed at Geneva, that Sargasso sea where the weed-hung hulks of so many other conferences endlessly revolve.

Experience since the war seems to indicate that the mere act of convening large numbers of eminent statesmen in one place is not a soverign cure for ills of the world, but has, on the contrary, frequently served to aggravate the disease. In two cases the international conference seems a useful legislative mechanism. It is a satisfactory device for ratifying decisions already taken or for recognizing and regularizing situations which may have been generally accepted by the peoples and governments concerned. It may also be effective as an instrument for achieving new solutions when, as at the Paris peace conference, some solution is absolutely imperative and any solution will consequently be preferable to none at all. These are, however, compartively easy cases; in the great central questions of human destiny which the conference was confidently expected to decide it has been a lamentable failure.—New York Herald Tribune.

One of our motoring friends says he has been against the French ever since somebody told him they invented the word "detour."

MAN IN THE MOON

Looks Over All—Overlooks None

Little Germany

Well, foks, I'm scouting around a little right now. I'm staying at Cullman and learning photography. My teacher is a German with plenty of experience, and when I have finished under his instructions, you can take it from me, I will surely be able to do good work. You would think so, too, if you could see me doing things over and over again until I am perfect on them. No halfway methods go with this man. He does things exactly right or not at all. And I find this the case with about all the people around here. Cullman is a German town, you know, and the people are very thorough with their work, no matter how little or how big the job may be. We might call Cullman a "little Germany." From time to time I expect to tell about a few things around up here—the town itself, the bells, the schools, churches etc. Watch the old "clyum" next week—I expect to tell you all about "Little Jerusalem."

"Like A Letter Form Home"

The Union-Banner is sent out each week to hundreds of people all over the country, and where there are not enough subscribers to have a bundle, the paper is rolled and mailed in a "single wrapper." On this wrapper, in a neat little box, just under the address, is printed the following: "Here's Your Union-Banner—Like A Letter Form Home." I never knew just how true that was until I got my copy last Thursday morning. Work or no work, I had to sit down for a while and digest all the news from home. Some big guy once said: "You can bring in all the fine magazines you wish; you can pile on them the biggest and latest editions of big dailies; you can include any kind of reading you wish; but when you peep in on the man away from home, you'll always find him reading his home-town paper first." And that fellow knew exactly what he was talking about. I think I even read some of the ads last week, and some people will tell you they are never read. The home-town paper is really "a letter from home."

Consistency?

"Consistency—thou art a jewel." Ever hear that? Evidently, the framers of the cotton production control project have not. Whether or not the project will have the desired effect of increasing the price of the coming cotton crop is not the question. The aim of it all is to cut down the production of cotton, and so raise the price, which everyone sincerely hopes it will do. But one man had this to say: "I intend to plow up ten acres of cotton, to help cut down production. Just as soon as I finish with that, I expect to go about my work of spreading weevil poison over the rest of my crop, so that it will make more. Now, I can't see through all that right clear, but that's the way they want it done, so I'll do it." And, so, there's the whole thing. He will work one day to decrease production, and the next day he will work and use costly chemicals to try to increase production. How far will that get in the matter of production decrease? Like trying to ge somewhere by walking back and forth in front of your yard fence. We'll do lots of work and cover lots of ground, but we will get nowhere.

Farm Aid By Radio

Day by day, countless radio programs are spewed out into the air, and lots of them are the so-called "farm programs." Some of these may be good, and are, I think. Maybe none of them are really hurtful. But, many of them are just plain useless. Of late I have listened to a few such programs, given for the help of farmers, when there was not one iota of practical advice given. Just a few nights ago, some big gun was on the air for a solid hour telling farmers how they should manage this and that. What a grand speech he made. His voice was perfection. His grammar was perfect. And he shot words that the rest of us common mortals couldn't even sneeze, let alone pronounce and understand. But for real practical help and advice to the "dear farmers—the bulwark of civilazation" the whole thing wasn't worth a thin dime. Judging from the speech that big shot made, de don't know a jizzerip from a juniper tree—about farms, farmers, and farm problems. Radio farming!

Our Big, Pretty Bubble

"NIRA"—the National Industrial Recovery Act, is all the talk just at present. And there is much "hope" for its success, but few really "expect" that it will. Most people, including those who really hope it will succeed, unconsciously bare their lack of faith in it when they say: "Well, I really hope it will do good." The whole thing seems to be one big bubble, getting bigger and bigger. If it happens to manage to steer clear of the thousand and one needle points which might puncture it, and if it doesn't get so big that it will just naturally burst from pressure from within, then it may float. But the chances are against it. However, if it does go through as hoped and planned, it will do good. We must consider it a "recovery bubble," an inflated affair which can stand just so much pumping pressure. By pumping slow and testing often we will have a better chance of keeping the thing afloat, while reckless inflation with no tests as we go along might burst the big, pretty bubble.

A Living Souvenir

One man in Massachusetts will aways have a souvenir of the present stirring times. A few days ago he was without a job, just as he had been for the past three years. And then came "NIRA"—not the Recovery Act, but a nine-pound daughter, which he named in honor of the National Industrial Recovery Act. And I suppose he had good reason for this, for on the very day that the new daughter was born, the father was called back to work, and at a living wage. He says she is his good luck charm, and in the future when things look a little dark, he will just think of "Nira," and then things will be OK again. Maybe there will be a flock of "Niras," if his combination works.—Man in the Moon.

THE NAVY IS LOOKING UP

The latest announcement of the Navy Department that it is the intention of the department to strive for a United States navy second to none, is one in which every American can rejoice, coming as it does, after the recent statement as to the amount of construction which is to be undertaken from funds which will be available under the national rehabilitation program. It may be said in all fairness that Uncle Sam has been indeed fortunate in his last two secretaries of the navy, Senator Swanson, who is the present official, and Mr. Adams, who served under President Hoover. Both gentlemen have shown a concern for the welfare of the United States Navy which has earned for them the praise and thanks of all citizens who believe that our best national insurance is a good navy.

The program announced two policies which are regarded as of paramount importance: first that it is the purpose of the Navy Department "to develop the navy to a maximum in battle strength and ability to control the sea in defense of the nation and its interests."

The second purpose stated is one designed to help carry out the first. It is to the effect that it is the plan of the Navy Department "to further the development of two home naval bases on each coast. This was a bit of naval policy first outlined by Secretary Adams in the previous administration. It is reported unofficially in Washington that the bases in the Atlantic Coast would probably be at Norfolk and Narragansett Bay and that on the Pacific Coast at San Francisco Bay and Bremerton Navy Yard, Puget Sound, Washington.

The four locations are said to be admirably adapted for the purpose. The two proposed bases on the Atlantic Coast, it is said by naval officials, would hold every ship in the world, and the Bremerton Yard would be considerably enlarged. The strategic position of San Francisco Bay is too well known to need comment.

The principles enunciated for the general naval policy include creation and operation of a navy second to none, under the treaty provisions; to organize the navy for possible operations on both oceans; to maintain the Marine Corps at necessary strength; to protect American lives and property; to support America especially the development of American foreign commerce and the merchant marine; to cooperate fully with other departments of the government.

Certainly there can be no complaint with any of the purposes outlined. Only a few of them can be given here. There can be no argument over the assertion that in the present disturbed state of world affairs, the cheapest and best insurance Uncle Sam can have is a navy second to none. It is to be hoped therefore that Secretary Swanson will use every dollar available under the public works program to expand the navy in size and usefullness. That he intends to do so may be taken for granted in light of his patriotic pronouncements on the subject of our naval defense.

THE HOME MARKET

What is the best method of breaking down foreign trade barriers? By building up home consumption.

If the United States were to say, "Well, we will go along on a mederate program of international cooperation, but the real key to the enigma is developing the home market," it would have a really practicable program.

When American families are buying goods, American factories are making 90 per cent of those goods. In order to make them they must have materials and substantial proportions of those materials must come from abroad.

Orders for raw materials from abroad give other countries the funds with which to buy our materials—cotton, wheat, manufacturers and other commodities.

There is no substitute for a sound, growing home market.

Syracuse makes many articles that go into the export business. A good example is typewriters. It can make better typewriters than other countries and can sell them at a competitive price. If our home market is active and industries are busy supplying it, these industries buy goods from countries which use receipts for them to buy typewriters.

Most of the imports of the United States come in duty free today. Rubber, coffee, hides, sugar, silk paper base stocks and copper are our chief imports; they account for 37 per cent of all imports. Sugar and cattle hides are taxed, while copper must pay an internal levy. Raw materials and crude foodstuffs and crude manufacture make up 60 per cent of this country's total imports. A total of 65 per cent of imports enter duty free.

A large portion of world trade is in raw or semi-finished materials. As far as this country is concerned, more than half of it enters free of duty. Imports, which provide better balances for other countries, depend largely upon the state of business at home.

Take care of the world market and foreign trade will take care of itself.—Syracuse Post-Standard.

The Man on the Corner

Some Sights He Saw— and Some He Saw Not

Back Home To Stay

As you may or may not have noticed, The Man On the Corner has missed the line-up several weeks lately. I have received complaints from some while others appear to have enjoyed my absence. I have frolicked quite a bit this month. First was the fishing trip to the Gulf. I got peeled off from that just in time to make the Legion Convention in Tuscaloosa. I didn't get peeled in Tuscaloosa. I got soaked. I mean, of course, it rained very hard every day we were there.

The Veterans Hospital

While in Tuscaloosa I had the pleasure of a visit to the boys at the Veterans Hospital. Several of our Chilton County boys are there for treatment. Some of them were able to be up and walking about. Others could not get out of bed. Edgar Baker met me on the campus. I hugged his neck. He was one of my war service buddies. He carried us to see all of our acquaintances in the hospital. Among them were Dee Bates, Morris Logan, William Perry, a Franklin boy from Bibb County, (Joe's cousin), Le Roy Jones, and many others we had not seen before.

Judge Foshee Here

Judge Enoch Foshee, of Lowndesboro, was a visitor to Clanton last Sunday. While the editor did not have the pleasure of seeing Mr. Foshee personally, he, nevertheless, remembered us by leaving a dollar in the hands of a friend, to be applied on his subscription. Thank you, Judge. Hope to see you next time you come, and also hope you will come more often.

The National Recovery Act

For the past week there has been much discussion among business men of Clanton about the N. R. A. All shades and degrees of opinion have been expressed about its application. One universal and general purpose has pervaded the discussions. Every one sought to know how it applied to his business so that full co-operation might be rendered. One by one the puzzles have been solved as best they could. New working hours have been adopted. Wages have been increased. Some additional men have been put to work. While we may not be fully correct in our interpretation, we are sincere in our motive and aim to co-operate.

Going To The Rodeo

Dr. Gragg and Dr. Upchurch are slated to attend the Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo at Mobile next week. I envy them this pleasure. Having had my "feet wet" in the Gulf one time this summer, I shall ever long for the day when I shall have the pleasure again. Luck to you fellows. I insist that Upchurch does not cut his line when he getes hooked up with a big cavalla. Wonder if he really meant that anyhow.

Mell At Home Also

Mell Martin, like myself, has been considerably here and yonder this month. Since we returned from fishing he has been all over the country working on the N. R. A code for the Alabama Funeral Directors. He returned from his latest journey Monday night in the hope that he may once again assume the role of a peaceful, undisturbed citizen of the old home town of Clanton.

Thank The Mail Carrier

Another instance proves it pays to be friendly with your mail carrier. Tuesday morning Jack Mims, carrier on Route 5, came into our sanctum laboring under the weight of a 60-pound watermelon. "Here is a little experssion of appreciation I brought you boys. You have been good to me and I want to do something to show my appreciation." We had thought we could never repay Jack for his kindness to us during the many years he has served our subscribers. And here he comes getting us deeper in debt to him. Thanks, awfully, Jack. It was a dandy melon. We just ate it about an hour ago. I am as moist as a sponge.

One time when figures won't lie is when they are in bathing suits.

It used to be the dressmaker who padded figures. Now it is the bank cashier.

There is a child in Catalonia, Spain, with six arms and hands. He ought to be successful at thumbing rides when he grows up.

Cheer up. If the wolf is still at the door maybe he is only looking for a little of that 3.2 per cent.

Well if the price of bread gets too high we can go back to the old fashioned corn pone.

The national administration will not find it possible to give every deserving Democrat a job until postoffices are numerous as filling stations.

After all, it often doesn't take much to please the modern girl. Take the 1933 bathing suit for example.

DID YOU SEE THIS?

A United Press dispatch printed recently in The New York Herald-Tribune says:

"Robert L. Vann, negro newspaper publisher of Pittsburgh, and staunch friend of President Roosevelt, has been appointed special assistant to Attorney General Cummings, to be in charge of the claims division of the Department of Justice."

"Vann did yeoman service among the negroes for Roosevelt in the last campaign. His appointment to a major office in the Democratic administration is regarded by political observers as a reward for his work among negro voters during the last campaign. Vann, through his Pittsburgh paper, was credited with influencing negro voters in Pennsylvania and adjacent states. His appointment was recommended by Joseph F. Guffey, Pennsylvania Democratic leader, and Warren Van Dyke, State Democratic Chairman."

Did you see the above quoted news item in any of the Alabama Democratic newspapers? Doubtless you did not.

If it had been a Republican appointing a negro to high office, you would have seen it in big head lines.

The Democratic daily papers of Alabama want us to think that Republicans are the only politicians who ever favor the negro with any degree of political consideration. They do not fool people that way any more.

For Farmers and Farm Owners The New Deal Is Now On

To pay debts and for agricultural purposes you may mortgage your farm lands and obtain money at 5 per cent interest for ten years or more. But the loan may be repaid at any time. For three years only the interest will be required, payable annually.

THERE IS NO STOCK SUBSCRIPTION on loans secured by first mortgages when the amount borrowed is $1,300 or less; but this type of loan will not be made for less than $300.

You may borrow up to 75 per cent of the NORMAL VALUE of your land, either by first or second montgage; if by second mortgoge from $300 to $5,000. However, the total indebtedneses secured by the farm must not exceed seventy-five per cent of its value.

The loans described above are made by the Land Bank Commissioner, sponsored by the United States Government.

A fee of $11 must be paid to the Local Correspondent when the application is filled and filed; this pays the cost of the application and the appraisal fee. An additional fee of 14 cents should be paid to defray the cost of remitting the appraisal fee (by money order) to the Land Bank Commissioner.

THIS IS A NEW SYSTEM OF MONEY LENDING ON FARM PROPERTY.

There has never been any better farm loan system known to this country. However, every dollar if this money must be repaid, and cannot be borrowed unless it is needed and secured.

The foregoing described loan is NOT made by the Federal Land Banks, but is made by the Land Bank Commissioner. The Federal Land Banks are making loans, but only on FIRST MORTGAGES.

Clanton Merchant Says Local Plan Is Not According To NRA Purpose

Editor Union-Banner:

Will you please allow me a small space to say a few words to the people about the action taken Monday night by the merchants and business men of the county in attempting to co-operate with the President in his plans to bring prosperity back to the country?

First, I will say I presume the ones who had it in charge were doing what they thought best, but I am forced to believe that the very thing that was done will tend to defeat the purpose of the President in his plans. I think we made a very great mistake and it really looks foolish to me.

As I understand the rules as laid down, I think it the most unreasonable, unjust and uncalled for proposition I ever heard of. In the first place, I do not think there is anyone around Clanton who works enough, much less too much. Then why cut out some of the time we are putting in? As to the eight hour law and the higher wages, I have no objections, but I do not think it was ever intended to work the eight hours and then quit, but rather think it was the purpose to extend the hours worked and put on more help.

I presume most people in this county who are running a business are doing so for the purpose of making a living for themselves and families. I do not believe the President intends to shut up any kind of business for any length of time. I understand his purpose is to increase business and put more folks to work and increase their wages, for which I have no objection at all, and believe it should be done where possible.

But I do object to the large corporations who have plenty of money, and who have always been favored, such as the L. & N. Railroad, Alabama Power Co., and others, who stay open all the time, and a little fellow like myself and some others whom I can name, who do their main business in the morning by 7:30 or 8 o'clock and from 5 in the evening until dark and after, and especially at this season of the year.

I admit that businesses like V. J. Elmore, W. H. Sartor and others are done between the hours above mentioned, and of course, they can not object to the proposition, except as I see it the proposition will injure their neighbors, and I think they are men who do not wish to do that.

Another thing, my friends, we are right up to the cotton season in this county. Doesn't it look foolish for the farmers of this county and adjoining counties to haul their cotton here some 10 or 15 miles and can not get it ginned except from 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., or have it ginned at 5 p.m. and the stores all closed and the cotton buyers all gone and the farmers have to go 15 miles back home and come again the next day to sell his cotton and do a little trading?

Then I will ask is it fair to close all the other businesses here and to permit the ginners and cotton buyers to continue to run and stay open? In fact, do you not think the whole matter is, in a way, unjust to everyone concerned, and even to the plan of the President? And really, do you not think it will have a tendency to thwart the plan of the President?

I will further say I do not think we should promise or pretend to do a thing and not do it. Therefore, as I see it, we have imposed a great hardshipon some of us merchants and on all the cotton farmers, with nothing to be gained by it. Nevertheless, I am willing to abide by the majority and will do so as long as the others do; but I think we should work every hour we can and put on more hands and give them a chance. —Respectrully, W. H. Hayes.

Birds As An Aid to Agriculture

Birds, by reasan of their beauty of form and plumage and their attractive songs, have always appealed to man in an esthetic way. In recent years, as a result chiefly of scientific investigation made of their food habits by the biological survey, most of them have been shown to be valuable as destroyers of insect pests of farm and forest.

Of the greatest interest, perhaps, to the Southern farmer are the birds that destroy the cotton boll weevil and vegetable garden pests, in which class are included 66 species. In summer the birds rendering the best service as weevil destroyers are the quail, oriole, swallow, flycatcher and bull-bat. The quail seek out the weevils in their hiding places on the cotton plants, while the other birds mentioned capture the insects in the air. In winter a host of birds render valuable service by hunting out and destroying boll weevils in their hiding places under rubbish, in crevices in the ground, or in the bark of trees. Among the species most useful at this season of the year in the destruction of weevils may be mentioned the meadowlark or "field lark," the various blackbirds or grackles, the pipit or "titlark," the Carolina wren, the tufted titmouse, the Savannah sparrow, and the kildeer.

As conservators of the forest the various woodpeckers rank very high. Important service in this respect is rendered also by the nuthatches, the wrens, titmouse, and creepers.

On the farm and in the orchard a great host of insectivorous birds constantly prey upon the numerous pests which infest the foliage, bark, or roots of cultivated crops, and it is doubtless true that without the aid of the birds, insects would become so numerous that the raising of crops would be impossible. Careful investigation of the food habits of the hawk and owl, usually killed on sight without discrimination, has shown that with the exception of three or four species, these much-maligned birds are really friends of the farmer, their food being composed in large part of insects, field mice, rats, snakes, frogs and crawfish. The only birds of prey which habitually destroy poultry or game birds are the cooper hawk and the sharp-shinned hawk (blue darter) and the great horned owl. All other hawks and owls are worthy of protection, except in the rare instances when an individual bird acquires a taste for chicken.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

TO ALL BORROWERS WHO HAVE PUT UP COTTON AS COLLATERAL AGAINST LOANS GRANTED BY THIS OFFICE

You are hereby advised that all persons who have put up cotton as collateral against loans granted by this office are given a right to sell the cotton.

The right to sell this cotton as mentioned in the first paragraph takes the place of any other arrangement about the sale of the cotton of which you may have heard.

Borrowers may sell the cotton whether or not the cotton is sold for enough to completely pay off the loan.

Of course, if the cotton does not bring enough to completely pay off all unpaid balances, including previous loans, the borrowers will still owe the balance. On the other hand, if the cotton is sold for more than enough to pay off unpaid balances and also all costs and expenses against the cotton, then the surplus will be returned.

The above relates to cotton put up in any year, 1931 or 1932.

Borrowers may want to know how to go about selling their cotton, and as a quick means. The folowing procedure is suggested:

Authority to sell should be in writing, signed by the borrower. Any telegram authorizing sale should be confirmed in writing by the borrower.

The Associations, as well as this office, are free to act upon telegrams before the receipt of written confirmation.

In case a borrower put up his cotton as collateral with one or more of the cotton cooperative associations then in order to sell his cotton he should write or telegraph direct to the Association with which he put up the cotton, telling it to sell.

If a borrower put up cotton as collateral for the 1931 (or prior years) and sent the warehouse receipts direct to the Memphis office, then in order to sell that cotton he should write or telegraph to the "American Cotton Cooperative Association, New Orleans, Louisiana," telling it to sell.

If a borrower put up cotton as collateral for the year 1932 and sent warehouse receipts direct to the Memphis office, then in order to sell that cotton he should write or telegraph direct to this office, telling it to sell.

SOIL EROSION PREVENTION UNDER PRESIDENT'S PLAN

W. D. Ellison, a soil erosion control expert of the Federal Government, made a tour of the erosion control camps in Alabama during the week just closed. The kinds of work that can be done under the President's program in connection with the control of erosion are comparatively few. The line of distinction between what is principally of public benefit and what is mainly of private concern is often difficult to determine, and frequent inspection by technical and administrative experts is highly desirable to keep the work within the proper bounds.

The erosion of soil from sloping land surfaces is one of the most harmful processes occuring in nature. It usually exists on account of the misuse or neglect of lands cleared for cultivation. Terracing is one of the obvious aids in the prevention of erosion, but this pertains almost entirely to the private interests of the individual landowner. However, of public benefits are such improvements as soil saving dams, soil conservation plantings and control ditches. These projects are often necessarily of such extent that they constitute public benefits to the community at large, The work of the President's program in these connections is therefore mainly centered upon these three things. Some localities requre but one or two of these classes of work, while in others all three are undertaken.

GAME AND FISH NEWS

Auburn, Ala., Aug. 1.—Sir Reynard must have a health certificate if he wants to be chased in Alabama.

That is the ultimatum of Dr. C. A. Cary, state veterinarian, and the Department of Game and Fisheries at Montgomery has pledged its word to back him up.

"The foxes come under wild canines, in which class they properly belong," said Dr. Cary.

"I know that a great many fox, especially those bred in captivity, have a number of diseases that we do not want in this state. I have obtained this information from a number of veterinarians who have charge of fox farms.

"I would like to have these animals come into the state with a health certificate stating they are free of disease, also free of all parasites, some of which are especially troublesome.

"I am of the opnion that bringing a fox into Alabama without a health certificate by a certified veterinarian of the state of origin, would be a violation of regulation 67 of the state livestock sanitary department.

Foxes already claiming residence in this state are not affected by the ruling.

ABLE COMMITTEEMEN DID SPLENDID WORK

Auburn, Ala., August 1.—Able and conscientious service was performed by the local committeemen intrusted with the signing of contracts in the cotton reduction campaign, according to Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the extension service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

"Some of these men worked from 16 to 18 hours a day after all preliminary questions had been cleared," Dr. Duncan said. "The reports show further that the committeemen carefuly inspected the fields offered and tried to assure the government representatives of securing a fair and average proportion of the cotton being grown. They did not hesitate to reject fields on which the cotton was below the average or would produce less than 100 pounds to the acre. It is evident that the county agents selected a group of high class citizens to work in the campaign."

Dr. Duncan said some errors were made in the preparation of contracts and in estimateing the yield of cotton, but this was expected in a campaign of such magnitude and intensity. However, with only a few exceptions, the local committees did an excellent job.

Towards the close of the campaign the governmental effort to reduce the cotton surplus grew rapidly in popularity, and those who refused to cooperate began to feel the weight of popular opinion. Had it been possible to continue the work longer, an even larger number of planters would have pledged part of their acreage for reduction purposes. This in itself, said Dr. Duncan, testified to the excellent manner in which the committeemen had attended to their job.

"It is my opinion that these local committeemen will continue their good efforts until all the cotton pledged is removed from production and the campaign is finally closed," he concluded.

FARM PEOPLE TO BE AT AUBURN

Auburn, Ala., Aug., 1.—This town will be the mecca of farm men and women, August 29, 30, and 31, which are the dates set for farmers' week, annual outing and short course for Alabama farm people.

The central theme of the program this year will be leadership, according to Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the extension service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. Leaders among the farm people will be recognized at impressive ceremonies.

Heading the list of prominent speakers who will discuss timely agricultural topics will be Senator John H. Bankhead and Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation. Both are expected to discuss aggricultural legislation. Mr. O'Neal led the forces of organized agriculture in their successful attempt to obtain helpful legislation at the recent session of congress; and Senator Bankhead piloted the agricultural adjustment act through the senate and assisted in getting it passed through the house.

Annual meetings of the Alabama council of home demonstration clubs and the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation are to be held during the three-days session.

Col. J. Litt Edwards, Selma, Route 1, president of the farm bureau, and Mrs. M. L. Batson, Homewood, president of the home demonstration club council, will report on the work of the two organizations of farm people during the past year.

While here the farm men and women will visit and study the agricultural experiment station plots and laboratories where new facts on agriculture are being discovered. Director M. J. Funchess of the experiment station and members of his staff are arranging a special program for the instruction of visitors.

The ancient Chaldeans sat behind the cow when milking. We learn that except for a wise change of position no other important variation in milking methods were made for several thousand years.

The first mechanical milker, though unsatisfactory and consequently unsuccessful, was devised about a hundred years ago.

Miss Anna Baldwin in 1878 invented the first successful milking machine and her invention, with alterations, has come down to the present day.

The early milking machines used milk tubes, later employed pressure, and modern machines make use of suction. The successful machine is a product of the inventive genius of the past forty or fifty years.

FARM AND GARDEN QUERY BOX

(By K. C. Davis, Knapp School of Country Life, Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn.)

Q.—Farmers sometimes say that we should keep up with the experiment station findings. What is meant by this? Please explain.

A.—There are over fifty agricultural experiment stations in the United States, issuing bulletins constantly, which are giving new discoveries in farming methods. For example, the Michigan station at East Lansing, Michigan, has just issued a technical bulletin, No. 132, on "Testing Soils." In this bulletin simple methods are described and pictured for the testing of samples of soil on the farm without taking the samples to a chemical laboratory. The tests are very simple, and they tell the farmer exactly what the soil needs and what it does not need. To place this bulletin in the hands of a wise farmer would be worth hundreds of dollars to him if he would make use of it. Get your own experiment station to send you the bulletins they issue from time to time.

Q.—When is the best time and what are the best methods for the sowing of alfalfa in the south?

A.—Prepare the ground in advance. Let it be a field, perhaps, where early Irish potatoes have been dug or where small grain was harvested this summer. Plant shallow and keep it harrowed every week until about the middle or 20th of August. Then when the soil is in good condition, it should be limed at the rate of about one ton of crushed limestone per acre. This is very inexpensive and will pay for itself abundantly. Sow twenty pounds of good alfalfa seed to the acre which should be inoculated before sowing. For inoculation, take soil from a field where alfalfa was grown before. Put half of this soil in a tub of water and stir well. Then pour off the water to avoid mud. Then put a little glue or molasses with this water and moisten the seed with the water. Seed should be allowed to dry without being in the sun. Then sow the seed in the evening or on a cloudy day and harrow it in. This sort of inoculation is very simple and costs nothing. It is far better than buying commercial inoculation from a seed dealer.

Q.—We have sometimes had bad attacks of beetles or worms which eat holes in sweet potatoes. What should we do to avoid this?

A.—This is the sweet potato weevil. In the worm it eats holes in the potatoes and often goes into the vine, living until the next year. The best remedy is to clean up the sweet potato patch thoroughly every year, thus preventing the insects from living in the vines or waste potatoes in the field. Turn hogs into the field and let them clean up the potatoes thoroughly. Feed the tops to cattle or sheep. It is best to put the sweet potatoes in a different field next year.

VERBENA WINS

The Verbena baseball club defeated Tallassee both innings of a twin bill Sunday at Tallassee. H. Rutland pitched both games for Verbena and won both games by shut outs, 5 to 0 and 1 to 0. R. Rutland led the team in hitting while Hammel and Dennis led in defensive play.

FARM WEEK AT CHICAGO WORLD'S FAIR AUGUST 13-19

The housing bureaus working in cooperation with the Farm Week Committee of A Century of Progress Exposition, at World's Fair Monday reported that a complete survey had been made of housing conditions in and about Chicago, and that definite assurance could be given that farm families can visit there for that week, August 13 to 19, inclusive, at no great expense.

First, it was pointed out, special free guide service is to be provided each morning to take farm visitors on conducted tours, showing them the exhibits of primary interest to them. These tours are to be made at no extra charge after the original admission price of fifty cents has been paid.

Eighty-five different buildings and countless dozens of other attractions may be seen for the single admission price of fifty cents, including such outstanding features as the Agriculture and Dairy buildings, Hall of Science, Hall of States, General Exhibits Group, International Harvester, Federal, Travel and Transport, General Motors, Chrysler and Firestone Buildings, Florida Orange Grove, Poultry Show, Sears Roebuck Building and many foreign pavilions, including the Japanese, Egyptian, Italian, Swedish and other pavilions.

Water sports on the lagoons and Lake Michigan, the U. S. Army camp, peony gardens, rainbow corn gardens, dahlia gardens, International Egg Laying Contest; are also included in the hundreds of free sights inside the Fair grounds.

The housing committee reports that arrangements have been made with a number of hotels, tourist camps, and private homes for accommodations at reasonable rates. M. S. Winder, executive secretary of the American Farm Bureau Federation, 58 E. Washington St., Chicago, stated that his organization would be glad to handle any inquiries regarding hotels, transportation, etc., and assured that the inquiries would be referred to reliable approved souce of information.

All the railroads have assured the Farmer's Week Committee that unusually low rates will prevail. In addition, many of them report that group tours are being arranged on county-wide scales so that the rates are even lower than excursion rates, on an "all-expense" basis.

Headlining the program for the week is Secretary of Agriculture, Henry A. Wallace who will speak on Friday, August 18. Other speakers of national import will be announced soon.

BRIEF RURAL TOPICS

Soil erosion reduces the profits of many farmers. It is now time to plan a terracing program for the fall and winter.

Apparently, boll weevils are doing less damage than usual in Alabama cotton fields but the continued rains of July are expected to increase their depredations.

On many fields where cotton was removed from production, corn, cowpeas, soybeans, velvet beans, and other food and feed crops are now growing.

MRS. IDA MAE LEWIS DEAD

On the morning of July 17th, 1933, the death angel called at the home of Grady Lewis and claimed his beloved wife, Ida Mae. She fell asleep in Jesus, her spirit leaving this body of clay and went to be with the Lord who gave it.

She was born November 2, 1902. She and her husband united with the Church of Christ in August, 1918, and were baptized by Bro. Tom Daniel. They were united in marriage on December 17th, 1925 by the same party who baptized them.

She leaves behind her husband and one child, a little girl, Marguerite, too young to know the loss of a mother, the nearest, dearest and best of all friends in this world. Mother's love is the golden link that binds youth to age. She also leaves a mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Isabelle Lessley of Jemison, Ala., three brothers, three sisters, all of Jemison, except one brother, John, in Detroit, Michigan. To these we would say "Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted."

Funeral services were conducted at Marble Valley Church of Christ, by Brother Tom Daniel. A host of friends and loved ones gathered there to pay the last tributes of respect.

Her body was laid to rest beneath a flowery bed in the Marble Valley cemetery beside the grave of her grand father and grand mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. K. T. Daniel, to await the resurrection morning. For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the trumpet of God, and the dead in Christ shall rise first, then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air; and so shall we ever be with the Lord. Wherefore comfort one another with these words.—Annie Daniel.
